The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I oppose the amendment. I am a supporter of agriculturists no doubt but not a supporter in their commission of crimes. It is a crime against the State. He will be killing animals probably worth Rs. 50,000 or more by importing cattle, which have got that infection, in that particular hat. It will thus injure hundreds and thousands of animals and owners. Therefore, in order to prevent this being done, the punishment must be deterrent. This very deterrent nature of the punishment is likely to prevent the people from bringing such animals to the hats and bazars knowing them to be infected. So I cannot but oppose the amendment.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question that clause 15 stand part of the Bill was then put and agreed to.

Clause 16.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: I beg to move that in clause 16 of the Bill, in paragraph (e) of sub-clause (I) for the words "a Veterinary Assistant" in line 1, the words "the Veterinary Assistant and the officer of the Bengal Civil Veterinary Department appointed by the Provincial Government" be substituted.

Sir, the underlying idea of my amendment is that a single officer should not be entrusted with such a responsible duty. He should have the assistance of a senior officer to collaborate with him in this matter. So I think that if the Veterinary Assistant works conjointly and in collaboration with a senior officer of the Civil Veterinary Department, that would be very helpful; otherwise it may be that an over-zealous officer may exceed the bounds of law to the utter detriment of the so-called offenders concerned.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 16 of the Bill, in paragraph (e) of sub-clause (I), for the words "a Veterinary Assistant" in line 1, the words "The Veterinary Assistant and the officer of the Bengal Civil Veterinary Department appointed by the Provincial Government" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN:

I think that the amendment is out of order. It seems to be consequential to the amendment to clause 8(I) but clause 8(i) not having been amended it becomes out of place. I oppose this amendment on this ground as well as on the ground that it is absolutely unnecessary. The Veterinary Assistant is quite enough. In every case it is not possible for any other officer to go to the rural areas and give directions to the Veterinary Assistant. So I think that the provision in the Bill is more than enough. Therefore, I say that the amendment proposed is unnecessary and is also out of order.

Is it not really out of order, Sir? Because it is really consequential on an amendment to sub-clause (i) of clause 8 of the Bill which stood in the name of the mover of the present amendment but which was not moved by him. Sub-clause (i) of clause 8 mentions only Veterinary Assistant; there is no mention of any other assistant. So this amendment is practically out of order unless clause 8(I) is also amended. On this ground as well as on the ground that it is unnecessary, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: In any case, you have not taken that objection at the beginning.

The question before the House is: that in clause 6 of the Bill, in paragraph (e) of sub-clause (I), for the words "a Veterinary Assistant" in line 1, the words "the Veterinary Assistant and the officer of the Bengal Civil Veterinary Department appointed by the Provincial Government" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: I beg to move that in paragraph (i) of sub-clause (I) of clause 16 of the Bill, after the word and figure "section 13", the words and figures "or of any other section of this Act and the rules made under section 24" be inserted.

Sir, I do not think the Hon'ble Minister can have any reasonable objection to accepting this amendment except for the fact that the amendment has been moved by a member of the Opposition. It is very desirable that the rules should also be included in this clause.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in paragraph (i) of sub-clause (I) of clause 16 of the Bill, after the word and figure "section 13", the words and figures "or of any other section of this Act and the rules made under section 24" be inserted.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN:

I beg to oppose the amendment, not only because it is unnecessary, but also because it is contradictory. In every other section there are appropriate sub-sections, for example, (d), (c), (f). This is in respect of failure of another particular section. So if we say "any other sections" then sub-section (d), (e), (f) become unnecessary and contradictory. Therefore, I oppose it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in paragraph (i) of sub-clause (I) of clause 16 of the Bill, after the word and figure "section 13", the words and figures "or of any other section of this Act and the rules made under section 24" be inserted.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: I beg to move that in sub-clause (1) of clause 16 of the Bill, for the words "fifty rupees" in line 20, the words "twenty-five rupees" be substituted".

The object of this amendment is plain enough and I have already stated my reasons while moving two other similar amendments. So, I think I need not say anything more.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 16 of the Bill, for the words "fifty rupees" in line 20, the words "twenty-five rupees" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I oppose the amendment. As I have already said, punishment should be deterrent if any punishment is to be inflicted at all.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 16 of the Bill, for the words "fifty rupees" in line 20 the words "twenty-five rupees" be substituted.

The amendment was negatived.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move that after sub-clause (2) of clause 16 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

"(3) Whoever being a Veterinary Assistant or practitioner or any officer of the Bengal Civil Veterinary Department duly authorised by the Provincial Government to carry on the duties of the Veterinary Assistant under this Act unnecessarily and vexatiously enters or searches any field, building, house or other place or seizes or detains any animals on the pretence that it is diseased or orders destruction of it, unnecessarily and vexatiously causes any other loss, injury, detriment or inconvenience or unnecessarily and vexatiously causes the carcass of any such animal to be exhumed shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees or with both: Provided that no prosecution shall be instituted after expiry of 3 months from the date on which the offence has been committed".

Sir, I have submitted this amendment on the lines of a provision which occurs in the legislation entitled the Glanders and Farcy Act, enacted by the Central Government as far back as 1899. A reference has already been made to that Act in the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating to this Bill. In the second paragraph of the Statement of Objects and Reasons, it has been stated "The Glanders and Farcy Act, 1899, already in force in this province applies to horse, camels, asses and mules. Under section 2(1) of that Act, its provisions can be extended to apply to these animals affected with any dangerous disease by a notification issued by the Provincial Government in the Official Gazette. It is not, therefore, considered necessary to extend the provisions of the present Bill to horses, camels, asses and mules." Otherwise it would have been done. Sir, I desire to draw, through you, the attention of this House to section 12 (1) and (2) of the Glanders and Farcy Act. Section 12(1) runs as follows: "Whoever being an inspector appointed under this Act vexatiously or unnecessarily enters or searches any field, building or other places or seizes or detains any horse on the pretence that it is diseased shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months or with fine which may extend to Rs. 500 or with both." Then 12(2) says: "No prosecution under this section shall be instituted after the expiry of 3 months from the date on which the offence has been committed." It will be seen that the authors of the Act were careful also to give protection to the officer by drawing up section 16 of that Act. Section 16 says: "No suit or prosecution or other legal proceedings shall lie against any person for anything which is in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act." So, the Central Legislature was careful to give due protection to inspectors acting under that Act. So far as this Bill is concerned, a similar provision has been incorporated in section 23. Section 23 of the present Bill says: "No suit, prosecution or other legal proceedings shall lie against any servant of the Crown for anything which is in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act or any rule made thereunder." Every step has been taken to protect the officers acting under this Bill when done in good faith. The liability for acts done unnecessarily and vexatiously should be clearly laid down as in the Glanders and Farcy Act, 1899. The reason is obvious. In most of the villages in Bengal there are party strifes and individual animosities and the provision of this Bill may be used to satisfy the private or party grudge and at the same time the veterinary officer may also take advantage of this provision and make some unlawful gains. So, it is only necessary that a provision like this which has been suggested by me should be made a part of this Bill.

With these few words, I move my amendment.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: On a point of information, Sir. An almost similar amendment stands in my name, i.e., amendment No. 34, although it is slightly different from the one already moved by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. Now, suppose if this amendment is lost, shall I have the privilege of moving my amendment No. 34, or shall I make a speech on that amendment?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think it will be better if you speak on that amendment instead of moving your amendment, for the fate of your amendment will be decided by the decision on this amendment.

Amendment moved: that after sub-clause (2) of clause 16 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

"(3) Whoever being a Veterinary Assistant or practitioner or any officer of the Bengal Civil Veterinary Department duly authorized by the Provincial Government to carry on the duties of the Veterinary Assistant under this Act unnecessarily and vexatiously enters or searches any field, building, house or other place or seizes or detains any animals on the pretence that it is diseased or orders destruction of it, unnecessarily and vexatiously causes any other loss, injury, detriment or inconvenience or unnecessarily and vexatiously causes the carcass of any such animals to be exhumed shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees or with both: Provided that no prosecution shall be instituted after expiry of 3 months from the date on which the offence has been committed."

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, clause 23 of the present Bill has been taken from the Glanders and Farcy Act of 1899. Section 16 of the Glanders and Farcy Act provides that "no suit, prosecution or other legal proceedings shall lie against any person for anything which is, in good faith, done or intended to be done under this Act." But here, the words "any servant of the Crown" have been substituted for the words "any person" in line 2 of clause 23 and the words "or any rule made thereunder" have been inserted in lines 3 and 4 of the same clause 23. So, the object underlying the provision of the two sections is practically the same. While the Hon'ble Minister has thought fit to protect the Government officer against any unnecessary prosecution, there is no reason why a provision similar to that in section 12(I) of the Glanders and Farcy Act of 1899 should not be made in the Bill. Sir, Mr. Das has read out section 12(I) of the Glanders and Farcy Act; so I need not repeat it. It is desirable that for the protection of the public some safeguard should be provided in the Act. All officers are not of the same status or they may not be all honest; there may be over-zealous officers who may, in their exuberance, try to do harm to the public. We have seen such things in the past and even now such a state of things is continuing in this country on a wide scale and over-zealous and dishonest officers will try to make something out of it. Indeed, this will be a very good ground for practising dishonesty. That is I think that a similar provision should be made in this Bill.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN:

I beg to oppose the amendment. My friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das has quoted the precedent of an Act which is now half a century old in support of his motion. We have grown wiser since then. In no legislative measure do we find a provision like that. The arm of the ordinary law is long enough to inflict punishment upon Government officers who vexatiously or maliciously harass the public. So, the amendment is not at all necessary. I oppose it.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir the Glanders and Farcy Act has been thrice amended and is not so old as is sought to be implied.

The amendment being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The Ayes being 9 and the Noes 24, the amendment is negatived.

Clause 16.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 16 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 17.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 17 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 18.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 18 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 19.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 19 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move: that for clause 19 of the Bill, the following be substituted, namely:—

“19. No police officer shall have power to arrest without warrant or any summons duly issued from any court any person who has been concerned in any offence under this Act.”

Sir, section 19 of this Bill runs as follows: “Any police officer not below the rank of a Sub-Inspector may at the request in writing of a Veterinary Assistant arrest, without warrant, any person who has been concerned in any offence under this Act.” The highest penalty under this Act is a fine of Rs. 100 or Rs. 50 or thereabout. It is a non-cognisable offence and yet the police officer not below the rank of a sub-inspector can arrest. This, I think, is extraordinary. The only change that has been made by the Select Committee is the addition of the words “at the request in writing of a Veterinary Assistant”, as if the police officer will be at the beck and call of the Veterinary Assistant and is subordinate to him. Sir, the incongruity of the suggestion will appear from section 20 of the Bill itself. Section 20 clearly lays down “No court shall take cognizance of any offence under this Act except upon the complaint or report of a Veterinary Assistant.” This is all right. But suddenly without any reference to the court, section 19 says that a police officer can arrest a person as soon as a chit is received by him from the Veterinary Assistant. As this is an extraordinary thing, I submit that Government should take a reasonable view of the situation and accept my amendment, namely that “no police officer shall have power to arrest without warrant or without any summons duly issued from any court.” The present Ministry is acting like an autocrat, giving power to the police officer to arrest any person as soon as he receives a chit from the Veterinary Assistant.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that for clause 19 of the Bill, the following be substituted, namely:—

“19. No police officer shall have power to arrest without warrant or any summons duly issued from any court any person who has been concerned in any offence under this Act.”

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN:

Sir, I beg to oppose this amendment. The offence under this Act is of a very serious nature, because it is fraught with serious consequences. If there is delay in making arrest, the result will be that the infection will spread and the whole animal population of the country may be devastated. Therefore, it is very necessary that the arrest should be made immediately. But because of the bad name attached to a police officer, we decided in the Select Committee that he should not arrest unless there was a report from the Veterinary Assistant. So I think this is sufficient protection against unnecessary arrest and with these words, I oppose the amendment which has been moved.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that the amendment stand part of the Bill.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 19 of the Bill, for the words "without warrant" in line 3 the words "in accordance with the procedure laid down in the Criminal Procedure Code" be substituted.

Sir, it will be creating a dangerous precedent to invest the police officer with the authority to arrest without warrant. Even the Criminal Procedure Code provides for discrimination between arrest with warrant and arrest without warrant. The section provides that if the Veterinary Assistant makes a request to the police officer in writing, he will at once arrest a person without warrant. It does not matter in the least whether the request is a verbal one or is made in writing. If the clause stands, the police officer will have no option but to arrest a person provided a request to this effect is made by the Veterinary Assistant. Sir, those in touch with village life know it very well that officers, whether under government or a local body, are sometimes involved in village cliques and are found to take sides. They are, after all, human beings, and if the officer concerned is a man of the locality, there is every probability of his being mixed up in village politics. So, for the safety of the person concerned, I think the law of the land should be allowed to take its own course, and I do not think that the Hon'ble Minister can have any reasonable objection to follow the procedure laid down in the Criminal Procedure Code. It is not proper to invest the police officer with such dangerous authority which may at times be abused. If the Veterinary Assistant is in league with any person who is not on friendly terms with another person of the village, he may easily harass him in the manner provided in this section. Sir, sometimes it may so happen that the officer himself is not on good terms with any particular villager, and, as I have said, if he is a man of the locality, he will try to do that villager harm in collusion with the police officer. A simple request in writing will be quite enough to arrest a person without any warrant and without proper enquiry. As has been pointed out by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das, section 20 is quite all right since exclusive jurisdiction has been given to the Court of law which alone shall be able to take cognizance of any offence under this Act, but to give the police officer or for the matter of that the Veterinary Assistant a power of this nature will, I think, only create opportunities for him to unnecessarily harass and oppress people for personal gain. In such cases, it is not unlikely that higher authorities may have to intervene to settle the matter. With these words, I commend the amendment to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 19 of the Bill, for the words "without warrant" in line 3 the words "in accordance with the procedure laid down in the Criminal Procedure Code" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I beg to oppose the amendment. In the first place, I beg to say that the amendment is altogether meaningless, because it says that instead of the words "without warrant", the words should be "in accordance with the procedure" etc. That is hardly necessary to be laid down. How a police officer is to arrest is already laid down in the Criminal Procedure Code and so there is no need of repeating it. Besides, we were advised by our legal experts also not to make any change of this kind. But as regards my objection to the contention that there should be no arrest without warrant, I have already said in connection with the last amendment that this Act will deal with crimes which are of a far-reaching character and it will be disastrous to the animal population of a particular locality unless the people who commit these crimes are arrested at once and are prevented from committing crimes which are likely to spread the epidemic. So it is absolutely necessary that such arrests should be made without warrant and very promptly. The provision that has been made that the request should be in writing by the Veterinary Officer is a sufficient guarantee that the police officer alone will not be able to arrest a man and it cannot certainly be expected that two officers will be in collusion and will unnecessarily harass people! With these words, and in this view I oppose the amendment. (The amendment was negatived.)

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: I beg to move that in clause 19 of the Bill, after the words "under this Act" occurring at the end, the words "or any rule made thereunder" be added.

In section 23 of the Bill, it is stated that no suit, prosecution or other legal proceedings shall lie against any servant of the Crown for anything which is in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act or any rule made thereunder.

So Government have accepted the principle that the procedure laid down in the Act as well as in the rules shall have the same legal force. For this reason, I think it is desirable to insert these words. There does not seem to be anything objectionable in this and I hope that the Hon'ble Minister will be pleased to accept it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 19 of the Bill, after the words "under this Act" occurring at the end, the words "or any rule made thereunder" be added.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I oppose the amendment, because we are advised by our law officers that it is absolutely unnecessary.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Then why do you mention the words "or any rule made thereunder" at the end of clause 23? (The amendment was negatived.)

The question that clause 19 stand part of the Bill was then put and agreed to.

Clause 20.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 19 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 21.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 21 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 22.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 22 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, yours is a negative motion. So, I think it is out of order.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Am I not entitled to oppose the provision?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, you can speak on it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I say, Sir, that clause 22 of the Bill should be omitted. Clause 22 runs as follows:—"No person shall be entitled to any compensation in respect of the destruction of any animal or thing or of any other loss, injury, detriment or inconvenience caused him by reason of anything done under this Act in good faith". This is altogether an unnecessary clause. It is a direct incitement, I should say, to persons of evil intention to do wrong taking advantage of certain provisions of this Bill. If you look to clause 23, you will find that section 22 is altogether unnecessary. Clause 23 runs as follows:—"No suit, prosecution or other legal proceedings shall lie against any servant of the Crown for anything which is in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act or any rule made thereunder."

Here is the protection given to the officer of Government for anything done under good faith. When there is a provision like this, it is absolutely unnecessary to have a provision as set out in section 22 of the Bill. There is no reason why there should be a provision like this unless it be for the purpose of giving double protection to officers of Government, lest they are brought within the cognizance of civil court for any compensation. It is a sort of hint to the court that such suits should not be entertained with any favour at all. It is a sort of discouragement for persons who look to the court for remedy for any loss, injury, detriment or inconvenience caused by the officers of the veterinary department or other officers of the Government of Bengal.

Sir, there is already protection given under clause 23 that no suit, prosecution or other legal proceedings shall lie against any servant of the Crown for anything which is in good faith done or intended to done....., etc. So what is the good of again saying, as laid down in clause 22, that no person shall be entitled to any compensation in respect of the destruction of any animal or thing or of any other loss, injury, detriment or inconvenience caused to him by reason of anything done under this Act in good faith.

With these words, I oppose the clause.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I did not intend to speak on this amendment regarding the deletion of clause 22; but seeing the way in which legislation is done in this House, I could not resist the temptation of speaking, specially in view of the fact that these laws are going to be permanently placed on the Statute Book of the province. Now, I do not know whether the Legislative Department of the Government considered this aspect of the matter. Clause 22 says: "No person shall be entitled to any compensation in respect of the destruction of any animal or thing or of any other loss, injury, detriment or inconvenience caused him by reason of anything done under this Act in good faith." Clause 23 says: "No suit, prosecution or other legal proceedings shall lie against any servant of the Crown for anything which is in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act or any rule made thereunder". I do not understand why Government is going to introduce both these clauses and keep them together in the same Act. They deal with the same subject. A person cannot claim any compensation unless he brings any suit against whom the compensation is claimed. Therefore, I submit that either retain clause 22 and delete clause 23 or delete clause 22 and retain clause 23. It is no use having a redundant clause. One of the main purposes of legislation is that you should not have any redundant clause in an Act which may operate as embarrassing from the point of view of interpretation. As a matter of fact, we have already considered two inconsistent clauses, namely, clauses 19 and 20. So, I do not understand why Government again is going to have two more inconsistent clauses. I would, therefore, request Government not to have both clauses 22 and 23 together.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, I do not think many words are needed to impress upon this House the desirability of deleting this clause. Clauses 22 and 23 have been set very carefully, one after the other, as if they are twin brothers. Clauses 22 and 23 give wide powers to the Government officer, and he may do anything he likes. In fact, he is proposed to be given great civil authority so that no action of his case be called in question, and even the law courts will have power to interfere. This is a very dangerous principle to enunciate. Whenever Government have sought to introduce similar provisions in connection with other legislative measures, I have opposed them on principle. By clause 23 the Hon'ble Minister proposes to give the Veterinary Assistant or any Government officer authorized in this behalf unlimited powers, so that if he is involved in any village quarrel, he will have immense opportunities of doing harm to the persons concerned, and the villager who may be thus harassed or subjected to any harsh treatment will have no protection either in the law courts or in the thana, because, the police officer at the request of the Veterinary Assistant will immediately arrest him. As I have already said, there are other similar provisions which will give the Veterinary Assistant unlimited powers to deal with any person in whatever manner he likes. So, I think the Hon'ble Minister will consider whether or not these two clauses should be deleted.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN
Sir, I beg to oppose the amendment—

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, no amendment has been moved in respect of this clause.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur, you speak in support of your clause. There is no amendment.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN
Sir, apparently the clauses 22 and 23 seem to be one and the same; but really they are not so. Clause 22 is an indemnity clause in favour of Government and clause 23 is an indemnity clause in favour of the servant of the Crown, and they are quite different things. I think it is necessary that there should be such indemnity clauses, and that the Government servant as well as the Government should be protected by indemnity clauses like these. They are no new things, and therefore I think that these two clauses should stand.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 22 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 23.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 23 stand part of the Bill. Rai Bahadur Keshab Chandra Banerjee.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, I do not move the amendment which stands in my name.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 23 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 24.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 24 stand part of the Bill.

The motion was agreed to.)

Title and preamble.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that the title and preamble be added to the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN:
Sir, I beg to move that the Bill, as settled in the Council, be passed.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of order, Sir. The third reading of the Bill cannot be taken up today.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Why not? The Bill has not been amended.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But amendments have been moved.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But they were not accepted. I would refer you to sub-rule (1) of rule 67 of our Procedure Rules in this connection.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Motion moved: that the Bengal Diseases of Animals Bill, 1944, as settled in the Council, be passed.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: While I congratulate the Hon'ble Minister on bringing forward a Bill of this kind, I cannot but blame him, at the same time, for introducing certain provisions in the Bill which may be characterised as dangerous. This Bill has been long overdue and I am glad that at long last the Government have awakened to the necessity of preserving the cattle population of Bengal. But it is unfortunate that certain very salutary provisions which were sought to be incorporated by the Opposition have not been accepted—provisions which would not have altered the Bill materially but which would have, on the other hand, improved it to a great extent. For instance, the provisions contained in clauses 22 and 23 which have been criticised by certain members are really uncalled for, because it does not seem to be necessary that so much protection should be given to the Veterinary Assistant who is proposed to be entrusted with the duty of looking after the epidemic diseases of the cattle. There is a certain amount of grievance in the mind of the public against a certain class of police officers and we have seen in the course of the working of the Local Self-Government Act and the Village Self-Government Act that Government officers are not above board. There are officers and officers. So I think the principle of extending protection to a Government officer whoever he may be, against proceedings in a law court or of giving him certain privileges which he should not enjoy is fundamentally wrong. Sub-clause (4) of clause 8 of the Bill deals with the destruction of certain animals. Unfortunately I was not present in the House when the motion was called, otherwise I would have moved my amendment which aimed at the deletion of the provision for destruction of certain kinds of animals, namely, bull, bullock, cow, ox, heifer or calf. It is not really necessary to destroy the animals because they are diseased. Provision has been made in the Bill—

Mr. PRESIDENT: How long will you speak yet, Rai Bahadur?

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Two or three minutes more, Sir. Animals suffering from infectious or contagious diseases are proposed to be segregated and the Veterinary Department of the Government will undertake their treatment as long as necessary and if some of these animals do not recover they will die a natural death. But the Hon'ble Minister wants to destroy them. I do not think the Government will be justified in laying down a hard and fast rule like that. So far as these animals are concerned, namely, bullock, bull, calf, heifer and cow, these may be sent to prinjrapole, where disabled animals are kept until they die a natural death. Then there is a procedure laid down as to how the Veterinary Assistant should report. Provision has been made for sending a copy to the Subdivisional Officer. Mere sending of a copy to the Subdivisional Officer for information will not do. Everything should pass through him, being the executive head of the subdivision. These are some of the points which are open to objection. The Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Bill would have done well in accepting some of the suggestions of the Opposition.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House stands adjourned till 1-30 p.m. tomorrow.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944--No. 34.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Wednesday, the 26th April, 1944, at 1-30 p.m., being the thirty-fourth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Puber Bundh.

135. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR (on behalf of Mr. Humayun Kabir):

(a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Communications and Works Department be pleased to state what steps have up to now been taken to repair the "Puber Bundh" and the Someswar-Khaira khal which are of vital importance, to ensure the safety of the people as also for the success of the "Grow More Food" campaign?

(b) What amounts have up to date been paid under this head by the Government?

(c) Is it a fact that the contributions raised by the union board for the repairs of "Puber Bundh" have not been expended in full?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Mr. Barada Prasanna Pain): (a) Both the bundh and the khal belong to private persons, and the responsibility for their maintenance rests with their owners. The Collector of Howrah is, however, trying to have the bundh repaired by the persons concerned at their own expense.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) The Department of Communications and Works has nothing to do with funds raised by union boards.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Communications and Works Department please state what amount has actually been utilised so far? It may not have any concern with his Department but he may be in possession of this information.

Mr. BIREN ROY: Yes; local people have paid their share, that is half, which is Rs. 1,650 and the zemindars' share is only Rs. 250 and the rest still remains unpaid. The zemindars tried to repay it but the attempt was not successful.

Cotton mills in Bengal.

136. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR (on behalf of Mr. Nagendra Nath Mahalanobish): (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Commerce, Labour and Industries Department be pleased to state whether the Government are aware that the few cotton mills in Bengal are not in a position to supply the ordinary requirements of cloth of the people of Bengal?

(b) If so, do the Government propose to take steps—

(i) to encourage and facilitate the establishment of sufficient number of cotton mills in Bengal; and

(ii) to help the weavers of the Province by money and materials to increase their production of cloth to make Bengal self-supporting in this respect?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Mr. K. Shahabuddin): (a) Yes.

(b) (i) No. The present time is considered inopportune for the establishment of mills due to difficulties in obtaining machinery.

(ii) Yes. A scheme is under consideration.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state what steps have been taken to increase the supply and to remove the want from which the people are suffering at the present moment?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Cloths are now being imported from Bombay. As regards helping the weavers, with money and materials, that is cotton yarns, that is under consideration. The final details would be published very soon.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Is this shortage due to a large quantity of cloths being supplied to the Military Department?

Mr. BIREN ROY: No.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Arising out of (ii) regarding the scheme, will the Hon'ble Minister please state when will the scheme be completed?

Mr. BIREN ROY: In about two months' time.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Can the Government give an outline of this scheme?

Mr. BIREN ROY: It is not possible to divulge it at this preliminary stage; when the final stage will come, it would be advisable to give details to the public.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Is it not a long standing question or rather a problem regarding the provision for help to the weavers of the Province?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Such question does not arise.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, it does arise, because it is a part of the question No. (b) regarding help to the weavers of the Province.

Mr. BIREN ROY: Oh, I am sorry. I thought the honourable member was raising the question of health of the weavers of the Province. As regards the help to weavers of the Province, the answer is already given that the scheme is under consideration.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: How long the matter is under the consideration of the Government?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Only two months.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Arising out of (ii), what will be the financial liability of Government in connection with the scheme?

Mr. BIREN ROY: As I have already said, it is not possible to divulge it at the present moment.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: How many months Government will take to mature the scheme?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Another two months.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether in view of the deficit budget of the Government of Bengal it will be possible to render financial assistance to the weavers in the near future?

Mr. BIREN ROY: That will be for the Government to consider.

Point of Information regarding constitution of Food Committees.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, may I rise on a point of information regarding the constitution of food committees. My question on this subject was due for answer on the 30th March, 1944. This is a very urgent and important matter. The Civil Supplies Department should answer this question in time. The food committees are being constituted in the district of Burdwan, and I hope the answer will be forthcoming before the answer to the question becomes useless.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will the Hon'ble Leader of the House kindly enlighten it on this?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I think every attempt is being made to answer the question. The other day the Hon'ble President made certain observations which were duly communicated to the Hon'ble Ministers and they have sent replies to the effect that they are making the utmost effort to see that the answers are expedited, and that they have no intention of showing any disrespect to this House or indifference to the questions being answered.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, in the town of Burdwan a serious agitation is going on regarding the constitution of food committees, and so Government should take immediate steps so that this question is answered without delay. As a matter of fact, on the 30th of April, 1944, the food committees are going to be formed, and it is necessary that the question should be answered before that date. That is why I have brought up this matter for the information of the Hon'ble the Leader of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will the Leader of the House kindly take note of this?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: What is the number of the question?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: No. 153.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I have taken note.

Point of Information regarding the Public Accounts Committee of the Council.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, with reference to the appointment of a Public Accounts Committee of the Council, I have tabled a short-notice question which is almost due to be answered even as an ordinary question. I would like to know whether the Government are going to announce their decision very soon, because the Hon'ble Finance Minister promised us that by the third week of the last month they would announce their final decision on this matter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The short-notice question has been admitted by me, but I do not know whether Government will reply to it as such.

Mr. BIREN ROY: I have not received the short-notice question yet, but an answer was given to it during the last session.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, no; not that question.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: After the Conference was over, the Hon'ble Finance Minister—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am informed that the Hon'ble Finance Minister has not agreed to answer this question at short-notice.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: And yet the Parliamentary Secretary says that he has not received the question; from this the Chair will gather how the work is going on.

Mr. BIREN ROY: Well, if the Hon'ble Minister does not admit the question, then how can I see it or receive it?

Mr. PRESIDENT: The point is this: the short-notice question was admitted by me and then it was sent to Government. Of course, it is for the Hon'ble Finance Minister to agree to answer or to refuse to answer the question at short-notice. Evidently, he has refused to answer the question at short-notice. And that is why the Parliamentary Secretary is not aware of it and is not in a position to answer the short-notice question.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, even the period prescribed for an ordinary question is about to elapse and so I may expect a reply very soon. It is a very urgent matter which has been hanging fire for the last few years. Moreover, the Hon'ble Finance Minister promised to announce his final decision in the third week of this month. We hope the Finance Minister will implement his promise.

Mr. BIREN ROY: On the first day we meet next time—the date has not yet been fixed—I shall see that this question is answered.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: The Chair too had been moving in this matter; so may we be enlightened as to how far the matter has proceeded?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I may inform the House that the Hon'ble Finance Minister promised to take up the question with his colleagues and to make a statement in the House by a certain date: possibly it was the third week of March; but since then he has been busy with the Agricultural Income-tax Bill in another place. I drew his attention by writing to him to which he replied some time ago. He had promised to make a statement by the middle of this month. I think, therefore, the obvious course now is to wait till we meet again when the Finance Minister will be here in connection with his Agricultural Income-tax Bill. The question may be put to him then and the House may find out what his attitude is.

Laying of papers on the table of the House.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: On a point of privilege, Sir. As the Council will adjourn today for about ten or twelve days, I wish to raise a point of privilege, namely, in the matter of answering questions in this House. We often find that Government reply to questions in succinct manner and at times refer us to papers laid on the Library table. The table of the library is far away from this House. If a table is kept in this Chamber and the necessary papers are laid on it, members may have access to it on the floor of the House, and that would greatly obviate difficulty and inconvenience.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Rai Bahadur, I promised to look into this matter as to whether instead of placing the papers on the library table they could be laid on the table of this House. I must apologise to the House for not having been able to do so yet. I shall, however, look into the matter and give my decision when the House meets again.

The Bengal Diseases of Animals Bill, 1944.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: Sir, I rise to speak a few words on the general provisions of this Bill and may point out certain glaring defects which exist in it and which we have passed while considering the Bill, clause by clause. The Bill has been styled as the Bengal Diseases of Animals Bill, 1944. I think, Sir, it would have been more appropriate to style it as a Bill for the assistance of the veterinary assistants appointed by the Government of Bengal. Throughout the Bill, in almost every section you will find the hands of the veterinary assistants so far as this matter is concerned. While speaking on the provisions of the Bill, I cannot imagine that the Legislative Department of the Government of Bengal is unaware of similar enactments in regard to the diseases of animals of Great Britain—the English law on the subject. The Government and the Ministry may be excused if they show ignorance as to the provisions of the English law in regard to this subject. One salutary provision, which was sought to be incorporated by my friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das that in case of malicious action by any person under the Act he should be liable to pay compensation, as not been agreed to by Government. It was pointed out that similar provision finds place in the Glanders and Farcy Act of 1899 passed by the Central Legislature. The Hon'ble the Leader of the House who happens to be the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Bill, sarcastically pointed out that we are referring to a provision of 1899 and that they were half a century head and did not recognise the provisions of the Central Government Act passed in 1899 in which some check is provided for malicious or illegal actions of any person. As a matter of fact, the Act was thrice amended up to 1927. That is not all. I am going to point out for the consideration of the House and for the information of some members who may not be aware of it that so far as this Bill is concerned, it should really have been termed as a Bill for the prevention of the spread of contagious diseases.

The English Statute of 1894—I believe—is consolidated in 57 and 58 Victoria, Chapter 57. It is an Act of 1894. It is a provision passed 50 years ago and most of its provisions are still in force. If you refer to the title of that Act you will find that it is a consolidated Act. If you look to the provisions of this consolidated Act you will find that its provisions are very salutary both for the protection of the people and for the protection of the cattle population of Great Britain. At the same time they were very considerate in dealing with the owners of the cattle—owners of diseased cattle—who might have diseased cattle without their knowledge or may be with their knowledge. Now, in the diseases of Animals Act, 1894, there are provisions for destruction of the animals which were suspected or found to be infected with contagious diseases. They have also provided for creating a fund by opening an account with the Bank of England under the provisions of section 2 of the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act, 1890, under which a sum was directed to be paid to the said account—such moneys (not exceeding one hundred and forty thousand pounds in any one year) being provided by Parliament towards defraying the costs incurred by the Board of Agriculture in the execution in Great Britain of the provisions of this Act relating to the slaughter of cattle, animals or swine, etc. I need not trouble you with giving the whole section as it is. But there are provisions for the slaughter of cattle which are suspected or found to be afflicted with contagious diseases to the effect that the Board shall have power to slaughter the animals so diseased under sections 7 and 14. Under section 14(3), the Board shall, for cattle slaughtered under this section pay compensation as follows:—

- (a) where the animal slaughtered was affected with pleuro-pneumonia (this is one of the main diseases from which many cattle die in Bengal), the compensation shall be three-fourths of the value of the animal immediately before it became so affected, but so that the compensation do not in any such case exceed thirty pounds; and
- (b) in every other case the compensation shall be the value of the animal immediately before it was slaughtered, but so that the compensation does not in any case exceed forty pounds.

There are other similar provisions for slaughter of cattle for diseases. I say all these things because this is really a beneficial Act and a social legislation,—a legislation which not only protects other animals from being attacked with a particular disease but protects the whole cattle population of the village. Under the English law when a cattle is slaughtered, a compensation is paid to the owner. Bengal has passed through a troublous time, as the Hon'ble Minister for Agriculture knows fully. The condition of the poor cultivators is known to everybody. So, it is only fair that some compensation should be paid to the cultivator whose cattle is going to be destroyed. We have made provisions for penalties for offences committed under this Act; the Legislative Department was not unaware of the different provisions of the English Act, because, I find that some of the definitions have been taken bodily from that Act. It may be that the Minister in charge or the Cabinet were not aware of those provisions. I cannot say whether the Department brought these provisions to the notice of the Government. If the Legislative Department did not bring it to the notice of Government, it was surely very unfortunate. Therefore, my submission is this: you have made provisions for the destruction of cattle without providing for any compensation. I need not refer to other provisions and to the other offences for keeping animals affected with contagious diseases and would show that for all of these cases provision has been made for payment of fine. Now, when we look to the sections where enforcement of some of the provisions is dealt with, we find clauses 19 and 20. Clause 20 says that "No Court shall take cognizance of any offence under this Act except upon the complaint or report of a Veterinary Assistant." That practically makes it clear that a Court will not issue summons for the arrest or warrant for the arrest unless it gets a complaint or a report from the Veterinary Assistant. Now look at clause 19 which says that "Any Police Officer not below the rank of a Sub-Inspector may at the request in writing of a Veterinary Assistant arrest, without warrant, any person who has been concerned in any offence under this Act." This, Sir, is a very wide power and this is merely playing with the liberties of the people of this Province. What is the offence? The offence is that he has kept a diseased animal. Possibly he does not know whether the animal is affected with contagious disease, or possibly he knows it but he does not know where to send the animal for treatment or otherwise. As a matter of fact, Government have not a quarantine or segregation centre for such diseased animals. What are you going to do? You make the Police Officer go to the place on receipt of a report from the Veterinary Assistant and arrest the person. If you compare the English Act, you will find that instead of taking charge of the animal as is done in the English Act, you take charge of the man and arrest him; but in the meantime the diseased animal will go freely and possibly the contagious disease will be spreading. No thought has been given with regard to it. With regard to the English Act, the provision is that: if you find that a particular animal is affected with any contagious disease, kill it immediately and pay compensation to the owner. This is the provision which the British legislators have provided. But what we are doing here? We are going to arrest the man without any warrant, and that only on receipt of the report from the Veterinary Assistant. How many Veterinary Assistants are there in the Province? In the 28 districts, I suppose there are 28 Veterinary Assistants appointed by the Government. Considering this the Government have provided a section which is still more harmful. Let me look at the provision again. In sub-clause (6) of clause 2, "Veterinary Assistant" means a Veterinary Assistant of the Bengal Civil Veterinary Department possibly having some technical qualification; but in the absence of the said Veterinary Assistant from his jurisdiction it will include any officer of the said department who in the opinion of the Provincial Government possesses suitable qualifications in veterinary medicine and if such an officer will send a report to the Police Officer against any man, he will be arrested. Sir, you are really placing the owner in the category of the animal with contagious diseases. This is the provision which you have made in the Act. You follow the man but you do not take charge of the animal. I say that all this was meant to be checked or any possibility of maladministration of the provisions of this Bill was sought to be checked by the amendments proposed to be incorporated by my friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das and they have all been negated by this House. Unfortunately, the attitude that we find taken up by the Government during this session is that even if the Opposition move that a comma or a semi-colon should be removed, the Government must necessarily oppose it and they cannot be passed. That, Sir, is the attitude which we find Government to have taken up; therefore, even a reasonable request for a provision which finds a place in an Act of the Central Legislature on a kindred subject which is still in existence on the Statute Book, has been ignored and provisions have been incorporated which will act as an engine of oppression upon the cultivators of Bengal who are thus placed at the sweet mercy of the Veterinary Assistant and police officers who have been invested with full powers for the administration of the Bengal Diseases of Animals Bill. Sir, what is provided in section 22 of the Bill? There, it is provided that "no person shall be entitled to any compensation in respect of the destruction of any animals or things or of any other loss, injury, detriment or inconvenience caused him by reason of anything done under this Act in good faith." I do not know what the word "thing" means. "No person shall be entitled to any compensation in respect of the destruction of any animal or thing, or of any other loss"—these provisions in this Bill are very wide. It may be that the Government here are not thinking of animals but of some other thing—men who go and enter into a house and may have taken away things from that house and appropriated them, probably all such actions even though they may be malicious—are going to be protected by clause 22 of the Bill. Clause 23 is again introduced, and we do not know with what purpose. Regarding clauses 22 and 23, the Honourable Minister in charge of the Bill said that they deal with two different things—one with indemnity and the other with the power to claim compensation. But I may point out that both of them are the same thing—

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: May I rise on a point of personal explanation, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: You have a right of reply at the end; you can do so at that time.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: But the honourable member has been misinterpreting what I said.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Is it a personal explanation?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, Sir.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I refuse to yield: the Hon'ble Minister may say what he wishes to say in the course of his reply. With regard to these two sections, sections 22 and 23, the Hon'ble Minister contends that I have misquoted him. Sir, I have not misquoted him; I heard him all right and I say that he has misunderstood the point that I was going to make. One of the clauses deals with indemnity and the other with compensation; but, Sir, indemnity for what? It is indemnity for compensation. Therefore the two sections deal with the same thing. When another amendment was going to be moved, a gentleman on the Government side whispered "what are you saying with regard to the rules? We are not going to frame any rules under section 24''. They are going to put the Act into operation immediately—probably in these hard days the Veterinary Assistant is in want of something, and therefore Government do not like to wait for framing rules under section 24 of the Act. These are the provisions which have been made. Look at another provision in this Bill. Animals have been defined as bulls, bullocks, cows, oxen, heifers, etc. I think that includes bulls consecrated by Hindus at the time of sradh and khodai bulls of the Muhammadans which roam about at large. It would be a very dangerous thing if these consecrated bulls and "khodai bulls" are destroyed or shot down by any officer whether by Government or a police officer. No provision has been made for their protection. If you are going to segregate these cattle, make some provision with regard to these animals which are considered both by Hindus and Muslims as sacred. I therefore submit that there should have been some provision regarding this class of animals. Then, there should have been some provision for compensation for destruction of animals and there should have been no arrest without warrant. Section 19 says: "any police officer not below the rank of a sub-inspector may at the request in writing of a veterinary assistant arrest, without warrant, any person who has been concerned in any offence under this Act". So, he can arrest without warrant any person who is suspected of being accused of any offence under the Act. Why this wide power has been given, it is not understood. Then, Sir, he may not be a veterinary assistant, he may be a person authorised by the Provincial Government to do the work of the veterinary assistant. He goes and arrests any person and thus the liberty of the people is in danger, and you are going to pass a law of this kind. My friend, Rai Sahib Jogendra Nath Roy, chairman of the Asansol Municipality, asks what are the qualifications of a veterinary assistant who performs these very onerous duties—I do not know his qualifications—but you are placing the liberty of six crores of the inhabitants of Bengal in their hands.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJI: On a point of information, Sir. Do not these persons include the Hon'ble Minister in charge of agriculture who is supposed to be responsible for the cattle population of Bengal?

Mr. T. B. NIMMO: Mr. President, Sir, in rising to support the motion for the passing of this Bill, I wish to congratulate the Hon'ble Minister for introducing this much-needed measure and for the fair and impartial manner in which he presided over the Select Committee during its deliberations.

I hope, Sir, that the rules will be framed in such a manner as will cause no undue delay in operating this Act and that the fullest possible use will be made of it.

I would, however, suggest, Sir, that this Bill is liable to become so much waste paper unless it is properly administered and particularly unless there is proper supervision of the veterinary officers whose duties it is to prevent the spread of diseases. Even in the ordinary course of their duties veterinary officers rarely visit the remotest villages and there must be many villages who have never seen the face of a veterinary doctor in their villages though the cattle epidemics are chiefly confined to villages. I have good reason to believe also that the class of men recruited for training in the Bengal Veterinary College is steadily deteriorating; and if such men are given independent charge in districts, they are likely to remain sitting at headquarters as they are inclined to do at present unless properly supervised. I would, therefore, enquire from the Hon'ble Minister through you, Sir, if the present staff of the Civil Veterinary Department is adequate for the administration of the Act and what steps Government propose to take to ensure that the veterinary staff is strictly supervised.

Sir, I venture to offer a suggestion through you to the Hon'ble Minister. There is a special staff under the Principal of the Bengal Veterinary College for the prevention of the glanders under the Glanders and Farcy Act, but their functions are at present localised in the towns and suburbs of Calcutta and Howrah. Reports for the past few years reveal that the work of this department is much minimized and my suggestion is that this staff be utilized as a supervising staff for the purposes of this Bill. I would further suggest that the Veterinary Assistants for the administration of this Act may be recruited from senior officers of the Civil Veterinary Department with at least 5 years' service but that there should be no bar to direct appointment provided competent, hard-working and honest men are available with a knowledge of rural life and conversant with the language of the villagers. The number of Veterinary Assistants to be appointed must necessarily depend on the number of villages to be supervised; but I would impress on Government the necessity for a staff for the strict supervision of the veterinary assistants.

With these few words, Sir, I support the motion for passing the Bill.

Dr. KUMUD SANKAR RAY: Sir, not being present during the earlier stage of the discussion on this motion, I am afraid, I am not conversant with the views which have been expressed by different honourable members. But I felt somewhat inclined to agree with Mr. Nimmo when he said that this Bill may eventually end in pious wish as many other Bills of this nature have done. I know that many Epidemic Diseases Acts which concerned human beings have been practically dead letters. We seem to think that it is a very easy thing to copy Bills from other countries and to bring in such a Bill here and pass it, without bestowing the least thought on the machinery which would be necessary to give effect to the different provisions of the Bill. Mr. Nimmo has rightly said that the staff will have to be tremendously augmented. I do not know what the actual figures for the existing staff are. As far as I know, there is one Veterinary College for the whole of Bengal and I do not know how many students are turned out every year by this college. Neither do I know whether there is any cattle census taken for the whole of Bengal. I do not know the number of staff that would be necessary to exercise a proper check over the diseased animals which are scattered throughout the length and breadth of the country, specially in view of the fact that communications are so difficult now-a-days. It may take days before you get any assistance from the veterinary officer from the subdivision or from the district; and when at last the veterinary officer visits the place after being in correspondence spread over several weeks, not only the animal dies but it spreads the disease to other animals also. That is what, I am afraid, will happen. I admire the motive of the Hon'ble Minister in introducing this Bill and also sympathise with his feeling towards the diseased cattle, or for the matter of that, for the entire cattle population of the province. But I am afraid, until and unless some provision is made in the Budget for meeting the extra expenditure under this head, it will be no use simply putting a Bill on the Statute Book. I do not know whether provision has been made in the Budget for the expenditure that is likely to be incurred in this connection. I do not know also whether this Bill was under the contemplation of Government at the time of the framing of the Budget. A huge staff will actually be required over and above the existing staff of the Veterinary Department. I do not know whether any provision has been made in this year's Budget for that; I do not think any such provision has been made. I may be wrong and I hope I am wrong, but that is one of the things which are worrying me. According to the notification of the Contagious Diseases Act, a person has to notify if a patient is suffering from tuberculosis or from other such diseases. But what is the result? Suppose, I visit a tuberculosis patient in a private house and inform the authorities about the matter. What is the result? The fellow might be poor. There is no provision for isolating him (Khan Bahadur ABDUL MOMIN: Let him die.) He must die, because we cannot segregate him. So, it is no good informing the authorities whatever the disease may be. The same thing exists to a certain extent in England. In England, the number of institutions for isolating and segregating the diseased animals is very great; but in spite of that they cannot enforce it strictly, and in spite of the co-operation of the public who are sufficiently educated to understand preventive measures, they cannot successfully operate the provisions of the Act. But, here the public are uneducated and particularly those villagers and cultivators who maintain cattle do not know anything of the preventive measures. You have to operate this Act by considerable public propaganda, and your Publicity Department will have to play a very large part if you want this Bill to work successfully.

Then, we have to take into consideration the fact that there is only one Veterinary College for the whole of the Province. Do you think that this one college will be able to produce sufficient number of veterinary surgeons? I think that the veterinary course is for three years. What is the number of students that come out from this college annually? It may not be more than 30 or 40. Do you think that with 30 or 40 recruits from the college annually, you will be able to cope with the requirements which are envisaged in this Bill? I do not blame you for your desire to get this Bill through. I have every sympathy, but I earnestly urge that simultaneously with the enactment of this Bill Government should come forward with a definite scheme and let this House know what they propose to do in regard to making this Bill a live Bill. If you do not do so, I am afraid the Bill will be practically neglected and the operation of this Act will be probably observed more on the oppressive side, as has been suggested by many honourable members than on the beneficial side. I have some experience in this matter. I wanted to have some cattle inoculated against certain epidemic diseases. But I only succeeded in getting it done after making a good deal of correspondence. If this has happened to me who live in this city of Calcutta, I do not know what will be the fate of those who live in far-off villages if they want preventive inoculation of their cattle against epidemic diseases. Have you got a sufficient number of laboratories to have preventive inoculation? If Government is really serious about this Bill, they should at once set their heart to provide necessary machinery and necessary funds in the budget for this purpose. If there has been no provision for it in the budget which has already been passed, they should come with a supplementary budget before this House for its consideration.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Sir, it is easy to agree with the remarks which have been made by Mr. Nimmo and the honourable member who has just sat down. Nobody claims, and I do not think that the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Agriculture Department will claim, that the number of veterinary surgeons or other equipments at their disposal are sufficient. We all know that at the present moment there is considerable dearth of veterinary assistants in the province. But that is no reason why we should not make a move for tackling this very serious matter. Does Dr. Ray think that because we have not got sufficient number of veterinary assistants or that we have not got properly-equipped laboratories, therefore, this matter should be left as it is?

Dr. KUMUD SANKAR RAY: On a point of personal explanation, Sir. I never said that because there are no arrangements the Government should not move in the matter. I said that if Government want this Bill to be a live Bill, they should immediately put their heads together to provide the requisite machinery for the purpose.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: No doubt, everyone should join in asking the Government to make adequate provision for the proper functioning of this Act and for the appointment of a larger number of veterinary assistants. But this matter should not be allowed to stand in the way of making a move for trying, at least for making an attempt, to prevent the diseases of cattle from spreading and causing a heavy economic loss. The reason why we have not yet got a large number of veterinary surgeons or the reason why in every direction the Agriculture Department of Government is inadequately staffed, is to be found in the fact that the people of Bengal themselves have never cared or agitated for having these facilities supplied to them. Government in the past have, as I have said before, been anxious and solicitous more for the proper administration of Law and Order than the development of the nation-building departments. But times have changed, and now everyone thinks about the development of the nation-building departments as their one point of safety, and every department we now find is trying its best to cater to the welfare of the people. And in keeping with that general trend, this Bill has been brought forward in order to safeguard our cattle from dying of diseases and of bad treatment. Therefore, as I say, we certainly join with Mr. Nimmo and Dr. Ray in their view that Government should, as far as possible, try to improve the teaching of veterinary subjects and increase the number of veterinary assistants. It cannot surely be expected that in course of one day Government will be able to produce about 5,000 veterinary assistants ready to go about the country and treat animals. Just in the same way, the Local Self-Government and Public Health Department are not able to supply a sufficient number of doctors and the quantity of medicines which are required for the purpose of treatment of diseases in the country. I think we should all welcome the move in this direction, namely, the introduction of this Bill and instead of criticising it on that score we should all join together and try to get adequate money provided for in the Budget which would be required to advance and improve veterinary training in this province.

As regards the remarks made by Mr. Mukherjee, I am very sorry about the expression which he has used with regard to our alleged treatment of the Opposition in not even agreeing to changing a comma or semi-colon when suggested by them. I can assure my friend and I can quote several instances to show that we have accepted the very useful suggestions which have, from time to time, been made by the Opposition. I may refer, in particular, to the Agricultural Land Alienation Bill. Didn't we accept the suggestions made by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das and other members of his Party? It is not a pleasure for anybody to oppose sensible suggestions and we have never done that. However, Sir, I would stop there. But if there is opposition only for the sake of opposition and if whatever comes from the Government side has got perforce to be opposed, then do not put the blame upon us for we may be doing what the Opposition is doing. As for a comma or a semi-colon, if a comma or a semi-colon is misplaced, surely that must be opposed. We cannot allow that to go into our Acts. Mr. Mukherjee has made much of the possibility of this Bill being an engine of oppression. Of course, that expression has become very common with members of the other side. In everything they seem to see either an engine of oppression or a death-knell to our civil life. But we must examine everything properly with a sense of proportion. Drastic steps are necessary in cases where cattle diseases spread in the villages. Now, Sir, strong exception has been taken to the provision in the Bill that on the report of a veterinary surgeon, a sub-inspector of police can arrest any person without warrant and thus put him to trouble. It is known to every one that a sub-inspector of police, without this provision, has already that power to arrest any person without any warrant. So it is not understood how this provision would give him an additional power. On the other hand, here we have additional safeguard against such act of the police that he must have the support of the veterinary surgeon who is a technical man. When two officers of Government take into their heads to do something, there is extra responsibility on their part. The people of the village are not so helpless now-a-days as they used to be before on account of the political upheaval, and they will not hesitate to make an appeal before the higher authority if these officers act with a bad motive. They know now that if these officers act in a wrong way, they are liable to be punished.

Mr. Nimmo has suggested that there should be proper supervision in the districts. I entirely agree with him and I have no doubt that Government will also agree to this. But whether the police officer and the veterinary surgeon are able to oppress the people largely depends on the people themselves. They can only do so when there are party differences in the village. I have on many occasions seen that diseases of cattle were dealt with in such a manner that they became dangerous not only to the neighbour but to the whole village. Almost the entire cattle-stock in the rural areas has become extinct. This is a matter in which drastic action must be taken. Only last year I myself lost 32 heads of plough cattle on account of epidemics. (Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Then you should have been arrested.) Yes, my manager should have been. So, these officers will not arrest persons for the mere pleasure of arresting them. They will not do so unless there be any reason for it. A sub-inspector, if he wants to arrest any particular person in his locality out of grudge, hundreds and thousands of ways are open to him for doing so. He can do so without the report of the veterinary surgeon and for doing so he does not require the support of another officer. So I think the Opposition has been exaggerating this fear. Of course, there are possibilities of harassment; but we must take things as they should be. Because there is possibility of harassment, we should not take any action, this attitude we should not take up. Mr. Lalit Chandra Das suggested that no arrest should be made without an order of the court. But in that case what would happen? Suppose there is a cattle disease in a particular village and cattle are dying of rinderpest or some such disease: the owners were told to take proper action but they refuse to do so. In that case, the veterinary assistant will have to run to the headquarters and report the matter to the authority. He will ask for a report from the veterinary surgeon and the surgeon will have to make a post-mortem examination after which he will send that report up and then there will be an order on the sub-inspector to take proper care of the diseased animal and arrest the man. Meanwhile, all the cattle in the village will die. This is not the procedure which anybody should recommend or suggest.

As regards harassing the people, I think in every Act you will find that there are hundreds of ways of harassing the people if the executing authorities want to harass them. For instance, the Government of India's Defence of India Rules, measures regarding food control, Penal Code, the Criminal Procedure Code and so on and so forth. What about the Sarda Act? There are officers and officers. The mental condition of all the officers are not wholly vicious.

Then, as regards the criticism regarding compensation. Here again, if a cattle dies of a particular disease and action has to be taken against that cattle by destroying it, then who is going to give compensation? I may say, though that would be blasphemous, it is the Providence who should pay the compensation. If an animal is attacked with a contagious disease, then all the animals in the locality are liable to catch the infection. Now, if that particular animal is not destroyed, it is the people who may claim damage from the owner of that particular diseased animal. (Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: That animal might be segregated or be sent to the Pinjrapole.) There is provision for segregation in this Bill also. You can always level criticisms against anything. Sir, there is a Bengali proverb “বারে দেখতে নারি তার চলণ বাঁকা”! We have to live among people in the villages who have no civic sense at all. Gradually, they will have to be taught this civic sense. Therefore, I say that all these criticisms perhaps may be due to the over-enthusiasm for the safety of the people. I do not attribute any other motive. I also appeal to the members opposite to consider the whole position quietly. If you want to eradicate an evil, you will have to take drastic action. (Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA

BANERJEE: What about the over-zealous officers? They should all retire and come to the Council. (Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Like the Khan Bahadur himself.)

Sir, I have nothing more to say. With these few words, I support the motion for the Third Reading of the Bill.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, with your permission I wish to make a few observations on this motion for the Third Reading of this Bill. Sir, at the outset, I congratulate the Hon'ble Minister on the introduction of this Bill and the way in which he has piloted it. Much criticism has been levelled against this Bill on various grounds. Sir, the learned speaker who has just sat down has very ably refuted some of the criticisms.

Sir, the first question is whether this Bill will be effective or workable if it is placed on the Statute Book of this province. I shall presently show by facts and figures the condition of Bengal in 1937.

Sir, from the Royal Commission Report on Agriculture, we find that in Bengal the total number of cattle was 2 crores and 54 lakhs and it was about 54 per cent. to the total population of Bengal at that time. In Assam it was 76.1 per cent., Punjab 73.3 per cent. and U. P. 68 per cent. Sir, according to our Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Bill, the number of cattle has been reduced, and he quoted the figure of 23 millions only as the total cattle population of Bengal, and in reply to my question he stated that the cattle stock remained more or less stationary during the last ten years.

Sir, in 1937, there was one Veterinary Assistant for 29,500 cattle in the North-West Frontier Province and there was one Veterinary Assistant for 36,000 cattle in the Punjab, there was one Veterinary Assistant for 65,500 cattle in Bombay, there was one Veterinary Assistant for 81,500 cattle in the Central Province, there was one Veterinary Assistant for 82,500 cattle in Madras and one Veterinary Assistant for 96,000 cattle in Assam; but what we find so far as Bengal was concerned. In Bengal there was only one Veterinary Assistant to take charge of as many as 1 lakh and 35 thousand cattle.

Then, as regards expenditure under this head, we find that in 1937 while the North-West Frontier Province spent 23.8, the Punjab spent 16.3, Bombay 9.1, the Central Province 6.7, Madras 8.4, Assam 8.2, Bengal spent only 4.1. Sir, taking all these figures into account, it appears that Bengal's figure is the lowest as compared with those of the other provinces. Sir, both from the economic and public health points of view the improvement in the condition of health of cattle should be the vital concern of Bengal at the present moment.

It appears that milk is one of the most important items in the matter of keeping up the health of human beings. It appears also that the per capita consumption of milk in Bengal is the lowest as compared with that of the Punjab or Bombay. The Punjab consumes 9.9 ozs. of milk per head of population, Bombay 4 ozs. and Bihar and Orissa 3.2 ozs., the United Provinces 5 ozs., Assam 2.2 ozs. and Bengal only 1.9 ozs. Therefore, from the public health point of view, it is necessary that cattle should be improved and every step should be taken to check the spread of contagion among them in Bengal. In 1937 the number of gazetted officers and non-gazetted officers in the Veterinary Department in India was as follows: In the Punjab the number of gazetted officers was 36, and non-gazetted officers 406; in Madras, the number of gazetted officers was 23 and that of non-gazetted officers 274; in Bengal the number of both classes of officers was 13 and 174, respectively. Of course, I have not got the latest figures—I do not, therefore, know how many officers have been increased during these 8 years in Bengal. I have quoted figures as they stood in the year 1937. Considering all these points, it is very important that the Bill should be worked properly. But while I fully support the provisions of the Bill, I think there is something wanting in it. There are some provisions in the Bill which bear the impress of the old bureaucratic days. With all respect I must say that Bengal after the introduction of Provincial Autonomy has not changed except in some respects. Its life has not changed and it is still grouping in the old groove of bureaucratic methods of administration. With all respect to our Ministers, again, I must say that old bureaucracy is still holding sway, in the administration of this province, though not to the same extent as before. And that is why every Bill that is being introduced in this House bears some impress of the old days, and the present Bill is not immune from that impress. What I fear and apprehend is that provisions have been embodied in the Bill which will delay necessary action being taken at once. What is the machinery provided in the Bill for treatment of the diseased and infected cattle or of those suspected to be infected with any contagious disease? The machinery is that information has to be sent to the President of the Union Board. From our experience of the working of the Union Boards it can be easily imagined that the President of the Union Board will take some time in the matter. If he is satisfied, then only he may send a report to the Subdivisional Officer who is an over-worked man—pressure of work is too much for him now-a-days—and if after consideration he decides to transmit this information he will send it to the veterinary assistant. When this information is sent to the veterinary assistant, what he will do? He will go to the locality and enquire into the case. Then he will send the report to the Government or to an officer appointed by Government and at the same time a copy of the same to the Subdivisional Officer. This is the scheme. There may be delay in the Union Board; then the order of the Subdivisional Officer has to be awaited and in the meantime, the infection may spread from village to village. I appeal therefore to the Hon'ble Minister to see that there may be officers who should look to the prompt working of this Act, because on the proper working depends the prosperous and economic life of Bengal. There is another thing—there is no provision for animal hospital in this Bill. I find from the Madras Cattle Diseases Act that there is a provision for animal hospital there and as soon as it is suspected that an animal is infected with a contagious disease, the veterinary assistant's duty is to send it to the nearest hospital; but there is no such provision here. Unless there is sufficient provision for proper treatment of the animal it is very difficult to work this Act. What is provided in this Bill is that the man will be compelled to segregate the animal and make necessary arrangement. But where is he to get medicine and other things? I think it is the duty of the veterinary assistant to make proper arrangement for the treatment of the animal. In the Madras Act it is provided that the veterinary assistant would make all these arrangements and the necessary expenses would be realised from the owner. But it is the duty of the veterinary assistant to make all arrangements. So in this respect this Bill is defective. With these words I support the Third Reading of the Bill. I congratulate the Hon'ble Minister for whom I have got the highest regard. He is a sincere soul and since his appointment as Minister in charge of Agriculture he is trying to introduce beneficial measures for the good of the province. I hope he will do his best to work this Act properly for the good of the people and for the cattle population of Bengal.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN:

Sir, most of the criticisms made by the Opposition have already been met by my friends, Khan Bahadur Momin and Mr. Nur Ahmed. I have very few observations to make. Mr. Mukherji has compared this law with the British law. We have kept the British law as our ideal and we are approaching the ideal. We cannot reach the ideal all at once. In Britain, it is possible to make provision for compensation for all animals to be killed, because there is a State fund there so large that they can afford to pay for this and many other social legislations, such as, Poor Fund, Workers Fund and so on. Can we have all these things at this stage in Bengal in its present economic condition? We are gradually trying to introduce these social legislations one by one; we cannot expect to do everything all at once and it cannot be expected that our legislation should be as perfect as Britain's. We have only made a beginning and I do not claim the Bill to be a perfect piece of legislation. No human law can be perfect and this being a new social legislation must have some defects. From experience we will take lesson and try to make it better and improve upon it and bring it to the standard of Britain. As regards clauses 22 and 23, Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherji has made a confusion as to what statement I had made regarding them. One of these clauses provides that no compensation should be paid and the other provided that no punishment should be inflicted upon the Crown servants. Clause 22 provides that no compensation should be payable by Government on account of anything done in good faith. Government would not be liable to pay any compensation. Clause 23 refers to Crown servants. It says that Crown servants should not be punished on account of anything done in good faith.

I am grateful to Mr. Nimmo and Dr. Ray for their many useful suggestions. Nobody realises it more than I do the inadequacy of the staff of the Veterinary Department. This department will require strengthening if we want to do any real service to the country in matters veterinary. This Bill will be an incentive towards the strengthening of the veterinary staff. A Bill like this was very necessary. The present staff of the Veterinary Department is unable to do their duty properly in the absence of a Bill like the present one. They cannot segregate or kill the affected animals. This Bill will give them power to do their duty properly.

As regards funds, money will be forthcoming. I may say that this Government has never stopped short to spend money. Whenever money was needed for any beneficial measure, money was spent. To meet the situation of last year we spent crores and crores of rupees, far beyond our capacity. No one now can say that money is not forthcoming for the nation-building departments.

A suggestion has been made for strengthening and enlarging the present Veterinary College to a very great extent. I may say for the information of the honourable members that we have got a very good college in Bengal, namely, the Bengal Veterinary College. In fact, the other provinces are jealous of our college. We get nearly 25 to 30 students from other provinces. The college has 80 seats and we never get more than 50 students. If we get sufficient number of students, I think our college would be able to accommodate them and would be able to meet the requirements of this province for the next 8 to 10 years. After that it may perhaps be necessary to further enlarge the college. (Dr. KUMUD SANKAR RAY: Start 5 more colleges.) Not at present. Moreover, we cannot afford to start more colleges at once.

As regards the Brahmini bulls, Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee has suggested that those bulls should be specially taken care of. But he neither suggested that in the Select Committee nor did he send any amendment during the consideration of this Bill. We have accepted many suggestions of the members of the Opposition. So, it is not correct to say that we did not accept the amendments because they came from the side of the Opposition. No question was raised and no suggestion made either in the Select Committee or in the House, and no amendment was tabled by the members of the Opposition regarding Brahmini bulls.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: An amendment was tabled by me—

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: But was it moved at all? However, I am grateful to the honourable members of this House because they have supported the principle of the Bill. Of course, there have been some criticisms regarding some particular matters; but as I have said, we cannot expect a perfect legislation all at once. We have made just a beginning, and we hope to improve it by and by as we gain experience. With these words, I commend the Bill for the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is: that the Bengal Diseases of Animals Bill, 1944, as settled in the Council, be passed.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, there is no official business in the House till the 8th May next, but we can sit for non-official business. But I think it will be inconvenient for the members to come only for non-official business when they will get a chance of non-official business afterwards. Therefore, if the honourable members are agreeable, the House may be adjourned till 8th May.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, in this connection I may mention that we have already lost two non-official days, and this will be the third day which we shall lose. I hope the Hon'ble Minister will remember it.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: If the honourable members so wish, we are quite willing to sit on Friday next.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I take it that the honourable members are not particularly anxious to sit on Friday next.

(Cries of "No", "No" from many honourable members.)

The House stands adjourned till 1-30 p.m. on Monday, the 8th May.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 1-3-0 p.m. on Monday, the 8th May, 1944.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 35.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Monday, the 8th May, 1944, at 1-30 p.m., being the thirty-fifth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

Oath.

MR. PRESIDENT: Any gentleman desiring to take the oath of office may do so now.

Mr. Muhammad Habibullah Chowdhury then took the oath of allegiance to the Crown.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Price of vegetables.

137. Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD (on behalf of Mr. Nur Ahmed): (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Agriculture Department be pleased to state if it is a fact that the prices of vegetables have shot up abnormally in Bengal to the great suffering of the people here?

(b) Is it a fact that the Government of India asked from the Government of Bengal in the early part of 1943 to prepare schemes for cultivation and collection of vegetables with a view to giving them financial assistance from the Central revenues for such scheme?

(c) What schemes for cultivation and collection of vegetables have been prepared in Bengal?

(d) Has any financial assistance been received from the Central Government for the same? If not, why not?

MINISTER in charge of the AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Saiyed Muazzamuddin Hosain): (a) Yes.

(b) Yes; financial assistance was, however, offered in respect of schemes for cultivation of vegetables for the Defence Services.

(c) Apart from schemes for growing vegetables for the Defence Services, the following schemes were sanctioned in 1943:—

(i) A scheme for cultivation of more English vegetables in rural areas at a cost of Rs.25,000.

The object was to buy seeds in bulk so that they could be distributed among the growers at cheap rates.

(ii) A scheme for the purchase and distribution in urban areas of vegetable seeds, both Indian and English types, at a cost of Rs.2,15,210.

For 1944 a scheme for purchase and distribution of summer vegetables has been sanctioned at a cost of Rs.5,160.

Another scheme for the cultivation of cold weather vegetables is now under consideration of Government.

(d) No.

Schemes for cultivation of vegetables for the Defence Services are now being dealt with direct by the Military authorities.

As regards schemes for cultivation of vegetables for the civilian population, financial assistance was asked for but not obtained.

I am not aware of the reasons for this.

"Bhog" ration.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, may I disturb the tranquillity and peace of mind of the Honourable the Leader of the House by enquiring as to what has happened as regards the decision about the ration of bhog for our household deities? This matter has been brought before the House times without number, but the Hon'ble the Minister for Civil Supplies is not always available. A conference was held and the Pundits have already sent their views about this question. This question has been hanging fire for the last two months and we want a definite answer whether they are going to do anything in the matter or not.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I am not aware as to what has taken place in this connection. My honourable friend informs me that there was a conference on this subject. I think it would be better to put this question when the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Civil Supply is present in the Chamber.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, the latest information is that the Government have taken the opinion of various persons interested in this matter and now the question is pending before the department for suggesting what steps can be taken in this matter. I hope within seven or ten days we will be able to make a statement.

Committee for amendments to Council Rules.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am now to announce that as a result of the election held under sub-rule (3) of rule 110 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules, the following members have been elected to the committee on the amendments to rules 56, 57 and 58 of the said rules:—

- (1) Khan Sahib Nurul Amin,
- (2) Mr. Nur Ahmed,
- (3) Mr. W. B. G. Laidlaw,
- (4) Mr. Shrish Chandra Chakraverti, and
- (5) Mr. Amulyadhane Roy.

I fix 10 o'clock on Wednesday, the 10th May, as the time for the meeting of the committee in the ante-room of the President's Chamber.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: May I have your permission to put in short-notice amendments on the Bill—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Which Bill?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: The Bengal Orphanage Bill. The time for giving notice of amendments has expired. So I ask your permission to accept short-notice under rule 64, so that they may be circulated among the members.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But it is not on the agenda today.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: It has got to be done orally on a sitting day.

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right, you may hand it over to the Secretary.

Order, order. The next item today is the laying of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, as passed by the Assembly.

I may inform the House that no Message relating to this Bill has been received from the Assembly. So this item may be treated as withdrawn.

Ruling from Chair.

There is no other business to be transacted today. But I would like to mention another matter. It was suggested to the Chair by some members regarding the practice of placing papers on the Library table that, instead of being placed on the Library table it would be more convenient if they were placed on a table in the Chamber. I have examined this question and as an experimental measure I have decided that there should be a small table placed here on which statements which cannot be incorporated in the questions would be put. But in case of voluminous papers, they should be placed on the Library table. This will be as an experimental measure. If it is not successful, the old practice would be revived.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, with regard to the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, the date for laying it on the Table of the Council was fixed for today, because we expected that the Message of the Assembly would be sent before this date. The usual time has already expired and we do not yet know when the Message will come. I therefore suggest that the date for the laying of that Message be fixed for the day after tomorrow, because it seems that we cannot proceed until the Message comes. We are very sorry for this delay. There has never been such a long and unprecedented delay in sending Messages from the other House to this House. We could not foresee that the Message will not be in the possession of the House by today.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Then, you suggest that for the present we adjourn the House till day after tomorrow?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Yes, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House stands adjourned till 1-30 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 1-30 p.m. on Wednesday, the 10th May, 1944.

Members Absent.

The following members were absent from the meeting held on the 8th May, 1944:—

- (1) Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad.
- (2) Mr. Sultanuddin Ahmed.
- (3) Khan Sahib Nurul Amin.
- (4) Rai Bahadur K. C. Banerjee.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 36.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Wednesday, the 10th May, 1944, at 1-30 p.m., being the thirty-sixth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(b) the amount of money the Government has spent on building such Hostels and Halls for Hindu students since April, 1937?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Minister in charge of the Education Department, the Hon'ble Mr. Tamizuddin Khan): The figures for the period from 1st April, 1937, to 31st March, 1943, are—

(a) Rs.1,79,347.

(b) Rs.1,40,592.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Arising out of (a), how many Moslem halls and hostels have been erected and where?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Some repair works have been done and actually no halls have been erected. Some extensions to hostels attached to the following colleges have been effected:—Lady Brabourne College, Fazlul Huq College, Rajendra College, Faridpur, P. K. College, Contai, Daulatpore College, etc.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: How many Moslem halls have been erected?

Mr. BIREN ROY: You do not want to know about Hindu hostels?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: From answer (a), it appears that Rs. 1,79,347 have been spent on Moslem halls and hostels. So, I want to know how many hostels and halls have been erected for the Moslems, and where.

Mr. BIREN ROY: Daulatpore college is meant for both Hindus and Moslems. The expenditure under—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I want separately the expenditure incurred for the construction of Moslem halls and Hindu halls.

Mr. BIREN ROY: Actually no halls have been erected but only repair works were carried on and the amount spent is Rs. 1,79,347 in 6 years.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It appears from answer (b), that an amount of Rs. 1,40,592 has been spent on Hindu hostels and halls. I want to know where are these hostels.

Mr. BIREN ROY: P. K. College, Contai, Midnapore—Rs. 1,000 for Hindus and Scheduled Caste students, Daulatpore Hindu Academy—Rs. 850; Saadat College, Karatia—Rs. 1,857 for Hindu and Scheduled Caste students; Adamdighi I.P.J. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Am I to understand that Government did not spend any money on new construction with regard to Moslem halls and Hindu hostels, etc.?

Mr. BIREN ROY: If additions to existing buildings are considered as new constructions, then certainly Government spent money on new constructions.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: What amount has been spent for extension purposes?

Mr. BIREN ROY: I want notice.

Street Accident.

139. Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state whether it is a fact that since the beginning of the year there has been a large increase in the number of street accidents due to rash and negligent driving within the municipal limits of the city of Calcutta?

(b) Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state, showing month by month, the number of all such cases since November last which occurred and will the Hon'ble Minister please state how many of them were serious, how many were slight and how many ended in deaths? How many of these cases were treated in the hospitals of Calcutta?

(c) What steps have the Government adopted or intended to adopt to prevent such occurrences?

(d) Were there prosecutions during this period for rash or negligent driving causing hurt or death? If so, how many; and how many of them ended in conviction?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) There was an increase in the number of street accidents between November, 1942, and November, 1943. The reasons for it were—

- (1) Increase in the military traffic.
 - (2) Black-out conditions.
 - (3) Foul weather conditions in May and June, 1943.
 - (4) Influx of ignorant village people and beggars in Calcutta.
- (b) A statement is laid on the Table.

(c) The gravity of the situation and the need for tightening up control over military vehicles are being constantly impressed on the military authorities and they have already taken measures to improve matters. The number of military traffic police has been substantially increased and military police patrols are now operating in the Calcutta area. Periodical round-ups of traffic offenders are also being made by officer patrols and the first of these led to the institution of charges against over 200 drivers. More military police are still required and this point is again being brought to the notice of the military commander.

(d) During the period from 1st November, 1942, to 30th November, 1943, there were 193 prosecutions for rash and negligent driving causing hurt or death out of which 90 resulted in conviction. Other cases were either untraced or handed over to the military authorities.

Statement referred to in reply to question No. 139, of street accidents due to rash and negligent driving from November, 1942, to November, 1943.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what has been the proportion of deaths of ignorant village people and beggars who come to Calcutta due to these accidents?

Mr. BIREN ROY: I want notice.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Arising out of (a)(4), where you have said that influx of ignorant village people and beggars in Calcutta is one of the reasons for the large increase in the number of street accidents, do you mean to say that amongst the persons who were killed in street accidents the proportion of ignorant village people was greater?

Mr. BIREN ROY: I want notice.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether these street accidents were mostly due to rash and negligent driving?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Not all.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: You don't follow my question. My question is: whether these accidents were mostly due to rash and negligent driving.

Mr. BIREN ROY: Unless all the cases are tried out and the persons are convicted, it is not possible to lay the blame either on the drivers or on the village people. I have not got all the figures here.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether on the information received by Government, Government have reason to state that most of these cases were due to negligent and rash driving?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Not mostly, because out of 193 cases that were prosecuted, only 90 resulted in conviction. 90 out of 193 cannot be described as "mostly".

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTY: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state what is the average charge made against these accused? The Parliamentary Secretary says that only in 90 cases were the accused convicted. What is the average charge in these cases?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Chakraverti, I think you should realise the absurdity of your own question. How can the Parliamentary Secretary give you the "average charges" against the accused?

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, I began by saying that there were 90 convictions; and I wanted to know what was the average or the general charge against the accused in most cases.

Mr. BIREN ROY: For breaking the motor vehicle rules.

Security prisoner Srijut Suresh Chandra Majumdar.

140. Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state whether it is a fact that Srijut Suresh Chandra Majumdar, of the Ananda Bazar Patrika, now a security prisoner, is ailing for a long time? What is the Doctor's report about his health?

(b) What was his weight when he entered jail and what is his weight now?

(c) Is it a fact that the security prisoners Srijuts Sasanka Shekhar Sanyal, M.L.A., Nishit Nath Kundu, M.L.A., and Dharendra Nath Mukherjea, M.L.A., ordered to be released were ailing before the order of release was passed on them?

(d) What stands in the way of releasing Srijut Suresh Chandra Mazumdar now?

(e) Do the Government propose to release him immediately? If not, why not?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: With regard to this question, I may say that this question was asked long ago and has now become stale; and accordingly, I would not like to put it because the gentleman is now out of jail. This question was asked when the gentleman was in jail.

Mr. PRESIDENT: So, you are withdrawing the question?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: No, but I am protesting that the question should have been answered so late, as I put it when the gentleman was in jail, about nine months ago.

Mr. PRESIDENT: So you have lost all interest in the matter?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Yes.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Very well. Let the Parliamentary Secretary however read out the answer.

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a), (b), (d), and (e) Mr. Mazumdar has long since been released.

(c) No.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Supplementary question, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But you said, Mr. Das, that you had lost all interest in this question.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But as the question has been called after all, I am asking this supplementary question. Will the Parliamentary Secretary please say when this question was put?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Probably eight or nine months ago.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: While the gentleman was in jail?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Must be.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: What is the reason for such a late answer?

Mr. BIREN ROY: The Hon'ble the Home Minister was busy in releasing.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Releasing the answer or releasing political prisoners?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think the Parliamentary Secretary wants to answer that question, Mr. Das.

(ii) Cloths, blankets and garments were distributed free to the destitutes.

(iv) The Bengal Alienation of Agricultural Land (Temporary Provisions) Ordinance, 1943, was promulgated to provide for the restoration of agricultural lands sold during 1943 as a result of the prevailing distress. The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: They were released.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Were they released because they were not destitutes?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: It was considered that the destitutes were no longer in need of protection.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Were the destitutes collected on the assumption that they were really destitutes, or rather, Government thought that they were destitutes?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: Certainly.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Government arrested 10,000 destitutes and later on found that they were not destitutes and so they were released?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: Not exactly that. Government released those persons so that they could go back to their own native places and join in the crop-harvesting and other work.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Are we to understand that 33,418 people who were sent back to their homes were not in a position to earn their livelihood after they were sent home?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Is the Government aware that such information was sent to the Government from the Bengal Provincial Hindu Mahasabha camp?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: Only in a very few cases.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will you please give us the number of such "few cases"?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: For the exact number I want notice.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Is the Government aware that a small child was taken away leaving his mother alone?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: It is extremely difficult to answer it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I don't think the question does arise, Mr. Mukherjee. This is a general question, whereas you are referring to a particular question.

"Puber Bandh."

147. Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Revenue Department be pleased to state if it is a fact that the Magistrate of Howrah, Mr. Stewart, visited the Rashpur Union Board in November, 1940, and requested the board to assess the people of the union and the Circle Officer, Amta, to assess the local zamindars proportionately for the purpose of repairing "Puber Bandh" which had been reached by the flood of August, 1939?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Government be pleased to state what happened to the funds which were actually paid by the tenants?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: As the assessment took place long ago, I want notice for answering it.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, this question was put precisely because it was desired to draw the attention of the Hon'ble Minister to the state of affairs which obtains there.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Now, he wants further notice.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is the Hon'ble Minister one of those zemindars who refuse to make payments in spite of repeated demands?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think that question does arise. You can put him questions only in his capacity as a Minister.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I am sorry, Sir.

148. Mr. NUR AHMED: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Forest and Excise Department be pleased to state if the Government of Bengal propose to take steps to release the cultivable land within the reserved and protected forest areas for the cultivation of paddy and other suitable crops? Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self Government Department, the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): (a) During the last three financial years no nominations were made to the Jessore Municipality as the question of reconstitution did not arise in this period.

- (a) if it is a fact that Mr. Ahmed Hosain, Police Magistrate, Sealdah, has proposed one Kazi Ashraf Ali as a candidate for election to the Calcutta Corporation in the present general elections; and
- (b) if a Government servant is entitled to propose, second or otherwise actively participate in the election?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Minister in charge of the Home Department, the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) Yes.

(b) Not without the prior consent of Government being obtained.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Was the prior consent obtained in this case?

Mr. BIREN ROY: No.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: What action does the Government propose to take in this matter?

Mr. BIREN ROY: The officer was probably under a misunderstanding about his right to vote. An almost similar question was previously answered by me to the effect that a Government servant is not entitled at least to give any indication as to how he was going to vote; therefore he is not entitled to propose. The officer has been warned.

Homes for destitute children.

151. Mr. NUR AHMED: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Revenue Department be pleased to state whether any home or homes, rescue centre or orphanages have been specially established and maintained by the Government of Bengal for the large number of destitute children roaming in Calcutta and other towns, such as Chittagong, Noakhali, Dacca and Chandpur?

(b) If so, how many have been opened and at what places and for how many destitute children? If not, why not?

(c) Has any free milk kitchen been opened by the Government of Bengal for supply of free milk to the infants of the destitute in Bengal?

(d) If so, how many have been opened and at what places and for how many infants? If not, why not?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: (a) and (c) Government have established a number of homes for the destitutes (including women destitutes) otherwise called poor houses or orphanages and milk canteens in various distressed areas.

(b) and (d) A statement showing the particulars as far as available is laid on the Table.

Statement referred to in the reply to Council question No. 151.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Can the Hon'ble Minister give the number of these destitutes' homes?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: It is already given in the statement.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: They refer to the orphanages.

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: I can give you the total, which is 333.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Why then not give us the whole answer if you know it!

Staff in the office of the Administrator-General and Official Trustee.

152. Khan Sahib ABDUL AZIZ: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Judicial and Legislative Departments be pleased to state what is the total strength of the ministerial staff in the office of the Administrator-General and Official Trustee of Bengal and how many of them are Muslims and how many Hindus?

(b) How many posts are in the Upper Grades, namely, 1st, 2nd and 3rd Grades? How many of them are occupied by the Hindus and Muslims respectively?

(c) Is it a fact that on various representations from the Muslim community in respect of their grievances, the Government of Bengal some time in July, 1940, directed the Administrator-General and Official Trustee, Bengal, even requested him to recruit the Muslims in Upper Grades from outside if the competent Muslims are not available for promotion to Upper Grades from the Office?

(d) Is it a fact that Government desired equal representation of Muslim and non-Muslim in all the graded posts of the office and instructions were issued to Administrator-General and Official Trustee accordingly in July, 1940?

(e) If the reply to part (d) is in the affirmative, will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state how many vacancies occurred in the Upper Grades and how many of them were filled up by the Muslims with effect from the date of the Government order?

(f) Is it a fact that non-Matriculates are unfit for recruitment to the ministerial staff according to rules framed by the Government?

MINISTER in charge of the JUDICIAL and LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Nawab Musharruff Hossain, Khan Bahadur): (a) The total strength is 93, out of which 68 posts are held by Hindus, 24 by Muslims and one post is vacant.

(b) There are 3 posts in Grade I, 4 in Grade II and 9 in Grade III. Out of the 16 posts, one is held by a Muslim, 14 by Hindus and the remaining one is lying vacant pending decision on the question of absorption of one post in Grade III.

(c) Yes. But it has since been held by Government that direct recruitment to the Upper Grades was inadvisable.

(d) and (f) Yes.

(e) Seven vacancies have occurred and one of the same has been filled by the promotion of a Muslim.

Mr. KADER BAKSH: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether he has any hand in the matter of appointment with regard to these posts?

The Hon'ble Nawab MUSHARRUF HOSSAIN, Khan Bahadur: No.

Mr. KADER BAKSH: Has he got any control over appointments to these posts?

The Hon'ble Nawab MUSHARRUFF HOSSAIN, Khan Bahadur: These appointments are made by the Administrator-General himself, but, of course, the papers come to us formally.

Mr. KADER BAKSH: Had the attention of the Hon'ble Minister been drawn to the meagre appointments from the Muslim community and did he propose to take action in this matter so far as the observance of communal ratio is concerned?

The Hon'ble Nawab MUSHARRUFF HOSSAIN, Khan Bahadur: This state of things is continuing for a long time and we cannot all on a sudden appoint a large number of Muslims.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to explain how only one out of seven vacancies went to the Muslim community?

The Hon'ble Nawab MUSHARRUFF HOSSAIN, Khan Bahadur: Because, all these promotions are made from lower grade in order of merit and seniority combined; in the present case in order of seniority and merit these appointments went to Hindus except one which went to a Muslim although he had to outstrip several people.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state the reasons which led Government to hold that direct recruitment is inadvisable?

The Hon'ble Nawab MUSHARRUFF HOSSAIN, Khan Bahadur: Direct recruitment has not been made anywhere in Bengal, especially for the clerical posts, in the higher grade appointments. If it were practicable it would have been done by this time. But I do not think it is advisable to change the rules all on a sudden and make direct appointments from outside, because it would involve a lot of training before they can do their work properly.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that in the Bengal Secretariat recruitment for upper grade appointments is made directly by examination?

The Hon'ble Nawab MUSHARRUFF HOSSAIN, Khan Bahadur: There are two methods—(1) promotion from lower to upper grade in order of merit and seniority combined; and (2) direct recruitment by examination which require, as I have said, a lot of training. But this principle cannot be followed in subordinate offices.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to consider the desirability of applying the same principle of competitive examination as followed in the recruitment of clerks in this particular department as well?

The Hon'ble Nawab MUSHARRUFF HOSSAIN, Khan Bahadur: I think it would be impracticable.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state why it is not practicable in this department if it is practicable in another department?

The Hon'ble Nawab MUSHARRUFF HOSSAIN, Khan Bahadur: So far as these higher appointments are concerned, they require technical knowledge.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether the Administrator-General is directly appointed or promoted from a senior clerk?

(No reply.)

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, can he remain silent? I think he is bound to give some sort of reply.

Mr. PRESIDENT: He has no reply to give.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Sir, may I ask the Hon'ble Minister whether the aggrieved community can expect any redress of their grievances from the Hon'ble Minister?

The Hon'ble Nawab MUSHARRUFF HOSSAIN, Khan Bahadur: Not by dismissing so many other clerks.

Mr. KADER BAKSH: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether the Muslims as a community are not able to learn the techniques required for those posts?

The Hon'ble Nawab MUSHARRUFF HOSSAIN, Khan Bahadur: They are gradually learning them.

Epidemics in Bengal.

153. Mr. MUNGTURAM JAIPURIA: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state—

- (a) whether the Government are aware that in the wake of famine, malaria and cholera are raging in epidemic form throughout the Province and that a very large number of people are now dying therefrom;
- (b) whether it is a fact that there is serious shortage of quinine and anti-malaria and anti-cholera vaccine and drugs;
- (c) what has the Government done so far to meet the situation; and
- (d) what are, district by district and month by month, the numbers of deaths due to both the causes since September last?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY, (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): (a) Neither cholera nor malaria is any longer prevalent in epidemic form in the Province.

(b) There has been no shortage of anti-cholera vaccine. Stocks of quinine have not been sufficient to meet all demands in full, but Bengal has received more than her proportionate share of stocks of quinine available for all India.

(c) and (d) Statements are laid in the Library.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of information, Sir, arising out of this question. Is it a fact that this Hon'ble Minister has made it a point not to appear in this House?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, you may put this question to him when he is here.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether cholera is not prevalent in epidemic form in Calcutta?

Mr. BIREN ROY: In Calcutta, it may be; but not within the province.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: But Calcutta is not excluded from the province. In (a) the answer is..... "Neither cholera nor malaria is any longer prevalent in epidemic form in the Province".

Mr. PRESIDENT: Cholera may be prevalent in Calcutta but Calcutta is not the whole of Bengal.

Message regarding the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I understand that the message regarding the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill has not been sent by the other House—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I protest against this. We are being brought every day to hear that the Message has not been received or that there is no business to transact.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I sent in notice of an adjournment motion with regard to a thing that has appeared in today's paper. I was late by 20 minutes to send in the motion—

Mr. PRESIDENT: The motion was received in the office 20 minutes later than the scheduled time.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I raise this fact because I understand that the House is going to be adjourned for a long time—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid, it cannot be taken up today. It might be taken up on Friday next.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Sir, when can we expect the Message from the other House? The reason why I ask this question is that if we can know when the Message can be expected we may adjourn the House till then—for a longer time instead of coming here and doing nothing and thus wasting our time and Government money. Therefore, my suggestion is that the House should be adjourned till such time when we might be sure that the Bill would be ready for discussion here and we might sit continuously.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I quite understand you Khan Bahadur Sahab; but the difficulty is that Government fix the business of this House and in this particular case Government thought that the Bill would be ready for consideration by this House today. However, I would request the Hon'ble the Leader of the House to enlighten us on the subject.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Government expected that the Message would be received by the Upper House during this time. So, on the last day of our meeting we fixed today for the laying of the Bill. But due to an unprecedented delay in sending the Message from the Lower House to the Upper House we have no business today. Messages relating to Bills of still more important and voluminous character were received in a shorter period. We never expected this inordinate delay in the Message reaching the Upper House. That was the reason why Government found itself in a very delicate and awkward position. The difficulty is that Government has no control over the Speaker. It has since been ascertained from the Speaker that he will be able to send the Message by next Wednesday.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: In that case, I think we should adjourn till after a week.

Mr. PRESIDENT: We are meeting day after tomorrow for non-official business.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Non-official business may stand over.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Is that the general desire of the House that we adjourn till after a week or we meet on the next non-official day?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, we would suggest that after the next non-official day we adjourn for 15 days. The next non-official day should be given to the members, because we have already missed two or three non-official days during this session.

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right. The House stands adjourned till 2-15 p.m. on Friday next.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 2-15 p.m. on Friday, the 12th May, 1944.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 37.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Friday, the 12th May, 1944, at 2-15 p.m., being the thirty-seventh day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Kalukhali-Bhatiapara section of Bengal and Assam Railway.

154. Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Communications and Works Department be pleased to state if he is aware of persistent rumours that the Kalukhali-Bhatiapara section of the Bengal and Assam Railway is to be soon dismantled?

(b) Is there any truth in such rumours?

(c) Are the Government aware that this Railway is the only means of communication and transport in this deficit area?

(d) Do the Government propose to issue a statement clarifying the position of the Government regarding the said railway?

MINISTER in charge of the COMMUNICATIONS and WORKS DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Mr. Barada Prasanna Pain): (a) A rumour has lately come to my notice.

(b) The dismantlement is not contemplated at present.

(c) and (d) Do not arise.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: May I point out that no answer to (c) has been given? Answer has been given to (d) but not to (c). If the Hon'ble Minister will kindly see the question then he will see the point.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question in (c) is: are the Government aware that this Railway is the only means of communication and transport in this deficit area? To this the answer is that (c) and (d) do not arise. Obviously, (c) has not been answered, for certainly the question arises.

The Hon'ble Mr. BARADA PRASANNA PAIN: In view of the fact that the question of dismantlement is not under contemplation at present, I cannot say anything on the point.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: That does not alter the fact that—

The Hon'ble Mr. BARADA PRASANNA PAIN: Government is of course aware—

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Thank you. The Government is then aware of the position.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Questions over.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I have given notice of a short-notice question regarding the serious illness of Mrs. Lila Roy, one of the security prisoners. Has it been admitted?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have not yet seen the question; I have just received it.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: May I ask through you, Sir, for papers from Government, as you permitted sometimes in an urgent case like this, so that Government may make a statement regarding this short-notice question?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have not yet seen the question, Mr. Kabir.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I find the Hon'ble the Finance Minister is present in the House. May I mention about the Public Accounts Committee and request him to answer my question or make a statement with regard to the decision of Government with regard to the Public Accounts Committee?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: With your permission, Sir, I would suggest to defer answering this question because if the printed answer is given, it will be a formal answer.

Adjournment motions.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, may I move my adjournment motion?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Regarding your motion, Mr. Mukherjee, I have very carefully gone through it but I cannot find from it what is the urgent matter of public importance. Pandit Srijib Nyayatirtha has only threatened a hunger-strike. No situation has as yet arisen. Simply an individual threatens the Government with his intention to resort to hunger-strike. I do not think that for that the business of the Legislature can be suspended. If we do so, it will be an abuse of the right of moving an adjournment motion.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: May I explain the matter?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Please do.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, the reason why I move this adjournment motion is that Government decision about the Bhog-ration for the Hindu deities has been hanging fire for a long time and there seems no prospect of Government announcing their decision earlier. This matter was raised in this House on the very first day of this session, namely, on the 7th February, 1944. The Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies often assured the House that he would decide the matter very soon but to no effect. The Brahmin Sabha, an association of orthodox Hindus, requested the Government to come to a decision on this matter so far back as the 28th April, 1944. You, Sir, yourself, are aware that so far as the Hindus of the rationed areas are concerned, they are feeling very great hardship for the last four months, since the introduction of rationing. Pandit Srijib Nyayatirtha, Principal of the Sanskrit College at Bhatpara,—a place where Pandits of repute who are considered to be the authorities in the Hindu shastras reside,—brought it to the notice of the authorities that the matter should be decided very soon. Pandit Srijib's father, the Late Mahamahopadhyaya Panchanan Tarkaratna of All-India fame, endowed debuttar properties for deva-seva—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr Mukherjee, how all these are relevant?

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: On a point of information, Sir. The other day I saw the reverend Pandit full of health.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I am simply pointing out that he wanted permission from the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies to bring foodstuff from the area where he has got debuttar property, if Government could not supply Bhog-ration for the deities. But that permission has also been refused. I want to bring all these matters relating to Bhog-ration to the notice of the House, because this matter has become very urgent. If the threatened hunger-strike takes place, the situation will be very grave so far as the Hindus are concerned. I say, Sir, that this matter having been kept pending for a long time has seriously affected the rights of the Hindu community. Indeed, the Government is trifling with the Hindu community so far as their religious worship is concerned. The news appeared on the 10th May last in the "Amrita Bazar Patrika" that Pandit Srijib contemplated going on hunger-strike, and I gave notice of the adjournment motion on that very day. I think the Government will not compel him to create a grave situation by delaying a decision on the matter any further. It was with a view to bring this fact to the notice of the Government that I have tabled this adjournment motion. It is a definite matter of public importance. Bhog for deities is no doubt a matter of public importance so far as the Hindus are concerned. Hindu deities are juristic persons and all the necessary formalities which a human being performs are performed by way of devotion to the respective deities. I think I have given sufficient indication of the importance of my adjournment motion. It is now for you to give your decision.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid, I am not convinced as regards the urgency of the situation that has arisen. An individual has threatened Government with his intention to go on hunger-strike. He has not yet resorted to it. So I do not think that it is an urgent matter of public importance. We cannot take into account extraneous matters in deciding the admissibility of this motion. This Pandit may be a very learned man and his father might have been a person of great repute. I do not for a moment deny all these facts. But I must go by the terms of your motion and you, as a lawyer, should interpret it according to the rules governing adjournment motions. I refuse my consent to it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir I have got an adjournment motion standing in my name which runs thus:—

That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance and of recent occurrence, namely, Government's reply in the negative to the question relating to the prevalence of cholera in the province given in this House on the 10th May, 1944, misleading the public when the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health Department was in possession of facts showing that the districts of Noakhali, Chittagong, Tippera, Jessore, Khulna, 24-Parganas, Dacca, Faridpur, Bakarganj, Birbhum, Burdwan, Howrah, Bogra, Rangpur and Malda are in the grip of cholera necessitating Government to introduce quarantine regulations for control and prevention of cholera by notification No. 872-P.H. of 25th April, 1944, published in the "Calcutta Gazette" of May 11, 1944.

Sir, question No. 153 referred to in my motion was put by Mr. Mungtu-ram Jaipuria day before yesterday and the answer was given that neither cholera nor malaria was any longer prevalent in an epidemic form in the province. But yesterday we got copies of the "Calcutta Gazette" and as we opened it we read that fourteen districts in Bengal were in the grip of cholera, so much so that Government felt the necessity of making quarantine regulations applicable for three months. But the day before yesterday the Minister in charge of the Public Health Department gave us to understand that cholera was not prevalent in an epidemic form in the province. How is it that the real fact was suppressed?

MR. PRESIDENT: Before I ask Government to state their views, I myself must be convinced as regards the admissibility of your adjournment motion. The question was: whether the Government are aware that in the wake of famine, malaria and cholera are raging in an epidemic form throughout the province: the stress is on the words "raging in epidemic form throughout the province" and the reply is—neither cholera nor malaria is prevalent in epidemic form in the province. Here you refer to a Government notification in the Gazette which says: whereas the Governor is satisfied that the districts of Noakhali, Chittagong, Tippera, Jessore, Khulna, 24-Parganas, Dacca, Faridpur, Bakarganj, Birbhum, Burdwan, Howrah, Bogra, Rangpur and Malda are threatened with an outbreak of cholera, etc. So it is a measure taken by Government in anticipation of an outbreak of cholera in epidemic form in certain districts. I do not, therefore, think that MR. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I explain my point?

MR. PRESIDENT: You have already spoken at length, Mr. Das.

MR. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But may I be kindly allowed to give my own interpretation of the notification in the Gazette? I think I am not outraging the commonsense of the honourable members of this House when I say that when a notification of this kind is actually published under section 2 of the Epidemic Diseases Act, it does not merely imply that the said districts are likely to be threatened with an outbreak of cholera, but that cholera is actually raging in an epidemic form in those areas, and that it is for the purpose of preventing and controlling these diseases in those districts that the notification has been issued. Otherwise, if it is merely a case of issuing a notification under section 2 of the Epidemic Diseases Act for the purpose of meeting a future contingency in those districts which have been threatened with an outbreak of cholera, there is absolutely no reason why 14 other districts should have been left out, for almost each and every district is always threatened with some disease or other. Here Government is in possession of certain facts, namely, that cholera is raging in those districts, so much so that it requires a notification to be published under section 2 of the Epidemic Diseases Act. It has been done because actually an epidemic of cholera has been raging in those districts; it is not merely a question of their being threatened with cholera. Because cholera is already there and threatens to assume a virulent form that this notification has been issued in the language that we see: namely, that those districts have been threatened with an outbreak of cholera. I contend that the disease is there already in an epidemic form, and accordingly, the notice has been issued under section 2 of the Epidemic Diseases Act. The Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Department is present here; he must be in possession of relevant facts and can say whether those districts are already in the grip of cholera or are merely threatened with it. He may be permitted to make a statement on this matter for the information of the House.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I am thankful to the honourable member for giving me this opportunity of removing the misconception which has arisen in the mind of my friend, Mr. Das, with regard to the question to which a reply was given the day before yesterday by the Parliamentary Secretary, Mr. Biren Roy. As a matter of fact, the notification does not say that all the districts throughout the province are in the grip of cholera but only that they are threatened with an outbreak of cholera. Now, with regard to the notification published under the Epidemic Diseases Act, honourable members should remember that notifications were issued for different districts at different times when we wanted to take precautionary measures for compulsory inoculation etc. Honourable members should note that compulsory inoculation cannot be done unless we declare that in those districts there is a likelihood of cholera, etc., breaking out in an epidemic form after the symptoms of cholera and other diseases are visible; but then such notification applied only to some districts in the province. The notification was issued first for the different districts at different times, as necessity arose. As such, my friend's contention is not correct. It might have been, according to him, though we do not agree, a misapplication of the Epidemic Diseases Act; but there is no inconsistency between the replies given and the notification. It might be said that Government are rather too cautious, because they issue notification under the Act. There might be objection on that score but that does not give any handle to say that the reply given on the floor of the House was inconsistent with the notification.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, may I point out one fact in this connection? In answer to a supplementary question to the question of Mr. Jaipuria regarding cholera epidemic, the Parliamentary Secretary told this House that except Calcutta no other part of the province was affected with cholera.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid, Mr. Mazumdar, you have not been able to throw any more light in this respect than the mover of the adjournment motion. The point is this: A notification was issued under the Epidemic Diseases Act in anticipation of the situation. Government do not deny that six districts were being threatened with an outbreak of cholera; but actually cholera did not break out there in an epidemic form. The question was: whether epidemic of cholera was prevalent throughout the province; and the answer was "No". There was epidemic in Calcutta but not in the whole of the province. In that view of the matter, I think this adjournment motion is not admissible. I refuse my consent to it.

Tenth Report of the Committee of Privileges.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL HAMID CHOWDHURY: Mr. President, Sir, I beg to present the Tenth Report of the Committee of Privileges which runs as follows:—

“We, the members of the Committee of Privileges of the Bengal Legislative Council, have the honour to present this our report on the matter referred to us on the 3rd March, 1944, regarding the discontinuance of the supply of the Bengal Civil List to the members of the Bengal Legislature.

2. The Committee sat on the 24th March, 1944, and is of opinion that there is no justification for Government to discontinue the free circulation of the Bengal Civil List amongst the members of the Bengal Legislature and resents such a decision by Government without consulting the members of the Bengal Legislature.

3. The Committee recommends that Government be moved to revise their decision and restore the system of free circulation of the Bengal Civil List to members of the Bengal Legislature as before.”

Now, Sir, with your kind permission, I move for the adoption of this report of the Committee of Privileges.

MR. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that the report of the Committee of Privileges be adopted.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Complaint regarding absence of facilities about drinking water for M.L.Cs.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, may I draw your attention to an inconvenience which many honourable members of this House feel with regard to the supply of drinking water and other amenities which should be normally available to the members of the House. Probably you know, Sir, that very often similar grievances had been ventilated on the floor of the House and our former President assured us that he would do his best to remove them; but difficulty arose about the control of the Chamber itself, which was vested more in the Assembly Department than under the control of the President. Therefore, I ask Government, through you, Sir, and especially the Hon'ble the Leader of the House as to what steps Government propose to take in regard to the removal of the grievances of the honourable members. Even today, Sir, an honourable member wanted a glass of water and he was told by an officer of one of the departments that as a matter of courtesy he might be given a glass of water but as a matter of right he could not expect a glass of water when the House was not sitting. If that is the position to which some members are reduced, I think we can surely depend upon you to see that such grievances are redressed.

MR. PRESIDENT: Regarding the difficulties about supply of drinking water, I am assured by the Secretary that proper arrangements would be made from tomorrow. As regards the other inconveniences, I would suggest that the leaders of different parties should meet me so that I might know what are the actual difficulties.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, may I mention one thing?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Is it necessary, Mr. Das, to mention anything? If you give me a list of your grievances and they are passed on to Government, I am sure the Government will try to remove them as quickly as possible.

Mr. RANOJIT PAL CHOWDHURY: Sir, if leaders of parties meet you in your Chamber today, will you have any objection?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have no objection.

The Bengal Orphanages and Widows' Homes Bill, 1944.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The next item is the Bengal Orphanages and Widows' Homes Bill, 1944, as passed by the Assembly.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, with reference to this Bill, I have submitted a formal amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am prepared to accept it on short notice.

Clause 1.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 1 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (1) of clause 1 of the Bill, for the word "widows'" in line 2, the word "women's" be substituted.

Sir, my reason for the amendment is that if you look to sub-clause (6) of clause 2, you will find that the word "widow" has been defined to include a woman abandoned by her husband. A husband may be leaving his wife but for this reason a wife cannot be called a widow. It is very strange that this absurd thing should appear in the Statute. Therefore, if the word "widow" is substituted by the word "woman", no harm will be done to any of the clauses of the Bill. If we again look to sub-clause (7) of clause 2, we will find that "widows' Home" means an institution where widows and other females are intended to be kept. Therefore, if it is intended that in this "Home" women of all classes should be kept, then the nomenclature "widows' Home" is misleading. I think this formal amendment should be accepted by the House, and if this is accepted, the other amendments standing in my name are all consequential. So, I submit that instead of the word "widows'", the word "women's" be substituted in sub-clause (1) of clause 1 of the Bill.

(At this stage, the Hon'ble President vacated the Chair.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved, that in sub-clause (1) of clause 1 of the Bill, for the word "widows'" in line 2, the word "women's" be substituted.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, this is a very reasonable amendment which wants to substitute the word "women's" for the word "widow's" and should, therefore, be accepted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TAMIZUDDIN KHAN: Sir, this amendment is not at all necessary. The term "Widows' Home" is a well-known and common term that has been adopted in the Bill. No other defect has been pointed out in the Bill by Mr. Bankim Mukherjee or Mr. Haridas Mazumdar.

The nomenclature would be all right if we retained the words "Widows' Home". I, therefore, oppose the amendment.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I also oppose the amendment, on the ground that it does not improve the Bill in any way. The substitution is not necessary. The definition of the term "Widows' Home" has been very clearly given in the Bill. "Widow" includes a woman abandoned by her husband. So, it is not confined exclusively to widows only. Again, the term "Widows' Home" has been defined as an institution, by whatever name it may be called, where widows or females of any age are kept or are intended to be kept. So, the framer of the Bill has taken care to define the word "widows'" as well as the term "Widows' Home". In view of this definition, the substitution of the word "women's" for the word "widows'" as suggested in the amendment is unnecessary. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 1 of the Bill, for the word "widows'" in line 2, the word "women's" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 1 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 2.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Clause 2 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: With regard to clause 2, I do not move my amendments. My first amendment to clause 1 having been negatived, I do not think I should move any of my amendments to clause 2.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 2 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 3.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Clause 3 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move: that after paragraph (c) of clause 3 of the Bill, the following new paragraphs be added, namely:—

"(d) Any orphanage or women's home or rescue home or any such bona fide institution under non-official management under a properly constituted managing committee consisting of responsible persons resident of the town or district where the said institution is or may in future be located; or

(e) any orphanage or women's home or rescue home or any such bona fide institution under non-official management which is not in receipt of a Government grant or subventions."

I move these two amendments in order that people who are desirous of starting such Homes with funds provided by them without any Government help should have no restriction placed in starting such institutions if they agree to place them under proper management, as indicated in the clauses of the Bill. I, therefore, submit that these two clauses which purport to remove the restrictions may be incorporated and accepted by the House.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that after paragraph (c) of clause 3 of the Bill, the following new paragraphs be added, namely:—

“(d) Any orphanage or women’s home or rescue home or any such bona fide institution under non-official management under a properly constituted managing committee consisting of responsible persons resident of the town or district where the said institution is or may in future be located; or

(e) any orphanage or women’s home or rescue home or any such bona fide institution under non-official management which is not in receipt of a Government grant or subventions.”

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I support the amendment.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I oppose the amendment. The very purpose of this Bill is to regulate and control these Widows’ Homes, orphanages, etc., and by the present amendment it is proposed that these orphanages and Widow’s Homes should be excluded from the scope of this Bill. There is another objection to the acceptance of this amendment. There is the word “genuine” orphanage and as there is no tribunal to decide which is a genuine orphanage and which is not, it will be difficult to decide the matter. So, if the amendment is accepted, the very purpose of this Bill would be frustrated. Therefore, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that after paragraph (c) of clause 3 of the Bill, the following new paragraphs be added, namely:

“(d) Any orphanage or women’s home or rescue home or any such bona fide institution under non-official management under a properly constituted managing committee consisting of responsible persons resident of the town or district where the said institution is or may in future be located; or

(e) any orphanage or women’s home or rescue home or any such bona fide institution under non-official management which is not in receipt of a Government grant or subvention.”

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I had tabled a short-notice amendment to clause 3.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Is it the pleasure of the House that the amendment be admitted?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: This amendment was admitted by the President a few minutes ago.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: All right. Then you can move it.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I beg to move that at the end of clause 3, the words “in the matter of granting licences” be added.

Sir, with regard to supervision of these institutions, I think there should be no discrimination specially when they are going to be supervised by Government authorities. In this view of the matter, I want to have these words, namely, "in the matter of granting licences" only added at the end of this clause.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that the words "in the matter of granting licences" be added at the end of clause 3.

MR. NUR AHMED: I think the amendment, if accepted, will make the whole clause nugatory. There is no necessity of such an amendment.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that the words "in the matter of granting licences" be added at the end of clause 3.

(The amendment was negatived.)

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 3 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 4.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Clause 4 stand part of the Bill.

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I do not move the amendment which stands in my name.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 4 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 5.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 5 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 6.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 6 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 7.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Clause 7 stand part of the Bill.

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I move only amendment No. 10B and not 10A. No. 10B runs thus:—

That in clause 7 of the Bill, after the word "night" in line 8, the words "provided an hour's previous notice is given" be inserted.

I submit, Sir, that this is a formal amendment which should be accepted by the House; because it would be a very dangerous thing if the inspector comes all on a sudden at night and wants to enter and inspect any such institution. Some time ought to be given to make arrangements for the inspection, and therefore I suggest that in the case of an inspection which is sought to be made at night, one hour's previous notice should be given. With these words, I move my amendment for the consideration of the House.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 7 of the Bill, after the word "night" in line 8, the words "provided one hour's previous notice is given" be inserted.

Mr. NUR AHMED: I am sorry to oppose the amendment. There is no necessity for such an amendment. These institutions will be public institutions and the visiting officers are expected to give reasonable notice before inspecting them or they might go and wait in the office, while arrangements for inspection were being made. I do not think that these responsible officers will misuse their powers in any way. So I do not see any necessity for this amendment. Then, again, surprise visits may also be considered necessary which would not be possible if this amendment were agreed to. I, therefore, oppose the amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 7 of the Bill, after the word "night" in line 8, the words "provided one hour's previous notice is given" be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 7 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 8.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 8 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 9.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 9 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 10.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 10 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 11.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 11 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Preamble and long title.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that the preamble and long title be added to the Bill.

(The question was agreed to.)

Third Reading.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I beg to move: that the Bengal Orphanages and Widows' Homes Bill, as settled in the Council, be passed.

Sir, this Bill, as I stated the other day, is a very simple one, the sole object of which is to provide the necessary agencies for the control and supervision of the orphanages, Widows' Homes and marriage bureaux. It is found that in many towns including Calcutta and Dacca, some institutions are run under the garb and pseudonym of Widows' Homes or Orphanage or Marriage Bureau; but really they are houses of ill-fame and their function is to supply women and to traffic in women. Therefore, it is necessary that for the welfare of the society some sort of control and supervision should be exercised over these institutions, by whatever name they may be called. So, there is necessity for such a Bill and I hope that my motion will be accepted by the House. In this connection, I must congratulate the sponsor of this Bill in the other House. Sir, it is a matter of great pride to us that the first Bill sponsored by a lady member in the Bengal Legislature is going to be placed on the Statute Book in Bengal. So far as I remember, no Bill sponsored by any lady member has been passed by the Bengal Legislature before this. With these words, I move that the Bill be passed.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that the 'Bengal Orphanages and Widows' Homes Bill, as settled in the Council, be passed.

(The motion was agreed to.)

The Bengal Court of Wards (Amendment) Bill, 1940.

MR. NUR AHMED Sir, I beg to move: that the Bengal Court of Wards (Amendment) Bill, 1940, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of—

- (1) the Hon'ble Mr. Tarak Nath Mukerjee, Minister in charge of the Revenue Department,
- (2) Mr. Mesbahuddin Ahmed,
- (3) Mr. W. B. G. Laidlau,
- (4) Mr. Lalit Chandra Das,
- (5) Mr. Shrish Chandra Chakraverti,
- (6) Mr. Haridas Mazumdar,
- (7) Mr. Altaf Ali,
- (8) Mr. Mouzzemali Chowdhury,
- (9) Khan Bahadur Abdul Hamid Chowdhury,
- (10) Mr. Sultanuddin Ahmed, and
- (11) the mover.

with instructions to submit their report by the 30th September, 1944, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a quorum shall be four.

This, Sir, is a very simple Amending Bill. The purposes of this Bill have been explained by me more than once in this House. The principal provision of this Bill is to provide a definition of the word "estate" so as to include the larger tenures also. The second purpose is to remove the word "disqualified." On sentimental ground, this word "disqualified" is undesirable. In similar Acts of other provinces, there is no such word as "disqualified". Honourable Ministers whose estates were under the Court of Wards have managed the affairs of this province and it is regrettable that they should be styled as "disqualified". This Bill was circulated more than once and weighty opinions were received. As many as 19 Collectors' opinions were received and with very few exceptions they all supported the provisions of this Bill. Therefore, I hope and trust that my motion will be accepted by this House.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Motion moved: that the Bengal Court of Wards (Amendment) Bill, 1940, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of—

- (1) the Hon'ble Mr. Tarak Nath Mukerjee, Minister in charge of the Revenue Department.,
- (2) Mr. Mesbahuddin Ahmed,
- (3) Mr. W. B. G. Laidlaw,
- (4) Mr. Lalit Chandra Das,
- (5) Mr. Shrish Chandra Chakraverti,
- (6) Mr. Haridas Mazumdar,
- (7) Mr. Altaf Ali,
- (8) Mr. Moazzemali Chowdhury,
- (9) Khan Bahadur Abdul Hamid Chowdhury, J.P.,
- (10) Mr. Sultanuddin Ahmed, and
- (11) the mover,

with instructions to submit their report by the 30th September, 1944, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a quorum shall be four

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, on behalf of Government, I accept the motion for referring the Bill to a Select Committee. There are some very salutary provisions in this Bill, besides those referred to by the mover himself. For example, possessor of exclusive tenures could be also treated as wards of court and their estates administered as such. This is a very salutary provision because no distinction should be made between holders of estates and holders of tenures. We think that this is a move in the right direction and the Bill should be referred to a Select Committee. Government accept the motion for referring the Bill to a Select Committee.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Sir, I regret that I have to oppose the motion for reference of this Bill to a Select Committee. I was not in the House when the Bill was introduced, and I did not have the benefit of hearing all the arguments in favour of the Bill which were advanced by the mover of the Bill. But the two points which were raised today seem to me to be extremely objectionable. In the first place, what is desired by the mover is that not only estates which pay revenue to Government should be the subject-matter of the charge of the Court of Wards, but also the tenures. At the present moment, only the estates of those proprietors, who own revenue-paying estates, if disqualified, are taken charge of or of those who are orphans, minors, widows or lunatics and so cannot manage their own estates. The principle of the Bill is not only to protect the estates themselves or the interests of the proprietors themselves but also to protect Government's revenue. That is the main principle on which this enactment was made. Subsequent addition to the original Court of Wards Act provided that the estates of those proprietors who are unable to manage their estates themselves or those proprietors who are orphans, widows, women, lunatics or imbeciles should be taken charge of by the Government. Of course, it was the duty of the State as such to protect the interests of such people. Later on, the addition of clause G was made in which it was also possible for the Government to take charge of the estates of proprietors other than lunatics, women, or orphans or on political grounds by declaring them as "disqualified". In the first place, I think this principle of later addition was entirely wrong. But to that subject I shall come later. Speaking about the present amending Bill so far as the estates and tenures are concerned, I think that if the proprietors of the estates or the owners of the tenures come under the same category on the ground that they are either orphans, women or lunatics or both and as such they have a right to protection, then I think that there should be a limit to such protection. The mover of the Bill wants that even the tenure-holders should be protected. But I say that there are many tenure-holders in the Mymensingh district and in North Bengal who are even bigger persons than the proprietors. On principle, there can be no objection. But there is no reason why you should not pursue this principle to its extreme logical sequence. If you want to protect the tenure-holder, then why not protect the rayat who has got into difficulties, by taking his jote also under the protection of the Government. In this view of the case, I would suggest that the mover should include the korfadars also who are entitled to such protection on similar consideration. I will now come to the other thing where the mover says that he feels pity for the proprietors who are neither lunatics nor orphans and yet are declared as "disqualified". But if they are not "disqualified", what is the reason of their estates being put under the shelter of the Government? If they are qualified to manage their own estates, they ought to manage them themselves. The Government take over charge of the estates simply because the proprietors thereof are disqualified. I would take the view that if the proprietors are not disqualified, they should manage their estates themselves without seeking any protection from the Government. If they are not disqualified, they have no right to the protection of the Government. Therefore, I think the Bill cuts right across the good and sound principles of management by Courts of Wards and I oppose the motion for reference of the Bill to a Select Committee.

(At this stage, the Hon'ble President re-occupied the Chair.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that the Bengal Court of Wards (Amendment) Bill, 1940, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I beg to move: that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of—

- (1) the Hon'ble Nawab Musharruff Hossain, Khan Bahadur, Minister in charge of the Judicial Department,

- (11) the mover,

with instruction to submit their report by the 30th June, 1944, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a quorum shall be four

Sir, this is a welfare measure. The principle of this Bill was practically accepted in connection with another Bill that was moved by Rai Bahadur S. N. Singh, who was formerly a member of this House. The Select Committee stage was also gone into and certain changes here and there were incorporated. This Bill is now presented today only with a new name and I think the House will accept my motion for reference of this Bill to a Select Committee.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: that the Bengal Anti-Dowry Bill, 1944, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of—

- (1) the Hon'ble Nawab Musharruff Hossain, Khan Bahadur, Minister in charge of the Judicial Department, with instruction to submit their report by the 30th June, 1944, and the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute quorum shall be four.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN

I beg to move that the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon by the 31st December, 1944.

Sir, my honourable friend who has sponsored this Bill stated that the Bill was previously referred to a Select Committee. But I find, Sir, that four or five years' time has elapsed since then and so it has become necessary that public opinion should be ascertained afresh. I know, Sir, there is a section of the Hindu community which feels strongly against the provision of this Bill and my friend who had introduced this Bill with the best motive no doubt has only looked to one side of the picture. He thinks that the dowry is a sort of extortion and it should be stopped. But there is another side of the picture. Hindu daughters do not inherit anything from their father, and this is the only way in which they can get something out of their paternal properties. I think it will not be quite proper to stop this system and thereby disinherit the daughters totally. I think there are other matters also which should be looked into. The Bill is not, as it seems to be, a very beneficial one. It is rather retrograde and also unchivalrous inasmuch as it takes away the right of the daughters to dowry from their parents. I think, Sir, that public opinion should be elicited before the principle of the Bill is accepted by the Government. With these words I commend my motion to the acceptance of the House.

MR. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon by the 31st December, 1944.

The Bengal Suppression of Immoral Traffic (Amendment) Bill, 1940.

MR. NUR AHMED: Sir, I beg to move: that the Bengal Suppression of Immoral Traffic (Amendment) Bill, 1940, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of—

- (1) the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin, K.C.I.F., Minister in charge of the Home Department,
- (2) Mr. Bankim Chandra Dutta,
- (3) Mr. Lalit Chandra Das,
- (4) Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee,
- (5) Mr. W. B. G. Laidlaw,
- (6) Mrs. Labanyaprobha Dutt,
- (7) Alhadj Khan Bahadur Shaikh Muhammad Jan,

- (8) Khan Sahib Nurul Amin,
- (9) Mr. Sultanuddin Ahmed,
- (10) Mr. Moazzemali Chowdhury, and
- (11) the mover,

with instructions to submit their report by the 31st July, 1944, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a quorum shall be four.

Sir, this amending Bill has come before this House at a very opportune moment so far this province is concerned. This Bill at first sight would appear to contain only three clauses. By clause 1, it wants to add one word to the preamble of the original Act and that word is "brothel". By clause 2, it wants to omit seven words occurring at the end of the definition of brothels, viz., "for the gain of any other persons". There is another clause, a new clause, which wants to add a provision to the Bill in order to give power to the corporate bodies in Bengal to regulate the brothels within their jurisdiction. When the original Act of 1933 was passed into law, there was great agitation over the definition of the word "brothels"; but in spite of that the Bill was passed with the defective definition of the term "brothel". As a result of that, during the last 10 years very little action or practically no action has been taken by the police in enforcing this Act in respect of brothels in this city. In this connection, I must state for the information of the honourable members of this House that there are two Acts now in force in Bengal. One is the Eastern Bengal and Assam Disorderly House Act, 1907, which is in force in almost all the municipal areas of Bengal and other is the present Act, namely, the Bengal Suppression of Immoral Traffic Act, 1933, which is in force in the city of Calcutta and also in one or two places in the suburbs of Calcutta. I have been trying to have the provisions of this Act extended to other municipal areas, but Government's reply has been that it will increase expenditure if that is done. There is some impression in some quarters that because this Act is in force here, so no other Act should be in force in Bengal. Even from the opinions received, we find that there is an impression that there is no necessity for any other Bill.

Sir, if we compare the provisions of the original Bengal Act with the provisions of similar legislations in the other provinces, such as the Madras Suppression of Immoral Traffic Act, 1923, the Punjab Suppression of Immoral Traffic Act, 1935, the North-West Frontier Provinces Anti-brothels and Prostitution Act, 1937, and Bombay Prevention of Prostitution Act, 1923, we find that in the Preambles of those Acts the word "brothel" has been clearly inserted; whereas in the Bengal Act it has not been inserted. In the Bengal Act, we find "Whereas it is expedient to make better provision for the suppression of traffic in women, girls for immoral purposes." Nowhere the word "brothel" occurs. Of course, there was good reason for not doing so. Because at that time the whole purpose was to suppress the traffic in women and girls. In the Madras Act, we find, "Whereas it is expedient to make better provision for the suppression of brothels and traffic in women and girls". Similarly, in the Preamble of the Punjab Act and in other provincial Acts we find the Preamble which includes brothels. The working of the whole Act would depend very much as to how we define the word "brothel". The definition in the Bengal Act is: "a brothel means any house or part of a house, room or place in which two or more females carry on prostitution for the gain of other persons". If we read side by side the definition of the Madras Act, we find that "a brothel means any house or room or place which the occupier or person in charge thereof habitually allows it to be used by any other person for the purpose of prostitution." In the Punjab Act, we find: "a brothel means any place kept or used for prostitution, but when one woman takes a man or men to her own room for illicit intercourse, she shall not be deemed to be keeping or using a brothel." In the Bengal Act we find "a brothel means a place where two or more women live together for purpose of prostitution for the gain of any other person" Otherwise it will not be a brothel. Sir, "for the gain of any other person" these seven words make the whole Act null and void. No action has been practically taken by the police for the suppression of brothels up till now. In reply to a question of mine Government has replied that the total number of brothels all over Bengal has increased. As regards Calcutta, the number of brothels has been reduced. It is necessary, therefore, that this Act should be brought in line with the Madras, the Punjab and Bombay Acts, so that our Act might be effectively enforced in Bengal. Sir, these brothels are black-spots on the fair city of Calcutta.

Sir, the prostitutes are the refuse of human society, and in view of the stringent provisions of the Bombay, Punjab and Madras Acts they take shelter in Calcutta and carry on their profession here unhampered.

Let me here reproduce in support of my amending Bill the weighty remarks from the report of the All-Bengal Women's Union.

"The Act as passed in 1933 makes a brothel a place where two or more women live together for purposes of prostitution for the gain of other persons. These seven words make the whole Act null and void, and we believe that in the ten years since this Act became law no prosecution has been attempted by police except as regards minor girls of whom 8 or 10 are removed from brothels each year, their places being at once taken by fresh victims who are also kidnapped. Madras and Bombay have enacted legislation which makes it an offence to keep brothel and the law in these cities is being rigorously enforced. Calcutta is therefore the city of refuge for all brothel-keepers, turned out of the other towns and there are at least fifteen hundred places spread out in the city."

The Government of Bengal recently opened clinics for free treatment of venereal diseases and statistics from these show that 40 per cent. of the civil population are now seeking treatment, a fact which only tells how widespread is the evil. Sir, with these words, I commend my motion to the acceptance of the House.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 38.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Wednesday, the 17th May, 1944, at 1-30 p.m., being the thirty-eighth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Malaria in the Purbadhair Union.

155. Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state whether the Government are aware that there is a severe outbreak of malarial fever in the Purbadhair Union in the district of Tippera, police-station Muradnagar, attended with high mortality?

(b) Do Government propose to take immediate steps for the supply of quinine to that locality? If not, why not?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): (a) Yes, there was a severe outbreak.

(b) No special measures were necessary as the Union is very close to the Bangora dispensary.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether Bangora is within the Purbadhair Union?

Mr. BIREN ROY: That does not matter, because the place where this outbreak occurred is only one mile and a half from the Bangora dispensary.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But is it within the Purbadhair Union?

Mr. BIREN ROY: No; it is just outside the Union.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Then why does not Government think it necessary to make arrangements for distribution of quinine within the Purbadhair Union?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Actually arrangements for distribution of quinine were made in this dispensary, because distribution could be better controlled from this place which is only $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the villages where the outbreak actually took place.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that there are several villages which constitute the Parbadhair Union?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Yes.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Are all of them only $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the dispensary?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Yes, the distance is between $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles and 2 miles in all cases.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Ridiculous.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, what did you say?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I said "ridiculous", because I know what the actual distance is.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But, you cannot express an opinion in that way. Mr. Roy never said that the dispensary is equidistant from all the villages.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: No, Sir, he did not say that it is equidistant. He said that the distance is only between $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles and 2 miles. That is why I said "ridiculous", because I myself know the distance quite well.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But you cannot express your opinion in that way.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Government please state what is the amount of quinine distributed from this dispensary?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Arrangements for free distribution of 2,340 lbs. quinine and 987 lbs. cinchona febrifuge were made from this dispensary.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state how many Unions this Bangora Dispensary is serving?

Mr. BIREN ROY: All the six villages mentioned by the honourable member.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: How many Unions and not villages; for Bangora may serve several unions?

Mr. BIREN ROY: I want notice.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The next one is a question to be answered by the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy, who I find is not present in his seat. Will the Hon'ble Leader of the House please say if anybody is prepared to answer the question on behalf of Mr. Suhrawardy?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, this question may be left over for the next day when he will be present.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, but there should have been a request to the Chair beforehand that this question might be held over. However, the question is left over till the next day.

"Grow More Food" campaign.

157. Mr. NUR AHMED: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Agriculture Department be pleased to state whether any advance or grant has been made by the Government of India to finance partly the projects and schemes undertaken by the Government of Bengal in furtherance of the "Grow More Food" campaign?

(b) If so, what is the amount of that advance or of the grant?

(c) What is the total amount proposed to be spent on the "Grow More Food" campaign in Bengal during the year 1943-44.

(d) How much of this sum is proposed to be spent in each district of Bengal and on what projects in each district?

(e) What steps have been adopted by the Government of Bengal to compel the zamindars, jotedars and money-lenders to advance money to cultivators for growing more food?

(f) How much improved seed and how much ordinary paddy and other seeds have been distributed by the Government of Bengal in 1943 and how much of the same to each district of Bengal?

MINISTER in charge of the AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Saiyed Muazzamuddin Hosain): (a) Yes.

(b) Interest-free loan of Rs.62,15,000 and grant of Rs.3,85,950.

(c) Rs.85,77,000 approximately spent during 1943-44.

(d) A statement showing the amounts spent during 1943-44 on distribution of seeds of aus, aman, rabi, wheat, castor, boro paddy and fodder crops, district by district, is laid on the Table. District figures in respect of other schemes are not yet available.

(e) Government have no power to compel anybody to advance money to cultivators, but they have issued an order under the Defence of India Rules under which the owner or occupier of any waste land can be called upon to cultivate it for growing food and fodder crops and in the event of his default, the land can be settled with any other person for the same purpose.

(f) A statement showing distribution of seeds, district by district, excluding vegetable seeds is laid on the Table.

Information regarding vegetable seeds is not yet available.

Statement referred to in part (d) of reply to question No. 157.

Rehabilitation of soldiers and sailors, etc.

159. Mr. NUR AHMED: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Commerce, Labour and Industries Department be pleased to state what steps have been taken by the Government of Bengal to draw up a post-war reconstruction scheme for the rehabilitation of soldiers, seamen and members of labour corps recruited from Bengal, after the war in agricultural lands in Bengal?

(b) Is he aware that the Government of the Punjab have already taken steps to draw up such schemes for the Punjabi soldiers?

MINISTER in charge of the COMMERCE, LABOUR and INDUSTRIES DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Mr. K. Shahabuddin): (a) A scheme is under consideration.

(b) Yes. The Punjab Government have drawn up a scheme for grant of land to the Punjabi soldiers for gallantry in the field.

Deaths due to starvation.

160. Mr. NUR AHMED: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state how many persons died of starvation in (a) Calcutta, (b) Chittagong and (c) Noakhali during the months of January to October, 1943?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): The honourable member is referred to the answer given on the 25th April 1944, in reply to question No. 124 by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das, M.L.C.

Deaths from malaria, cholera, etc.

161. Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state the total number of deaths in all parts of the Province from malaria, cholera, smallpox, dysentery, pneumonia and kala-azar from July to the end of December, 1943?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): A statement is laid in the Library.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state the total number of deaths taken together? From the statement laid on the Table it appears that he has given the number district by district, but I want to get the total number of deaths from all these causes in Bengal from July to the end of December, 1943.

Mr. BIREN ROY: I think I have given a fully detailed statement, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is your question, Mr. Das? I could not follow it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: My question is: whether the Department would be pleased to state the total number of deaths in all parts of the province from malaria, cholera, small-pox, dysentery, pneumonia, kala-azar from July to December, 1943. The reply that has been laid on the Table gives this information district by district, but what I want is a comprehensive idea as to the causes of these deaths in the whole province—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, that means only totalling up the numbers as given in the list.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Yes, Sir, so that an idea may be had of the whole thing at once.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Roy, you should ask one of your clerks to total up the figures and hand it over to Mr. Das.

Mr. BIREN ROY: All right, Sir.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state by what percentage these deaths are higher than the deaths in the year 1942?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Unless I get the total it is not possible to give the exact percentage.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: You propose to give it on some other day?

Mr. BIREN ROY: To-morrow or on the next sitting day.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: In the House?

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question cannot be kept pending, it has been answered. Mr. Roy may hand over the figure to Mr. Das.

Scarcity of drinking water in Contai subdivision.

162. Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state if his attention has been drawn to the fact that in the Contai subdivision in the coastal belt area there is want of pure water for drinking purposes?

(b) If so, does he propose to take steps for sinking sufficient number of tube-wells there to remove the want?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): (a) Yes.

(b) Steps have already been taken. Besides 182 tube-wells already existing in the coastal belt area 113 more have been sunk after the cyclone and the work of sinking fresh tube-wells and of resinking derelict tube-wells is going on.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: With reference to answer (b), will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether any new tube-wells have been sunk this year in 1944?

Mr. BIREN ROY: I want notice. One hundred and thirteen tube-wells have been sunk after the cyclone. But I do not know the exact date.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Does it refer to the cyclone of 1942?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Yes.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Questions over.

Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHOWDHURY: Sir, may I know when my question No. 156, held up today, is going to be answered.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy be here to answer this question next day?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, Sir.

Point of Information.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: With your permission, Sir, I would ask the Leader of the House for certain information about the recent disturbances that took place at Dacca. We have learnt that serious riots broke out at Dacca the other day and also that there is further chance of recurrence. I would request the Hon'ble Leader of the House or the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Law and Order to inform the House the real position there. Also we would like him to make a statement as to what steps have been taken to prevent further recurrence.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The proper procedure in this connection is to put a short-notice question and if that is sent to the Hon'ble Minister in charge, it will be for him to decide whether to make any statement or not.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, there is an alternative procedure which you have permitted, namely, asking for papers in the House. You have held that Government might take a particular occasion to make a statement with regard to the incident.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Government evidently prefers the first alternative, namely, putting a short-notice question.

Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: Sir, I have tabled a short-notice question on the subject. I do not know whether it will be consented to, because in ninety-nine cases out of hundred the Hon'ble Ministers refuse to answer questions at short notice.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You may just wait and see.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I gave notice of a short-notice question on Monday last to the Hon'ble Minister for Agriculture regarding the supply of aus seeds in the Contai subdivision of the Midnapore district. This is the season for aus crop. It is a matter of very urgent importance. So, may I know whether my question has been admitted or not?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I have not got the short-notice question.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I only request the Hon'ble Minister to reply to the short-notice question early.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That short-notice question was received by me this morning and I admitted the question but that has not yet been sent to the Department concerned.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, may I know what has happened to my short-notice question which I tabled on Friday last regarding the illness of Mrs. Lila Roy, a security prisoner?

Mr. PRESIDENT: That has been admitted by me.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Sir, may we know what will happen to the year-old questions which have not been answered yet?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I cannot enlighten the House on that point. Only the Hon'ble Ministers can.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Sir, nearly a month ago, you said that you would look into the matter. The Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies gave an assurance that he would reply to his questions earlier.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have not heard anything more about the matter.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: But, Sir, you also assured us that you would look into the matter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, I did and the matter rests there.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, may I know what has happened to my question relating to the rise in price of rice at Dacca? I believe I sent in the question about three weeks ago.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is the number of the question?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: How can I know it, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right, I shall ask the Secretary to look up and find out whether the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Department concerned has accepted the question at short notice.

The next item is the Presentation of Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, as passed by the Assembly.

Presentation of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, as passed by the Assembly.

The Secretary (Dr. S. K. D. GUPTA): Sir, the following message has been received from the Bengal Legislative Assembly:—

"The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, as passed by the Bengal Legislative Assembly at its meeting held on April 27, 1944, has been duly signed by me and is annexed herewith. The concurrence of the Bengal Legislative Council to the Bill is requested.

SYED NAUSHER ALI,

Speaker,

Bengal Legislative Assembly."

Sir, I herewith lay on the Table the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, as passed by the Bengal Legislative Assembly held on the 27th April, 1944.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, may I in this connection draw your attention to the Bill before us and say that full opportunity and full time should be given to us for the submission of amendments to the Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, why do you assume that full time will not be given.

Notice given by Hon'ble Finance Minister regarding motion for consideration and passing of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I propose to move in the current session of the Bengal Legislative Council that the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, as passed by the Assembly be taken into consideration and passed—

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: On a point of order, Sir—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Let the Hon'ble Minister finish.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: If he is allowed to finish, then my point of order will not arise. Sir, I object to his giving this notice. Under rule 52, he cannot give notice of such a motion unless the Bill has been in the possession of the honourable members for at least 15 days and, Sir, we have received the Bill only this moment. The notice for consideration of the Bill can be moved under the rule only after the Bill has been in possession of the members for 15 days. Therefore, I submit this motion does not arise at this moment unless, of course, you decide, Sir, to waive the rule. You can certainly allow him to give the notice today.

Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: Sir, this is a very important Bill. Therefore, I think even 15 days' notice is not very sufficient for the purpose.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, you are referring to rule 52, but I will draw your attention to rule 77.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I know, Sir, that that rule provides for 10 days, but that does not improve the Government's position.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Now, look at rule 76 which clearly lays down that "when a Bill originating in the Assembly has been passed by the Assembly and is sent to the Council, copies of the Bill shall be laid on the Table and made available for the use of members at the next following meeting of the Council or as soon as possible thereafter."

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: That has nothing to do with a Bill originating in this House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The rule you are quoting relates to Bills which are introduced in this House.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Not necessarily, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: In any case, I give permission to the Hon'ble Minister to make his motion by relaxing the rule, if that rule applies.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: It is certainly within your power to give such permission. But before you give your final ruling on this point, I would request you to see whether the rule that gives an advantage to the members of having notice for 10 days or 15 days as the case may be, does apply in cases of Bills originating in the other House also, and I hope, Sir, you will kindly give a ruling on this point at your leisure.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, I shall do so.

The last date for giving notice of amendments to the substantive motion that the Bill be taken into consideration should be 1 p.m. on Saturday, the 20th May.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Only three days, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Why, I think the honourable members should not take more than three days. There can be only three classes of amendments, namely, motions for circulation; motions to refer the Bill to a Select Committee; and motions for referring the Bill to a Committee of the whole House.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Even in that case, the members will have to study the Bill thoroughly, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is a Bill of 65 clauses only, and I think the members can easily read the Bill in three days' time.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It is a taxation measure, Sir. Therefore, full latitude should be given to the members to digest the provisions of the Bill and then come forward with their motions for circulation, etc.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question of digesting the Bill would arise only when you table amendments to the clauses of the Bill. At present, there can be only three classes of amendments, as I already said. Therefore, I do not think the members should take more than three days.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: My request to you is that the time be extended till Monday at least.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid, I am not inclined to do so, because that will upset the whole time-table with regard to this Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: That does not matter, Sir—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, if you are really serious and if you attach any great importance to this Bill—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I am indeed really serious, Sir, and I attach great importance to the discussion of this Bill—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am sure you are really serious and attach great importance to the Bill; you must, therefore, know that this Bill has been pending before the public for a long time and I may even assume that you have already studied the Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Even assuming that, I must take into consideration the fact that it has been changed in the Lower House.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Therefore, Sir, we must be all the more circumspect in this House in regard to this Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Where is the scope for being circumspect at this stage? As I have already said more than once, there are only three types of amendments that may be tabled. As regards giving of notices of amendments to the clauses of the Bill, I am going to give you sufficient time.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Even if looked at purely from the point of view of amendments to the substantive motion for consideration, such as motions for circulation or reference to a select committee, members will have to digest the provisions of the Bill thoroughly and put forth proper arguments in support of them.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Most of the honourable members, Mr. Das, are trained lawyers, and I am sure that you have already given attention to this subject. This matter has been pending before the public for more than six months, and I do not think that any one will find inconvenience in giving notices of amendments within these three days.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: I think you should give sufficient time to the Opposition as well—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But Mr. Chakraverti, you must know that it is to the Opposition that this time is being given to put in amendments, for I am sure the supporters of Government are not going to put in any such amendments.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: They may not give any such notice but they want to rush through the Bill in this way.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: But who knows, Sir, that some of the members of the Government party may not consider this matter in a different way?

Mr. PRESIDENT: As regards giving notices of amendments to the clauses of the Bill, my suggestion is that they should be sent by 4-30 p.m. on Tuesday, the 23rd May—

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, may I draw your attention to rule 62 of the Rules of this House where it is definitely stated that when a motion has been agreed to by the Council that a Bill be taken into consideration, any member may propose an amendment to such Bill. That is to say, the question of tabling amendments to the clauses of a Bill only comes in when the motion for consideration has been agreed to.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, go on.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: My contention is that amendments can be given notice of only after the motion for consideration is agreed to.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I suggest that amendments to clauses of the Bill should be sent along with the amendments to the substantive motion that the Bill be taken into consideration.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: In that case, I think we should get the full time—I think it is 10 days—to put in amendments to the clauses of the Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, six days; and you are getting seven days for this. The House is asked to give notice of amendments to the clauses of the Bill by Tuesday, the 23rd of May.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: That is too short a time. Today is the 17th and from today till the 23rd is seven days, or rather six days only; that is too short a time, Sir. We should have time till at least the 27th—ten clear days. As it is, under the rules the Opposition is entitled to a longer period than that. You have already waived the rule so far as the date of notice of amendments to the motion for consideration of the Bill is concerned. I quite agree that since the Bill has been before the public for some time, I at any rate do not object if three or four days are given us to put in notices of such amendments as the circulation motion or a select committee motion, and in this view I think time up to Saturday is enough for the purpose. But so far as amendments to the clauses of the Bill are concerned, I would submit that we shall have to study each clause separately and also to consider the Agricultural Income-tax Acts which have come into being in the other provinces, since this is a new type of Bill. Therefore, I would urge very strongly that you should relax the rule. Under the rules, it is only after the motion for consideration has been passed that ten days' time should be given for tabling amendments to the clauses of the Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Not ten days' time, but seven days. May I refer you to rule 80 of our Rules?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: But even then, we are not going to have full seven days; therefore the time for these amendments should be extended till the 27th.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But full seven days you are getting as under the rules!

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I point out that what we are considering at the present moment is only the question of fixing the date for amendments to the substantive motion that the Bill be taken into consideration, the possible motions being circulation, sending the Bill to a select committee, or to a committee of the whole House. It is only after that that the question of the time which will be allotted under section 80 comes in. Then, in that view, why are you fixing both the dates at one and the same time? First of all, fix the date for the amendments to the consideration motion and then fix the date for amendments to the clauses of the Bill, after the consideration motion is passed.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Only to save time I was doing so; for I do not think that this will inconvenience the honourable members in any way.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But, Sir, why should you be in such a hurry?

Mr. PRESIDENT: There is no question of hurry; but why should you waste time for nothing?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I protest against the word "waste". The question of "waste of time" does not arise now. That may come in only after the motion made under rule 77 that the Bill be taken into consideration is carried. Your discretion will come in after that and then the question of "waste of time" will arise. You may then raise the point if we ask for more time than is required. That question will arise then and not now. Moreover, Sir, it is a taxation measure; a heavy burden is going to be imposed on the people of Bengal and so no question of waste of time arises. We want to put in as many amendments as are required. So, there is no question of hurry or waste of time.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But where is that hurry—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: We are practically hurrying through the Bill. The Bill has been presented today only by the Hon'ble Minister and on the same day he is moving for consideration. Although we wanted time, no sufficient time is allowed—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will you kindly hear me? The Hon'ble Minister has moved that the Bill be taken into consideration and as I explained more than once, there can be only three kinds of amendments at this stage—amendment for circulation, amendment for select committee, and amendment for a committee of the whole House. For that, I think four days are more than enough, namely, 4 p.m. on the 20th May for putting in amendments—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will you please allow me, Sir, to say a few words—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I hope Mr. Mukherjee you will allow me to go on. Do you realise how many times you rose up to speak? (Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: But without any effect.) As regards putting in amendments my suggestion is that 4-30 p.m.—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I was going to rise on a point of order on this point.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is it?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, if you look to rule 80, you will find that if the motion made under rule 77 that the Bill be taken into consideration is carried, only then the question of amendments to the clauses will arise. There can be no question of consideration of amendments to the clauses before the consideration motion is passed. Under rule 80 that question will arise only after the consideration motion is passed: that is my point of order.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, that is the practice that has all along been followed.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No. Not all along—that is what I understand. There have been cases when amendments to the clauses were put in along with amendments to the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration. As regards putting in amendments on the clauses of the Bill, I am prepared to accommodate—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I submit, Sir, that the time for amendments to the clauses of the Bill cannot be considered at this stage—before the consideration motion is passed.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Sir, the suggestion of Mr. Mukherjee is logical. Suppose the Bill is circulated for eliciting public opinion—where will these amendments then go?

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right, Mr. Das, I am prepared to wait for the amendments to the clauses till after the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration is accepted. (Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Thank you, Sir.)

The House stands adjourned till 2-15 p.m. on Friday next.

Adjournment.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 39.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Friday, the 19th May, 1944, at 2-15 p.m., being the thirty-ninth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Communal disturbances at the Chaitra Sankranti Mela at Ghagar.

163. Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state whether serious communal disturbances took place on the 13th April last at the Chaitra Sankranti mela at Ghagar in the Kotalipara police-station within the district of Faridpur?

(b) How far is Ghagar from the nearest police-station?

(c) Did any police force attend the mela?

(d) Was any person or persons killed in the affray? How many were injured?

(e) Is it a fact that some women were missing in course of the communal clash? If so, how many? Have they been traced, recovered and restored to their proper guardians? To which community do the women belong and to which caste?

(f) What steps have the Government so far adopted to bring the offenders to book?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY, (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) No. There was a clash between some Home Guards and prostitute mongers but the dispute was quickly settled by the local people themselves.

(b) $\frac{1}{4}$ mile.

(c) Yes.

(d) No person was killed. Two were slightly injured.

(e) No woman was reported missing.

(f) Does not arise.

Yield of paddy per acre in Bankura and Birbhum districts.

164. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR (on behalf of Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee): Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Agriculture Department be pleased to state—

(a) the method in which the produce of a particular area has been calculated with reference to different classes of lands; and

(b) the quantity of produce per acre as estimated (i) for danga lands, (ii) for low lands, and (iii) for medium lands in the districts of Bankura and Birbhum?

MINISTER in charge of the AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Saiyad Muazzamuddin Hossain): (a) The figures of outturn per acre are based on the results of experiments during the last three quinquennial periods ending 1941-42. Experiments are made on different classes of lands and then an average is struck for the district and finally for the Province as a whole.

(b) Quantity of produce per acre with regard to the different classes of lands has not been calculated separately.

Air raid shelters in polling booths.

165. Rai Bahadur BROJENDRA MOHON MAITRA (on behalf of Mr. Naresh Nath Mookerjee): (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state whether sufficient and adequate shelters against air raids will be provided in every polling booth in the city at the ensuing Calcutta Municipal Elections?

(b) Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that shelters and adequate water-supply arrangements for at least 2,500 persons should be provided for in every polling booth?

(c) Is he aware that the elections will take place on the 29th March? If so, what steps have been taken so far for the protection of both male and female voters in the booths?

(d) Is it a fact that even sites for such booths have not yet been selected?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): The elections were held on the 29th March last. Except in three or four cases, pucca buildings were selected as polling stations. Arrangements were also made for the supply of filtered water, as usual, in each polling station as well as in the polling booths on the day of the poll. No complaint was received from any quarters regarding insufficiency of water-supply in any case.

Water-supply system at Kurseong.

166. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR (on behalf of Dr. Kumud Sankar Ray): Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state—

(a) whether the present water-supply system at Kurseong (in the Darjeeling district) is divisible into two parts;

(b) whether the main part consists of the catchment area near Sepoydhura from which water is brought to the main reservoir at St. Helen's for distribution to those parts of the town which lie below this level;

(c) whether the daily inflow into the reservoir mentioned in part (b) is about one lakh gallons serving about three-quarters of the population of Kurseong;

(d) if the Government are aware that this supply is inadequate and the method of distribution is also defective;

- (e) if it is a fact that the Public Health Department of the Government of Bengal have prepared a scheme for increasing the supply of water to the population below the level of St. Helen's, the cost of which is estimated at about Rs.20,000;
- (f) if it is a fact that the population was about 6,000 and has increased considerably at present;
- (g) if it is a fact that minimum supply available for the Dow Hill and Victoria School areas from different sources roughly amounts to 30,000 gallons daily;
- (h) if it is a fact that the supply for the abovementioned areas after the last earthquake has been diminished and as a result the supply during the driest season is insufficient which not only affects the Dow Hill, Victoria School, and the Tuberculosis Sanatorium areas but also those above the St. Helen's level;
- (i) if it is a fact that Mr. Samuel (now deceased), who was Subdivisional Officer of Kurseong, submitted a scheme for the tapping of Babukhal Spring and a survey was made accordingly;
- (j) if it is a fact that the estimated yield of Babukhal Spring and other phoras nearabout is one lakh gallons per day which would be sufficient to make up the shortage in the water-supply for the Dow Hill area population in Kurseong; and
- (k) whether Government contemplate giving effect to the scheme suggested by the late Mr. Samuel; if not, have Government any other scheme for the improvement of the water-supply arrangement at Kurseong in contemplation; if the answer is in the affirmative, when such a scheme is likely to be undertaken?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): (a) Yes, the water-supply system is divided into two zones.

- (b) to (e) and (g) Yes.
- (f) The census figures of 1931 and 1941 are 7,451 and 8,497, respectively.
- (h) the earthquake did not cause much difference in the quantities of water supplied at different periods in that area.
- (i) No such scheme was submitted to Government by the late Mr. Samuel.
- (j) Yes, but the cost of tapping and conveying water from those springs would be prohibitive.
- (k) No scheme suggested by the late Mr. Samuel is before Government. A sketch project of the water-supply improvement scheme submitted by the Kurseong Municipality has been administratively approved recently. It is now for the municipal commissioners to have a detailed scheme prepared and submitted to Government for sanction. The scheme may then be taken up for execution.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It was decided at the last meeting that answer to question No. 156 would be given today by the Hon'ble Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, the Hon'ble Minister will be here presently; so the question may be held over for the present.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Can you not answer the question yourself on his behalf?

Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHOUDHURY: Sir, I do not understand why the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies does not make it a point to attend the Council? This is not the first time that the House is being treated in this way by the Government.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Saheb, you assured me that the Hon'ble Minister will be present in the House today to answer the question.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, the matter was communicated to him, and he sent word that he would attend the Council.

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: He said he would come today. Perhaps he is on the way.

Mr. PRESIDENT: So, it should be taken up on the next day. I hope the Hon'ble Minister will make it a point to attend on the next day. That is all that I can suggest.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I have tabled a short-notice question and the Leader of the House was good enough to say that he would give us information regarding the Dacca riots.

My question was: whether the Hon'ble Minister is aware that disturbances of the nature of local riots took place at Dacca on Sunday last—

Mr. PRESIDENT: You need not read out the question

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, the Leader of the House told us that he would give us the information as soon as the question was received.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am not quite sure whether Government have received that question yet; because the question was put to me only this morning and I admitted it for being answered on short-notice.

Mr. BIREN ROY: Sir, the Hon'ble the Home Minister has left for Dacca already. If there is a sitting on Monday, I hope, he will be able to make a statement on the position.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: So I may hope that on Monday we will get a statement from the Hon'ble Minister.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, that is the expectation.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, regarding my Bhog-ration question, the Hon'ble Leader of the House assured that he would see that the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy is present on Monday to reply to it.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: He will be present today, we hope.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If he is present here today, you raise the question again at the end of today's meeting.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: All right, Sir.

Motions under rule 112 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Haridas Mazumdar.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I beg to move that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to urge upon the Government of India to allow during the period of war the manufacture of salt even in indigenous methods in cottages in any quantity in any part of Bengal to be transported and sold anywhere within the province to meet the unforeseen emergent situation created by the extreme shortage of the supply of poor man's salt selling at an exorbitant price in the various parts of the province, in the interests of health and nutrition of men and cattle after the devastating famine of 1943.

Sir, the motion speaks for itself. It is a great misfortune that a prime necessity of life like salt cannot be had at a price within easy reach of the poor people of this country. A worse condemnation of the British rule in this country cannot be conceived. India which has got a far-reaching and far-flung sea-coast never suffered for want of salt in the past. দুধ ভাত, না হয় তে নুন ভাত : this was known to everybody. If not rice and milk, at least rice and salt: this ancient proverb in Bengal speaks volumes. The great Emperor Akbar was always anxious that the price of salt must not be high. It is a great anomaly that Bengal which is not an inland province like Bihar and the United Provinces but has a long sea-coast has to go without salt simply because a sufficient number of wagons is not available in war time to transport this article from a long distance. This is an instance of "Water, water, everywhere, but not a drop to drink". Mahatma Gandhi as a result of the "Dandi March" wrested for the people of this country the right of manufacturing salt for their own consumption near the sea; but the Government did not allow any one to carry salt thus manufactured beyond a certain distance. The present motion is intended to extend that right of manufacturing salt as an emergency measure for the duration of the war. If this prayer is granted, then people will manufacture salt not only for themselves but also for sale to others in various parts of the province. The quantity thus manufactured will increase by the sheer force of the law of supply and demand and also thousands of persons will find employment in this new avenue of employment. This will also help the reconstruction of rural Bengal after the famine of last year. But the greatest good will be done by way of cheapening the price of salt, so that the poor who sold their all last year may buy as much as they require with their limited incomes. Salt is also a great necessity for the cattle and the recent heavy mortality among them is largely due to the scarcity of salt. As regards the Central Government's dues from the salt duty in Bengal, the amount so collected should be adjusted against this province's share of jute duty and income-tax receipts. If the Provincial Government make a representation to the Government on these lines, they will be successful easily, I think. If we prune our wasteful expenditure, we may not feel this difference but the poor masses will be very much benefited. By this process, of course, I do not say that the necessity of importing salt from outside the province will be removed altogether, but it will no doubt be lessened. The requirement of military traffic may diminish the number of wagons required for transporting salt by railway. When salt is being privately manufactured to a certain extent and since public opinion supports the extension of this principle, I hope Government will accept this proposal and act according to the need of the hour. Therefore, I think that this motion should be accepted without any dissentient voice and we all should send this prayer to the Central Government that the manufacture of salt should be allowed duty-free at least during this period of war emergency. Bengal which is passing through a very great crisis should be relieved of this difficult position. Salt is now selling at some places at Re. 1-8 per seer. This impossible state of affairs must be put an end to. With these words, I commend my motion to the acceptance of the whole House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to urge upon the Government of India to allow during the period of war the manufacture of salt even in indigenous methods in cottages in any quantity in any part of Bengal to be transported and sold anywhere within the province to meet the unforeseen emergent situation created by the extreme shortage of the supply of poor man's salt selling at an exorbitant price in the various parts of the province, in the interests of health and nutrition of men and cattle after the devastating famine of 1943.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I rise to support the motion moved by my friend Mr. Mazumdar. Anything which affects the economic condition of Bengal is of vital importance. Salt is one of the most important articles for human consumption. From history we gather that Bengal was once famous for salt manufacture. It was self-supporting in the matter of salt. Its total production not only met its own requirements but it used to send salt to other provinces of Bengal. When the East India Company came to Bengal, they started factories for the production of salt by indigenous method and used to export it to other countries. But with the advent of fine salt, the salt industry of Bengal was killed. Sir, it is a matter of great shame that Bengal is the only province of all the provinces in India which has to depend on imported salt from other provinces and also from foreign land. At present, India produces 1½ million maunds of salt. It has to import about 5 lakhs maunds of salt from foreign countries. Investigations were made about the possibility of the production of salt in Bengal. The first report was not favourable to Bengal. It was found that Bengal sea-water was not fit for the production of salt. At that time no investigation was made in Chittagong and other sea-coast places. But very recently two of the experts re-examined this question and found that salt could be produced from Bengal sea-water very easily simply by the evaporation method and by boiling in earthen pots, as is done in Madras. As a result of that, some factories on cottage industry basis have been established very recently. The Government of India allotted subsidies from Rs. 14,000 to Rs. 18,000 for this purpose but these factories could not earn these subsidies as they could not produce the required quantity of salt from sea-water. Now, Sir, as a result of the recent famine, Government have come forward to establish some warehouses in Tamruk and other places in the Midnapore district and there is a proposal to extend the same facilities also to other districts. So, it is the duty of the Government of Bengal to press this matter with the Government of India and allow all possible facilities for production of salt. I find that the sum allotted in the budget is very small for the encouragement of salt production in Bengal. It is the duty of the Government of India to help the Government of Bengal in this matter.

Sir, this resolution very modestly states that manufacture of salt should be allowed in places not covered by the Irwin-Gandhi Pact. According to the terms of the Irwin-Gandhi Pact, production of salt is allowed only on the sea-shore areas by the villagers for their own consumption and for sale within the area. Salt thus produced cannot be sold in any other place. By this motion a prayer is being sent to the Government of India to allow production of salt throughout Bengal and selling of the salt thus produced throughout Bengal. I think this is a very modest prayer. My appeal to the Hon'ble Minister-in-charge of the Commerce and Industries Department would be to see that this industry is revived in Bengal, so that Bengal may get back to her former position so far as the supply of salt is concerned. There is another very cogent reason why this industry should be revived, and that is that it would provide employment for a large number of persons. It would give extra work to the cultivating class during their leisure hours and give them an opportunity to earn extra money. Bengal's cultivators living on the sea-shore areas know very well the simple process of preparing salt. In this connection, I may make one suggestion and that is with regard to the supply of cheap fuel to the salt manufacturers. There was a proposal that forest fuel from the reserved forests should be sold to the villagers who would prepare salt. I appeal to the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Forest Department to consider this aspect of the question. Salt can also be manufactured by evaporation; but that is costly and salt so manufactured could not compete with the foreign salt.

With these few words, Sir, I support the motion.

The Hon'ble Mr. Khwaja SHAHABUDDIN: Sir, while I do not oppose the motion, I submit that it is absolutely unnecessary. This motion should not have been brought in here in this manner. I submit, Sir, that there is a lot of confusion as far as this problem is concerned. It has been suggested that the Government of India should be approached to abolish the salt excise duty, because this abolition would help to increase the manufacture of salt in the province. I beg to submit, Sir, that the one question is not dependent on the other. As far as the salt excise duty is concerned, it is only Rs. 1-9 per maund. According to the present arrangement with the Government of Bengal, permission has been given for the manufacture of salt on cottage industry basis without any licence, provided the salt so manufactured is brought to the Government warehouse where the salt excise duty is to be levied. Therefore, so far as the production and manufacture of salt is concerned, it has no direct connection with the levy of the salt excise duty, as has been pointed out by the mover of the resolution himself. As I have indicated, people can easily pay the salt excise duty and manufacture salt. So far as the Government of Bengal is concerned, Sir, we have taken steps to encourage the manufacture of salt. We have already established 7 warehouses throughout the coastal area—5 in Midnapore and 2 in the 24-Parganas; and recently we have established 4 warehouses in Chittagong where the result appears to be very encouraging. In 2 months about 14,000 maunds of salt have been deposited there. The arrangement is that any person who brings the salt there is paid the price: the fixed minimum price being Rs. 2. I want to emphasise the fact that Rs. 2 is the minimum and not the maximum. Then, the person who is in charge of the warehouse exports the salt to various parts of the district and the province, and before allowing the salt to go out of the warehouse the salt excise duty, payable to the Government of India, as well as a small charge for the cost of the warehouse is deducted. I hope four more warehouses will be established during the next session. Speaking about the manufacture of salt through factory on another occasion—I am not sure whether it is in this House or in another place—I explained that I am in full agreement with the suggestion that we ought to try and establish salt factories—

We are anxious to do everything possible to encourage the establishment of such factories. We want to help those private companies which are already in existence with expert advice so that the manufacture of salt in these places may be carried out on commercial basis. The Director of Industries submitted a scheme five or six years ago to establish a model salt factory under the supervision of an expert. This would have encouraged other people to set up similar factories in other parts of Bengal. But unfortunately, the then Government did not consider that it was proper to go on with the scheme, and so it was left without any action. I am not disclosing any confidential matter when I say that I have already taken steps to implement that scheme and I hope that the Government will be able to appoint an expert for setting up a model salt factory—

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: When?

The Hon'ble Mr. Khwaja SHAHABUDDIN: Very soon. Sir, as far as the present scarcity and shortage of salt is concerned, no Government in the world can set up a factory just by waving a magic wand. (Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: What about the crude devices?) So far as the crude devices are concerned, I have just said that Government have taken all necessary steps to encourage the manufacture of salt on the cottage industry basis, and in pursuance of that policy we have already established seven warehouses. The man who brings the salt to the warehouse is paid then and there after the salt excise duty is deducted. And not only that, that scheme is going to be extended to all the coastal areas of Bengal. I hope that many warehouses on similar lines will be set up throughout the coastal areas of Bengal. (Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA DUTTA: Why not make them duty-free?)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Dutta, I hope you will allow the Hon'ble Minister to speak without interruption.

The Hon'ble Mr. Khwaja SHAHABUDDIN: Sir, this is a very helpful interjection, and I am grateful to him for this, because I was trying to impress upon the House that the excise duty was not really very high. As far as the salt excise duty is concerned, I may say in the first place that it is not the concern of the Provincial Government. In the second place, increased manufacture of salt is not dependent on the abolition of the salt excise duty, because the prevailing high price of salt makes it a paying concern for the poor people to manufacture salt on cottage industry basis in spite of the salt excise duty. (Some honourable members on the other side were shaking their heads in doubt.) Sir, it is no use shaking their heads. The point is this: what is the salt excise duty now? It is only Re. 1-9 per maund, and everybody is aware at what price salt is selling here now-a-days. So far as that question is concerned, therefore, the salt excise duty is not a hindrance to the increased manufacture of salt. I have already said that we have been thinking of appointing an officer to advise the Government to set up model factories as well as laboratories where investigation and research should be made to find out the proper use of the by-products of salt, because on that depends the economic manufacture of salt. This is the position, Sir, and I am grateful to the honourable member for having given me this opportunity by moving this resolution to state the policy of Government in regard to this very important industry. Beyond this I have nothing more to say. As I said in the beginning, I do not oppose the motion.

(Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee rose.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid you cannot speak at this stage, Mr. Mukherjee. Do you want to exercise your right of reply, Mr. Majumdar?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I do not want to say anything by way of reply except on one point. I have a feeling that the policy outlined by the Hon'ble Minister would be practically taking away by another hand what is being given by one hand. If you permit the poor villagers to manufacture salt and then ask them to go to a factory some 30 miles off with their manufactured products and to wait there for the levy of excise duty, then that will practically make the whole thing a farce. Therefore, I suggested that the Bengal Government should go to the Central Government for permission to manufacture salt free of duty. That is my point and we should see that the Central Government is approached accordingly.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Hon'ble Minister has got a second right of reply. Does he want to exercise that right?

The Hon'ble Mr. Khwaja SHAHABUDDIN: No, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to urge upon the Government of India to allow during the period of war the manufacture of salt even in indigenous methods in cottages in any quantity in any part of Bengal to be transported and sold anywhere within the province to meet the unforeseen emergent situation created by the extreme shortage of the supply of poor man's salt selling at an exorbitant price in the various parts of the province, in the interests of health and nutrition of men and cattle after the devastating famine of 1943.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Mr. NUR AHMED: I beg to move that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to communicate to the Government of India the recommendation of this Council to take such immediate steps as the Government of India think proper to secure the withdrawal of regulations restricting the entry of Indian immigrants into Kenya, Tanganyika and Uganda in East Africa.

Sir, with a heavy heart I have brought this motion before this House. It is said that we Indians belong to the British Commonwealth of Nations and that we are equal partners of that great Commonwealth. But is it true? What is our status in that Commonwealth? Where do we stand? We find that everywhere in the Commonwealth we Indians are treated as pariahs. The position of Indian emigrants to Kenya, Tanganyika and Uganda is very precarious. When the war broke out in 1939-40, about 10,000 Indians were compelled to leave their hearths and homes. The majority of these men are permanent residents there and carry on business. The Administration all on a sudden asked them either to go into the interior or to return to India. The ground given for this was shortage of food supply and house accommodation. The Indians offered to do war work but still Government compelled them to leave their hearths and homes. As a result of that, they had to return to India leaving their property and business in 1941. With the entry of Japan into the war, the shipping difficulty was intensified and obstacles were placed in the way of Indians returning to that colony. The Colonial Government apparently with the consent of the Government of India recently promulgated some sort of regulation prohibiting the re-entry to these colonies of Indians who had been absent for a certain period. If this regulation is enforced, the result will be that these 10,000 men, the majority of whom are still in India, will be debarred from going back to the Colonies where they have their homes and properties. There was an agitation over this matter and the Government of India approached the Government of these Colonies. As a result of this representation by the Government of India, the Government of these colonies replied that owing to shortage of food supply and household accommodation on account of war emergency they had promulgated this regulation and that this measure would be taken away when the war is over.

That may be so, but what will be the fate of those Indians who have their homes and properties and business there? They will suffer serious losses if they are debarred from going back to their land of adoption. They have now become permanent residents of those places. They have nothing to fall back upon in India except perhaps some relations. If this regulation is strictly enforced, those who are now in India would be for ever debarred from going there. For this reason, I have brought this simple motion to draw the attention of the Government of India with a view to secure redress of these grievances. I hope honourable members will accept my motion. It is a matter of regret that we are treated in this way everywhere, not to speak of this Crown Colony which is directly administered by His Majesty's Government. The reason advanced for not allowing the Indians to go and settle there is that there is no accommodation. But before this the Indians used to live there. What has become of those houses?

This is merely a subterfuge to restrict the Indians from going there. These Indians have added to the prosperity of Colony and naturally they have a right to be there.

With these few words, I commend my motion to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: That an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to communicate to the Government of India the recommendation of the Council to take such immediate steps as the Government of India think proper to secure the withdrawal of regulations restricting the entry of Indian immigrants into Kenya, Tanganyika and Uganda in East Africa.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I have great pleasure in supporting the motion that has been brought by Mr. Nur Ahmed on the subject of removing the restrictions regarding the entry of Indian immigrants into Kenya, Tanganyika and Uganda in East Africa. At the present time when the Indian soldiers are fighting side by side with the Allied soldiers and we are getting reports that the Indian soldiers are fighting to their credit, it is very painful to learn that these restrictions should be placed upon the Indian immigrants in other parts of the Empire or in East Africa.

As a matter of fact, Sir, when the Pegging Act was passed, we found in the papers notification of the Pegging Act in South Africa side by side with the reports about the achievement of the Indian Army in driving away the enemy from North Africa. It was very painful and we got a resolution carried in this House that the Pegging Act should be immediately repealed. We are grateful to the present Viceroy for having taken steps in that direction as the result of which an assurance has been obtained that the Pegging Act will not be enforced against the Indians.

With these few words, I support the motion that has been moved by Mr. Nur Ahmed.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, as Indians we cannot but have full sympathy with this motion. But, Sir, it is a purely Central subject and the Provincial Government have not the final say in the matter. So, in accordance with the usual practice in such cases, the Government will forward the proceedings of the House to the proper authorities for necessary action.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Does the honourable member want to exercise his right of reply?

Mr. NUR AHMED: No, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to communicate to the Government of India the recommendation of this Council to take such immediate steps as the Government of India think proper to secure the withdrawal of regulations restricting the entry of Indian immigrants into Kenya, Tanganyika and Uganda in East Africa.

(The question was agreed to).

NON-OFFICIAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The next item on the agenda is non-official resolutions.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, during the last session this House passed a resolution to the effect that the Government of India be requested that the Hindu Intestate Succession Bill which was pending in the Central Legislature should be postponed till after the war. I would like to know under Rule 95 of the Council Procedure Rules what action has been taken with regard to the resolution that was passed. I may read the Rule which stands thus:

“(1) A copy of every resolution which has been passed by the Council shall be forwarded to Government.

(2) The Minister-in-charge will place before the Council in the next session what action on the resolution passed by the Council during the previous session has been taken by Government.”

Now, I would like the Leader of the House to inform us what action has been taken on the resolution with regard to the Hindu Intestate Succession Bill.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I will make an enquiry from the office and then report to the House what action has been taken.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The resolution which had been moved by Rai Bahadur Keshab Chandra Banerjee but which was not disposed of is under discussion. It relates to the Campbell Medical School strike. Here I would just like to mention that this resolution was under discussion but was postponed. This was contrary to the rules and this should not be taken as a precedent.

Would the Hon'ble Minister like to reply?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: I am sorry I was not present in the House when this resolution regarding the Campbell Medical School strike was discussed on the last occasion. The mover's main object was to have an enquiry into the causes of the strike with a view to prevent the recurrence of such strikes in future. This resolution had engaged my attention, and I have given it very careful consideration. I would have agreed to an enquiry if it would have served any useful purpose.

A press note was issued when the strike commenced. The real reason why there was this strike consisted in the fact that the Teacher of Materia Medica at the Campbell Medical School had been transferred from Calcutta. The teacher himself went to the Secretariat and wanted to have the transfer cancelled. He was transferred for immediate and urgent administrative necessity to Midnapore. His transfer could not materially affect the teaching or the results of the students either in the final examination or in any other examination. Doctors themselves have reported to me that Materia Medica is a subject taught to be forgotten later on. So his presence at the Institution was not absolutely necessary. Besides, as I have said, his transfer was made on account of urgent administrative reasons. He was not willing to go there and at first he tried to see the officers of my department in the Secretariat in my absence. After the order of transfer was communicated to him, some students came and saw me. No other grievance was referred to by them excepting that the Teacher of Materia Medica was a very good teacher. The Superintendent of the Institution reported that his popularity with the students was due mainly to the fact that he was very liberal in granting marks. This Superintendent was a reputed surgeon who also was very popular at the Campbell School, having been there for 15 years. He was so very popular that even if he slapped his juniors, they would not take offence; he had very good reputation as a surgeon among his colleagues and he was generally loved. Even in these democratic days there are people who put up with these things. I can recall my old days at the Presidency College, where even if some professors went wrong, the students would still speak well of them. I might recall to mind the name of Mr. Percival in this connection. Thereafter, some students came to me and asked me earnestly not to transfer the said teacher. I said to them, if they complained about improved teaching staff, then I shall certainly look to it; but if they insist that a particular teacher should not be transferred and his transfer should be cancelled, I could not listen to them. His transfer was necessitated for urgent administrative reasons. I could not tolerate the position that the students should intervene in a matter like this and that the teacher should take the help of the students to achieve his object. Two or three days after, the students held a meeting of their Union and there they set the ball of strike rolling and sent in a representation couched in very impertinent language, bolstering up some of the grievances which had been already enquired into by the Surgeon-General. The Surgeon-General asked them to see him and he said to them that if they had any grievances they would be considered if their petition were couched in proper language. In spite of the assurance of the Surgeon-General they went on strike. They had recanted their old grievances, i.e., inefficient teaching, want of hostel accommodation and proper air-raid precaution—these are all old grievances. But this time the old grievances were bolstered up and they adopted coercive measures by trying to force the Government to cancel the order of transfer of the teacher of Materia Medica. Well, I do not think any useful purpose will be served by the appointment of a committee of enquiry. It will be of no help in preventing recurrence of these strikes. Committees of enquiry in other fields were appointed in the past with no good result. They did not prevent recurrence of strikes. I quite realise that students are students, but these strikes are engineered by outsiders who show undue sympathy with the students. In 1938 also the students' strike was engineered, as reported to me. So every time a third party interfered and Government yielded and this has encouraged and emboldened the students to go on strike so frequently and without sufficient reason. I personally went into their grievances later on and have tried to improve their teaching staff. But it is indeed very bad for students to disobey their teachers. Discipline is one of the most important factors in an educational institution and the more so in the case of medical institutions. Every student should observe discipline for his success. For all these reasons, I warned them and told them that if they went back to their school their grievances would be looked into; and if there were genuine grievances, they will certainly be removed. But they must first give up the strike. Now, Sir, strike on the part of students in an educational institution is very bad. Here, there is no question of dispute or exploitation as between an employer and employees, as in the case of labour or other industrial concerns. I can quite understand a labour strike, I can quite understand an industrial strike, because there we find the question of exploitation and the question of profit and loss. But it cannot bear any analogy in the case of educational institutions. In the case of educational institutions, Government do not get any profit except that the students, when they pass out, will become useful citizens. So, there is no monetary gain on the part of Government.

If there is want of discipline and the students are allowed to disobey their Superintendent and their teachers, the effect will be very bad. The cause of the strike of 1942 was alleged to be due to air-raid difficulties. The students wanted to postpone the examination and the examination was postponed. Then they came again with another demand that those who failed at the examination should be allowed to pass under rule 44. But the Superintendent could not relax this rule and as the request was not complied with the students went on strike. All the strikes from 1938 to 1942 were mostly due to some such reasons. There should be no illusion as to the fact that if the students go on strike, their grievances, however genuine they might be, would not be considered. They should be disillusioned by their guardians or by the public that their strikes would not be supported by them. If they have any real grievance, the students or guardians will represent to the authorities and then to Government. My humble submission to this House through you, Sir, is that if we want to put a stop to this sort of strike, we must not allow the students to disobey their teachers. If we allow them to disobey their teachers, there will be repetition of strikes. You will be surprised to hear, Sir, that one of their grievances was regarding the transfer of staff. Now, that teacher was transferred from the school at his own instance, viz., on account of the death of his only son. As a result of this the students went on strike. Then there was another grievance regarding the deterioration of the teaching of surgery. But that is not the case. There is one surgeon and one honorary surgeon. So there can be no question of deterioration. I.M.S. men have been replaced by non-I.M.S. teachers. There is no complaint on that account. If the students behave unreasonably, that will hamper the administration of the school and that will do no good to them also. If we want to avoid a recurrence of strikes in future, my prayer is that the students should be made to behave as students, they should be obedient to their teachers and authorities.

Sir, I am forced or rather constrained to oppose this resolution. I may mention here also another thing and that is with regard to grievances regarding the nurses. There was one strike regarding the conduct of the Lady Superintendent of that School. I admit that this nurse was somewhat of a tactless nature and over-bearing, as reported to me. However, we have taken up that question and we shall see that proper steps are taken in the matter.

With these few words, Sir, I oppose the resolution.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL HAMID CHOWDHURY: May I have your permission to make a statement explaining the circumstances under which this resolution had to be postponed on the 24th March last?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, please do.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL HAMID CHOWDHURY: The resolution moved by Rai Bahadur Keshab Chandra Banerjee was discussed at great length and towards the close of the discussion it was found that the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Medical and Public Health Department was absent. On enquiry it was found that nobody on behalf of Government was prepared to make any statement meeting all the points raised in the course of the discussion of this resolution. Then, after some discussion it was unanimously decided by the House that consideration of this resolution should be postponed so that the House might have the benefit of hearing the Government point of view from the Hon'ble Minister when he speaks meet the points raised. It was out of respect for the unanimous desire of the House that this resolution was postponed. Now, may I have a ruling from the Chair as to what should be the correct procedure if such circumstances arise in future?

Mr. PRESIDENT: If it is the unanimous desire of the House to take a particular course of action on a particular occasion, nothing can prevent the wishes of the House being fulfilled, but I think that this should not be taken as a precedent for future guidance, because if Government are not prepared or the Ministers are not pleased to reply to the debates, Government case should go in default, and the House should take its decision without listening to the Government point of view. That would be the correct procedure.

Mr. HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Sir, I would like to put some question?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am already on my legs. You are a new member and, of course, you have got a privilege. But I request you not to press your point. It is not the practice to put questions when a motion is being put by the Chair.

Mr. HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: All right, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that this Council is of opinion that a committee consisting of officials and non-officials be appointed to enquire into the causes of the recent strike by the students of the Campbell Medical School, Calcutta, and to make recommendations with a view to the prevention of its recurrence in future.

(The resolution was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Nur Ahmed.

Mr. NUR AHMED: As regards my resolution, it was formally moved and then it was postponed for giving opportunity to some of the honourable members who wanted to speak on that day. As far as I remember, Khan Bahadur Abdul Momin expressed a desire to speak on this resolution, and in order to give him an opportunity it was postponed.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Do you propose to continue your speech on this motion, Khan Bahadur Sahib?

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: I do not propose to say anything after what we have heard just now; but may I have your permission to ventilate a matter which appears to me to be a real point of grievance? Under the rules it seems to me—I certainly do not challenge the rules—but it seems to me that once a Government member has replied or spoken on a resolution or a motion, no other member has got a right to speak. Whatever be the reason for which this rule has been framed, I felt the inconvenience very strongly when the Commerce Minister was speaking about salt. Before I heard the speech of the mover, my ideas were not very well clarified; but after I heard the Hon'ble Minister's speech I felt that there were lots of objections to what he said; but, of course, my mouth was shut. Similarly, perhaps many members felt likewise and perhaps they too would have liked me wished to have certain points cleared up; but by reason of the rules they could not get any further light on the subject. Therefore, I say that members of this House should have some right to speak not generally but after the Government member has spoken and brought in any new facts to ask him to clarify certain points. After the Hon'ble Minister had spoken about the manufacture of salt, I felt very much depressed. At first I thought that Government had done a lot and were going to do a lot but I found that Government like the Rishis of old meditated and meditated and therefore I was going to ask him further questions but I was debarred.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur, have you risen on a point of order?

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Not exactly on a point of order, but I want your guidance as to whether it was possible in future to make a change in the rules so that members of this House might speak after a Government member—

Mr. PRESIDENT: So I take it that it is a point of order.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: It may be taken as that. As regards this question of sugar, I think I would leave it at that. I shall not say anything on it today.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: In this connection, in support of what the Khan Bahadur has just now stated, and just to enlighten the House I may say that during the regime of the previous President, on several occasions he had allowed members of the House to speak or raise questions by way of clarification after the Minister in charge of the Department had given his reply.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: There is nothing in the rules, Sir, in support of this procedure.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is your point, Mr. Mukherjee? Are you speaking on this point of order?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Yes, Sir. I too was going to seek some information on the new points which the Minister had brought forward by way of opposition to the resolution; but as a matter of fact, I felt simply astonished when I was told that I could not speak after the Hon'ble Minister had spoken, and was ruled out of order. Therefore, I support the point of order raised by the Khan Bahadur and say that after Government have given their views on a resolution, if new matters have been introduced by them, then members of the House should be given an opportunity to seek further information.

Mr. PRESIDENT: New matters introduced by whom?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: By the Government.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN:

Sir, hitherto the practice has been to allow those members only to speak after the Government's reply, who have moved resolutions, and not any other member. The mover as well as the Minister in charge of the Department have both a second right of reply. But no other member of the House is allowed to speak after the Minister has spoken. Otherwise, there will be no end to the matter and the discussion will go on ad-infinum.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I would like to enlighten the House regarding the point just now raised by Khan Bahadur Abdul Momin. There is nothing in our rules to prevent other members from speaking after the Minister's reply. The Chair can always permit other members to speak. But there is such a thing as finality in a debate. The mover of a motion and the Hon'ble Minister are the two main parties in the debate. When Government have replied, if other members are allowed to speak they may bring in new points which Government will not be in a position to reply to because Government will not have any right of reply again. So it is only fair that the Minister in charge should have the last say. The mover of a motion is the only person who can speak twice on a motion. If he raises any new point, then the Minister in charge of the Department has a second right of reply. It has been the invariable practice that after the Minister closes the debate, none else but the mover of the motion is allowed to speak if he so desires. I have been associated with the Legislature for the last quarter of a century and that has been my experience--

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: The old ideas are changing. We have seen that even the rulings of the President and Speakers are being debated for hours now a days --

The Hon'ble Mr. Khwaja SHAHABUDDIN: Sir, what particular importance is attached --

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, in the other House opportunities are --

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think I should allow discussion regarding what takes place in the other House. We should follow our own precedents. In the special circumstances of the case, if it is brought to the notice of the Chair that a particular member wants information from the Government member, the Chair may consider the point; but the usual practice of not allowing other members to speak after Government have replied should be adhered to as far as possible.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Sir, in the Central Assembly sometimes Government member in charge does not speak but some other members of Government speak and there is further discussion and after that the Minister in charge winds up the debate. But there is much relaxation of rules there. Since then the rules might have changed. But certainly this practice will lead to poorer debate.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The rules have not changed: they are exactly what they used to be. But here also more than one Government member can speak. Suppose, some Parliamentary Secretary joins in the debate and then it is wound up by the Minister-in-charge, that will enable other members to speak after the line of Government reply is indicated. It is certainly most convenient to allow the Minister to have the last say in the matter and that principle should be adhered to as far as possible. But as I have said, in special circumstances, if a particular member feels any difficulty regarding a particular point, he may mention the point to the Chair and the Chair will decide whether the honourable member should be allowed to raise the point at that stage or not.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Mr. President, Sir, I would like to add a few words to what has already been said by Mr. Nur Ahmed, the mover, on the motion which is now before the House. As far as I remember, Mr. Nur Ahmed gave a very learned discourse in this House regarding the history of the development of the sugar industry. It is a fact, Sir, that sugar industry is more our own than it is of any other province; but unfortunately the growth of this industry in this province has been so organised that it is no longer really the industry of Bengal. There are about 80 mills in the United Provinces and about 37 in Bihar as against 10 in Bengal. From the point of view of economic repercussion of this position, we all know that sugar is now a protected industry. I understand a tax of Rs. 5 per maund is levied on sugar to keep this industry alive in India against the Java and Mauritius sugar. Bengal's consumption of sugar is nearly 50 lakhs of maunds and on the basis of Rs. 5 per maund, it comes to about Rs. 250 lakhs a year. This is Bengal's contribution to the sugar industry. There is also a sugar cess. So, Bengal has to pay about Rs. 3 crores to this industry and this sum goes to the United Provinces and Bihar. Now, the United Provinces and Bihar have become so powerful in this organisation that they are practically dictating the sugar policy of the Government of India. Cultivation of sugarcane is really a problem with which the different research institutions are engaged. Really first class research institutions in the country are to be found in the United Provinces and Bihar. These institutions are very essential for the development of the sugar industry in those two provinces. At one of the conferences in which I was present, it was seriously argued that no further sugar factory should be allowed to grow because there is already a glut of sugar in the country. India was producing more than was required for her consumption with result that the United Provinces and Bihar were not getting the same profit as they used to get. So they wanted to pass resolution that the Government of India should stop the establishment of any further sugar factory. I had to oppose the resolution tooth and nail. Other provinces were overwhelmed by the arguments given by the representatives of Bihar and the United Provinces. They thought the resolution to be a most reasonable proposition, but I had to say, as I have said today, that we were effectively contributing to this sugar industry by taxing our own people to the extent of Rs. 3 crores and therefore this industry should not be allowed to remain as the monopoly of these two provinces. The Imperial Council of Agriculture spends nearly Rs. 9 lakhs to Rs. 13 lakhs towards the improvement and research on sugar and also looks into the problem that is special to Bengal. And what are the special problems of Bengal which are not the problems of the United Provinces and Bihar? You know, Sir, that the problem of the United Provinces and Bihar are distinct and different and minor as compared with the problem of Bengal. Bengal cannot develop this industry on account of its geographical position and climatic condition. The period of maturity of sugarcane is not the same in Bengal as in the United Provinces and Bihar. In fact, the crushing season is the shortest here, namely, three months and in the United Provinces it is the longest after Mysore.

In fact, the United Provinces' crushing season extends over six months and to that extent the United Provinces sugar mills have the advantage of so ordering and regulating their crushing that the maximum production is always available from the mills. But Bengal's position is different in this respect. Here, the quantities of sugarcane which are produced are dumped and rushed into the mills for being crushed within a short space of three months only. Therefore, our problem is how and whether it is possible to grow a particular kind of sugarcane which shall mature in the wet season. This is a problem which has never been investigated upon and on which there has been no research. The reason is that the problem of sugar industry, as I said before, has been all along the problem of the United Provinces and Bihar. Therefore, first of all, Bengal should have more research institutions, and my advice to the Government is to give enough subsidy to the sugarcane-growers and sugar mill-owners. The Government of Bengal have said that they have boldly gone in for encouraging not only the sugar industry itself but have also enormously helped the sugarcane cultivators by giving a subsidy of Rs. 16 lakhs to facilitate their growth at an economic cost. I submit, Sir, that there is a fundamental dispute over this problem as to whether this assistance is really to the capitalists who are organising the sugarcane industry or to the sugarcane-growers. But I am not going into it at this stage, nor shall I try to show that it is really helping the vested interests whereby the mill-owners have really benefited in the name of the growers. What is the position in Bengal today? Bengal sugar industry itself is still in the hands entirely of foreigners, and any extension on these lines is only to extent the privilege to these foreign vested interests which are steadily establishing their strangle-hold on Bengal.

This thing, I submit, should not be allowed to go on in a Province like Bengal. The sugar industry should be an industry of the growers. So my submission to the House and my advice to the Government will be that in order to make it really a growers' industry Government should come forward with financial and technical assistance. They should also come forward with a proposal that they shall organise the sugar mills on stable foundations by contributing up to the extent of 50 per cent. of the total capital, the remaining 50 per cent. being paid up by the growers. The consumers' interests in these concerns will also be protected. Government will fix the maximum profit and thereby protect the consumers. How long can you exploit the consumers for the benefit of the capitalist mill-owners?

I submit that this industry can be made a real national industry and Government could effectively intervene to develop it on those lines.

As for the protection of the interests of the consumers, they must also get relief in the way of Government benefiting by large percentages of profits and the consequent increase in the general revenues of the province, till ultimately the price of sugar is reduced to the same level at which the sugar of Java is dumped on the province of Bengal. Therefore, it is essential that there should be a re-orientation in the policy of Government regarding the sugar industry. This sort of tinkering with this problem is not really one which would be helpful to the development and establishment of a real sugar industry in this province. I am personally wholly opposed to the manner in which the sugar industry is growing in Bengal, namely, by foreign capitalists establishing their organisations and exploiting both the growers and the consumers alike. I support Mr. Nur Ahmed's resolution with these words.

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I have great pleasure in supporting the resolution moved by Mr. Nur Ahmed regarding the sugar industry, namely, that the Government of Bengal should be urged upon to adopt all feasible measures to encourage and help the sugar industry, both in cottages and in small factories in Bengal. I do not think there are two opinions that it should be the duty of the Government to help the development of the sugar industry for the benefit of the growers as well as of the consumers. I need not repeat the facts that have been brought to light by the honourable mover and the previous speaker. I would only like to say a few words on the technical side of the question. As a matter of fact, every one is aware that Bengal has taken to producing sugar-cane; but sugar-cane cultivation can be developed and increased to a very large extent only if Government came forward to help the growers of sugar-cane. There is one other thing which should be considered along with this. We all know that cultivators manufacture gur directly from sugar. We, therefore, want that Government should immediately start research stations for the purpose of helping those villagers who are converting sugar-cane into gur—some process and machinery by which they can convert before gur is manufactured. I think that if the technical side of this business is considered, and if Government introduce or bring into being research stations, then gur can be manufactured at very little cost with Government's help. It is not possible for any individual grower or for individual efforts to have this organised for the whole of Bengal. If the Government undertake to build research stations on these lines for the purpose of manufacturing sugar directly from the sugar-cane juice by small cottage industry methods, then the grower will be helped and the consumers also will have their gur in sufficient quantities, so that it will be possible to make Bengal self-sufficient, so far as both sugar and gur are concerned. We need not depend upon the United Provinces or Bihar for the purpose. As a matter of fact, this is a very opportune moment for the Government of Bengal to take recourse to these research methods. We are now in the midst of a war and transport difficulties are increasing every day making it difficult for sugar and gur to be brought to the people of Bengal from the other provinces. I think, therefore, that if the Government of Bengal immediately take steps for the purpose of providing measures to convert sugar directly from the sugar-cane juice, it will amply benefit both .

the grower and the consumer. In this view, I support the motion of my friend Mr. Nur Ahmed.

The Hon'ble Mr. Khwaja SHAHABUDDIN: Sir, I have already explained the position and no new points have been raised. Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury has repeated the argument of the honourable mover of the motion and Mr. Mukherji has done the same thing. Therefore, I have nothing further to add.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that this Council is of opinion that the Government of Bengal be urged upon to adopt all feasible measures to encourage and help the sugar industry, both in cottages and in small factories, in Bengal.

(The resolution was agreed to.)

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I beg to move that this Council is of opinion that the Government of Bengal should set apart a sum of fifty lakhs of rupees this year for the advancement of education of the Scheduled Caste Hindus of the province.

Sir, of all communities in Bengal scheduled castes with the exception of aboriginal tribes are the most backward. The ratio of literates in respect of all communities is 16 per cent., of Hindus 22, Moslems 16, Christians 43, tribes 3 and others 25.

Scheduled castes are not shown separately; but if that is done, it will give an unsatisfactory figure. It is common knowledge that they are inferior to the Moslems in this respect. The last census shows that the total population of Scheduled castes is 7,378,970 so that in point of magnitude they form a maimed limb of the body politic. I may point out parenthetically that the tribes whose numerical strength is 1,889,389 have been totally neglected. Their interests go unrepresented in all matters. A very serious effort should be made to spread education among them. Reverting to Scheduled castes I should point out that the sum of 50 lakhs is quite inadequate for the purpose and I only hope that when normal conditions are restored, larger sums will be allotted for the purpose. I need hardly describe the advantages of education in this wide-awake world. Expenses of Government amounting to huge sums annually are altogether wasted on account of mass illiteracy. For example, in regard to the jute restriction scheme placards beautifully printed at considerable expenditure are posted in rural areas but are meant for people who have no eyes of literacy to see. Health bulletins, printed instructions regarding crops and treatment of cattle diseases produce no effect on those for whom they are meant. The total amount thus wasted on men and materials will come to a formidable figure. If there be any two communities here which are composed almost entirely of toiling masses attached to land, they are certainly the Scheduled castes and tribes. These are the real creators of the wealth of the nation while our bhadralogs, both Hindu and Muhammadan—and the number of Muhammadan bhadralogs is increasing by leaps and bounds—are flocking in a large number to cities. So by all canons of fairness and equity Scheduled castes merit special consideration.

To attain the maximum result out of 50 lakhs we have to devise our educational plan correctly. Rabindranath said times without number that by spending large sums on buildings and on the inspecting staff, the Government failed to obtain the desired result. The poet referred to the famous report of Mr. Adam in the early days of British rule when the province was covered with a network of pathsalas (i.e., the village schools). In spite of all our vaunted talk of progress of education during the British rule—a subject occupying much space in our text books for schools—the ratio has not increased and it will not increase in future until the problem be tackled with new ideas.

I only hope that if my resolution be accepted, the Government will discard the red-tap and take steps so that every rupee in the allotment may produce the maximum result. To do this, the only means is to revive and establish throughout Bengal pathsalas. With our vision blurred by the dazzle of the West, we have gone to all countries to seek an education plan like Kindergarten, Montessori, but have neglected the pathsalas, a wonderful system well-suited to a poor country. The following lines of Michael Madhusudan Dutt written in connection with the Bengalee language are apposite here:—

তা যবে অবোধ আমি অবহেলা করি
পদধন লোভে নদ করিনু ভ্রমণ
পবদেশে ভিক্ষাবৃত্তি কুক্ষেপে আচরি”

One Gurumahasay, i.e., the village teacher on a very small remuneration can manage, according to my experience, 150 boys. Students of the higher classes have to teach the boys of the lower classes in order of priority, while the Gurumahasay pays special attention to the advanced boys and general attention to backward boys. The method of working is the chief element and may still be copied as pathsalas in their original, unadulterated and most efficacious form still exist. I know of one such flourishing institution at Kadamtala, about 3 miles from the Howrah railway station. The excellence of teaching imparted in these indigenous primary schools is proved by the testimony of no less a personage than the late Sir Rajendra Nath Mukherjee who said times without number that his accuracy of calculation, which stood him in good stead in later life when he became the foremost businessman among the Bengalees and was described eulogistically by the late Lord Incheape as a Scotsman born by accident in Bengal, was acquired from his Gurumahasay for whom he made proper provision. The “Subhankari” system, a peculiar product of the soil, imparts quickness and accuracy of calculation in an astonishing degree and to persons with the mental faculties thus sharpened all work of calculation in future life would appear to be comparatively easy. The curriculum of the pathsala has the other two items of reading and writing. Simple lessons in Bengali are read and the alphabet is written on the leaves of the village palmyra tree which may be obtained for nothing in these days of high prices of paper. The pathsala is held often under the spreading banyan tree or in the Chandimandap of the well-to-do man of the village who charges no rent. Sundays are not observed as holidays but classes are not held on the days of festivals and on rainy days so that the total output of work in a year in spite of the inclemencies of the weather is not less than in a school.

It fell to my lot to arrange this open-air method for a high English school at the Narayanpur Colony, Dum Dum, with excellent results. If our aim be—

“এই সব মূঢ় মান মূক মূৰ্খ

দিতে হবে ভাষা ;

এই সব শ্রান্ত শুক্ক ভগ্ন বুদ্ধ

to give voice to dumb millions and that within a measurable distance of time, we can achieve our object only through the pathsala. To continue the present method is to wait till doomsday. God has given me to do my humble mite for the education of the Scheduled castes.

In order that this resolution of mine may not be taken as a political stunt, I may be permitted to point out that 16 years ago I organised and founded the Pannalal Seal Vidyamandir as a free polytechnic High English School, and in the hostels attached to this institution I have arranged all along free board and lodging for a number of students belonging to the Scheduled castes. I have introduced inter-dining among the students of all castes since the very beginning and this at a time when this was unheard of in Calcutta. I am tempted to recall a state of things portrayed by that immortal story-writer of Bengal, Prabhat Kumar Mukherjee, who in his story প্রত্যাবর্তন or “The Return” showed how a young man, washerman by caste, passed himself off as a Kayestha in a Calcutta students’ hostel, was ultimately discovered and had to leave the place. He then went to a Christian missionary who promised him equal treatment in the Christian fold but the young man was discomfited when he discovered that Europeans worshipped in one church and Indians in another and that even after death Europeans were buried in one cemetery and Indian Christians in another: whereas Hindu society at least after death afforded equal treatment to all by allowing the dead body of a methar to be burnt on the same spot where a Brahmin had been reduced to ashes only a few minutes ago. The number of students of the Scheduled castes who lived in our Vidyamandir hostels and have passed the Matriculation Examination of the University is not less than 100 and at least 50 of these have ultimately become graduates. During the historic fast of Mahatmaji at Poona, I was present all along and had the honour to be associated with the formation of the Poona Pact which gave to the Scheduled castes 30 seats in the Bengal Legislative Assembly instead of 10 as originally proposed in the Government of India Act, 1935. I mention all these not in self-adulation but only to show that I am not making political use of an important social problem and that long, long ago before I had any idea of entering the Legislature, I worked for the uplift of our backward classes. In so doing I was inspired by the teachings of Swami Vivekananda who said হে ভারত, তুলিও না, নীচজাতি, মূৰ্খ, দরিদ্র, অন্ধ, মুচি, বোম্ব, ভোম্বার বন্ধ, ভোম্বার ভাই। হে বীর, সাহস অবলম্বন কর। সদপে বন মূৰ্খ ভারতবাসী, দরিদ্র ভারতবাসী, ব্রাহ্মণ ভারতবাসী, চণ্ডাল ভারতবাসী আমার ভাই।

Nearly five hundred years ago Sri Chaitanya, a member of the highest caste, propounded the doctrine of সুচি হয়ে শুচি হয় যদি কৃষ্ণ ভদ্রে. Through his preachings untouchability is not a problem of any intensity in Bengal as compared with Madras and some other provinces. Uplift in Hindu society takes place not through individuals but through a whole caste. This all-important fact has to be understood by all who want to study our society properly. A little study of anthropology will convince us that some castes of the Hindu society now occupying a high position were originally aboriginal tribes approximating more and more to the high standards of Hindu conduct and being ultimately admitted to its ranks. Even before our very eyes the Bagdis of West Bengal have during the last 30 years made striking progress and monogamy among their women is now the rule and not the exception, as could be seen only three decades ago. If this improvement continue for another decade, we can visualise them taking their place besides the Nabasakhas in their own rights and without any opposition from even the most orthodox section. Hindu society has been able to civilise and improve vast masses of humanity in a more effective manner than any other society. The late Sibanath Shastri asked a workman in England if he knew about Christ and the reply came, "What number?": as if Christ was another workman bearing a roll number. The British Medical Journal in a recent issue described how in London grown-up children of labourers eased themselves in the same room in which they lived and there was no cleaning. This is inconceivable among any class of our society. Criminality and drunkenness are the lowest among our lower classes as compared with the corresponding classes of other societies. Hindu society offers an ideal and converts people not by force or even by persuasion but by the silent example of right living. At the Narayanpur Colony near Dum Dum, when we first cleansed jungles 20 years ago there were the original residents the "Kaoras", who lived in low-roofed houses by theft and burglary, threw dead bodies away and annulled marriages with utter levity. We had a maidservant Kaora by caste who with the sanction of their caste people married one after another three or four husbands. In the space of twenty years a revolution has taken place and monogamy has come into favour and polygamy of the worst character has disappeared. Dead bodies are now being regularly burnt and men earn their bread by the sweat of their brow. I may mention here that life-long monogamy among our Muhammadan sisters in the vast rural areas is increasing by leaps and bounds. This is the result of Hindu influence. The devoted wife of Mr. Hashemali, ex-Minister, said before her death that it filled her with great satisfaction that she had the good fortune of dying before her husband. This is fully a Hindu idea.

Now, Hindu have never shut their doors of culture against anybody, far less their own kith and kin, the Scheduled castes. The ancient methods of spreading education were not through reading and writing alone but through lectures such as কথকতা and dramas depicting the Ramayana and the Mahabharata. All were admitted to these discourses and performances and the truthfulness of Ramchandra, brotherly affection of Laksman, the steadfast purity of Sita, the devotion to ideals of the Pandava brothers amidst adversity threw people into raptures and rendered them better citizens. The printing press is a new discovery and a new force working on new methods, as described by Carlyle, the saint of Chelsea. Literacy was not prevalent on such a large scale even in Europe before printed books came into vogue. In making special arrangement for the education of our Scheduled caste brethren, we only do the old thing under a new technique necessitated by the modern age.

In this plan of educating the Scheduled castes as in the general system for all, technical education should occupy a prominent place and the whole thing should be given a rural bias. In the Pannalal Seal Vidyamandir to which I have already referred, we devised 16 years ago that general education should go hand in hand with technical education. Boys after doing their Algebra, Sanskrit, and English composition must work for an hour and a half in one of the 12 departments of carpentry, weaving, smithy, bookbinding, tailoring, etc. It is found that those of our boys who after passing the Matriculation Examination cannot get jobs of clerks earn their livelihood by practising one of these handicrafts in which they have been trained in the school. The products of the Vidyamandir technical department are sold in the market and a share of the proceeds is paid to the students working. Thus, the principle of earning while learning was introduced 16 years ago. Six years ago the late lamented Mahadeb Desai, the right-hand man of Mahatmaji, inspected our school and expressed the opinion that it was the forerunner of the Wardha scheme of education which it resembled very closely, though not exactly. Later on, Mahadebji in a signed article devoted one page of the Harijan to our institution. In evolving and carrying into effect this education plan, my humble self and a band of teachers led by the headmaster Kali Pado (Gangopadhyaya whose venerable appearance will mark him out as a headmaster in a crowd of ten thousand and who by the way will not have for his newly-born grandson any other name than Shyamaprasad—the name of the saviour of Bengal's millions in last year's famine, had to think hard and work hard from day to day and month to month and year to year. (Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMED: Where is the relevancy of all this? Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Equal treatment after death!) It is one solace in my life that we have been able to find out the correct educational plan for a poor country like India. It is my firm conviction that the whole country must accept sooner or later this plan confirmed by that Socrates of the modern world, Mahatma Gandhi. This is another example of the truth of the statement "what Bengal thinks today, the rest of India thinks tomorrow".

Is it too much to hope that, if this resolution of mine be carried, the Government will accept our scheme of education? Every pathshala should have arrangement for teaching the boys at least one handicraft and in the villages should have one plot of ground for teaching boys kitchen-gardening. While our school was removed to Narayanpur, nearly 20 bighas of land were allotted to it and it was a sight for the gods to see how our boys of bhadrolog and all classes worked on the ground and reared hundreds of papya trees growing monster pappas of Madhupur variety, and grew brinjals which were the wonder of the countryside and introduced new cultivation like ol of Santragachi in that area where good ol was unknown. My request is that our education should be given a rural and technical bias.

As regards the share of this sum of 50 lakhs to be spent on the higher education of the Scheduled castes, I personally would not go in for a large figure. As I said in my budget speech, we spend a disproportionately large amount on higher education throwing a few crumbs to primary education. Normally, I would spend at least a sum of 40 lakhs on primary education. But I am convinced that the sorry spectacle of many Scheduled caste M.L.A.'s working as weathercock politicians and joining and supporting an unpopular Ministry for the sake of the loaves and fishes of office while their castemen died in the largest number in last year's famine and that as the direct result of knowingly false statements by Ministers that "Bengal was not a deficit province". "Prices of rice will go down in a short time" will not cease unless graduates and under-graduates are produced in such a number that they cannot possibly be employed by the Government, so that for every Scheduled caste member in the legislature drawing a deputy magistrate's salary there are at least 100 Scheduled caste discontented, and hungry graduates outside. Bacon wrote that sedition thrives "where more scholars are bred than preferments can take off". In repeated elections to the Upper House, the 30 Scheduled caste M.L.A.'s have failed to return their quota of Scheduled caste members so that it is established beyond doubt that their demand for a proportionate share in the services is a mere eye-wash.

Britain has infused a virus into our body-politic which can be eradicated by the poison of the same origin. Let a sum of ten lakhs of rupees be set apart for higher education so that every meritorious Scheduled caste boy may go up to the M.A. and M.Sc. standard at State expense.

With these words, I commend my motion to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: that this Council is of opinion that the Government of Bengal should set apart a sum of fifty lakhs of rupees this year for the advancement of education of the scheduled caste Hindus of the Province.

Mr. NUR AHMED: With your permission, Sir, I wish to make a few observations on the resolution just moved by my friend Mr. Mazumdar—

Mr. PRESIDENT: You had better move your resolution at this stage.

Mr. NUR AHMED: I am not going to move my resolution. But I wish to speak on this resolution.

Sir, at the very beginning I thank the honourable mover of this resolution. I am very glad to find that my friend is taking so much interest for the Scheduled castes. He has spoken about the treatment of the caste Hindus towards the Scheduled castes with great vehemence. We, on this side of the House, stand for equal treatment and equal opportunities for all castes and creeds—whether minority or majority. My friend has referred at some length to the history of the Hindu religion and the treatment of the caste Hindus towards the Scheduled castes in which I find some new theory propounded which real history will belie. Islam enjoins equal reatment to all communities and to all sections whether high or low scheduled castes or any other castes. That is why Islamic religion is so attractive to all. If you go into the Islamic history, you will find that wherever it went, people welcomed it. It is damned lie to say that Islam looks after the interest of one community and the interest of its own people and that Islam was propagated by means of the sword. So, naturally we of the Muslim League party have every sympathy with the object which the present resolution has in view. The Scheduled castes have been given all sorts of encouragement and all necessary help so that they may progress in the field of education. There are no two opinions about it. Government has been rendering all possible help for the encouragement of education among the Scheduled castes—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order, the time is up and I must adjourn the House now. The House stands adjourned till 1-30 p.m. on Tuesday next.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 1-30 p.m. on Tuesday, the 23rd May, 1944.

(c) What would be the approximate loss to property as a result of this tornado?

(d) What relief, if any, have the Government so far rendered to the affected persons?

MINISTER in charge of the REVENUE DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Mr. Tarak Nath Mukerjee): (a) Yes, a severe hail-storm attended with a violent cyclone passed over certain areas in Munshiganj and Madaripur subdivisions.

	Number of villages affected.	Number of persons killed.	Number of persons injured.
(b) Munshiganj	20	Nil	Nil
Madaripur	10	6	109

(c) Munshiganj—About Rs.3 lakhs.

• Madaripur—About Rs.2 lakhs.

(d) Government have sanctioned for each of the subdivisions Rs.50,000 for distribution as gratuitous relief besides a sum of Rs.50,000 for Munshiganj subdivision for distribution as agricultural loans.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether this gratuitous relief of Rs. 50,000 for Munshiganj has been actually distributed?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEE: The relief has been sanctioned and the Collector, I am sure, must have distributed it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: That is his opinion; but has the Hon'ble Minister enquired or tried to know whether the gratuitous relief was actually distributed?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: The amount is being spent and, in fact, the Collector has written to us for more money.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Has any press-note been published regarding the distribution of this gratuitous relief?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: There was no need for that. This news was published in the Press.

Point of Privilege.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point of order or of privilege, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Is it a point of privilege or a point of order?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Of privilege, Sir. Under rule 24 of the Procedure Rules, we are allotted one hour for questions and answers and this is a very valuable right and privilege of this House. We thereby not only elicit important information but we also suggest action by Government action; and with reference to rule 31—

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is your point?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: The point is that our privilege is being interfered with. Sufficient number of questions are not being answered everyday with the result that the time allotted for questions is being utilised by Government for transacting official business. I want to know whether this is due to the Hon'ble Ministers not caring to answer the questions or whether it is due to the paucity of questions.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The rule does not contemplate that full one hour should be devoted to questions. It only provides that questions will take up to one hour and not beyond that; and it depends upon the number of questions that are ready. Questions are at first dealt with by the Council Department and then sent to the administrative departments concerned which are expected to answer them as quickly as possible. There is a certain amount of accumulation. But that question has been discussed in this House more than once. What is your point of privilege?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, we are entitled to take up full one hour for questions. But for some reason or other, we cannot utilise this privilege. It might be due to paucity of questions or it might be due to negligence on the part of the Ministers to answer questions. But we are entitled to have one full hour for dealing with questions.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You know, Mr. Mazumdar, that lists of outstanding questions are being circulated from time to time. So from that you can infer that there is accumulation. It is not possible to answer all questions within a limited time.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: There is another point. This is a long session and questions should also be admitted in large numbers.

Mr. PRESIDENT: How can questions be admitted in large numbers. There is a quota fixed for each member. Certainly the Chair has the discretion to admit questions in excess of this quota and this discretion is used with reference to the importance and urgency of the questions. The rule cannot be relaxed as a matter of course. What is your suggestion?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: My suggestion is that sufficient number of questions should come before the House with answers, so that with the supplementaries we can utilise full one hour, as is provided for under the Rules. That is my point.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You mean that Government should try to expedite the answers to questions. That is your suggestion. Is it?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Yes, Sir, that is the suggestion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But that question has been discussed more than once in this House. So I do not think that it is a point of privilege.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: My point is that full one hour should be devoted to questions.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not agree with you that full one hour must be devoted to questions. You are confusing the issue.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: No, Sir. There is not the least confusion in my mind.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What you mean is this: that the Ministers should be ready with their answers to questions so as to allow this House the privilege of devoting at least one hour to questions. But it depends on the number of questions and it also depends on the capacity of Government to reply to the questions. It may be necessary for them to refer the questions to the District Magistrates and to authorities outside Calcutta. So there cannot be any hard and fast rule on that point. Every day Government cannot be ready with replies to questions which must occupy one full hour. I cannot, therefore, take it as a point of privilege.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I shall point out on a future occasion and cite instances where outstanding questions can be replied to here and now but they are being put off by the Ministry—

Mr. PRESIDENT: That cannot be a matter for discussion on the floor of the House. It is the privilege of members to put questions and it is the duty of the Government to reply to them. If they do not discharge their duty, then it is for the House to take what action it likes. I, however, cannot regard the question raised by you today as a point of privilege and therefore I am not prepared to give a ruling on it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: At the same time—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order, I am now passing on to the next item.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a point of information, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is it about?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Under rule 95 of the Rules, may I enquire of the Hon'ble the Leader of the House as to what action was taken on the resolution regarding the Hindu Intestate Succession Bill requesting the Government of India, through this Government, to postpone the consideration of the Bill?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Is it the information that you wanted the other day?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Yes, Sir.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSSAIN: Sir, under rule 95(2) of the Procedure Rules of this House, I beg to reply that a copy of the resolution has been sent to the Government of India for necessary action.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The next item on the agenda is the motion for consideration of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, as passed by the Assembly. Mr. Goswami.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I beg to move that the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, as passed by the Bengal Legislative Assembly, be taken into consideration.

The Bill has been in the hands of Honourable Members for some days. The main features of the Bill have been known to the public for some months. I shall at this stage, therefore, refer only to the fundamental principles of the Bill. The basic features of the Bill will be found in clauses 3, 6, 7 and 8 and in the Schedule.

Its first important feature is that it seeks to tax income actually received and not income merely accrued. Rent due to the landlord will be taken into consideration for purposes of taxation, only when it has been actually received by them and not at the stage when it has merely accrued to them. In this respect, the Bill follows the Bihar and Assam Agricultural Income-tax Acts, but differs from the Indian Income-tax Act which goes by the accrual concept of income.

The second important point about the Bill is that it seeks to tax only such agricultural income as is derived from lands situated in Bengal. It does not propose to tax agricultural income received by a resident of the province from lands situated outside the province. Thus, that portion of a landlord's income derived, for instance, from his estates in Orissa, Bihar, or Assam will not be taken into consideration in the computation of his taxable income. In this respect also the Bill has a more restricted scope than the Indian Income-tax Act.

The third important point is that the Bill seeks to tax net incomes only. The net income is arrived at after deducting from the gross receipts such allowances as are admissible under clauses 6 and 7. It is only when a man's net agricultural income, as so computed, exceeds Rs. 3,500 a year, that he becomes taxable according to the rates mentioned in the Schedule. In the case of individuals and Hindu undivided families whose only source of agricultural income is direct cultivation, there is a further exemption limit of one hundred bighas of land. This will operate like a statutory presumption that a person having 100 bighas of land in his possession and having no other source of agricultural income is always below the exemption limit. It is also to be noted that the agricultural income of Trust properties dedicated to charity, completely or partially, is not taken into consideration in the computation of taxable agricultural income to the extent that such income is actually applied to such charity.

The fourth important point about the Bill is that in respect of agricultural income derived from tea, the computation made by the Central Income-tax Department, according to the Indian Income-tax Act, is to be followed. The Central Department determine the whole of the income of a tea company and levy the Central tax on 40 per cent. only of the income so computed, leaving out 60 per cent. as agricultural income. We propose to levy our tax on the portion so left out. Thus, the computation in this case will practically be made by the Central Department according to the principles of the Indian Income-tax Act. This will be advantageous both to the provincial Government and to the assesses. I may also state that there is no escape in law from this arrangement.

The fifth important point about the Bill is that the shareholders, partners or members, as the case may be, of companies, firms and associations of individuals are taxed at the source. The tax is collected from the latter at the maximum rate, the shareholders, partners or members, as the case may be, being entitled to receive refunds on the basis of their total world income.

The sixth important point to which I would draw the attention of the honourable members is the rate of taxation. The rates follow the slab system and are lower than the Assam rates. The rates are, of course, very much lower than the Indian Income-tax rates. Moreover, no super-tax is proposed to be imposed. Our rates, however, are generally higher than the Bihar rates which follow the "step" system, though in certain instances the Bengal rates are more favourable than the Bihar rates also. On the whole, it must be admitted that the rates are very fair, if not altogether mild in these days of severe taxation.

The seventh point which must be noted is that, subject to the basic principles I have already indicated, the Bill generally follows the Indian Income-tax Act, though the Assam and the Bihar Acts have also been freely drawn upon.

Lastly, I would draw the attention of the Honourable Members to the repeated findings of expert bodies like the Indian Taxation Enquiry Committee or the Bengal Land Revenue Commission that the Agricultural Income-tax is a very equitable tax. About the equity of the tax, there can now be no doubt. And about the need for additional revenue, I need hardly add anything after what I stated in connection with the Budget.

Sir, this is all that I need say to this House of Elders about the general principles of the Bill. The details will, of course, be gone into when we take up the consideration of the Bill, clause by clause.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: that the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, as passed by the Bengal Legislative Assembly, be taken into consideration.

Now, there are three classes of amendments, namely, for circulation, for referring the Bill to a Select Committee and for referring the Bill to a Committee of the whole House. What I propose to do is this: there would be discussion on each class of amendments separately and there would be voting on each of the motions moved.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I want to oppose the consideration of the Bill and I hope you will permit me to do so. I want to speak opposing the motion for consideration of the Bill. I have given notice of an amendment opposing the motion for consideration. I think, Sir, I have a right, an inherent right, to oppose the consideration motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It has been the practice always that when a substantive motion is moved and amendments thereto are tabled, then there is a discussion on both together. I see you have given notice of other amendments.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I have given notice of other amendments and I shall move them if the consideration motion is passed.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But as it is a negative motion, it cannot be admitted.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But, Sir, I have an inherent right to move a motion for refusing consideration; and only when that motion fails, the other amendments will come in.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, rule 43(2) states that "An amendment may not be moved which has merely the effect of a negative vote". So, the honourable member will have the right to oppose consideration at the final stage of the Bill.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Yes, but I think, I have got an inherent right to oppose this measure being taken into consideration at all—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have understood your point—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Let me explain it, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Please do.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Supposing, I am allowed to speak opposing the consideration of the Bill and I divide the House, then how can the other amendments come in? So I want to speak opposing the consideration motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, first let me explain what I think in the matter. The position is: that Mr. Goswami as the Minister in charge of the Bill has moved his substantive motion. Then there are certain amendments which will have to be moved and put to vote first. If the amendments are defeated, then of course finally the substantive motion will have to be put to vote. You can express your own view by speaking on any of the amendments.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, Mr. Das is trying to have the decision of the House first as to whether the Bill is to be taken into consideration. If this is done, then where is the scope for the other amendments? Supposing, his negative amendment is defeated and other positive amendments are passed, then what will happen? That is why there is a rule in every House that amendments must come first.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, there is the substantive motion for taking up this Bill into consideration, and I rise up to speak against it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Don't you follow what Mr. Choudhury has just now said? Suppose, there is vote on the substantive motion and if your amendment is defeated and Mr. Goswami's motion is carried, then where is the room for amendments?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: No, Sir. What I say is—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am sorry, Mr. Das, I cannot go on arguing. I will now call upon the movers of the circulation motions to move their amendments first, because those amendments are the widest. Mr. Lalit Chandra Das, Mr. Shrish Chandra Chakraverti and Mr. Mungturam Jaipuria and Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukerjee—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, amendment No. 2 stands in my name.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am sorry. Amendments Nos. 2-3, 4-6 and 7 are amendments for circulation of the Bill. They have different dates, but dates are immaterial at the present moment. I first call upon Mr. Haridas Mazumdar to move his amendment, so that the other movers can speak without moving their amendments. Mr. Haridas Mazumdar.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, the amendment that stands in my name proposes that the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon by the 31st December, 1944.

Sir, this Bill may be better defined as the Bengal middle-class peasantry-destroying Bill. The present Ministry will go down in history as the most irresponsible body of men that was ever entrusted with the task of administering a vast area. After a terrible famine it makes an attempt at taxing agricultural income which, except for two short periods totalling 9 years, has gone tax-free since 1793 when the great Lord Cornwallis conferred Permanent Settlement on Bengal,—a system of land tenure which according to economists like the late Mr. Ramesh Chandra Dutta was the most beneficial to Indian conditions and worthy of introduction in areas where it was not in vogue. I do not like to go into the merits or demerits of the system at present which has been successfully sabotaged by different amendments of the tenancy law in Bengal. The present Bill lays the axe at the root of the economic structure that has grown up in this province during the long period of 150 years and by taking out large slices of zamindars' income will compel them to sell their estates even at the unjust and inequitable price recommended by the Floud Commission. Sir, the need of the hour is retrenchment, drastic economy in our provincial budget with a view to relieving the heavy burden of taxation borne ultimately by the agriculturists. If any one of the ability of the late Lord Inchcape examine the working of our departments of Agriculture, Industry and Co-operation, Medical Relief and Public Health and Education, he will be convinced that the benefits accruing to the people from them are not at all commensurate with the heavy expenditure incurred and that Bengal will ultimately gain if these departments be altogether abolished and taxation reduced in that proportion. These departments may be compared to the gardens of Calcutta's rich men in the suburbs which only make a weekly present of brinjals or bouquet of flowers to the owners and do not cover even the wages of the "malis". In the days of the Lieutenant Governors, Bengal minus Eastern Bengal, Bihar and Orissa was administered at a police expenditure of less than Rs. 85,000 a year, while we are now spending more than 3 lakhs for a police which could not prevent the disappearance of stocks of rice last year from this second City of the Empire after the maximum price of rice was fixed by Government. This costly House of the Legislature and an army of do-nothing Ministers and Parliamentary Secretaries ill suit a poor province which has the greatest density of population in India. It is an irony of fate that successive Ministries elected to the legislatures under the Government of India Act, 1935, instead of pruning wasteful expenditure have gone on increasing the volume of the annual budget till the revenue now reaches a record figure, viz., 21 crores and 97 lakhs. Deducting all expenses necessitated by the war and famine and treating the budget as a normal peace-time one, we find that the expenditure even on the ordinary basis is 18 crores. As recently as 1933-34, it was only 9 crores. The present state of things cannot go on for any length of time and I can visualise the next general election being held on the main issue of a 10-crore budget. The present Ministry and their supporters should remember that the day of reckoning will come and they will have to face their electors with their present record. As soon as taxation is reduced, the countryside will brighten up and money saved will be increasingly spent upon food, clothes and houses, education and medical aid. In the present Bill, income exceeding Rs. 3,500 only is charged. But at this time of high prices when a piece of cloth is selling at 5 times the pre-war price, when corrugated sheets which inadequately roof the huts of the peasants may be weighed in gold, how can the middle-class peasants or bhadralog families keep body and soul together on Rs. 300 a month?

The prices of agricultural products have gone up but not in the same proportion as those of industrial goods. Again, the income of rent-receivers is inelastic and these people who chiefly brought succour to poor people in villages during the famine will now be hit hard so that if the situation deteriorate and another famine break out,—the possibility of which is not remote as stated by Dr. Bidhan Chandra Roy in a recent meeting at Bombay where the ukase of our Ministers cannot reach,—there will be none to help the poor in the countryside and Bengal will be depopulated. Even now the small rent-receiving landlords are keeping their kith and kin alive with monetary help to buy rice at five times the normal price. The condition of the lower middle-class, consisting of poor bhadralogs and artisans and of landless labourers who have managed to survive up till now, is in a sense worse than even during the famine. In those days they sold their gold and silver trinkets and in some cases homesteads and utensils. I know of villages in various districts where bhadralogs after selling their ghati bati are now taking food on plantain leaves. Last year they bought rice at Rs. 40 per maund and got fuller meal than now when they cannot buy rice at Rs. 16 and have to remain content with half ration. These people depend on the assistance of the more prosperous relatives whom the Finance Minister now wants to bleed.

With the passage of time and subdivision of property from generation to generation, rich landlords have become handful in number and there has arisen a large middle-class with a secure income, which is the condition precedent to social, literary and educational advancement of any country. The political importance of such a middle-class cannot be exaggerated. Without it, representative Government cannot be successfully conducted. Every Bengal "squireen" has just enough to educate his sons with, but not enough to induce them to lead an idle life. They, therefore, display something of the proverbial keenness and enterprise of the younger sons of the English aristocracy. The present Bill will supplant this class. Those Muhammadans who are keen on attacking the zemindary system and imposing tax on agricultural income in the belief that by so doing they will weaken the Hindus—

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: On a point of order, Sir. Is the honourable member in order to say that the Muhammadans are attacking the zemindary system and so on?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I am showing that the number of rich zemindars being extremely small, the onslaught will come upon that growing class of middle-sized Muhammadan zemindars—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will you kindly repeat what you said?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: The number of rich zemindars being extremely small, the onslaught will come upon that growing class of middle-sized Muhammadan zemindars,—a new, salutary factor in Bengal's rural economy, who will at no distant date form a united front with the prosperous Hindus on the economic issue and put up a fight against the foreign exploiter.

If the present tax be not imposed, the number of Moslem zemindars and jotedars will increase by leaps and bounds. If, however, the Bill is passed, a great opportunity coming for the first time to my Moslem brethren since the establishment of British rule will be lost.

After the tax is collected, our Muhammadan brethren will see what portion of it comes from their co-religionists. Sir, I have held the view for many years that the only way of safeguarding the Hindu wealth is to create a prosperous Muhammadan class—

Mr. KADER BAKSH: On a point of order, Sir. The honourable member is bringing in the question of the Hindus and the Muhammadans. It is a question of how the Bill would affect the country and not how it would affect a particular community or a particular class but the people at large. That should have been his point and he should have spoken on those lines

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is your point of order? Every member has his own point of view regarding the subject. Perhaps he is approaching the matter from a different angle.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Certainly, the honourable member can incite a section of the Muhammadan community, but the most he can say that—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: As I was saying, Sir, the present Ministry has legalised the tyranny carried on for decades by a small number of jute mills, 90 per cent. under British management, on millions of jute-growers, 90 per cent. Muhammadan, by fixing by Statute the average price of 35 seers of jute at Rs. 14-8 and that of 100 yards of hessian requiring those 35 seers for manufacture at Rs. 28. It has thus rendered the windfall of 1925 when jute sold at Rs. 25 impossible. A simple working of the Rule of Three will show that the loss of agricultural income to Muhammadan cultivators in respect of the present jute crop is not less than 40 crores of rupees. The salary of 7 Muhammadan Ministers is not more than 3½ lakhs of rupees per year and for this they make a present of 40 crores of rupees to foreign exploiters whose 30 votes are their sheet anchor. Disregarding 40 crores they now want to tax a total taxable income not exceeding 11 crores which is distributed among and enjoyed by thousands of the children of the soil.

A sharp line of distinction has been drawn between agricultural income from rent or revenue and agricultural income from agriculture. The man who cultivates land with the help of hired labourers is under the Bill entitled to more privileges than he who cultivates under the bhag system. The result of the Bill will be that the class of landless labourers which is a disquieting feature of modern Bengal will be augmented.

The high rate of taxation specially on larger incomes will have the effect of partitioning estates which all economists condemn. The growing evil in Bengal for the last 50 years has been emigration of men to towns. By taxing the comparatively prosperous agriculturist who stays in the village and the zemindar whose manor consisting of a school, dispensary and temple is an oasis of culture amidst a dead level of ignorance and poverty, the Bill will reduce Bengal to barbarism. The zemindar and the prosperous agriculturist are still the salt of this earth, and if I had the power I would not allow the Finance Minister to touch their income even with a pair of tongs.

Before discussing the exemption of British tea-companies from the tax, I would quote the following remarks made by a notable Indian gentleman in regard to credit granted by the Imperial Bank of India:—

".....I should like to express the common belief—for which there is good foundation in actual facts—that racial and political discrimination is made in the matter of credit, and that Indians usually do not receive in matters of credit the treatment that their assets entitled them to; while, on the other hand, British businessmen have frequently been allowed larger credit than what on ordinary business principles they ought to have got.

"Leases have been granted at ridiculously low rents, which cannot be explained away by the plausible theory of development and of the risks of enterprise. There are cases in Assam, for instance, which require examination. I go further: not only would such an inquiry indicate steps that may be taken in the future to safeguard India's interests, it would perhaps reveal cases where the sanctity of existing contract is frequently vitiated ab initio by unconscionable favouritism."

Can anybody say who made these remarks as if bursting with holy rage at undue and unjust advantages taken by foreign capitalists in this country?

It is none other than the gentleman who struts and frets before us as Bengal's Finance Minister and now wants to tax poor Ram, Shyam and Abdul earning less than Rs. 300 a month but would let the British tea-companies rolling in wealth go scot-free. The remarks which I have just quoted occur in a note appended to the report of the External Capital Committee which concluded its deliberations in 1925. Regarding this note Sir Basil Blackett, one of India's able Finance Member, had to submit another note which contained the following:—

"At no time during these meetings (i.e., of the External Capital Committee) did he (i.e., Mr. Goswami) make any mention whatsoever of his present allegations regarding racial and political discrimination in the granting of credit and of favouritism in the granting of leases."

What Sir Basil Blackett objected to was an act of bad faith and this illustrates the soundness of Mahatma Gandhi's teaching that we should always prize truth above patriotism; because one possessing a scant regard for honour while playing to the gallery now as a patriot, is very likely to become a turncoat in a few year's time. Commercial discrimination in favour of British tradesmen against which Mir Kasim fought and lost his throne and Bhudeb Mukherjee, Ranade, Ramesh Chandra Dutt, Dadabhoi Nooroji, Gopal Krishna, Gokhale, H. H. Wilson and William Digby wrote and spoke volumes is now being practised by a Ministry responsible to an elected legislature and this fact in itself would at first sight prove the incompetence of Indians or at least of Bengalees for democracy. But such perversity of human nature is unbelievable. Sixty million of creatures whom God created after His own image cannot be so low, cringing and bowing as to lie at the proud feet of a conqueror and consider such a state as bliss and, more than that, give him a carte blanche to exploit them to his heart's content without making any compensation whatsoever and all this at a time when famine has carried away 35 lakhs of their brethren. Not to speak of Bengalees, even Zulus and Hottentots would not do so. How is it then that our Legislative Assembly composed of 220 Indians out of a total of 250 has passed what will easily rank as the most servile piece of legislation in history? If by ill luck during the early days of this war Britain which had darkness before and danger's voice behind were conquered by Germany and if a British Legislature set up by the conqueror and composed of 220 Britons and 30 Germans passed a taxation Bill exempting Germans on the ground that German coal companies working in Newcastle had to pay a tax in Germany, what would the world think of those Britons one of whose poets sang:—

Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said
This is my own, my native land?

The reason why such a Bill could come up here in this shape is that communal electorates are the negation of democracy, nay of humanity itself. Only the other day I discussed how the Scheduled Caste M.L.A.s failed to return their expected quota of castemen to this House in repeated elections. Let us now turn our eyes to Muhammadans. It is very difficult to find out a communal crop under the sun. But there is one such crop. It is jute, at least 90 per cent. of jute-growers, as already stated, being Muhammadans. What I have said goes to prove conclusively that a man's communal ticket is the very reverse of a safeguard for protection of communal interests.

Communal virus is a poison and cannot do any good to the body politic. As soon as a man becomes communal-minded, he descends to a lower plane—

Mr. KADER BAKSH: On a point of order, Sir—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, I think you are deviating from the motion before the House.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I am speaking on the principle of my amendment.

Mr. KADER BAKSH: Sir, the motion before the House is the motion for circulation: how are all these things relevant?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I am coming to that; I am simply developing my argument at the present moment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Please do so.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: All right, Sir. A man fired with patriotism is the saviour of Hindus as well as Mussalmans; but a man fed upon communalism cannot do any good to any community. In guiding the affairs of human society, nothing but the very best has any value. It is true that the Assam Legislature passed an Agricultural Income-tax Act, but in that province the tax is paid by less than 600 persons of whom 500 are proprietors of tea gardens and only 100 are landlords. The yield of the tax in Assam is 27 lakhs. In Bihar, it is 17 lakhs and in Bengal it is not expected to go beyond 30 lakhs. What does this come to in comparison with the province's total revenue of nearly 22 crores? It comes to less than two per cent. And it is for this that the Government is going to tease the peasantry out of existence as was done in the case of the cadastral survey. For, in the case of cadastral survey, the amins become practically the terror of the land and so here also the income-tax officers will be the terror of the peasantry in the rural area. You will find that according to the census of 1931 the number of landlords in Bengal is 678,000. Dividing the number of raiyatwari rentals of 11 crores by the number of landlords' estates, it appears that the landlords get Rs. 162 on an average only. The electoral roll for the landholders' constituency for the Bengal Legislative Assembly, too, does not come to much. The number of voters does not exceed 400 and the franchise qualification, too, is not high. It is payment of land revenue or rent amounting to Rs. 3,000 in the Burdwan and Presidency Divisions and Rs. 2,000 for the Dacca, Rajshahi and Chittagong Divisions. The number of these landlords being limited, the greater portion of the tax will be collected from the middle-class and the cost will not be commensurate with the resulting income. These are my views on this Bill. So for the sake of justice and for the sake of the fact that the Bill has been passed by the Assembly which has outlived its normal life, I am of opinion that it should be circulated for public opinion particularly—

Mr. PRESIDENT: What did you say about the Assembly, Mr. Mazumdar?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: The Bill has come from the Assembly and therefore we are entitled to say that—

Mr. PRESIDENT: You are not entitled to say all that. There should be no reflection on the other House here—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Not exactly an observation of any unfavourable nature, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, I heard you say that the Assembly had outlived its normal life; did you not say so?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Yes, I said so.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I may tell you that it is not the practice for one House to make any reflection on the other.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Not an aspersion, Sir, but it is a fact that the Assembly has—

Mr. PRESIDENT: It may be a fact but it is against Parliamentary etiquette to say so.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I may assure you, Sir, that I am not casting any aspersion on any House.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is an honourable member not entitled to say that the Bill has been passed by the Assembly which has outlived its life?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Don't you agree with me, Mr. Das, that it is better to avoid such expression of opinion?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But is he not entitled to say that the Assembly has outlived its life? I do not understand how it is unparliamentary.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May not be quite unparliamentary but it has been a well-established convention not to express any opinion regarding the other House.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It is not an expression of opinion, but it is a matter of fact that the Assembly has outlived its normal life.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What Mr. Mazumdar really meant to say is that the Assembly had outlived its normal life and therefore any Bill passed by the Assembly should be circulated for public opinion: that is what he meant to say, and by saying so he has challenged the representative character of the other House, which he should not do.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I had no intention of challenging the representative character of the other House: that was furthest from my mind.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But that is the inference that the other House would draw.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I said the Assembly has outlived—

Mr. PRESIDENT: You should withdraw any expression of opinion about the other House.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I am in some confusion so far as this point is concerned. Is he or is he not entitled to say that the Assembly has outlived its normal life and hence the Bill should be circulated for public opinion? It may be that at the back of this expression there is an implication that it has outlived its utility—but it may or may not be so. But would he not be within his rights to say that?

Mr. PRESIDENT: If you ask for my opinion Mr. Das, my opinion is this—that by mentioning that the other House has outlived the normal life the honourable member really means that the other House does not represent public opinion, and that is the reason why the Bill should be circulated for public opinion—because the Bill has not the support of the public at large. I would ask Mr. Mazumdar to avoid that sort of observation.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: All right, Sir. As I was going to say, as it is a very important measure affecting the prince and the peasant alike, it should go to the outside public for eliciting opinion thereon so that in the light of public opinion we might be guided. With these words, I commend my amendment to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I want to speak on this motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You may move your amendment at this stage and speak on it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: All right, Sir. I beg to move that the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon by the 31st July, 1944.

Sir, I would be brief and I would not refer to the whole history behind this Bill. But there are certain points in this Bill which require clarification and for which it is essential that it should be circulated for eliciting the opinion of the public. First of all, I desire to emphasise the fact that the Bill is inopportune and has been brought at a time when it should never have been brought. Sir, there are certain provisions for which the expression of public opinion is greatly needed. The taxable minimum has been fixed at Rs. 3,500. Should it remain so or should it be higher or less—that is a point on which we should like to have public opinion. Another point which is very important in this connection would be: how the public would take to section 46(a),—now section 49,—wherein European merchants have been allowed exemption under certain conditions. We should like to have public opinion on this point. Then again—

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: On a point of information, Sir. I do not follow what the honourable member actually means by the expression “exemption”.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Regarding exemption, so far as the European merchants are concerned, if you pay income-tax in England for any income derived in Bengal, you shall not have to pay income-tax here in view of the exemption provided for under section 49.

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: That is wrong.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: That is absolutely incorrect.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Anyway, there is that provision in section 49 and the public can very well be invited to express their opinion upon it. There is another thing. I want to know whether this tax is going to be imposed from April, 1944, or from a later date. We all know how the people have been very badly and terribly hit by the famine of last year. The people have been still suffering from the after-effects of that famine. Quite a large number of persons have passed away, several lakhs died of diseases due to starvation. Many lakhs of people have sold their lands and homesteads for the purpose of keeping body and soul together. Government has recognised this and has actually passed a legislation by which all lands whose sale-price does not exceed Rs. 250 would be got back. But, Sir, that Bill does not even touch the fringe of the problem. All these bespeak the condition in the country which do not justify at all the imposition of a measure like this.

Moreover, I desire to point out that Bengal is really in the war zone. It is suffering terribly on all counts. So far as the question of taxing the income from the lands of Bengal is concerned, the reason given in the Statement of Objects and Reasons is not sufficient. It has been stated there that the Government want money; and so the Bill has been brought to add to the revenues of Bengal. I again submit the Bill is not at all justified. Sufficient retrenchment has not been made by the Government. Bengal did its level best to yield as much revenue as it could during the past two years. From Rs. 16½ crores the revenue has gone up to Rs. 23 crores and the expenditure flared up to Rs. 32 crores in 1943-44. What is this excess expenditure due to? I think it is mainly due to famine and extraordinary charges in India. Famine is the off-shoot of war and war being a Central subject the deficit ought to be met by the Government of India. Any money which comes out of the agricultural income-tax should not be spent for the purpose of meeting a deficit like this. There is another point which ought to be remembered in this connection, and that is the recommendation of the Flood Commission. The Report recommended that if it is necessary that the agricultural income should be taxed, care should be taken to see that the money so realised is applied solely for the purpose of improving agriculture or other operations connected with agriculture. The Finance Minister has actually said in another place and on another occasion, I will not mention the place, that it is bad finance to ear-mark the proceeds from a certain tax for a particular purpose. If the remark of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister be right, why then the Flood Commission made the above suggestion? As I have already said, the country is passing through a bad time and no undertaking has been given by the Government that the amount thus collected will be ear-marked for the purpose of improving agriculture. So we would like to know what the public want to say in regard to this Bill.

Now, Sir, I do not deny that agricultural income should be one of the principal sources of revenue and that it should be utilised to the fullest extent. But the question is: is the time opportune or is it inopportune? Let the public say whether this time is opportune or whether it is inopportune. I say it is inopportune. Then, Sir, so far as this matter of the agricultural income-tax is concerned, even though we say that it ought to be the principal source of revenue, I say, Sir, that public should be asked to express opinion as to whether they should have it now or they should have it after the cessation of the war. Bengal cannot return to normal condition till the war is at an end. Bengal is passing through extraordinary times. Under these circumstances, it should not be asked to yield revenue out of its agricultural income, particularly when the same is proposed to be utilised for purposes other than that on which the Floud Commission insisted. This money, Sir, if placed at the hands of the present Ministry, I have no doubt, will be misspent—or spent for purposes for which it ought not to be spent. For all these reasons, I urge that this Bill should be circulated for the purpose of eliciting public opinion.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that the Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, be circulated for the purpose of eliciting public opinion by the 30th June, 1944.

It may be asked why I move for circulation of the Bill when the question of assessing income-tax on agricultural income is pending for a long time before the public, having been published in the Calcutta Gazette on the 26th August, 1944. I would like to amplify my reasons one by one. In the first instance, I would like to point out that the raising of tax on agricultural income is a novel method which has been resorted to by some of the provinces in India. The general income-tax being a Central subject, the provinces have, no doubt, been authorised under the Constitution Act to raise tax on agricultural income only. If we look to the history of the introduction of income-tax in detail, we find that the income-tax was introduced in England for the first time in the year 1799 and again in the year 1803. The tax at varying rates continued to be in force until the year 1815 when it was dropped for good. It was again imposed in 1842, after 27 years, by Sir Robert Peel and has thenceforth continued down to the present time. Since 1860 the tax has been imposed for a single financial year only and is, therefore, an annual tax. As an matter of fact, the tax is revised every year. Here, we are going to place the tax as a permanent measure on the Statute Book. I think the Hon'ble the Finance Minister should consider whether in view of the emergency that has arisen on account of the deficit in the Budget of the present year, this tax could not have been imposed temporarily for one year only.

I would now refer to the various considerations which the British Exchequer took into account when imposing the income-tax on the inhabitants of Britain. If we look to the Income-tax Act for the year 1918, we will find that there are various schedules for charging the income-tax. Schedule A charges the profits derived from property or ownership in lands, tenements and hereditaments, corporeal and incorporeal. Schedule B charges the profits from the income on lands, but not on dwelling house other than farm house nor from incorporeal hereditaments. The British Exchequer is careful enough to avoid imposing any tax on dwelling houses on the basis of its letting value, as is the case with the Indian Income-tax Act. Schedule C charges interests, annuities, and dividends payable by British, foreign or Colonial Governments. Schedule D charges (a) profits arising from professions, trades, employments or vocations, (b) profits derived from foreign property, and (c) interest on money, annuities and such other annual profits and gains as are not charged under any of the other schedules. Schedule E charges profits arising from public offices or employments of profit and from annuities, pensions or stipends payable by His Majesty out of the public revenues of the United Kingdom except those charged under Schedule C. There is also a super-tax imposed. Now, the Indian Income-tax Act assesses income-tax on almost all these items except incomes on agricultural land. The reason why income-tax from agricultural land was excluded is apparent, because excepting revenue-free properties all agricultural lands are subject to the payment of revenue to the Government for general administration. Agricultural lands being subject to certain payments to the Government of the country towards defraying the expenses of general administration, no income-tax was imposed. As a matter of fact, that is the whole object of taxing individuals in that they are to contribute towards the expenses of general administration of the country from the income which they derive. The tax or the revenue which Government derives here from agricultural lands in the shape of revenue comes to about 3 crores of rupees. If we look to the report of the Flood Commission, we will find that the total rent derived from agricultural lands in the province amounts to about 13 crores. If we consider the entire amount determined by the Flood Commission as the income from agricultural lands I may say in passing that it will be found that the Flood Commission Report states that after deducting the expenses the net income would be 8 crores - if we consider the entire amount calculated by the Commission as the income from agricultural lands, and consider the revenue that is derived by Government from the same, we will have an idea of the rate at which agricultural lands contribute towards Government expense. If we take the total income at 13 crores, the revenue actually paid here being three crores, it comes to about 25 per cent of the income of the landlords contributed by agricultural lands for the expenses of the general administration of the country. As a matter of fact,

As a matter of fact, it is much more. It really is a double taxation so far as the imposition of a fresh tax on agricultural income is concerned. Now, Sir, in order to consider the justification for an imposition of this kind by the Government, we have to consider various factors. We know for certain that Bengal has passed through a time which is unprecedented in its history, nay, of the whole of India. The distress that prevailed during the last year is well-known to every one of us. It is hardly possible to imagine that the present Government is not aware of the distressed condition of the people of Bengal during the last year and of the fact that they have not yet been able to recover from the effects of the famine of last year. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister stated in his Statement of Objects and Reasons to the Bill, as originally published, that the tax is being imposed because additional revenue is urgently needed and because they consider that it is equitable to impose such a tax. I wonder on what basis the Hon'ble the Finance Minister states that it is equitable to impose such a tax in the present year. In his budget statement the Hon'ble the Finance Minister disclosed in this House that there was a deficit of over 14 crores of rupees and that he proposed to raise a portion of the deficit by additional taxation and for that purpose the sale tax was doubled and the present Bill is another. If we look to the budget statement of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister, we would find that he stated that he wanted to realise tax on agricultural income, in order that a part of the benefits of inflation which the cultivators are reaping should come to the Government.

Let me take up the question as to whether really the people of Bengal generally have benefited by the so-called inflation. I would like to ask the Hon'ble the Finance Minister, how many cultivators out of the six crores of the inhabitants of Bengal have benefited by the so-called inflation; and I would like, in the second instance, to ask the Hon'ble the Finance Minister as to how many of the cultivators, from whom he wants to raise the proposed agricultural income-tax, have benefited by the so-called inflation? It would, I believe, be admitted that only a few persons who are engaged in war contracts have got an inflated income; but that income is subject to a very heavy income-tax. So far as the cultivators and landlords who would be hit by the present Bill is concerned, I may say with confidence that very few have been benefited by the present inflation. It may be suggested that the agriculturists are selling their produce at an exorbitantly high rate and as such they have been benefited by the inflation as well. Now, let us look to this aspect of the question a little more closely. There is no doubt that the price of rice, the staple produce in Bengal, has increased considerably; but may I ask the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to consider how many of those cultivators, whom he proposes to tax, have got any surplus after meeting their own requirements to be sold to the public so as to enjoy the benefits of the inflation? I have no doubt the Hon'ble the Finance Minister will find that their number would be very few. In the next place, I would ask the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to consider the question as to what these unfortunate cultivators, who are going to be hit, require to meet the bare necessities of life after paying various other taxes to the Government on account of their lands. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister should consider that they have to pay the Education tax for the primary education of their children. They have to pay Road cess and Public Work cess for the construction of roads and public works in the province. They have to pay the Union Board tax for payment to the "chowkidars" whose ostensible duty is to guard the villages during the night, but who really serve the President of the Union Board, the Police Sub-Inspector and all other subordinate police officers, the Circle Officer, dance attendance on the District Officers when they come on inspection, and guard the passages when a high official like His Excellency the Governor or the Viceroy is on tour.

In this connection, I may mention that I have been informed that a circular has been issued,—this I say on my personal knowledge with reference to the district of Birbhum,—that the Union Board rate should be doubled for payment of increased salary to the "chowkidars". They have to pay, besides these taxes, amounts by way of subscription to the various funds which the District Authorities think fit to impose upon them for charitable, war and entertainment purposes. These constitute practically permanent charges which the unfortunate cultivators and landlords have to pay if they want to live in peace, unmolested by the District Authorities. Over and above these, I have been informed a new kind of abrah has been imposed upon the cultivators who have been asked to pay a certain quantity of paddy per acre for starting dharmagollas in villages. I have been informed that the Jute Regulation Officers are insisting upon payment of these as compulsory dues. After meeting all these charges which may be said to be charges payable to the government, the unfortunate cultivators and landlords have to think of their own requirements, and there they will find that they have to purchase every article of necessity at an enormously high price. I have no doubt the Hon'ble the Finance Minister will find that after meeting all these charges, 90 per cent. of the people who are hit by the present bill would have no surplus to pay to the government by way of taxes. I would request the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to consider whether he has taken all these factors into account when he proposed to levy the tax on agricultural income. The limit proposed under the bill, as passed by the Lower House, is Rs. 1,500 in the case of an individual, and Rs. 3,500 in the case of a joint family. I would take up these two limits.

I would like the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to consider whether he has appreciated that the majority of the people who are going to be hit by the proposed tax have to depend entirely on their income from agricultural land and have no other source of income from which they can hope to raise the amount necessary for paying the tax. Now, has the Hon'ble the Finance Minister considered what are the requirements of an individual who is going to be hit by the present tax? If we consider the provisions of the English Act, I am referring to the Income-tax Act of the year 1918, Chapter 40, we will find provisions regarding the principles on which tax is payable by an assessee. With regard to the question of reliefs which a British tax-payer is entitled to obtain, provisions will be found in Part III of the Act under heading "Exemption, Abatement and Relief." Here we find provisions for granting relief to a person whose total income is assessed.

Under section 10, when the income does not exceed £130, the claimant is entitled to exemption from income-tax. Under section 11, when the income exceeds £130 but does not exceed £700, the claimant is entitled to an abatement. When the income does not exceed £400, relief from tax is granted upon £120. If the income exceeds £400 and does not exceed £600, relief from tax is granted upon £100. If the income exceeds £600 and does not exceed £700, relief from tax is granted upon £70.

Now, that is the provision with regard to the tax which is to be raised. Then, we have got a provision with regard to relief in cases of individuals who have got members to maintain. Under section 12, we find that where the income does not exceed £800 and the claimant proves that he has a child or children living under the age of 16 years at the commencement of the year of assessment, he shall be entitled in respect of every such child to relief of a tax amounting to £25. Here, we find a very beneficial provision which the British authorities have incorporated. The assessee under the same is entitled to relief if he has got a child to maintain to the extent of £25 which would be about Rs. 400 per year in India. Under section 13 again, we find that in case when the income does not exceed £800 although exceeding £130 and the claimant proves that he has a wife living with him or in the case where the claimant is a widower, a person being a family relative of his or of his deceased wife is resident with him for the purpose of having the charge and care of any child of his or that he maintains at his own expense any person being a relative of his or wife who is incapacitated by old age or infirmity from maintaining himself and whose income from all sources does not exceed £25 a year, he shall be entitled, in respect of his wife or any such family relative and in respect of each person whom he maintains, to relief from tax upon £25. Under section 14 again, other relief which is to be granted in addition to reliefs mentioned above are provided for. In cases where the claimant is liable to payment of super-tax, the rate of exemption is larger. In the Act of 1920 there are more liberal provisions. I would like the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to consider whether he has considered this aspect of the matter. It seems to me that he proposes to raise the tax upon all people irrespective of their individual requirements which would cause a great hardship upon people having a large family to maintain. The principle on which income is levied under the British Act seems to be that they want to touch only that portion of the income which comes to him as a surplus after meeting all his requirements from his income. This principle seems to be altogether absent in the proposed Agricultural Income-tax Bill. When we consider that this is really double taxation which can only be levied in case of extreme and unavoidable necessity, he must at the same time consider that he ought not to touch any portion of the income which the assessee will require for the maintenance of himself and his dependents. Sir, it is this principle which I request the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to consider and I want that this Bill should be circulated for the purpose of eliciting public opinion on the question as to whether, having regard to the present time and the provisions generally of the Bill, the public has got anything to say. While we find, Sir, that the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has not taken into consideration the above aspect of the matter, we find in the original Bill, as circulated in the Calcutta Gazette, provisions for relief practically for the European community under clauses 47 and 48. The Select Committee of the Lower House omitted these clauses but when it came to the Lower House the European group sought to re-insert these provisions and although the Opposition pointed out that the re-insertion of these provisions would be detrimental to the interest of the Bengal tax-payer, the Government had to accept the amendment. I reserve my opinion on the clauses themselves but I refer this matter at this stage for the purpose of impressing upon the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to consider whether or not it was only fair and equitable that while considering the claim of European tax-payers to relief (I may say at once that they need not have claimed this relief), he should not have given the same consideration for granting relief to the unfortunate cultivators and landlords who are going to be taxed by this Bill. Should he not consider that the people of the country are entitled to live fairly and comfortably on the income which they have earned after hard labour and that they should be asked to pay income-tax only out of the surplus as in the case of the British tax-payer? As a matter of fact, the European group claims relief on the principles of the provisions contained in the British Act. If the European members are entitled to relief on the principle set out in the British Act, I fail to see why the Indian tax-payer should not be given relief which is to be found in the other parts of the same Act. I would like to impress upon the members of the House that we represent constituencies consisting of electorates which would be hard hit by the provisions of this Bill, excepting only a very few people. The fact that the Bill has come out of the Lower House does not relieve us of our responsibility. We, the members of this House, have to explain to our constituencies whether we have placed their grievances with regard to this particular Bill before this House. As a matter of fact, I would like to impress upon the honourable members who are supporting Government today that in allowing this Bill to be sent out for the purpose of circulation and for eliciting public opinion thereon they are not going against the Government; they would only be voting for a demand which allows the constituencies which they represent to express their views on the provisions of the Bill. I submit that the request which I make should be considered reasonable and this Bill should be sent out for circulation.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Three amendments have been moved. One has been moved by Mr. Hatidas Mazumdar that the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon by the 31st December, 1944; another by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das that the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon by the 31st July, 1944, and yet another by Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee that the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting public opinion by the 30th June, 1944.

The amendments are now open to discussion.

I take it that there is no speaker. I shall, therefore, call upon the Hon'ble Minister in charge to reply to the various amendments that have been moved.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Mr. President, Sir, I shall be very brief in opposing the three motions for circulation of the Bill. I do not think any case has been made out for circulating the Bill for eliciting opinion thereon. As I stated at the outset, the main features of the Bill have been before the public for several months and it was carefully considered in one Select Committee somewhere.

As regards the accusation that the Bill, as settled in another place, seeks to exempt the European tea-garden owners from this tax, I wish to say emphatically that not only have we not given any exemption in favour of European interests, but that we have netted in their entire income within the purview of this taxation. I do not blame some honourable members of the House for having misunderstood what was provided in clause 46(a) in another place. This is a very technical Bill and this clause raises a particularly technical point. It was pointed out by Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee that clauses 47 and 48 of the original Bill, as published in the Calcutta Gazette, were omitted by the Select Committee. The original clause 48 was not restored and that clause was one which I could not conscientiously accept. Clause 46(a), — (Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: There is no clause 46(a) in the Bill as passed by the Assembly.) Yes, I know, but it was 46(a) as it was actually passed in the other House. It is a replica of the original clause 47. Honourable members will forgive me if I do not. —

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, there is no clause 46(a) in the Bill as we have got now.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Yes, I know, and I am sorry; but it was referred to in several speeches as clause 46(a) today. —

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Possibly it is clause 49.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: It is 49, as it appears in the Bill before the House; I know that very well. But I mentioned it as 46(a), as several honourable members had been referring to it as 46(a), as originally passed in another place. I hope honourable members will forgive me if I do not take up their time at this stage in explaining the provision of what is now clause 49 of the Bill and which, as I have said, was passed as clause 46(a) in another place. It is a question relating to double taxation and reciprocal relief, and I claim that no European interest has been specially favoured.

Then, there is another point which was raised, namely, that the Bill does not "ear-mark" the proceeds of the tax for a particular purpose. My answer was anticipated by some honourable members, namely, that it is bad finance. Sir, after all what is the purpose of public finance? Public finance is the proceeds of the whole income. You have to take the entire income of the State for its application to different purposes and I do maintain that it is bad finance to ear-mark the proceeds of this income-tax for a particular purpose. Further, Sir, if the honourable members carefully examine the budget, they would find that an enormous sum has been allotted for the improvement of agriculture. It is true that in the past agriculture had been a neglected subject; but we have made enormous provision and have undertaken schemes of irrigation which will involve large sums of money which will be ancillary to agricultural schemes. The proceeds of this tax will be a small fraction of the amount that Government will spend this year and in the succeeding years on the improvement of agriculture. Besides, I want to correct another misconception. The words of the Flood Commission on the subject are not before me but the meaning and purpose of those words are quite clear to me. The authors of the Flood Commission were men of intelligence and it cannot be said of them that they would suggest that the proceeds of this tax should be ear-marked for agricultural development. Sir, the proceeds of this tax would be available to Government for the improvement of agriculture.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: That comes to the same thing.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I may say here, Sir, that we shall utilise every penny of the proceeds of this tax towards the improvement of agriculture, may very much more. I have not the Report of the Flood Commission with me here—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a point of information, Sir, I may give the Hon'ble Minister the exact wording of the Flood Commission in this respect. It says this: "We are strongly of opinion that if the agricultural income-tax is imposed, it should be applied solely for the improvement of agriculture or for projects connected with agricultural matters."

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: It is exactly what I was saying.

Then, as regards the question as to whether this is the proper time to impose a tax on agricultural income. I will submit, Sir, cruel though the words may sound, that this is the appropriate time for inaugurating taxation of agricultural incomes. I would request the honourable members not to forget that we are taxing not the poor man but a person whose net income from this source is not less than Rs. 3,500. And a net income of Rs. 3,500 means a gross income of Rs. 7,000 to Rs. 10,000. Such people are getting very high price for their agricultural produce.

I do not think that any other serious points have been put forward and at this stage I shall not say anything more except that I oppose the motions.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I propose, at first, to put to vote the amendment of Mr. Haridas Mazumdar that the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon by the 31st December, 1944. If that is defeated, Mr. Lalit Chandra Das's amendment that the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon by the 31st July, 1944; if that also is defeated, then the amendment of Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee to circulate the Bill for the purpose of eliciting public opinion by the 30th June, 1944.

The question before the House is that the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon by the 31st December, 1944.

(The motion was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon by the 31st July, 1944.

(The motion was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon by the 30th June, 1944.

(The motion was negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Mr. President, Sir, I beg to move that the Bill be referred to a committee of the whole Chamber for consideration of the provisions of the Bill.

I think, Sir, that I have to explain why I move my motion for referring the Bill to a committee of the whole Chamber after my motion for circulation has been lost. If we look to the provisions of the Bill, we find that the Bill consists of 66 sections and a Schedule, spreading over 28 closely printed foolscap pages and some of the sections covering in print 2 pages, 1 page and 3 pages. It is necessary that the members of this House should be given an opportunity to examine the provisions of the Bill and to express their opinion with reference to the provisions in the Bill and to consider whether any of the provisions should be altered or amended in the light of their own individual opinion. Sir, we in this House represent constituencies which, with few honourable exceptions, will all be hit by the provisions of the Bill. We would like, therefore, in the committee to have an opinion of the honourable members of the House as to how constituencies whom they represent would be hit by this Act. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister has just now stated that he wants to tax the inflated incomes of those people who have got incomes of Rs. 7,000 to Rs. 10,000. I think I heard him correctly, but if I am wrong the Hon'ble Finance Minister will correct me----

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Gross income.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I am sorry to say, Sir, that when the Hon'ble Finance Minister spoke that he wanted to touch the gross income of Rs. 7,000 to Rs. 10,000, he should have considered that he was going beside the Bill and was speaking on a point which was not relevant. What he has said was the net income. After all, what is gross income? Out of a gross income of Rs. 7,000, Rs. 3,500 goes out from the pocket of the assessee for the purpose of collecting that income. That is the basis how a gross income is calculated. From a man's gross income, i.e., from his entire proceeds of the cultivation he has to pay out the cost of cultivation and he has to meet other expenses. I am sorry to say that the Hon'ble the Finance Minister in speaking that he was going to touch the people whose gross income was Rs. 7,000 tried to give an impression that he was not hitting those people who have got less income.

I submit that it was not appropriate for the Hon'ble Finance Minister to refer to gross income of Rs. 7,000. He ought to have referred to the provisions of the Bill which say that he is going to tax individuals whose income is Rs. 5,000 only. What I am going to submit is: has he taken into consideration the expenses of those people who have a total income of Rs. 5,000? As a matter of fact, we have got in the sister province of Bihar an Agricultural Income-tax Act where no tax is levied up to an income of Rs. 5,000; but we know that the people of Bihar so far as agriculture is concerned are much better off than the people of Bengal. Therefore, when he places the lowest limit at Rs. 1,500, he should have considered the various provisions with regard to relief referred to in my previous motion for circulation, as provided in the English Act. Suppose, a man's income is Rs. 3,500 and he has got only himself and his wife to maintain; then he will have to pay one tax. But if an individual with a family of ten or twelve, as very often happens, has got to pay an income-tax from an income of Rs. 3,500, he will then be hard hit. So that in the end it will be found that either his movables will be attached or he will be sent to jail and a warrant will have to be issued for realising his tax. As a matter of fact, that is found to be the case very often when income-tax under the Indian Income-tax Act is realised. Therefore, I say that when you are going to put a tax on a man's agricultural income including the amount that he needs for his sustenance, then you will have to consider his requirements also. If the Bill, therefore, is referred to a Committee of the whole House, then the members will have an opportunity of expressing their opinion as to whether people having a net income of over Rs. 1,500 should be taxed indiscriminately irrespective of the number of members whom they have to maintain, irrespective of their own requirements, and irrespective of other considerations, as I have quoted from the English Act. It, as a matter of fact, we are following the true principles of taxation and are raising taxation for the purpose of the general administration of the country, we ought to see that the people who are earning this income are allowed to live fairly and comfortably and without any want. It is only out of the surplus income that they may be asked to give a part as income-tax. If, therefore, the Bill be referred to a committee of the whole House, then the Hon'ble Finance Minister will have an opportunity of having opinions of members from different parts of the Province. As a matter of fact, I think it will be admitted on all hands that in a Hindu family we have got, every one of us, to maintain a large number of members, almost all the types of persons who are referred to in the provisions of the English Act. It is for that purpose that I have tabled this motion to refer this Bill to a Committee of the whole Chamber. If the Hon'ble Minister consider that this Bill should be placed permanently on the Statute Book, it is necessary that we should not be hasty or go on hurriedly with this piece of legislation and impose this burden upon the people of this province, particularly when it is admitted that their taxable limit has been reached and when they are unable to bear the burden of any new taxation any further.

Sir, I do not agree with the Hon'ble the Finance Minister when he says that these landlords—it may be that there are some landlords who have been able to collect their full rents this year—are able to collect their rents as a general rule. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister has not considered the requirements of the people whom he wants to tax. As a matter of fact, if we refer the Bill for the consideration of the members of the whole House, we would get the assistance of the members of the House for consideration of the various provisions of the Bill. Take for instance, the provision with regard to section 49, as passed by the Assembly. What is the provision? The provision is, "the Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make provision for the granting of relief in respect of agricultural income on which both agricultural income-tax under this Act and other income-tax have been paid:

(2) for the purpose of this section 'other income-tax' means any income-tax, super-tax or sur-tax charged under

(a) any law of a province other than Bengal in force in that province, or—this clause is very important—

(b) any law in force in any Indian State, or any part of His Majesty's dominions, or in the United Kingdom.

Where the laws of such province, State or part of His Majesty's Dominions, or of the United Kingdom, as the case may be, provide for relief in respect of tax charged on income both in such province, State or part of His Majesty's Dominions, or in the United Kingdom, as the case may be, and in Bengal, which appears to the Provincial Government to correspond to the relief which may be granted under this section."

Now, Sir, here is a provision which refers to a provision of a Statute which is in force in the United Kingdom. But may I refer to section 27 of the Finance Act of 1920 referred to in the Bill as published in the Calcutta Gazette but which has been omitted from the Bill as passed by the Lower House? The special significance of the section which occurs in the English Act may not be understood, as the Finance Minister himself has admitted. May I refer to section 27 of the English Act which provides for relief in respect of the Dominion Income-tax Act? I am reading from section 27, of 10-11 George V, Chapter 18, which says, "If any person who has paid, by deduction or otherwise, or is liable to pay, United Kingdom income-tax for any year of assessment on any part of his income proves to the satisfaction of the Special Commissioners that he has paid Dominion income-tax for that year in respect of the same part of his income, he shall be entitled to relief from United Kingdom income-tax paid or payable by him on that part of his income at a rate thereon to be determined as follows:—

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: The relief will be from the British Treasury up to a certain stage.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: The Hon'ble Minister need not be in a hurry. I was going to say that. What is really the provision here? Not from the tax that the European tax-payer has to pay here. But he will get suitable relief in respect of the tax payable in the United Kingdom. Now, Sir, let us look to clause (a) of section 27 which says, "if the Dominion rate of tax does not exceed one-half of the appropriate rate of United Kingdom tax, the rate at which relief is to be given shall be the Dominion rate of tax:". But if we look to the provision of section 49 of the present Bill, as passed in the Assembly, we find a provision like this— "• • • may by notification in the Official Gazette, make provision for the granting of relief in respect of agricultural income on which both agricultural income-tax have been paid."

What is the meaning of the words "granting of relief". What relief the Bengal Government is going to provide —

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, how long will you take to finish your speech?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Detenu Srijut Amulya Mukherjee.

168. Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS (on behalf of Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta): Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if Srijut Amulya Mukherjee, formerly a resident of Comilla, is a detenu; if so, how long he has been under detention;
- (b) if the Government are aware that in his family he has aged parents, an unmarried sister and another helpless widowed sister with a child;
- (c) if the Government are aware that these members of his family have no means of subsistence and are practically living on charity from the public; and
- (d) if the Government have sanctioned any allowance for the family, if not, whether he proposes to consider the question of sanctioning a suitable allowance and give direction in this matter?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) Yes. Since September, 1940.

(b) Yes.

(c) I have no such information.

(d) I instituted an enquiry on the financial position of Mr. Mukherjee's family and am satisfied that this is not a fit case for financial help.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what was the agency through which that enquiry was held?

Mr. BIREN ROY: As usual, through the District authority.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state when this enquiry was instituted and when it came to an end?

Mr. BIREN ROY: This enquiry was instituted nearly one year ago.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: What was the result of that enquiry?

Mr. BIREN ROY: It transpired as a result of the enquiry that Rs. 140 was the income of the family per month, and that the prisoner was not an earning member of the family.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: The family consisted of how many members?

Mr. BIREN ROY: That is already noted in the question.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is that all?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Yes.

Scarcity of X-ray films.

169. Rai Bahadur BROJENDRA MOHAN MAITRA (on behalf of Dr. Kumud Sankar Ray): (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state whether Government are aware of the great difficulty experienced by the different hospitals and private radiologists of Bengal in securing X-ray films without which it is not possible to carry on the treatment of many cases?

(b) Do the Government contemplate arranging for an adequate supply of X-ray films in the immediate future?

(c) Do the Government propose to request the military authorities to release immediately at least some films for use for the civil population until adequate supply is arranged for by this Government from abroad?

(d) Are the Government aware that a stock of X-ray films intended for Bengal has arrived at Bombay and that owing to railway booking restrictions the despatch of the same to Bengal is being delayed? If so, will Government take necessary steps to arrange with proper authorities for the priority for despatch of the films by passenger train to make the stock available for use in Bengal with least possible delay?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): (a) Yes.

(b) Under instructions of the Director-General, Indian Medical Service, orders for requirements of State hospitals were placed with importing firms but they were unable to supply them for want of stock.

(c) The military authorities were requested but they have regretted their inability to release X-ray films.

(d) Yes, the Regional Controllers of Railway Priorities of Bombay and Calcutta have already been moved in the matter.

Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHOWDHURY: Sir, what about my question No. 156? I have been asking this question for some time past but I have got no answer. What is the reason? Is it because the Supply Minister is trying to avoid this question or is it that certain portion of his portfolio has been relinquished?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: The Hon'ble Minister has sent the file to the Parliamentary Secretary, Mr. Biren Roy, for answering the question. I presume, Mr. Roy probably has not received the file as yet. So I think the question may be answered on the next day.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I had tabled a short-notice question of which also I have got no reply.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Which question is that?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It is about the price of rice at Dacca.

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: That question also will be answered by Mr. Biren Roy together with the other one.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: When?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: On the next sitting day.

Points of Information.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I had asked a question about the Dacca riots. The Parliamentary Secretary told us the other day that as soon as Sir Nazimuddin returned from Dacca he would make a statement or give a reply to my question. May I know what has happened to that question, Sir?

Mr. BIREN ROY: I am very sorry that it escaped us; it will be answered on the next sitting day.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I have still another point to raise, Sir, and that is about Bhog-ration to the Hindu deities. Sir Nazimuddin told us in your presence the other day that within the next 7 or 10 days a statement would be made on the subject and the decision of Government announced. May I know what has happened to this matter also?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: Perhaps the House is aware that the Hon'ble the Chief Minister was away at Dacca for some days.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: No, no. The statement would be made not by the Chief Minister but by the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies.

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: The question will be answered on the next sitting day, Sir.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: The Chief Minister promised to announce a decision on this matter today.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I had an informal talk with the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies and he casually mentioned to me that he was dealing with the matter. That is all I can say. It is for the Government to inform when the statement will be made in the House.

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: We shall try to answer it on the next day.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House will now resume discussion of the motion to take the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill into consideration. Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Mr. President, Sir, yesterday I was referring to section 27 of the English Finance Act of the year 1920, Act 10 & 11, George V, Chapter 18. Fortunately, Sir, while I was reading sub-section (1), the Hon'ble the Finance Minister suddenly got up and stated that that relief would be obtained from the United Kingdom and not here. I would like to know what exactly induced the Hon'ble Minister to agree to the incorporation of section 49 in the Lower House. Is it the case that the assessee under section 49 will not be given any relief with regard to any amount which he has to pay to the Bengal Government, or that all this relief will be obtained from the United Kingdom—or whether it is the case that while he is entitled to some relief from the United Kingdom, he is also entitled to some relief from the Provincial Government here? It is necessary that this matter should be clarified and not left vague. The Hon'ble Finance Minister in the course of his reply to the motion for circulation of the Bill stated that this section was a very technical one, I mean section 49.

I admit, Sir, that the section is a technical one and that there is room for misapprehension. But I think it will be admitted on all hands that if there is any room for misapprehension, the Hon'ble the Finance Minister should have cleared it up and stated exactly what the implication of clause 49 is. It would not be fair to ask the House to pass this measure without knowing clearly what he intended by the incorporation of clause 49. As a matter of fact, we find nothing clearly stated in clause 49. Sir, the number 49 is a peculiar number to us and I hope that had nothing to do with the incorporation of the provision of the Bill itself. It says, "The Provincial Government may by notification in the Official Gazette make provision" and so on. But what the provision is, that is not clearly stated in the clause and he has not cleared it up in the course of his speech either, beyond stating that there is room for misapprehension. I submit, Sir, that he should have taken the House into confidence and stated clearly what he meant by this clause. This matter was specifically referred to by me in the course of my speech on the motion for circulation; but he did not care to reply to it. It was being claimed by the Government side and also by the European group that the Bengal Exchequer will not suffer a pie on account of this clause being incorporated in the Bill and that, as a matter of fact, relief will be given by the United Kingdom and not by the Bengal Exchequer. If that is so, then I submit the insertion of clause 49 is meaningless and redundant as this relief is already provided for in section 27 of the English Act. But if it is intended that relief is to be given beyond what is afforded under section 27 of the English Act, then the Hon'ble the Finance Minister should have had the courage to state plainly before the House that the Government of Bengal wants to give to them the relief indicated in clause 49. I submit, Sir, that this matter ought not to have been left vague by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister. If we compare the two sections—section 27 of the English Finance Act and clause 49 of the present Bill and examine the provisions a little more closely, we will find that there is a good deal of substance in what the Opposition says, namely, that some relief is proposed to be given and that the Bengal Exchequer is going to lose some revenue by reason of the operation of clause 49. As a matter of fact, I am now speaking in connection with my motion for referring the Bill to the Committee of the whole Chamber, so that this matter may be discussed before that committee and we may know what exactly the position on both sides is.

Now, Sir, if we look to section 27 of the English Finance Act,—I will read once again this section, because it is rather a technical subject and I should clear up the matter as far as possible,—we find: "If any person who has paid by deduction or otherwise or is liable to pay to United Kingdom income-tax for income or an assessment of any part of his income, proves to the satisfaction of the Special Commissioners that he has paid Dominion income-tax" (Dominion tax is like the Agricultural income-tax which we are now considering) "for that year in respect of the same part of his income, he shall be entitled to relief from the United Kingdom income-tax paid or payable by him on that part of his income at a rate to be determined as follows". As a matter of fact, it has been held that Dominion Acts include the Indian Acts by reason of certain courts holding that view, though technically India has not received the Dominion Status. If the Dominion income-tax does not exceed half of the rate of the United Kingdom income-tax, the rate at which relief is to be given shall be the Dominion rate of tax. Therefore, the relief which the assessee will get from the United Kingdom would be the tax payable under the Dominion Act, if the Dominion tax does not exceed half of the United Kingdom tax. Now, we look to the rates, we will find that so far as the United Kingdom rates are concerned, they vary from year to year and we do not know exactly what would be the rate when this Act comes into force, that is one year from the 1st April, 1944; but the tax which an assessee has to pay under the Bengal Act has been provided in the Schedule and there we have a maximum rate of 2 annas 6 pies in the rupee when the income is more than Rs. 1,500. Then, the extent of relief which they will get from the United Kingdom would be half of the Dominion rate. If we take the rate as it was in 1920,—the rate in that year was, I believe, 6 shillings in the pound, half of that would be 3 shillings and that would be about roughly one-sixth so far as the United Kingdom tax is concerned. Now, the Bengal Act also provides for one-sixth and therefore the tax is almost equal and so the relief which the assessee would get from the United Kingdom would be half of the tax, that is, 1 anna 3 pies and not the entire tax. That being so, what would happen to the remaining 1 anna 3 pies? Under section 49 what happens is this:—he would get 1 anna 3 pies relief from the United Kingdom.

You will have to pay 2 annas 6 pies. Under the provision of this section he is entitled to a relief. Under section 49 the Provincial Government may by notification in the Official Gazette make provision for the grant of relief in respect of agricultural income on which both the agricultural income-tax under this Act and other income-tax have been paid for the purpose of this section. Other income-tax means any income-tax, super-tax or sur-tax charged under any law of a province other than Bengal. Her Sir, I would submit that there is a lacuna in the provision of the Act. There is no other income-tax in the province. Possibly in Assam there is a tax but that is not payable in Bengal. There is one tax that is payable under the Central Act. There is no provision for that in the Bill itself. That is a lacuna. Some provision ought to be there. But apart from that what I was going to point out was that clause (2)(b) of section 49 says that—

"(2) For the purposes of this section 'other income-tax' means any income-tax, super-tax or sur-tax charged under—

- (b) any law in force in any Indian State, or in any part of His Majesty's Dominions, or in the United Kingdom where the laws of any Province, State or part of His Majesty's Dominions, or of the United Kingdom, as the case may be, provide for relief in respect of tax charged on income both in such Province, S or part of His Majesty's Dominions, or in the United Kingdom, as the case may be, and in Bengal, which appears to the Provincial Government to correspond to the relief which may be granted under this section."

Now, Sir, there is no doubt that the section is vague and the intention has not been clearly expressed. It has been left to be cleared up by notification in the Gazette by the Provincial Government. Is it the intention of the Government to grant the relief in respect of 1 anna and 3 pies which the assessee will not be entitled to under the English Finance Act? In the English Act that point has been made clear. Now, if we look to another section, viz., section 8, we will find that here mixed income has been defined. The reason, Sir, why I am taking the time of the House is to show that it is essentially necessary that the matter should be considered by a committee of the whole Chamber. Under section 8 provision is made for computation of tax on mixed income. Now, clause (2) of section 8 says that—

"(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, in the case of tea [the plant Camellia Thea (Linn.)] grown in Bengal and sold by the grower himself or his agent after manufacture, the agricultural income derived therefrom shall, as long as for the purposes of assessment of income-tax under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, the income derived therefrom is computed under that Act in such manner as to include agricultural income, be deemed to be that portion of such income as so computed on which income-tax is not payable under that Act, and agricultural income-tax at the rates specified in the Schedule shall be payable on the whole of such agricultural income as so computed."

I may mention that under the Income-tax Act there is a provision whereby 40 per cent. of the entire income is charged, and 60 per cent. is left as an agricultural income. I think I am right. Now, Sir, looking back to section 8 again, we find that this 60 per cent. which remains has got to be taxed under the Agricultural Income-tax Act, and the extent of relief which is to be given under section 49 has not been cleared up in the provision of the section but has got to be cleared up by notification. We do not know how the Government proposes to apply the provisions in order to grant the necessary relief. In any event, I say that these points have got to be considered.

Now, what is the object of this enactment? The whole object and the reason why this has been enacted is that these tax-payers should be relieved from the burden of paying a tax over the same income twice—that is what is called double taxation. Now, if we agree to that principle, viz., to relieve these people from the payment of double taxation, let us now consider whether the same consideration has been shown in assessing Indian tax-payers or Bengal tax-payers under the main Act, I mean the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Act. What is the principle? The principle is that an assessee should be relieved from paying a tax twice on the same income, if he has paid a tax in the United Kingdom and also under the Indian Income-tax Act. Therefore, they should be relieved from paying the tax over again by notification, because that would be double charge on income. Now, let us consider whether the same consideration has been shown to the Bengal tax-payers under this Act. Here we are taxing the zamindars who are paying land revenue to the Government, and we are charging income-tax from the tenants who are paying rent to their superior landlords. Now, I think it would not be out of place to refer here to a paragraph from the Flood Commission's Report. The Commission devoted a good deal of time in considering the history of taxation in India from the period of the Hindu Kings down to the present time and they had the whole picture before them. I am reading only one paragraph from their report. It is paragraph 15 where they say "there are many theories about the nature of rent to which reference will be made in connection with the third term of reference, viz., what is the soundest principle for fixing a fair rent? It is sufficient to note here that though land revenue may be described as a tax" what is after all land revenue? If we look to the history of fixing land revenue, we will find that prior to the Permanent Settlement Government was realising from the zemindar a certain amount of money as its share of the produce of land which the ruling power was entitled to. Government found it difficult to realise this directly and, therefore, they farmed out the land and these farmers were no better than rent-collectors who were collecting these rents on behalf of the British Government and paying the revenue to the Indian exchequer and they were entitled to a certain commission on this account. Permanent Settlement only permanently assessed the amount of Government's share which Government was going to realise from these farmers and they gave these farmers, who were subsequently known as zemindars, the right to pay that amount for ever. After all, the zemindars were collecting the entire sum on behalf of Government and they were paying a portion of their collection to the Government as the tax which Government was entitled to, for the purpose of the administration of the country. That is how the Flood Commission has described it; they go on to say: "it may be described as a tax whatever its actual incidence may be on any particular land."

It is theoretically a share of the products of the land. Now, Sir, if this is a tax—if the revenue that is paid is a tax—would it not be fair if we want to give the same relief which the tea-growers are entitled to on account of having paid tax to another Exchequer, to assess the tax on the entire income of these people and deduct the amount of revenue that is paid by them to the Government Treasury on fixed dates? I believe that is a consideration which has not at all been given by the Finance Minister when this Bill was drafted and I submit if we are going to be fair to all parties concerned we ought to consider this aspect of the matter. (Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: It is a wrong analogy.) I hear Khan Bahadur Momin saying that it is entirely a wrong analogy. If I have given a wrong analogy, I am in good company, because I am supported by the report of the Flood Commission which devoted much valuable time and had expert evidence before them and had literature from the ancient Hindu Kings down to the present time on the subject of taxation. I may tell the Khan Bahadur that I am not in favour of the Permanent Settlement. I am against it. As a matter of fact, my personal view is that the Permanent Settlement in Bengal is a source of permanent wastage of the manhood of Bengal. Had there not been Permanent Settlement in Bengal, Bengal would have prospered today like Bombay and other provinces where the Indian merchants are thriving by practically driving out the European merchants from those places. It is the Permanent Settlement which is standing in the way of Bengal progressing in industrial and other spheres of life. As a matter of fact, the Floud Commission report says that the abolition of the Permanent Settlement would involve Bengal in the loss of three crores of rupees in the shape of court-fees to the rate-payers of Bengal. I may specially inform the European members—possibly they do not know this. The report says that by the abolition of Permanent Settlement you will no doubt gain six crores of rupees, but there will be a loss of 3 crores which now comes to the coffers of the Bengal Exchequer under the Permanent Settlement of Bengal on account of court-fees and stamps for land registration. Therefore, I may assure the members of the House who are supporting the Government and specially those who are against the Permanent Settlement of Bengal that I am also against the Permanent Settlement and the sooner it is done away with the better for Bengal. Now, Sir, to revert to the subject under discussion—I went away from it on account of Khan Bahadur's interruption—I say that they are entitled to relief. But if you want to bring in the provision of the English Act in the shape of revenue what is done in the Act is that they take the revenue as an item of expenditure in calculating the income from the tenants. That is not exactly what happens. If we look to the history of the thing, it is merely as if Government have employed the zemindars on a certain pay, the pay being what they are getting and the tax is the tax paid on account of land from which he realises rent from the tenants. That is how the supporters of the Bill argue in its favour.

Now let us look at the case of the tenants. I was referring to the case of the zemindars but what is the case of the tenants, I mean the tenure-holders and actual cultivators? It is not right, as the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has said, that he has touched only the landlords and not the cultivators. Big cultivators would be affected by this measure. As I said earlier, no relief has been granted to the person who has got to maintain his wife, children, mother and other dependent relatives. No consideration has been shown to these people. It may be stated in reply, "Oh, we have made allowance for the first Rs. 1,500." In the Schedule we find that the first Rs. 1,500 out of the agricultural income has not been assessed. Therefore, prima facie, Rs. 1,500 is not touched but that is the extent of relief which has been given to all tax-payers irrespective of the question as to what are his own requirements with regard to the members of his family whom he has got to maintain. The answer would be that there is the same provision in the English Act. But in the English Act, we have, in the first instance, got the basic deduction which is provided in the Act of 1918 and I referred to it in the course of my speech yesterday. It is provided there that £130 which comes to about Rs. 1,800 or Rs. 2,000 should not be touched at all. I would like the Hon'ble Minister to consider this and give relief, as has been granted by the English Act, for the maintenance of wife, children and other relations. These two considerations ought to be shown and if we meet in a committee of the whole Chamber we would be able to discuss these things. I may tell the Hon'ble the Finance Minister that if 13

Hon'ble Ministers and the 17 Parliamentary Secretaries meet together, I think he will find among them people representing all shades of income from Rs. 3,500 upward to the income of a Maharaja. I say Maharaja, because I include the Hon'ble the Finance Minister in the category of a Maharaja. He has immense income of his own so far as this tax is concerned. So, I say that if he goes to find out the income of the different Parliamentary Secretaries, he would find that many have not the income of Rs. 3,500 besides the salary here. I hope he will then realise that the Bengali tax-payers are entitled to get the same consideration as the assesses under the English income-tax get under that Act.

There are one or two other small matters. As a matter of fact, I would have spoken on each of the sections in order to justify my intention to refer the Bill to a committee of the whole House, but as the time would be very short I cannot do that. Again I request the Hon'ble Minister to see that the assesses may not be left to the whims and caprices of the Assessment Officers who would be sent out for the purpose of assessing the income.

Take for instance, the method in which the amount of produce is to be determined with regard to a particular land. The other day, Sir, I got an answer with reference to my question which I put to the Hon'ble Minister or Agriculture as to the method which he employed in determining the amount of produce with reference to particular areas in the four districts, namely, Bankura, Birbhum, Midnapore and Burdwan with which I am closely connected. The answer which I got was disappointing, and I think it was disappointing to the members of the House also. He said that with reference to particular classes of lands he cannot say what the produce is estimated to be. The produce is estimated by ascertaining roughly two or three fields and by striking out an average. That is taken as the average of the whole district or the whole area. Now, Sir, I say from my personal experience in the district of Birbhum that they have ascertained 15 maunds per acre as the produce of all classes of land within the district. I enquired from the cultivators and other persons and came to know—and I also know from my own personal experience—that this is too high an estimate which Government have made with regard to agricultural produce. If this is one when you go to ascertain the produce of an assessee, what will happen? You should imagine the difficulties of the assessee as to how he will prove that the produce is so much. This matter has got to be considered and provided for somewhere in the Act, so that rules may be made accordingly. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister has stated that it is equitable to impose tax on the agriculturists. If he wants to do equity, let him treat all individuals as equals. Let him give equal treatment to all and the same kind of relief to everyone especially in a fiscal legislation like this, and not tax people who are already over-burdened and who cannot bear any further burden of tax. With these few words, I move my motion for reference of the Bill to a committee of the whole Chamber.

MR. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, be referred to a committee of the whole Chamber.

MR. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: Sir, we on this side of the House are supporting the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill as a necessary and, subject to one or two points, equitable measure. Necessary, because it gives Government some share in improvements which Government are able to make by means of capital works, such as irrigation, improved transports and markets; and equitable, subject to one or two points, because it has been drawn up on the lines of the Indian Income-tax Act and other similar taxation measures. The points which we regard as somewhat inequitable are: firstly, the method of calculating refunds to shareholders and to partners of firms and members of Associations. In such cases, the refund is based on the total world income of the individual so that whereas in general the assesses under this Act are only liable to pay a rate which is laid down in the Schedule, persons who derive their income from the medium of firms and other association of individuals suffer tax by reference to their total world income.

There is to my mind clearly inequity there, and the Finance Minister will have to consider whether it is not an inequity which will involve avoidance of the tax—an inequity which will involve people in taking steps to see that they do not have to pay the tax at a higher rate than is intended to be assessed. The second point is one which has caused a good deal of discussion and that is section 49. Section 49 is only permissive and we would like to have seen it made incumbent on the Government to give relief in all the cases where there is double taxation. I would have preferred to defer my remarks on the detailed working of this section, because the subject is exceedingly complicated, until we come to take up the clause-by-clause consideration. But so much has been said about this, and as doubtless the Opposition at least will have amendments to consider, that I feel that I shall have to say a word or two. In the first place, it is not correct to say that this section exempts anybody from the tax, least of all the European tea companies. The allegation that the European tea companies are exempted under this section was made by two Opposition members yesterday and refuted by a third Opposition member today. Mr. Mukherjee very carefully explained just how the European tea companies have not been exempted at all—and not only that, Mr. Mukherjee also explained that no European company would get any benefit from the Bengal Government at all unless the rate of tax in the United Kingdom went down to as low a level as six shillings in the £. Now, six shillings in the £, as far as I remember, was the maximum to which the income-tax rose in England during the last war, and to the best of my recollection six shillings remained the rate for a good number of years after it. This war is not finished yet and the rate is now 10s. in the £ and how much longer this rate is going to remain at its present incidence, namely, 10s. in the £, one cannot say. And I submit that the possibility of this rate of tax coming down to a level where in respect of European tea companies this section would have effect is very remote indeed on Mr. Mukherjee's own showing. Let me repeat that I was glad to have Mr. Mukherjee's very lucid explanation of the way the section works and how the European tea companies are not exempted from this Bengal Agricultural Income-tax under that section. I might say that this section does not only mention the United Kingdom but it also mentions other territories as well, namely, provinces and Indian States. In point of fact, I have not studied the laws of all the Indian States, but I do know the laws of some of them and it comes to my mind that Cochin where the rate of tax is 24 pies per rupee and super-tax also 12 pies per rupee, that is 36 pies per rupee, is a state which will be affected rightaway by the provisions of this section. A resident in Cochin, if he has land in Bengal, will be taxed in Cochin on his world income. He will also have to pay the tax in respect of land in Bengal under the new Bill and he will have occasion, not a European tea company, to ask for other relief under this Act. In fact, if I may say so, owing to the fact that the rates of tax generally are not so high in this part of the world, the section is really more liberal to Indians and residents of India than to the people living in the United Kingdom. It is a point which perhaps the Opposition have overlooked. Sir, we will go into greater detail when the time comes. Another point raised by Mr. Mukherjee is very interesting, namely, when he drew an analogy between the income of landlords and that of other industrial concerns; but I submit there is no analogy at all here. Double income-tax relief only arises in connection with taxes on income which are levied by the country where the income accrues and also in some other country. Land revenue is not of that nature and land revenue is paid once and that is all. You cannot pay your land revenue twice because the United Kingdom Government cannot realise land revenue from you for land in Bengal. In that respect, if I may respectfully say so, the analogy is entirely ill-drawn. We consider that the measure had obviously been well-considered before it came to this House. We have gone through it and it seems to us that, subject to certain inequities that I have mentioned, there is nothing in the measure which calls for consideration by a Select Committee and I submit that this House in the capacity of a revisionary body may take the Bill into consideration right away.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, Mr. Landlaw has called this Bill inequitable from the point of view of the shareholders of Tea Companies. I say this Bill is four times more inequitable from the point of view of the middle-class landholders. It is too late in the day to lay before the House facts and figures relating to the precarious position of the middle-class people who own and depend on land for living. It is too late because it has been discussed in the Lower House from many points of view and my pleading will be of little avail. But I may say this that thousands of families in the mofussil will be hard hit as a result of this measure. Revenue Enquiry Committees including the Flood Commission have given facts about land-owners of this class and we do know that a large number of families in Bengal whose estates include small taluks and gautis—they will be the biggest sufferers. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister in his Statement of Objects and Reasons has said that the measure is equitable. It would have been certainly an equitable business if the small land-holders affected by this measure had increased incomes as a result of the war condition. But it is not so. On the contrary, the small land-owning classes of Bengal, the middle-class bhadralogs, and their joint families have had no increase of their income from rental on account of the war. They have to depend on fixed land income. It is true that some of the arrears of rent are being collected from *raiya*s owing to high prices of grain but these arrears are being spent for payment of debts incurred for meeting the high cost of living during the war period. Their expenditures on account of war have shot up.

Sir, the high prices of foodstuffs, cloths, articles for daily use have affected them to the extent, according to the "cost of living index," of 250 per cent.; but I should say at least to 200 per cent. or twice the pre-war levels and the Hon'ble the Finance Minister says, "Oh, this is a most equitable measure because it touches that class of people who will not feel the burden of this tax." I say that thousands of families will be victims of this tax as they will not be able to pay 1 anna to 2 annas in the rupee on Rs. 3,500 to Rs. 5,000 or more of agricultural income. Most of the tax, I fear, would be spent in meeting salaries, allowances and travelling expenses of new sets of Government servants. I know of Government servants getting a salary of Rs. 100 spending as much as Rs. 10 on cigarettes alone. They will have nothing to do with this tax. What class is most seriously affected by this measure? It is the small land-owning class, viz., gantidar, pattanidar, talukdar, and bargadar. Mr. Laidlaw was pleading for the tea companies. But what is the financial position of the tea companies? If we watch the share-market, we will find that tea shares are booming. Original shares of Rs. 100 are being sold for Rs. 600 and even Rs. 800, because there is a tremendous demand for tea for military consumption. Many tea companies in the Dooars with capital of over Rs. 2 lakhs were able to declare dividend at the rate of 50, 60 and even 75 per cent. Our colleague, Mr. Nimmo, a Tea Magnate, sitting on my left, should confirm my statement. There is a big rush for tea shares ignoring enemy penetration in Assam. It is not so with the jute mill and the shares of other industrial concerns hard hit by shortage of coal.

There has been a big demand for tea for the last 3 or 4 years. I had been to the Jhannah Coalfields last week and there I found that even the aborigines were taking tea in gruelling hot weather. I may say that in ten years from now the whole of Indian population will be tea-drinkers and Soviet Russia will resume tea drinking. So this pleading of Mr. Laidlaw for concession to tea companies on the plea of double tax or so does not cut much ice. I say that, if this Bill is referred to a committee of the whole Chamber, there would be fresh reflections, there would be fresh figures and facts before us and then we would be able to ascertain how many thousands of families with fixed incomes of Rs. 3,500 and above from agriculture would be affected by this Bill and what concessions can we afford because they are to bear the burden of land revenue as well as this income-tax. It is a real double tax.

It is true, as Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee has said, that there are some zemindars who are extravagant living very luxurious lives. We all know that. We also know that it is due to these much-maligned zamindars that there are so many schools in the villages in the mufassil and so many stipends and scholarships. We all know that it is the zemindars who have established many charitable dispensaries. It is due to them that there are so many temples and places of worship. It is the zemindars again who financed and even pioneered the national movement, the Swadeshi agitation since the days of the Bengal partition, just as the Bombay mill-owners financed the Gandhi liberation movement. I do not know the number of zemindars whose income is more than Rs. 5,000, but I know that there are many big zamindars who are heavily indebted. But, of late, they have become prudent and have seen their follies and before long they would be able to adjust themselves to the condition created by the world war. To them this new income-tax will be a fresh burden but they can bear it to some extent but not so their brethren—the small land-holders.

It is, therefore, no use abusing the zemindars or denouncing the Permanent Settlement. Then again, the question is that Government want this money for its rehabilitation and reconstruction programme. The tax will be spent on Government establishment, on salaries, on emoluments and on allowances of Government servants, some of whom can afford to buy petrol for their motor cars at the rate of Rs. 6 a gallon from the black market. If you happen to go to the Lake, you will find that nine out of ten people who park their cars are either war-profiteers or Central and Provincial Government Officers. Therefore, I hope that if this Bill is referred to a committee of the whole Chamber, fresh facts and figures will be forthcoming for the modification of the Bill, which is going to affect thousands of families who constitute the backbone of the patriotic middle-class of our society, ready and willing to suffer any hardships for the benefit of the rising Indian Nationhood.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Sir, it is difficult to conceive of any taxation measure, however just and fair it may be, which would not evoke protests from certain classes. But so far as this particular measure is concerned, I think that the objections raised have not much force. Perhaps, it will be interesting for the House to know that the first Income-tax Act was introduced in India after the Sepoy Mutiny of 1857-58, i.e., in the year 1860. The income-tax is perhaps the most equitable taxation, because it is a tax on the profits, and a tax which a man is able to pay. In the beginning, taxes were imposed on everybody and did not exclude the agriculturists. Some people may think that the Agricultural Income-tax Bill is entirely a new measure. But as I have just said that it is not so, because the first Income-tax Act did not exclude the agricultural income from the operation of its provision. That Act lasted for 4 or 5 years and was abolished in the year 1865. The next Act was introduced in the year 1869 which also lasted for 5 years. This Act also did not exclude the agricultural income. Then came the Bill of 1886 which has become a permanent measure and for the first time that year the agricultural income was excluded from the operation of the Act. All these years the zemindars have enjoyed freedom from taxation on their income. As I submitted before, the income-tax is a taxation on the income. There seems to be no justification why every other trade or business should be taxed, while a man who receives unearned profit, namely, a zemindar, should be excluded from taxation. I believe in 1886 also the objection was raised, just as Mr. Mukherjee has made today, that income-tax cannot be imposed because under the Permanent Settlement Regulations the zemindars are not to have any taxation imposed upon their income —

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I did not say that income-tax cannot be imposed on the zemindars.

But the landlords of that time had more influence in the Council and, therefore, their objection prevailed. Since then all these years the zemindars have been enjoying their rents without any further taxation and are not paying to the exchequer of the State anything except Government revenue which was assessed under the Permanent Settlement of 1793. Mr. Mukherjee has said that clause 49 of this Bill should also apply to them, and they should not be required to pay double tax. While he was saying so, I said that it was wrong analogy and I still hold to my view that land revenue is no tax at all. As any student of the revenue system of the country knows that the zemindars did not purchase the lands; they were simply tahsildars who were given certain allowances for collecting revenue from raiyats and paying them into the public Exchequer at a remuneration of ten or fifteen per cent., or rather 10 per cent. Since then this ten per cent. has increased by 400 times while the Government revenue that was settled during the time of the Permanent Settlement remains the same, namely, about 3 crores. The total collections realised by the zemindars from the tenants now amount to 13 crores, so that all these 10 crores are appropriated by the zemindars without paying any other tax to the Exchequer at all. Therefore, it is not right to say that if tea companies or tea-planters or other companies are assessed twice, the zemindars should also be exempted from payment of this tax. The analogy does not hold at all. As a matter of fact, the main recommendation of the Floud Commission was not the introduction of an agricultural income-tax, but that all this unearned income should go to the State by the purchase of zemindaries. But since—as the report says—this will take at least 30 years to accomplish,—and the rate at which our Government is going on in this matter, which I say does not satisfy us at all, they will probably take centuries,—the recommendation was to have some income out of it in the shape of agricultural income-tax. Yesterday I think a reference was made by Mr. Mukherjee to the recommendation made by the Floud Commission that the income from this tax should be ear-marked solely for the improvement of agriculture. I know that because I was a signatory to that Report. That recommendation came at a time when the present situation in the country did not arise. This income—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Why not express all these views before a committee of the whole Chamber?

Mr. PRESIDENT: There should not be any direct conversation. Mr. Das.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: This income should now go to the Government, to the country. I may explain why this agricultural income-tax need not be entirely applied to the improvement of agriculture at this stage. That point has lost its importance. After all, what are we going to get as a result of this measure? Bihar, as you know, has got Rs. 17 lakhs and Assam Rs. 27 lakhs from similar tax. The most you can expect to get is Rs. 50 lakhs (Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It is much more than that. We expect about a crore.) Whatever it may be, it would be from 50 to 80 lakhs. But the Agriculture Minister has got in his pockets two crores of rupees for the improvement of agriculture. Of course, in normal times if this income-tax still exists after the war, then this amount should certainly be ear-marked for agriculture. Now, Sir, coming to section 49 which it was difficult for me to understand until I heard the explanation from Mr. Mukherjee for which I am grateful, it seems to me that the real objection is on the other side. It is not fair that the tea garden or any other firm should be exempted. All incomes derived in Bengal should be taxed and the proceeds should remain in Bengal. Why should there be double payment? If the income of the tea garden is derived here, the income-tax should also be paid here and in no other place. So it is not the question of double payment but it is the question of single payment in the province itself. There is another criticism with regard to the assessment of tea gardens. There is a provision in the Bill that the valuation for the purpose of agricultural income should be taken to be the valuation which has been made by the Central Income-tax Officer. There are two stages one is growing of tea leaves and another is the manufacture of tea. Formerly the tea gardens claimed exemption from the payment of the Central income-tax, because they contended that their income was derived from the cultivation of tea. Subsequently, there was a sort of compromise, I believe, but I am not quite sure. 40 per cent. of the total income was taken for the manufacture of tea and assessed to income-tax and 60 per cent. was exempted as Agricultural income. And the remaining 60 per cent. we are now proposing to assess as agricultural income-tax. My suggestion is that the method of assessment as is provided in the Act is not fair to Bengal, because the income-tax officer will naturally be more anxious for the Central revenue and reduce the proportion of profit from the growth of leaf and increase that from the manufacture of tea. For instance, if a tea garden's profit is Rs. 4 lakhs, Rs. 2½ lakhs is from the growing of leaves and Rs. 1½ lakhs from the manufacture of tea. But the income-tax officer will reverse the profit and say that profit from leaves is Rs. 1 lakh and profit from manufacture of tea is Rs. 3 lakhs. So, Bengal will lose.

As regards the motion that the Bill should be sent to a Select Committee, we oppose it. After all, these are minor matters and can be considered by the Hon'ble Minister himself. We do not want that this measure should be delayed any longer.

As for Mr. K. C. Roy Chowdhury's complaint, it is very difficult to keep one's temper in trying to answer his objection. I will better leave it at that. These points have been discussed threadbare on many occasions. If he reads the Floud Commission's Report, he will find the answer. Mr. Das has said that the middle-class people have been hard hit. There also I cannot agree with him. After all, as the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has pointed out, men whose gross income is Rs. 7,000 have not been touched. I ask Mr. Das how many of the middle-class people have got an income of Rs. 7,500. I have not got that income. As regards people with higher income, I think they have been hit very lightly. If I had power, I would enhance the rate of assessment a little more. In thin connection, I may submit to the Hon'ble the Finance Minister that the definition of agricultural income, as has been given in clause 2, is rather vague and complicated. The reasons for these complications are probably due to an attempt to bring this Bill into line with the Income-tax Bill. Agricultural income has been defined as: (a) any rent or revenue derived from land which is used for agricultural purposes, (b) agricultural income by actual cultivation, (c) selling the produce in the market, and (d) the income of a man who sells the produce in the market. All these are complications simply to barass the people without any benefit to Government. Take the example of sugar-cane. The man who grows sugar-cane is a separate class by himself. If he crushes the cane and converts it into gur, and in most cases the same man does grow cane and crush it into gur, then he is liable to pay tax separately. Then he takes gur to the market. All these are complications and if possible should be removed from the Bill. This not only applies to sugar-cane but it also applies to the threshing of paddy. Mr. Lalit Chandra Das may have a threshing floor and I may take my paddy there for threshing. Any one who has got experience of village life knows that there is no income from threshing floor.

Then there is another item, viz., income from buildings of a person who owns lands or who has got agricultural lands round about. As for myself, in my village home I have got a house where I live and where I have got barga lands round about. But is it possible to have income from the house? All these are unnecessary details. With these few words, I support the Bill and I do not support the reference of it to a committee of the whole Chamber.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOUDHURY: Sir, first I must say that I am opposed to the motion of Mr. Mukherjee, principally because this measure has received sufficient consideration in its progress in the Lower House, and from our point of view no improvement seems to be necessary in the Bill except that certain rates of taxation might possibly be increased and the exemption level might be lowered. But it is not possible for the time being. In the first instance, the principle of imposing a tax on agricultural income should be accepted and the legislative measure dealing with it should be passed through this House. For any alterations in its provisions we should wait till the next year. Therefore, at this stage, I would have preferred making the Schedule an annual affair, so that every year while the operative part of it would remain as a permanent statutory provision the rates should be annually fixed according to the needs of the province as well as of the revenue position. The objection that is being raised and has been raised by Mr. Mukherjee is to the effect that the particular tax recommended by the Flood Commission should be devoted to the improvement of agriculture and that the Government will always see how far and to what extent the revenue derived from agricultural income-tax has been devoted to the general improvement of the agriculturists. Therefore, Sir, I would be personally very much in favour of making the Schedule an annual affair for the purpose of increasing and decreasing the rates of tax received from this source. But this can be done in the House by amendments. Khan Bahadur Sahib has already answered to a great extent the contention of Mr. Mukherji that there is going to be double taxation on the same income in the case of the zemindars. In 1886, an amendment income-tax bill was passed whereby an express provision was made to exclude agricultural income; but that was the sequel to a judicial decision. The Permanent Settlement having fixed the liability of a landlord towards the State, it could not, according to that decision, be increased or affected in any way. But it is a moot question as to whether this view would hold good today having regard to the fact that the Provincial Legislature has now been empowered to impose tax in respect of what has been dealt with in the Permanent Settlement Regulations.

The history of the land revenue settlement in India has been examined by different interested parties threadbare for this purpose, but certain facts cannot be got over. We have to go back to the practice which obtained during the time of the Moghul Emperors and even during the regime of the Hindu Kings before them. Whenever they had granted any right to a particular person to collect rent, they had always reserved to themselves the right to grant permits or sanads, as they used to be called. These sanads used to give particular persons the right to collect rent on behalf of the Crown from the tillers of the soil. Therefore, the very fact that permission had to be granted or lease or settlements had to be taken from a person higher in authority for collecting rent showed that the ownership was never recognised as being vested in the person in whose favour the sanad was granted. Therefore, the highest that was ever said on behalf of the landlords was that they had a certain interest in the land; that is not denied; but they had not the whole of the interest in the land. It was divided, strictly speaking, into three parts. The supreme authority in the State, had a share in the land and this share was taken by both the Hindu Kings and the Moghul Emperors as a portion varying from four annas in the rupee to three annas in the rupee, from the cultivators' produce. This share was finally fixed by Raja Todar Mall under Emperor Akbar. The Moghul Emperors, the Moghul State, accepted that rate as their share of the profits in the land and the other share was given to the man who used to collect the amount on behalf of the Crown. Therefore, if anybody had primarily a share in the profits from the land, it was the Emperor, because he could in the last resort over-ride everybody's share in it and the whole land could be transferred to another party if a person did not pay up his stipulated share. That is to say, if X did not pay to the Emperor his share in the profits from the land, the land given to X could be transferred to Y. Therefore, primarily the State claimed to be the supreme owner of land, subject to certain conditions. And the land revenue is only a share of the interest which the State has in the land and not a tax upon income. This income is an individual's own property, which he has earned by his own exertions alone. Let us, first of all, conceive that income as the man's own income and that nobody has got a share in it and that he is the rightful and legitimate owner of it. But as ordered progress in a State demands funds, therefore the State has got the right to demand some portion of this man's income for the maintenance of the State's functions. That is a tax. But here the State says: here is my property; whoever likes may come forward and collect rents from it and give me a certain share of the profits from this land. That is not a tax but land revenue. I may sum up by saying that where the paramount authority in the State farms out certain lands in consideration of a certain share of the collections, that is land revenue; but tax is a charge on income which belongs to an individual wholly and solely and that is reflected only in the contribution of the individual to the State for the purpose of carrying on its own functions.

Therefore, there is no double taxation here and no complaint can be made that because some other interests which are paying income-tax—tax to other bodies will be given some relief on certain calculations, therefore no relief is being given to the landlords who thus are being made to pay a double tax.

I am afraid, I have not been able to finish the point regarding the sum to be ear-marked for a particular purpose. It has been said that the Floud Commission recommended the ear-marking of the sum for agriculture. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister has said that it is bad finance. Well, bad finance in the sense that it is bad accounting, because it presupposes that a particular amount of money has to be kept for a particular item of expenditure. That will be a complicated work for those who will deal with the finances. The other way is there that you can create a special fund. You can create a Statutory fund by this very Act the proceeds of which shall go to a particular fund,—fund which could be spent for a particular purpose, as you have got in the Famine Relief Act. There, you cannot spend the fund for any other purpose, you cannot touch that fund for any other item of expenditure except for famine relief. But the question is: once you start ear-marking funds in this way, where do you stop? Taxes may have to be imposed on different interests; but if every such tax has to be ear-marked for being spent for that very interest from which the tax is realised, it will greatly complicate matters. This sort of compartments, if created in the general system of taxation, will be detrimental to the interest of the Province as a whole. So long as the popular Government or in other words the Government of the people is working; that sort of suspicion or demand is wholly uncalled for. The Ministry which does not carry popular support cannot assume office. Therefore, the Ministry which has the popular support behind it must look to the interest of the Province generally. The mere fact that Mr. Lalit Chandra Das is opposing the measure—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Don't assume argument where there is no argument, only for your own delectation.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: I do not say that there should not be opposition. There should always be Opposition, because Opposition keeps the Ministry on the right track. So long as minority and majority parties subsist and so long as there is healthy criticism, it will be greatly beneficial to the country and no one should have any objection to that. I should say that the Opposition is entitled to make criticisms and even if there is unreasonable criticism, I do not object to it. But the Opposition should always carry in their mind that they are the alternative Government—that whatsoever they say today they will have to fulfil tomorrow. So long as they have that sense of responsibility in their mind, their utterances cannot go out of reasonable bounds.

Sir, Mr. Majumdar has already said that the bulk of this tax will come from the pockets of the Muhammadans. It is true that a large section of the Muhammadan cultivators in certain areas are very well-to-do and they will come within the ambit of this tax. But fortunately the representatives of our community are in a position to induce their constituencies to sacrifice some portion of their income. Therefore, we on this side of the House will not approach the question from merely a sectional or communal stand-point when the nation demands sacrifice from us. It is a happy sign that Muhammadan zemindars, however much in high position they might be, always support such measures. Some of the hardest hit Muhammadan zemindars may come forward to oppose this measure but that is purely on political grounds. Mr. Majumdar's arguments, I shall not impute any other motive, are illegitimate. However, we are confident and we are proud of the position that the Muhammadan zamindars have come forward to make sacrifice. (Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: Wait one year and let the tax-collector collect rents on this account.)

As regards the question whether this is an unfair tax, I may say that it is not; and as for the time whether this is the opportune moment for imposing this tax, I would say that this is the opportune moment. On account of this war a very rich class has been created. (Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But they will not be touched.) Now, Sir, side by side with the rich people, the poor people are dying for want of food. As regards the capacity of the cultivators to pay the tax, I may submit that their capacity has increased four times than what it was before the war and we have spread the net to catch a big portion of what he has derived from his income. I may again say that really needy classes have not been hard hit. We are going to tax the people who have done their very best during the crisis.

Secondly, Sir, on the question of inflation also, the surplus money is there in the hands of the cultivators and persons other than cultivators. No way has been found as to how this surplus money may be tapped to augment the revenues of the State. The only way was to tax or borrow. Borrowing is going on. This war is one in which, contrary to what happened during the last war, the war finances have been organised entirely by inflation. The Government of India has not borrowed extensively in the manner in which it ought to have borrowed. Therefore, they have accepted the policy of inflation. This has created a very serious situation, and everyone, rich and poor, is being hard hit. This measure, if it does affect even in a small way this inflation problem, will be beneficial ultimately for the whole of the Province. Sir, the receipts from this tax, as has been shown, will not be large. According to certain calculation it will not be above 30 lakhs of rupees or it may be 70 lakhs of rupees at the highest. But I am not particularly concerned with what it will be this year. What I am concerned with is the acceptance of this principle of taxation which is a right beginning. Once we have had it accepted, it will not be difficult for us to see that the proper rate and proper level are fixed from the next financial year, so that we can have at least one crore of rupees out of this tax. The Province has got a huge deficit and is faced with a tremendous problem. But what are our financial possibilities? Our source of taxation is very limited and one of the big resources for taxation is the agricultural income-tax; the other one has already been passed, viz., the Sales Tax. The next is the tax on buildings, because the urban people have not been touched at all, and they are the people who can pay most and who have also benefited most during this war. Tax upon buildings will give rise to a certain amount of opposition, because the well-to-do classes among the Hindus have always raised a hue and cry whenever they are called upon to contribute towards social reform.

So far as jute is concerned, there is a tax and that tax is entirely being devoted towards the improvement of agriculture. With these few words, Sir, I oppose the motion of Mr. Mukherjee and support the motion for consideration of this Bill.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, with your permission, I rise to oppose the motion of Mr. Mukherjee for referring the Bill to a committee of the whole Chamber. Firstly, I find that the motion is incomplete. In this motion there is no date by which that committee has to submit its report. This is a most important thing which has been omitted. Also there is no provision in the motion as regards how many members will be required to form a quorum. I find that the honourable mover has laid stress in his speech on section 49, but it appeared that he groped in the dark. He has made a good deal of confusion as regards the implication of the section. But, Sir, on going through that section I find that it is as clear as anything.

On these grounds, this Bill should not be referred to a committee of the whole House. There is another reason why this motion should be opposed. Now that this Bill has been brought before the House for consideration, every member of the House has got his right to suggest any amendment and those amendments can be considered. So there is no necessity of referring the Bill to a committee of the whole House, and I support the motion for consideration of the Bill on the floor of the House. Sir, various objections have been raised by members on the other side. The honourable member who has just sat down and Khan Bahadur Abdul Momin, who is an expert in this matter and was a member of the Floud Commission, have ably refuted those charges. I would like only very briefly to refer to some of those charges; firstly, as regards the inequity of the tax. Much has been written and much valuable literature has grown up as regards the efficacy and wisdom of the Permanent Settlement introduced by Lord Cornwallis in 1793. There are two different views. One view is that Lord Cornwallis by this Permanent Settlement created a new class of zemindars having some sort of proprietary right in the land which was unique in the history of India, against the considered opinion of Sir John Shore and Sir Thomas Munroe who were of the opinion that by Permanent Settlement not only would the interests of the raiyats be sacrificed but the interests of the province also would be sacrificed. But Lord Cornwallis with his one predilection for the English system of landlordism introduced that system here. There were other reasons which induced him to make this Settlement. At that time under section 39 of the Act of 1784, a survey was made of the total land area in Bengal. The total land area in Bengal was then estimated to be 56,700,000 acres, of which 53,000,000 acres were liable to assessment. Out of this, only 11,500,000 acres produced paddy at the time. The produce of paddy per acre was estimated to be 13 maunds and the price of the produce at the rate of eight annas per maund was estimated to be Rs. 6-8 per acre. The price of the total outturn was estimated to be Rs. 7,48,00,000.

As the raiyats used to pay one-third, the zemindars' income was estimated to be Rs. 2,49 lakhs a year. 10/11ths of this 2 lakhs used to be Government revenue. At that time, Sylhet was included in subah Bengal. The first assessment of cess was made in 1871. Assessment made for it showed that the income of 2,48 lakhs was increased to 7,77 lakhs. In 1931, the gross rental of 7,77 lakhs swelled to 16,34 lakhs. Thus, comparing the income of this gross rental of three years, it appears that in 1793 it was 2,39 lakhs, in 1870 it was 7,77 lakhs and in 1931 it was 16,34 lakhs excluding the Government revenue of Rs. 2,16 lakhs. In 1931 it was 3,03 lakhs and the cess of 24 lakhs in 1932 and 1 lakh in 1931, the net income of the zemindars was Rs. 23 lakhs in 1793 when the Permanent Settlement was made; but it was increased to 5,37 lakhs in 1871 and it was further increased to 12,18 lakhs in 1931. In 1931 the revenue was increased to 303 lakhs owing to assessment made of land. During the first 80 years of the Permanent Settlement, the zemindars' income increased 23 times. During the following years it increased 204 times. Now, comparing the income of the zemindar in the light of the increased prices of goods, it appears that the increase of the prices of goods is 2.3 times as compared with 1793. So it appears that by this Permanent Settlement the zemindars were greatly benefited. It is an increase from 23 lakhs to 16,80 lakhs. In view of this, Commission after Commission suggested two solutions: one is the imposition of agricultural income-tax and the other is the abolition of the zemindari system.

The Taxation Enquiry Committee, the Flood Commission and the Statutory Committee in 1930 recommended that this tax should be imposed and the amount thus collected, according to the estimate of the Statutory Commission, would bring about Rs. 5 crores. The Permanent Settlement was introduced in Bengal, Orissa and Bihar and in some parts of Madras. If we compare the position of Madras, Bombay, and U. P. with that of Bengal, we find that Bengal's revenue receipt is the lowest in India. Due to this fact some suggest that the zemindari system should be abolished. The ex-Editor of The Statesman, Sir Alfred Watson, after inspecting the devastation of the last famine expressed his definite opinion that the famine was due to the Permanent Settlement. According to some, there is a loss of income to the Government of Bengal due to this Permanent Settlement to the tune of Rs. 5 to 7 crores and according to some to the extent of Rs. 35 crores. There are different assumptions given by different experts on this matter. Individually speaking, I must say that this measure introduced by the Government is only half-hearted. It does not go to the root of the evil. It will bring only Rs. 60 lakhs or a little more and that would be quite inadequate for improving irrigation, illiteracy, medical relief. On this ground, I cannot whole-heartedly support this measure. I would have been glad if the Government would have brought a measure which would go to the root of the Permanent Settlement and place Bengal's case on a firm footing. It has been said by the Taxation Enquiry Committee and many other committees that taxation hits the poor more than the rich. The poor contributes Rs. 150 crores by way of taxation while the rich pays only Rs. 111 crores.

As regards the justification of the imposition of this tax, I do not think there can be any objection. This tax would bring only a small amount to the public exchequer.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of order, Sir. The motion is whether the Bill should be referred to a select committee of the whole House. The honourable member is dealing with the history of the whole situation.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Previous speakers also dwelt on the history of the whole situation and I gave a little latitude over this matter.

The House stands adjourned till 1-30 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 42.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building Calcutta, on Thursday, the 25th May, 1944, at 1-30 p.m., being the forty second day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Need of a dispensary at Shankarpur.

170. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR (on behalf of Mr. K. G. Roy Chowdhury): (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the villagers of the Chandibarpur, Singa and Durgapur Union Boards sent a petition to him through the Subdivisional Officer, Narail (Jessore), in June, 1942, praying for a permanent dispensary to be opened at Shankarpur out of the Village Reconstruction Fund?

(b) Is it a fact that death rates are far higher than birth rates in the Chandibarpur Union Board?

(c) Is it a fact that there has been recently an outbreak of malaria and kala-azar in the Chandibarpur Union Board?

(d) If the reply to parts (a) to (c) be in the affirmative, will the Hon'ble Minister please state what steps he has hitherto taken or proposes to take to meet the needs of the people there?

(e) Is he aware that the District Board of Jessore has hitherto rendered no medical and other help to the people of the said Union Board?

(f) Will the Hon'ble Minister please state what are the birth and death rates of the Chandibarpur Union Board for 1940, 1941 and 1942, respectively?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): (a) No.

(d) The honourable member is referred to the answer given to clause (d) of question No. 37 delivered on the floor of this House on the 2nd March, 1943.

Regarding the establishment of a charitable dispensary at Shankarpur, the local officers do not support the idea as another dispensary exists within a mile from that village.

The following quantities of quinine have been supplied to the district up to date:—

Quinine sulphate—For sale 2,111 lbs.

For free distribution 358 lbs.

Cinchona febrifuge—Free 763 lbs.

Besides, a kala-azar grant of Rs.1,000 has also been made.

Government arranged for satellite treatment centres to be opened from District Board dispensaries and for quinine and cinchona to be distributed free on a wide scale.

(c) No.

Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHOWDHURY: With reference to (b), is it not a fact that a large stock of rice was kept exposed in the Botanical Gardens for months?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Everybody could have seen that stocks of rice were placed in the Botanical Gardens but they were not exposed: they were covered by tarpaulins.

Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHOWDHURY: With reference to (d), who is this expert?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I believe he is a gentleman who works under Messrs. Shaw Wallace & Co., who has been kind enough to give a report on any rice that we may send him for inspection and report.

Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHOWDHURY: What is his qualification?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: He is a rice expert.

Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHOWDHURY: Why is this duty not given to a Board of experts?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Well, we did not think it necessary to appoint a Board for the purpose of inspecting and reporting on rice, which is quite an easy job.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Questions over.

Adjournment Motion.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I have an adjournment motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes; please state how it is a matter of urgent public importance. But you need not read the motion.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, on account of the entry of Japan into the war—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, you must satisfy me on one point, namely, that it is a matter which falls within the responsibility of the Provincial Government.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, it is a matter of urgent public importance and it concerns the Government of Bengal, because as a result of the ordinance promulgated 20,000 dealers will be out of employment—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But it is a Central Government order.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, my motion will strengthen the hands of the Government of Bengal to impress on the Central Government—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But you cannot move the motion unless it is in conformity with the rules.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, it is practically a subject-matter which falls within the purview of the Government of Bengal and if the Government of Bengal had impressed upon the Government of India—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But it must be a definite matter of urgent public importance.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I submit that it is a definite matter of urgent public importance, and I shall prove it—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But the point is that the matter should come within the sphere of the responsibility of the Provincial Government. If an order is passed by the Central Government, the Government of Bengal cannot be held responsible for it.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Yes, Sir, it has everything to do with this Government. Because it shows that by this order, in Bengal practically many old dealers will have to close their shops—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But how do you shift the responsibility for that on to the Provincial Government?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: With regard to that, Sir, I may say that the Government of Bengal have failed to impress on the Government of India the seriousness of the situation created by this ordinance. Let them prove by making a statement that it is not their responsibility.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, the responsibility of proving it is on you.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, my submission is that if the Government of Bengal had properly placed the matter before the Central Government, the ordinance would have been amended.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But why do you assume that the Government of Bengal have failed to do it.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: May I not ask for this information and for a statement, for it is very urgent and it will cause unemployment in this difficult time in Bengal?

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is a different matter altogether. If you want information from the Government of Bengal, you can put a short-notice question or you can request the Hon'ble Minister in charge to make a statement. But I refuse my consent to the adjournment motion.

Point of Information regarding "Bhog" Ration.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, regarding Bhog ration, I am very fortunate today as we find the Hon'ble the Civil Supply Minister in our midst. The Parliamentary Secretary promised also that today final decision about this vexed question will be announced.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, the file about Bhog is now before me but it is in a confused state. There are a number of recommendations by most respectable Hindu gentlemen regarding the quantity of ration that should be given and the parties to whom it should be given. It is necessary, Sir, that I should examine them rather meticulously. I want to see one or two points more carefully. I hoped that I would be able to place the matter before the House yesterday but in view of the confused condition of the file, I could not do it. I think I shall be able to place my decision before the House on Monday next. (Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: If there is no sitting of the House on Monday, what then?) Well, later on.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister consider the necessity of passing an order to this effect now. We do not mind whether he brings his decision to the notice of the House or not. He might very well publish his decision in the Press, so that the Hindus may get the ration forthwith for the deities. We are not anxious to know the decision here in this House. We want that this decision should be published in the Press so that the Hindu public may get their ration for the deities forthwith.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, I note the observations of the honourable member.

Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House will now take up the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, as passed by the Assembly. The motion of Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukharji that the Bill be referred to a committee of the whole House is now under discussion.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Mr. President, Sir, yesterday when the House adjourned, I was quoting figures in support of my contention that the provisions of the Bill do not go far enough to bring all the money that is slipping away from the Government of Bengal year by year, although this money is urgently needed for the agricultural improvement and other nation-building departments of Bengal. Similar Bills were enacted in Bihar in 1938 and in Assam in 1939. In Bihar the income from the agricultural income-tax on an average is Rs. 17 lakhs a year; in Assam on an average the income is Rs. 27 lakhs. The estimate of the Statutory Commission was Rs. 5 crores. That was also the idea of the Taxation Committee. The present Bill does not go far enough. As I said in the very beginning, personally speaking, I cannot accord my full support to this Bill. This is a halting measure half-way measure and that is why it will not be so beneficial.

It has been said that it will affect a large number of middle-class people. I have great doubt about that; but there are some provisions in the Bill which, it appears to me, may affect some middle-class people with a limited income.

Sir, the number of middle-class people who hold lands in Chittagong is the largest. The provisions in the Bill, as they stand now, may affect a large number of tenure-holders in Chittagong and other districts of Bengal. Sir, it is apparent that the Bill will be enforced during this war time. It is an admitted fact that incomes from lands have increased owing to the high price of agricultural produce and owing to inflation and bloated money market. Now, if assessment is made on the present bloated income of a land-holder and if his income is reduced after the war, he will be very hard hit on account of this tax. Our experience is that once an assessee, he will continue to be an assessee, and it will be very difficult for him to get exemption from the assessors appointed by Government. In this respect, I must make my humble appeal to Government that this question of assessment should be reviewed after the war, so that the middle-class people who now will come within the purview of this Bill may not be affected when their income will be reduced after the war. This is one of the most important considerations which led me to think that the rate of income on which assessment would be made should have been raised to Rs. 5,000, as has been done in the case of Bihar and also in the Travancore State. Only Assam is an exception, but it appears that in Assam the receipt is very small.

There is a large variation in the rate. The rate of revenue is only 9 annas in a permanently-settled area, 13 annas in a temporary-settled estate and Rs. 2 in the case of an estate under direct management. The whole question should have been reviewed from that point of view, so that justice might be done on a new plan and those who live on lands might not be affected and Government might get additional income. With these few words, I accord my qualified support to this Bill.

MR. MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH: Mr. President, Sir, after the speeches of so many veterans belonging to different parties, a speech from 'the babe of the House' would seem to be absolutely superfluous. But I feel that I would be failing in my duty if I do not speak a few words. We know, as has been pointed out by our leader Khan Bahadur M. A. Momin, that there are defects in this Bill. Even then we cannot accept the amendment to refer it to a committee of the whole House or to any select committee. Our position is absolutely clear: We apprehend that through these amendment attempts are being made to sabotage the Bill altogether.

Look at the very first amendment that was sought to be moved by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. He wanted that the consideration of the Bill should be refused altogether. When he failed in his tactics, amendments came for circulation and reference to a committee of the whole House. The right of members to move amendments to refer Bills to select committees has, of late, been so much misused in our province that we are very much afraid of this sort of amendments. So we are in favour of considering all sorts of amendments without referring the Bill to a committee of the whole House or to select committees. Of late, we Bengalees have developed a peculiar mentality. We feel that we have been suffering from cancer. But when the physician advises operation, we find fault with him and avoid treatment with this excuse or that. More than a quarter of a century back, we realised that the Secondary education system of our province was absolutely rotten. But we refused consideration of Secondary Education Bill many times and are not prepared to change the system even in 1944. We felt long ago that through the Meston Award and other arrangements the Central Government delivered many a heavy blow to the financial strength of Bengal. But when the proposal came to separate Bengal from the Centre we did not like the idea. We all admit that whatever might have been the justification for the Permanent Settlement in 1793, it is no longer suitable to the conditions of the present time and that the zemindary system had developed so many defects that it had ceased to serve any national interest. But when the proposal comes for the abolition of the Permanent Settlement and the zemindary system we oppose it tooth and nail. Similarly, we all admit that in proportion to the expanding needs of Bengal's vast population, the revenue available for our province is glaringly inadequate. But when our Finance Minister comes with a specific remedy, viz., the Agricultural Income-tax Bill, we want to shelve it. The Agricultural Income-tax Bill that is being discussed today is not a new measure in India. The Indian Taxation Enquiry Committee recommended that agricultural income should not be exempted from taxation. As we all know, the Congress Governments were very shy to go against the interest of landholders. They, Sir, did not dare to consider the proposal for the abolition of Permanent Settlement even in the United Provinces where only ten per cent. of the province is under Permanent Settlement. But even Congress Governments had to impose a tax on agricultural income in Bihar and elsewhere.

Now, Sir, let us come to the present Bill. Our friends opposite shed tears—I think crocodile tears—for the hungry millions who suffered during the crisis period of last year and requested the Hon'ble Finance Minister not to resort to further taxation. This is, to say the least, very interesting. Knowing full well that this Bill will not touch any one whose net income is less than Rs. 3,500, we wonder how they mention about the destitutes. Are we to understand that those who died of hunger had an income of Rs. 3,500 or those who have got an income of Rs. 3,500 are destitutes?

Four years back the Floud Commission warned us in unequivocal terms. They said: "the present system cannot remain unaltered. In fact, if the present conditions continue, it may not be too much to say that the system will break down of its own accord." The Commission apprehended that there would be opposition against their scheme of State acquisition. So they preferred an agricultural income-tax to be imposed as a transition measure, until the scheme of State acquisition was affected or as a permanent measure if the Government considered that State acquisition should not be undertaken for financial or other reasons.

Now world forces are moving too fast and our social structure is "breaking down of its own accord". We congratulate the Hon'ble the Finance Minister because he has understood the implications of the crisis and has brought this Bill which will work as a safety valve for our society.

Sir, I quite appreciate the arguments put forward by the Maharajadhiraja of Burdwan and S. Brojendra Kishore Roy Chowdhury as members of the Floud Commission when they say that change in the land laws "would accelerate the pace of Communism and will be fraught with grave consequences". I can also follow the arguments of Sir Nalini Ranjan Chatterjee or Dr. Radha Kumud Mukerji when they say that our society should be divided into classes—day-labourer, tenant-at-will, small tenant, large tenant and, over the head of all, there should be an agricultural aristocracy and an educated agricultural middle-class. Sir Nalini Ranjan is very sincere when he says that Brahmins owing to religious prohibition and other bhadrals in this country on social grounds cannot plough with their own hands. But they must possess vast tracts of land for the good of our society. But, Sir, my intelligence fails when an Agricultural Income-tax Bill like the present one is opposed in the name of hungry millions.

Sir, Mr. Haridas Mazumdar has appealed to Muslim members not to support this Bill because this will hit the Muslim landholders also. I am really surprised how the leader of the Nationalist Party could appeal to our communal sentiment to enlist our support against a Bill which is national every inch of it and which has been moved by a gentleman who is known throughout the country as a great nationalist leader. I can frankly request Mr. Mazumdar not to poke his nose about our interest. For his information I can tell him that in Islam the King himself or any other head of the State has been deprived of the ownership of land. The Quoran has given the name of "Malik-ul-Mulk" to God and has declared repeatedly that every place, that is every millionth part of an inch of land belongs to God. It says "Lahul Mulk—His is all Kingdom. لَهُ مَا فِي السَّمَوَاتِ "Whatever is in Heaven and in Earth belongs to God."

The Prophet further declared: "All land is of God, the creatures are the creatures of God. Who so quickens a dead land is best entitled to it. Who so quickens a dead land is His, there is no right of expropriation against him." According to Islam, land of God should be distributed according to need. Human being, whether king or subject, is only a trustee. Islam does not recognise class or caste—there is no Brahmin or Scheduled Caste here. Quoran says: "Oh mankind, surely we have created you of a male and female and your families and tribes so that you may know one another. Surely, the most honourable of you with Allah is he who exceeds most in good work and piety." XIII: 49. Poet Iqbal says: "Chiste Quoran? Khajara Paigame Marg Dastagire Bandae, Be saj o barg." "What is Quoran? It is a death-knell for the rich; and for those without any means, it is a Protector."

Sir, I can assure my friends that when time will come for a change and real social reconstruction, they will not find us wanting. Already Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Muazzamuddin Hosain and Khan Bahadur, M. A. Momin by signing the Floud Commission Report and Sir Nazimuddin by accepting the principle underlying it have signed their death sentence willingly. I am extremely glad to note that great Hindus like yourself, the Hon'ble P. C. Goswami, and many others are prepared for any sacrifice for the good of the masses. Appointment of the Floud Commission by you and Agricultural Income-tax Bill moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Goswami are proof positive for my statement. It seems our British friends also, of late especially after their friendship with Soviet Russia, have changed their attitude and are objectively playing the revolutionary role, if not subjectively. I appeal to the members opposite to give up all angularities and support measures for the amelioration of the masses. I request them to read the writings on the wall and help us in bringing about a New Order in our Motherland.

With these words, I oppose the amendment to refer the Bill to a Committee of the whole House.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, first of all, I shall take up the least controversial point raised in the debate. I heard yesterday my honourable friend Mr. K. C. Roy Chowdhury adjuring me not to slaughter a hundred thousand middle-class families! My answer to him is a very simple one. I do not think that the total number of assesses under this Bill will be anything more than 3,000 to 4,000, according to my calculation.

The most controversial subject was raised by my honourable friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee. He reminded me that I described this Bill as a technical Bill, —a highly technical Bill— and that the particular clause in the Bill—clause 49 is capable of misapprehension. I do not remember, Sir, if I used the words "capable of misapprehension". But now, after hearing him, I do agree that it is capable of misapprehension by gentlemen who do not apply their minds adequately to this somewhat intricate problem. May I, Sir, with your permission, explain the problem of double taxation and its relation to the present Bill? I was, indeed, glad to see my honourable friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee making a serious effort to understand it. He brought with him books which looked very ponderous from this distance. He even quoted section 27 of the United Kingdom Finance Act. But I am afraid, when towards the end of his speech he confused the problem of double taxation with the question of the equity of imposing an agricultural income-tax in spite of the fact that there is already a provision for the payment of land-revenue, I thought that, as in Shakespeare's "Tempest," "the latter part of Gonzalo's Commonwealth forgot the beginning". Sir, permit me to attempt in my own way to explain the question of double taxation. The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill does not propose to tax companies as such. It takes the agricultural income of shareholders earned through companies, and the method of collection adopted is: deduction at the maximum rate at the time of distribution of the dividend,—a shareholder being free to apply for refund if the rate applicable to him is less than the maximum at which the tax has been deducted. A company pays no tax on its own account but pays on behalf of its shareholders, and the tax is deducted from their respective dividends. I may add that the tax paid in respect of the undistributed dividend cannot be recouped from anybody.

Unlike our Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill which proposes to tax incomes arising within the borders of Bengal, the United Kingdom Act taxes not only incomes arising within the borders of the United Kingdom, but also incomes earned by British residents wherever in the world they may have arisen, so that it is the United Kingdom which is a double-taxing country. This double basis of taxation in the United Kingdom necessarily leads to the double taxation in the case of some British residents. In respect of those cases of double taxation in which the income is taxed once by foreign country outside the British Empire and then again by the United Kingdom Government, no relief is granted by the United Kingdom Treasury and the British residents in such cases have to bear the double burden. In respect of those cases of double taxation, however, in which the income is assessed in a country within the British Empire and is once taxed there and then again by the Government of the United Kingdom, there is provision for relief, embodied in section 27 of the United Kingdom Finance Act of 1920. According to that provision of law in the United Kingdom, if a British resident can prove that he has paid income-tax to a country within the British Empire and has again paid a tax on the same income to the Government of the United Kingdom, he is entitled to a refund from the United Kingdom Treasury, calculated at a rate of the Dominion tax, subject however to a maximum of half the United Kingdom rate. Thus, as long as the Dominion rate is half or less than half the United Kingdom rate, the British resident earning an income in any country within the Empire has not to bear the burden of the Dominion income-tax. It is borne by the United Kingdom or, in other words, by the British tax-payer in the United Kingdom. Sir, I cannot imagine any Englishman in this House or outside looking forward to a date in the near future when the rates of income-tax in the United Kingdom will come down to anything so low as double the modest rates prescribed in this Bill. In the United Kingdom, therefore, the individual is relieved of the burden by the law in force there; and for this arrangement surely Bengal need not cavil for Bengal loses nothing thereby. I may also say that as a matter of policy—this of course is a digression—the United States of America take upon themselves the whole burden of double taxation of their nationals earning incomes abroad; but this, as I said, is a matter of policy. To the extent, therefore, that the United Kingdom Treasury agrees to afford relief to British residents, we have no reason to complain.

I shall now refer to the original clause 48 in the Bill, as published in the Gazette. It will be noticed that that clause has not been embodied in the Bill as it has come from the Assembly and is now before this House. My own view and the view of the Assembly was that a clause like the original clause 48 would have been really inequitable. That has to be differentiated from the present permissive clause, namely, clause 49. The Government of Bengal may in justice object to taking upon themselves a portion of the burden of the British residents, that is to say, the portion of the burden which the British Treasury has agreed to take upon itself. Why should a burden which is legitimately, or I should rather say lawfully, placed on British residents earning an income in Bengal be removed and distributed among the tax-payers in Bengal in general? While the United States Government bear the whole of the burden placed on their residents abroad, the United Kingdom Government bear only a portion and expect the Dominions to bear the rest. In this particular case of the original clause 48, the United Kingdom Government have not asked the Government of Bengal to bear a portion of the burden. The Government of Bengal have adopted only the origin basis of taxation, and if, therefore, there is any double taxation of British residents, it is the United Kingdom Government who are responsible for it on account of their double basis of taxation. Further, it is agreed amongst all experts on Public Finance that, in schemes of relief for double taxation, a tax on income derived from land should go fully to the country in which the land is situated. I may quote here from a report of four International experts who submitted a report on double taxation to the League of Nations, in which they summed up the case in the following words: "Summing up these four considerations, we are led to the conclusion that, inasmuch as the second and third elements in economic allegiance strongly reinforce the first (namely, origin), domicile should play only a slight role as compared with origin. Most countries as, a matter of fact, allow it to play no role at all". These are the words of economic experts. Therefore, I may say that that provision was rightly deleted.

But the question of clause 49 is to be differentiated from the original clause 48 which, as I have already pointed out, has been deleted. It is merely a permissive clause and authorises Government to adopt any step by way of relief from double taxation as and when necessary. Such action will almost invariably be taken after negotiation and for the purpose of protecting the interests of our own nationals. It is necessary that there should exist in law such a permissive provision, so that Government may take action in the national interest in case the necessity for such action arises in future. There is no commitment involved in the clause. It simply empowers Government to protect the interests of our people according to the needs of time. This really is the correct view of the position. If ever in future—and it must be a very distant future—British rates of taxation come down to double the rates fixed in this Bill—which I think is almost unlikely—then it will be open to the Government of Bengal to negotiate for reciprocal relief and such negotiation for reciprocal relief would naturally involve the question of quid pro quo. It is, I repeat, merely a permissive clause and I think it is technically appropriate that it should find a place in an Agricultural Income-tax Bill. I may point out that there is a similar provision in the Indian Income-tax Act, namely, section 49(a). If honourable members care to verify this, it is open to them to get a copy of the Indian Income-tax Act and do so. It is mainly for this technical reason that we accepted the amendment in the Lower House and had it embodied in the Bill.

I think, Sir, that was the main controversy in the discussions yesterday and the day before and I hope that after the explanation I have given, it will no more be said that we have spared the shareholders of European tea-companies a penny of the tax that is due from them. I say this most emphatically and I hope that honourable members will disabuse their minds of that idea.

As regards the motion for committing the Bill to a Committee of the whole House, I may say that this House is a small one and is composed of eminent men—jurists, lawyers and professors—and I think we can go on with the discussion of the clauses on the floor of the House in a proper atmosphere and I do not think there is any necessity for committing the Bill to a Committee of the whole House. So I hope the honourable members opposite will not press for it.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I would like to say a few words.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You cannot say anything further. You have no right of reply.

Order, order. The question before the House is: that the Bill be referred to a Committee of the whole Chamber.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move that the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of—

- (1) The Hon'ble Mr. Tulsi Chandra Goswami, Minister in charge of Finance Department,
- (2) Mr. W. B. G. Laidlaw,
- (3) Mr. Shrish Chandra Chakraverti,
- (4) Mr. Lalit Chandra Das,
- (5) Mr. Nur Ahmed,
- (6) Mr. Khorshed Alam Chowdhury,
- (7) Mr. Sultanuddin Ahmed,
- (8) Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury,
- (9) Khan Bahadur M. Abdul Momin, C.I.E.,
- (10) Mr. Biren Roy, and
- (11) the mover,

with instructions to submit their report by the 31st July, 1944, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a quorum shall be four.

Sir, it may be asked why after having been defeated on my motions for circulation and for committing the Bill to a Committee of the whole House I am trying once again to have the Bill referred to a Select Committee. When I moved my motion for circulation of the Bill, I could clearly see that there was no reaction either from the European Group or from any other member of the Government side. I found, however, to my great surprise when I moved my motion for referring the matter to a Committee of the whole Chamber, that I succeeded in drawing out some members from the European Group and also some members from the Government benches to speak on the motion. I was exceedingly sorry when I heard Mr. Laidlaw saying that the only inequitable provision he could find in the Bill was with reference to the question of refund of income-taxes paid on behalf of the shareholders of a company. I thought that Mr. Laidlaw would widen his scope of enquiry beyond his own sphere of activities and would also consider the question of the other citizens in the midst of whom he lives and moves. I do not suggest here that when Mr. Laidlaw was speaking on behalf of the shareholders, he was speaking only on behalf of the Europeans.

I do not think Mr. Roy Chowdhury was right when he spoke regarding the attitude of Mr. Laidlaw with reference to the shareholders. As a matter of fact, I know that so far as the shareholders are concerned there are both Indians and Europeans. There are many limited companies which derive income from lands and then divide the profits among themselves. There are, similarly, Indian zemindars, Bengali zemindars deriving income from lands by this method. So Mr. Laidlaw should have gone deeper into the question and considered whether there were not inequitable provisions affecting persons in other spheres as well. Then again, Khan Bahadur M. A. Momin referred to the defects in section 49 and said that those defects should be removed. His plea was that there should be no relief and all the income which any individual—whether he is a Bengali or a European or of any other nationality—may derive from his land in Bengal should be subject to taxation here in Bengal. The Hon'ble Minister, although he fought shy of the books I brought, referred in the course of his speech today to those sections which I had quoted and which but for the books I could not have clearly explained for the elucidation of the honourable members of this House.

Now, Sir, I would like to know whether the Hon'ble Minister has succeeded in removing the misapprehension, which he admitted he had not clarified in his opening speech. I do not know whether he exactly used the words "misapprehension" in his opening speech, but in his reply he admitted that there was room for misapprehension which ought to be removed. I am sorry to say that in trying to remove the misapprehension he has succeeded in making his case worse. He has accused me of confusing the issue of double-taxation dealt with in clause 49 and in going to clear up that confusion he said that no special relief was provided for any one under the provision of that section. But he had to change his opinion in the same breath and say that the English tax-payer or a British tax-payer will get the entire relief from the British Exchequer, because at present the tax which he has to pay in the United Kingdom is more than double the tax which is levied in Bengal and that Bengal will not suffer in any manner. I am sorry to say that the Hon'ble Minister has not been able to remove the misapprehension as to why then clause 49 was inserted at all. I would again ask him: if there was no likelihood of any occasion to apply the principles as embodied in section 49 of the Bill, why is he so anxious to incorporate it in the Statute in spite of the protest of the Opposition members? If it is the case of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister that for a considerable time to come there will be no occasion for any application of section 49, then I say let him come out straight and have the courage to admit that this clause be deleted altogether from the Bill for the present, and that it would be re-inserted when occasion arises. Why introduce this vague clause by which the Provincial Government retains to itself a power to make by notification in the Official Gazette the provision for granting relief without mentioning the nature of the relief? In this connection, I may say that the provision as contained in the original section 48 was rather better than the provision which has been incorporated in section 49. There, we had something definite, but here we are absolutely in the dark. What the Provincial Government would do is left to their sweet will and pleasure. As a matter of fact, I illustrated my objection to this section by referring to a particular question yesterday, but I have not had my reply to that. In connection with my motion for referring the Bill to a Committee of the whole Chamber, this much was clear that I got the opinion of some members of the Government that there were some clauses which required to be considered and the only thing which is necessary at the present stage to clear up is: whether there should be a Select Committee or the matter should be further discussed in this House when the clauses are to be considered, as has been suggested by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister. Sir, during the last few days while we were considering the various other Bills, I expressed my views that we have had bitter experience when we come to consider any Bill, clause by clause.

The other day when I spoke out that the Government members think that a comma or a semicolon should not be removed from the Government Bills, Khan Bahadur Momin protested against that remark of mine and stated, "Well, did not we accept the amendments of the Opposition in respect of the Bengal Land Alienation Bill?" I admit that some changes were introduced at the instance of the Opposition. But that was a Bill which was introduced for the first time in this House and it had to go to the Lower House; this is why the Government members agreed to the changes put forward by the Opposition. This Bill comes to us from the Lower House and if any change is accepted, it will have to go back again to the Lower House,—a contingency which the Government are not prepared to face with equanimity—and therefore it may be that the Government should intend that the Bill should be passed as it is without any change anywhere in the Bill. It is for the purpose of guarding against that attitude of the Government that I am placing my motion for referring the Bill to a Select Committee. In the Select Committee we can discuss the pros and cons of all the sections; and if any change is found necessary, we will make suitable changes. This procedure would ultimately lead to considerable saving of time by obviating the need for moving a large number of amendments which would otherwise be moved by the Opposition members. As a matter of fact, Sir, this House has got to exercise its function of reviewing a Bill, especially an important fiscal Bill like the Agricultural Income-tax Bill which will saddle the people with a fresh burden at a time when they are hardly able to meet both ends. Therefore, it is necessary that the matter should be considered in the cool atmosphere of a Select Committee where we can informally and dispassionately discuss the sections and consider what changes should be made in the Bill.

Now, Sir, in connection with my motion for referring the Bill to a Committee of the whole House I referred to some sections and now in connection with my motion for referring the Bill to a Select Committee I will refer to some other sections of the Bill.

I will now take up one very inequitable provision which I think has been incorporated in the Schedule to the Bill and that is with regard to the tax to be paid by the members of a Hindu undivided family. If we look to Schedule A, we find the following provision with regard to the payment of tax by the Hindu undivided family:—In the case of every individual, Hindu undivided family or Ruler of an Indian State, the tax is proposed to be levied in a certain manner. Then, if we look to clause 2 of Schedule A, in the case of a Hindu undivided family which consists of brothers only, there is a separate provision. Now, Sir, what is the rate in this case? If the share of a brother is Rs. 3,500 or less, then the tax will be four pies in the rupee. What is objected to here is that in the case of a Hindu undivided family consisting of members other than brothers only, the rate is levied at one rate, namely, 9 pies in the rupee on an income of Rs. 3,500; but in the case of a Hindu undivided family which consists of brothers only, the tax is four pies in the rupee. Now, suppose there are four brothers in a Hindu undivided family having an income of Rs. 14,000. Each of them therefore gets an income of Rs. 3,500 and the rate that is proposed in this case is four pies in the rupee, without any initial deduction of Rs. 1,500; that is what I think the schedule proposes. In the case of a Hindu undivided family consisting of brothers only there is evidently no relief with regard to the initial income of Rs. 1,500; and in addition he is made to pay a tax which is greater than in the case of a Hindu undivided family which does not consist of brothers only. If the share of a brother exceeds Rs. 3,500, the average rate applicable to the share of such brother is to be assessed if he were assessed as an individual.

With regard to this provision I beg to submit that if it is allowed to stand, what will happen is this: All members of Hindu undivided families will disintegrate and the effect of this will be the abolition of the joint family system; that will be the effect of the two separate provisions in this Schedule.

With regard to definitions, the definition of a Hindu undivided family has been qualified and I do not know why; this requires elucidation. In the definition clause, namely, in clause 2, sub-clause 8, it is explained that Hindu undivided family means a Hindu undivided family governed by the Mitakshara Law. Therefore, in Schedule (A), Hindu undivided family includes families governed by the Mitakshara Law. There is no provision anywhere and I do not know whether this was intentional or accidental. I think the Hon'ble the Finance Minister knows that there are Hindu undivided families governed by Dayabhag. Then there is another thing. No definition has been given of the term "Person"; but in sub-clause 9 of clause 2 it is said, "person" includes a Hindu undivided family, a firm, a company and the Ruler of an Indian State. I do not know what is intended, so far as the members of Hindu undivided families governed by Dayabhag are concerned. Are they included in sub-clause 2 of Schedule (A)? But I think there also it will not include undivided families governed by Dayabhag school of law. It is limited to members governed by Mitakshara school of Hindu law. Therefore, possibly all Hindus governed by Dayabhag school of Hindu law are classed as individuals, whether they are members of undivided families or not. I think that matter should be clearly stated if the reference to them was accidentally omitted. In this way, I can refer to several other instances but I do not want to take up the time of the House. These reasons will apply with greater force here for referring the Bill to a Select Committee.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of—

- (1) The Hon'ble Mr. Tulsi Chandra Goswami, Minister in charge of the Finance Department,
- (2) Mr. W. B. G. Laidlaw,
- (3) Mr. Shrish Chandra Chakraverti,
- (4) Mr. Lalit Chandra Das,
- (5) Mr. Nur Ahmed,
- (6) Mr. Khorshed Alam Chowdhury,
- (7) Mr. Sultanuddin Ahmed,
- (8) Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury,

- (9) Khan Bahadur M. Abdul Momin, C.I.E.,
- (10) Mr. Biren Roy, and
- (11) the mover,

with instructions to submit their report by the 31st July, 1944, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a quorum shall be four.

Mr. BIRENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOWDHURY: Mr. President, Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee. Sir, the object of this amendment is not to delay the passage of this taxation measure. His object is the perfectly legitimate one of giving this Chamber an opportunity of going threadbare into the provisions of the Bill which, if passed, will undermine the interest of one class of His Majesty's subjects. If this Chamber has any utility in the mechanism of the governance of this province, it can be satisfactorily proved only in the case of a measure like this. The Lower House representing the general mass of the people is not likely to pay due attention to a Bill which affects vitally only those who have large agricultural interests. Consequently, Sir, it does not stand to reason that simply because the Bill has been examined by a Select Committee of the Lower House, it should be taken up clause by clause in this Chamber without going through the intervening committee stage.

The bulk of the income which the Bill is intended to raise will be derived from the rent-receivers in this province. But, Sir, the position of this class has been made very uncertain by the steps which have already been taken and by the announcement which has already been made by the Government. It is not --

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: On a point of order, Sir. Sir, may I suggest that all the Select Committee motions be first put and then the discussion may follow?

Mr. PRESIDENT: But there are different dates given by different persons.

Mr. BIRENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOWDHURY: It is not unlikely that after the war, Permanent Settlement will be abolished and the rent-receiving rights of the zemindars and talukdars will be acquired by the Government on the basis of some compensation. In view of this fact, it seems to be an act of grave injustice that the income of this class should now be lowered by the imposition of a tax like this and the possibility of a fair compensation undermined thereby. While I am not definitely against an Agricultural Income-tax in all circumstances, I do not think it is equitable to impose it before the question of Permanent Settlement is decided, one way or the other.

There are also many other features and provisions of the Bill which I do not like and which can be discussed dispassionately and fruitfully only by a select committee.

With these few words, Sir, I support the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I need not take much time of the House but I intend to take up one or two clauses about which honourable members have their doubts. For instance, the question of the Hindu undivided family. Although this is not the proper occasion to discuss the matter fully, yet I may point out that after examining the two systems of Dayabhog and Mitakshara the Government have taken to this Mitakshara system. In the case of the Dayabhog Hindu undivided family, the share of each individual is determined and determinable at any time. I think I need not explain its implications more fully at this stage but when the matter comes up before the House in the course of the discussion of the clauses, I shall give a fuller explanation of the system. I do not think there are very many matters about which there are doubts in the honourable members' minds and I am afraid, I shall have to hasten the progress of the Bill. Frankly speaking, that is the reason why I oppose the motion for referring the Bill to a Select Committee.

Mr. PRESIDENT: There are three other motions on this subject. I shall ask the honourable members to move their motions and speak on them and then I shall ask the Hon'ble Minister to give a joint reply to all the motions.

Mr. Haridas Mazumdar.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I beg to move that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of

- (1) The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA Goswami, Minister-in-charge of the Finance Department,
- (2) Mr. Lalit Chandra Das,
- (3) Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta,
- (4) Mr. W. B. G. Laidlaw,
- (5) Mr. Humayun Kabir,
- (6) Mr. Nur Ahmed,
- (7) Khan Sahib Nurul Amin,
- (8) Khan Bahadur M. Abdul Momin, C.I.E.,
- (9) Rai Bahadur Radhica Bhusan Roy,
- (10) Mr. Biren Roy, and
- (11) the mover,

with instructions to submit their report by the 31st July, 1944, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a quorum shall be four.

Sir, the moving of this motion is more or less academic. I consider it almost like crying in the wilderness, as my friend has already said that even a comma or a semicolon will not be changed. I have said it on another occasion that the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has not the authority to do so.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I never said that I objected to changing a comma or a semicolon. I never said that.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: You cannot do so, I know. But it is practically wasting the valuable time of the House. Still I shall try to reply to some of the remarks made by the Hon'ble Finance Minister. As regards his remark "bad finance", it implies that practically the Floud Commission Report has been flouted. The language of their recommendation was so clear that it required little understanding to see that the word "solely" therein means ear-marking. If the Government propose to spend the proceeds of this tax for the benefit of lands in Bengal, why do not they have the courage to say that the amount would be ear-marked so that it can be ear-marked. But you say that it is bad finance. I remember the story of a rich man. I will narrate it briefly. The Manager of the rich man approached the proprietor and said, "Sir, the rent of this house should be ear-marked for the payment of tax and this income of your zemindari should be ear-marked for the payment of revenue". The rich man said, "Why, I cannot allow that. If every pice is spent for paying tax and revenue, I shall have to borrow. How can I meet my club bills? No, this cannot be." This is the case with our Government. They have to meet their club bills. They have to meet the expenditure of their huge establishments. I think that at least a major portion of the amount that will be realised from this source will be spent for the purpose of realising it and the little that will be left will go towards increment of salaries or for some other purpose and not a penny will go to the benefit of the lands. This is why the theory of bad finance has been trotted out. They fear that if they ear-mark the proceeds of the tax for the benefit of the lands, their own expenditure will have to be curtailed. For the benefit and welfare of the country and the nation-building departments if this sort of fund is created, a good deal of benefit can come to the country, but they don't care to do so. We have repeated this argument ad nauseam and I do not like to go into it again, for it is no use doing so.

As regards the policy of the Ministry too, I do not like to waste the time of the House in referring to it, for whatever we may say is not likely to change the mind of the Ministry in any way. In the Select Committee the provisions of the Bill may be examined thoroughly and closely. On the floor of the House many important amendments cannot be considered dispassionately as the atmosphere which obtains here is far too rigid and formal. So in the interest of the Bill itself, I say that it should be sent to a Select Committee where its provisions can be carefully examined. With these words, I commend my motion to the acceptance of the House, though I know very well that it will be rejected.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Alhadj Khan Bahadur Shaikh Muhammad Jan.

Alhadj Khan Bahadur Shaikh MUHAMMAD JAN: Sir, I beg to move—

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, the Khan Bahadur's motion is out of order, because it does not provide for representation of sufficient members from our group.

Alhadj Khan Bahadur Shaikh MUHAMMAD JAN: What is it, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: The point is that you have not provided in your Select Committee motion sufficient number of members from the League party.

Alhadj Khan Bahadur Shaikh MUHAMMAD JAN: I do not know, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Your motion is, therefore, out of order, and cannot be moved.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, in view of the fact that two motions have already been moved for referring the Bill to a Select Committee, I do not propose to motion my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Very well. Motion moved: that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of—

- (1) The Hon'ble Mr. Tulsi Chandra Goswami, Minister in charge of Finance Department,
- (2) Mr. Lalit Chandra Das,
- (3) Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta,
- (4) Mr. W. B. G. Laidlaw,
- (5) Mr. Humayun Kabir,
- (6) Mr. Nur Ahmed,
- (7) Khan Sahib Nurul Amin,
- (8) Khan Bahadur M. Abdul Momin, C.I.E.,
- (9) Rai Bahadur Radhica Bhusan Roy,
- (10) Mr. Biren Roy, and
- (11) the mover,

with instruction to submit their report by the 31st July, 1944, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a quorum shall be four.

Alhadj Khan Bahadur Shaikh MUHAMMAD JAN: Mr. President, Sir, I rise to support the motion moved by my friend Mr. Haridas Mazumdar. I may say at the outset that I am not opposed to the principle underlying this taxation measure. But the manner in which it is being rushed through in this House and the scant attention paid by the Government to the suggestions made by members of the Opposition strike me as being very objectionable. Even the simple amendment that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee is perhaps not going to be accepted by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister. I understand that the Hon'ble the Finance Minister wanted to proceed with discussion of the Bill, clause by clause, in this House; but it is very difficult to discuss it clause by clause in this House in the same way as it could be discussed in a Select Committee across the table. I may add that I am always in favour of new taxation because unless those who have sufficient surplus money are compelled to give their share in the shape of taxation to the Provincial Exchequer, no improvement in the condition of the masses of the province, economically, educationally or even morally, is possible. We have been working the Provincial Autonomy for a long time—for the last seven years and it is surprising that our Ministers, our leaders, could not bring in such a Bill earlier. It is generally said that the system of Permanent Settlement is responsible for the present economic condition of this province; but in my opinion the representatives of the people in the Provincial Legislature are responsible for this state of affairs. They do not care for the masses—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Sahib, the subject is whether the Bill should be referred to a Select Committee. So, please confine your remarks to that.

Alhadj Khan Bahadur Shaikh MUHAMMAD JAN: Sir, I am coming to that. What I wanted to say is that the present deplorable economic condition of the province is due to the callousness of our leaders for the last 20 or 30 years. Party frictions are rampant and nepotism is the order of the day. There is no end of placating the Satellites and henchmen of the Party in power in the shape of appointments to their friends and relations to the different posts which have been newly-created. Many new avenues are being created daily for the benefit of their own supporters. However, the measure which they have brought is a very useful one and I entirely support it; but I think Government would have done well to refer the Bill to a Select Committee of the Upper House so that the same might be discussed there threadbare and many improvements which are lacking at present may be usefully introduced.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Mr. President, Sir, I would like at the outset to congratulate my honourable friend Mr. Muhammad Habibullah on the able maiden speech which he has made in this House. He referred to himself as the baby of the House. My only comment is: if he really is a baby, he is an enfant terrible. From his very birth, he is throwing his arms and legs violently and with his very first blow hitting even the veterans on my left. Every member of this House should be afraid of the peregrinations of this enfant terrible because he hits indiscriminately. I would refer his remarks specially to my honourable friends opposite. In his very first speech, he says that he is not going to be content to hit the Opposition only. He gives indications that he would reserve at least some of his blows for those who are at the moment sitting with him in friendly comradeship. He says that when the occasion comes, he will not distinguish between those who sit with him and the members opposite but would always fight for the cause of, what he was pleased to call, the revolutionary and the progressive forces of the country. I hope that when that occasion comes, he will not belie his words and will keep to the promise he has made. I would also like to watch some of the nurses who have ushered this enfant terrible into existence. Socrates once said that he was the midwife of Truth and the midwife of Truth was always an unwelcome person. He always brought about results which nobody expected! I do not know if my honourable friends who sponsored him would find themselves in the same position! In any case, I congratulate Mr. Habibullah on his able maiden speech. I hope he will always contribute to the debate in this House and try to maintain a detached and impartial point of view in any question which might come up before the House.

Before I proceed to discuss some of the statements which he has made, before I pass on to some of the actual points which he has set forth, I would refer to one of his remarks which was a little unkind. He referred to my honourable friend on the left and said that Mr. Mazumdar had no right to speak on behalf of the Muslims and that he did not know the questions which affect the Muslims. I must say that Mr. Habibullah has perhaps forgotten his electorate. Like Mr. Mazumdar, he is a representative of a joint electorate, whether he likes it or not. My honourable friend opposite has been sent to this House by the joint votes of the members of different communities. If I am not mistaken, a big slice in his vote came not only from the Hindus but also, I believe, from my friends on the left who have come from very far away. Similarly, my friend on my left has been returned to this House by the joint votes of the Assembly. He is one who represents all the communities, and therefore, I think he is entitled to speak on questions which affect the interest of Bengal as a whole.

Now I come to some of the statements which Mr. Habibullah has made. I welcome his assertion that he is for the abolition of the Permanent Settlement, and I think, Sir, this is a question on which we on this side of the House and especially the Party which I have the honour to represent in this House have always made our position perfectly clear. I was rather astonished to hear my honourable friend opposite saying that Sir Nazimuddin had accepted the recommendations of the Flood Commission. This certainly is news to me. What we have, on the other hand, known and what every member of this House also knows is that the last Government which was functioning did make a declaration on the 16th March, 1943. The Government then stated that they accepted the principle of the recommendation of the Flood Commission, that they would give immediate effect to this recommendation and that as a preliminary step they were going to apply these recommendations to one particular district of Bengal, namely, Faridpur—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, I would request you to confine yourself to the motion before the House.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, since the question we are discussing is the agricultural income-tax, the question of Permanent Settlement will naturally come up. I am not opposed to the Bill myself. My honourable friends have seen that so long as the discussion was with regard to the circulation of the Bill or its reference to a committee of the whole House, I took no part in the deliberations. This was because I accepted the general principle of the Bill. But I do not think that the Bill is a proper measure as a substitute to the abolition of the Permanent Settlement. Sir, has this Bill been introduced by the present Government in order to shelve the abolition of the Permanent Settlement? There was some reference to that even in the speech of my honourable friend Mr. Habibullah Chowdhury. He stated that the Flood Commission recommended the abolition of the Permanent Settlement and as a temporary measure they also recommended the introduction of agricultural income-tax. If the Government thought that there would be too much objection to the abolition of the Permanent Settlement, then the Commission suggested that the agricultural income-tax might be converted into a permanent tax. If this is the real position, I am opposed to the Bill. It is because I am not satisfied that this Government is serious about the abolition of the Permanent Settlement; it is because they have not given effect to the promises and declarations which were made on the floor of the Legislature that immediate effect will be given to the recommendations of the Flood Commission by abolishing the Permanent Settlement at least in one district of Bengal, preliminary to its extension in all other districts, it is because the Government have not done that and because they have brought this Bill instead, that it becomes necessary to consider the attitude of the present Government and the attitude of the past Government with regard to the Permanent Settlement. I am forced to make this remark—

Mr. KADER BAKSH: On a point of order, Sir. Is the honourable member entitled to deal with the activities of the past and the present Government in connection with a motion like this?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir has made it sufficiently clear why he wants to explain his attitude with regard to the principle underlying the Bill.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I am very thankful to you, Sir, for the clarity with which you have exposed the mist sought to be raised by some of my friends opposite. I shall not be disturbed by the running comments of my honourable friend. I know very well that it is his business to go on making such running comments, for he has no argument to offer in opposition to what I am saying. If he had anything to say against my speech he would have waited till I finished and made his remarks thereafter. He is not prepared to do so but will go on making such running comments, because he knows that such running comments would not be taken seriously but might succeed in diverting my attention and I might lose the thread of my argument. But, Sir, I would like to convey to him through you that however much he may go on making running comments, they will not be able to divert me from the point that I am going to make.

As I have said at the outset, I am not in favour of any motion for circulation, nor even of the motion for sending the Bill to a Committee of the whole House. My honourable friend who came very late in the House did not know that the House was in possession of the motion for referring the Bill to a Committee of the whole House today. I was here and if I wanted to make any observations on the question, I was perfectly within my rights to do so. The very fact that even though I was here I did not take part in the discussion is evidence that on that question I did not want to make any comments.

So far as the general principle of the Bill is concerned, I will go with the Government to say that such a Bill is necessary. It is also equitable, because if all other persons who derive their income from their own labours through the exercise of their skill in a profession or in any other manner—if they have to pay a tax on whatever they earn, there is no reason why persons who derive their income from possession of land or simply from the inherited right which they have obtained from their forefathers, should not be compelled to pay a certain proportion of their income to the Provincial Exchequer for the general good. I also agree with Khan Bahadur Muhammad Jan that taxation as such is not undesirable. Taxation is, after all, an instrument through which the State re-distributes income. Very often it equalises in this way those inequalities which obtain in society between one member and another. Therefore, taxation, if properly utilised, serves a definite social object. On the one hand, it brings wealth and money from quarters where it cannot be properly used; and on the other, Government, if it is wise, can employ the resources so derived for social service to the community. The different nation-building services may be enhanced. From that point of view, taxation measures very often serve to provide social utilities to the large and poorer section of the community. That section is not able to pay for such services, like education, health, communications, social insurance, health insurance, unemployment insurance and the like. These services can be assured to the community at large only if the total obtainable income of the community can be taxed by the State and thereafter re-distributed between different members on an equitable basis. Therefore, taxation measures as such need not be opposed. The question which we have to consider is: whether this particular taxation measure is proper and desirable. What is the purpose of this particular taxation measure? As I stated before, my main objection to the Bill is that it seeks to shelve the question of the abolition of Permanent Settlement. Assurances have been given on hundreds of platforms in different parts of the country and on the floor of the House that Permanent Settlement would be abolished. Now, that question has been altogether shelved and instead the present Government have brought this measure as a palliative. Of course, palliatives may sometimes be useful. But generally speaking, palliatives are often a great hindrance, because they reconcile a man to the present injustices and inequities. By reconciling men to the present injustices and grave defects, they very often prevent any radical reconstruction, though such reconstruction may be demanded by the very necessities of the situation in which the country finds itself.

Sir, I would submit that we find ourselves in a position like that today. We find ourselves in a position where unless the whole economic life is reconstructed, unless the whole basis of rural economics is so changed that the average peasant is a free man—no longer a tenant-at-will or even a permanent tenant of the zemindar, unless the present inferior position of the peasant is removed and he feels that he is equal to any other man, the ills from which we are suffering cannot be cured. This measure will only be a palliative, but will not meet the situation. I feel constrained to place before the House another consideration. I think the honourable members opposite will not be able to disregard it, however they might vote. It has been my sad experience that many members of the Government side have agreed with our points of view on many occasions. They themselves said that they agreed but were unable to vote with us. Sometimes some of them have even voted with us. But to return to my point. My disappointment is that this occasion has not been utilised for a thorough and far-reaching reconstruction of the system of agricultural tenure even within the limits of the present economic situation.

Most members of the House know that few countries which are regarded as civilised and industrialised have any land revenue as such. There is no land tax in those countries. Even in England, land tax or revenue was abolished about 50 or 60 years ago. There, tax is imposed on income. There is no imposition upon the cultivators or the tenants of the type which we find here in India. If the agricultural income-tax is utilised as a means by which the present system can be transformed, we on this side would give every possible support to Government. We could then have a graded system of taxation, so that the actual income derived from the land—whether he is tenant or under-tenant or talukdar or zemindar—would only be taxed with exemption as in the case of the income-tax. If the actual tax was taken on the basis of such income,—if we had a graded rate of taxation measure, that would have gone a long way towards the modification of the present inequitable system which we find in Bengal today.

Today we find that it is the poorest who have the heaviest burdens to bear. The report of the Floud Commission says that the tax per capita here is about Rs. 7-8 per annum which is higher than the tax in any other province in India. The pargana rate is very low whereas the barga rate and the cultivator's rate are very high. I regret to find that the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has not considered the social implications of an agricultural income-tax and used this occasion to transform the existing system of land revenue into a graded tax by which the tax will bear some proportion to the actual income of the persons taxed. Today, under the present system of land revenue, those who are well off have a rate of four annas to the acre which is a ridiculously low rate, whereas men lower down, such as bargadars, sometimes have to pay Rs. 2 or Rs. 3 per bigha! This is the rate we find today.

The agricultural income-tax might have been a first step towards the remedy of this state of affairs, towards the introduction of a system where the assessment on the individual agriculturist or tenant would be in proportion to his actual income. Now, Sir, we do not also know if this agricultural income-tax is going to be a permanent one. We have not been told by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister whether he intends to bring this Bill only as a palliative war measure, or as an interim measure pending the abolition of Permanent Settlement. Until he states that clearly, we cannot do anything definite. If it is to be a permanent measure, then we could offer suggestions by which the system of land structure in Bengal might be modified and the Permanent Settlement abolished. A hint has been given by my honourable friend, the "baby" member of this House. We do not know whether this is a substitute for the abolition of the Permanent Settlement. If we could know that definitely, we could accordingly modify our opinion with regard to this Bill. Clarification is therefore necessary. Let us first know whether this is a permanent measure or an ad interim measure or a measure which has been forced by the economic crisis created by the war. That is the point which first requires clarification. I regret to say that the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has not clarified that point. If this point is clarified, that would largely determine our attitude towards the Bill.

The next point I would like to refer to is that of the incidence of this tax. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister has told us that only 3,000 to 4,000 families would be affected by this tax. I do not know where he has got his figures from. The Report of the Floud Commission puts at 2.25 millions those who are dependent on rent-collection as the chief source of income. The honourable members sitting opposite are shaking their heads but I am quoting this figure from the Floud Commission's Report. It is true that there are only 700 families which have an income of Rs. 10,000 or more but that is a different matter altogether. I quote the figure from paragraph 91, page 40 of the Report and the honourable members instead of shaking their heads would do well to look at the Report. There are other economists who have calculated the figures and who hold that directly or indirectly 15 millions are dependent on income from land. This is a discrepancy and may be startling, but perhaps the discrepancy may be explained. I suggest that the figure of 2.25 millions refer to the heads of the families and 15 millions is the actual number of the members of the families. Well, it may be that at the time of Floud Commission's enquiry there were 700 families with an income of Rs. 10,000 or more. Their figure may now well be 3,500 or something like that. I believe the proposed taxable limit is Rs. 3,500. Therefore, the difference between Rs. 3,500 and Rs. 10,000, has to be accounted for. Of course, I cannot give the figure with any authority because the figure is not before me. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister also said that he was speaking only on guess. He suggests that the figure would be 3,000 for those who are dependent on agricultural income and are liable to pay the tax. Now, in 1938

MR. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, how long you are going to take?

MR. HUMAYUN KABIR: I think I have about two or three points to develop

MR. PRESIDENT: How many minutes you will take?

MR. HUMAYUN KABIR: About 10 minutes.

MR. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, may I suggest that tomorrow instead of taking the non-official business we may take up this Bill and some other day may be fixed for the non-official business?

MR. PRESIDENT: I propose to sit a little longer today and finish it. Yes, Mr. Kabir, you may go on with your speech.

MR. HUMAYUN KABIR: Thank you, Sir. As I was saying, Sir, the figures given by the Floud Commission are on the basis of prices in 1938-39. Today, every one knows that there has been a phenomenal rise in the prices of commodities. The prices of agricultural commodities have shot up to unprecedented heights. Therefore, if the number of families who had an income of Rs. 10,000 or more was 700 at that time, I would suggest that the number of families who have an income of Rs. 10,000 now would be perhaps 3,000 to 4,000. I quite see the relevancy of the points raised by the Hon'ble the Leader of the House. But the rent-collectors are not only rent-collectors, as stated in the Report. Many rent-collectors whose chief source of income is rent-collection have also got khash khams which they cultivate under their own direct control. Their income has certainly increased as a result of the increase in the price of agricultural commodities. I think many members will bear me out when I say that the average collection of most of the landlords has not deteriorated, but on the contrary improved in the last year. The average Indian peasant does not default if he has money. If he has a little more money than usual, he has very often paid even his arrears. Therefore, the number of families whose income is Rs. 3,500 and more per year is certainly likely to be far greater than that suggested by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister. Now, I do not know what exactly the figure will be. I will not go into detail on that point any further.

I would, however, like to ask the Hon'ble the Finance Minister one question. If actually the number is likely to be 3,000, as he states, and if my estimate of a larger number is wrong and his figure of 3,000 or 4,000 is a correct figure, then how is he going to benefit the Province by the imposition of this tax? I take it that the collection of the tax will itself entail considerable expenditure in setting up new departments. The present Government have shown in the past that they are very expert in setting up new departments and in the employment of a large number of persons having practically nothing to do. My honourable friend Khan Bahadur Momin, the leader of his Party, when he went to the Civil Supplies Department, found that the officers there very often did not know what exactly their task was, and he was sent from one officer to another until he went to a man who knew his job. There will be the same sort of enlargement and the same sort of officers. If this is the case and if only 3,000 families are going to be taxed, what will be the net expected income? I quite admit that he has given no actual figures and can give none. But what is the expected benefit to the Province as a result of the imposition of this Agricultural income-tax?

There is one other point. It is no doubt laid down in the Act and both the Hon'ble Finance Minister and the Leader of the House have stated that the poorer classes will not be hit. I think one honourable member in his speech today has said that there would be no question of destitutes and that a person having Rs. 3,500 per year is not a destitute. In our country, a person who has an income of Rs. 3,500 is a middle-class man or a lower middle-class man; but the point is that since the obligation will be on the peasant to satisfy that his income is less than Rs. 3,500, who is going to guard him against harassment? Even today, as a result of some of the activities of officers of the Jute Regulation Department, the poor villagers are very often put to great difficulties——

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: There is a limitation of 100 bighas.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I quite admit that there is a limitation of 100 bighas. But the question remains: how is a person going to be taxed after the prices go down to a more normal level? Today the prices are at an exorbitant scale, so high as has never been seen in the history of this country; and if on the basis of this, the tax is imposed upon a person, how will he ever be rid of the tax? The experience of everyone who has anything to do with income-tax is that once you come within its noose, it is very difficult for you to get out. It may be that his income is not what it was before, but even then the old rates cling to him. It is really a case of the proverbial blanket. Even though you want to get rid of it, it will not leave you. Those whose incomes vary find it very hard to persuade the Income-tax Commissioner that their income has grown less. Sir, what guarantee is there that this will not apply with regard to this taxation Act also? Then, again, my honourable friend, the Leader of the House, has referred to the limit of 100 bighas. How is the Government going to find this out? How does it propose to go about its job all over the province? Even today we find that some provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Amendment Act cannot be enforced on account of the illiteracy of the villagers. My friends who belong to the rural areas will bear me out that even today there are cases where the law is not completely enforced. Further, there is the danger that the landlord may attempt to pass on the tax which is assessed upon him to the cultivator; what steps do the Government propose to take to avoid a contingency of that type? There is certainly the danger that the zamindars may pass off this tax to their tenants and under-tenants. That that risk exists will be agreed to by every member hailing from rural constituencies. It is not unknown that even in the case of the Education Cess, the zamindars often collect more money than they actually pay to - Government. What measures do the Government propose to incorporate in their administrative machinery or the rules which they will frame under this Act which will safeguard the tenants from a contingency of this nature?

One more point, Sir, and I shall have finished. (Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Yes, please do.) Yes, Sir, I will finish within a few minutes. I know that my friends opposite are anxious to get away from here but I would ask them to consider the Bill on its merits and to remember that private convenience of members should not in any way influence the discussion of public questions. Therefore, any attempt to try to hurry the Bill through because of the convenience of some members on the Government side is not only unjustified, but I think is also an exhibition of irresponsibility. As I was submitting a moment ago, there is one other point to which I would like to refer. The Hon'ble Finance Minister attempted at some length today to clear the point with regard to double taxation. It may be that I am very obtuse—perhaps I am—but this I must say that after his learned disquisition, the point was perhaps made more confusing than it was before he began his speech. The position, if I understand him aright, and as stated by him, is something like this: In the case of a British national—by the words "British National", I mean a British citizen resident in the British Isles—he does not get any relief on any income which he may have derived outside the British Isles if this income is derived from a foreign country. In that case, he is subject to any taxation which might be imposed on his income at the source and in addition he is also subject to any tax to which he may be liable in terms of the British tax. But it is otherwise in the case of those who derive their income not from a foreign country but from a Dominion, or a Colony or from that peculiar country called India, which is neither a Dominion nor a Colony. We do not know what it is since we are told that the British Empire has disappeared and that there is only the British Commonwealth of Nations. If his income is derived from a Dominion or a Colony or from that peculiar non-Dominion non-Colony, called India, in such a case the British taxpayer is entitled to relief on the tax which he has paid, provided the tax paid at the source is half or more than half of the British tax. I believe that is the position, as it was stated by the Hon'ble Finance Minister. Now, if that be the position, so far as Bengal is concerned, there is no possibility whatever for a long time to come that the tax imposed here will be half of what it is in the case of the British Income-tax.

Here in this Bill the rates proposed are either 9 pies or at the most two annas and six pies per rupee. In any case, it will not exceed 50 per cent. of the income. We know that the British income-tax is sometimes as high as 19 shillings in the pound. So there is no comparison between the British income-tax and the tax here. My point is this: if that be the case, there does not seem to be any reason for including any measure of exemption in our Bill. In the case of Canada, the other Dominions and the Colonies, the income-tax is imposed at the source and the British Exchequer grants an exemption or refund where necessary. The income is derived from work or profession or other activities which are carried on here, as pointed by the honourable leader of the Government Coalition party. If that is so, if the income is derived from activities here, they should pay the tax here. If any relief is to be given and if any such situation arises at any time, then that relief may be obtained from the British Exchequer. The British Exchequer is actually willing to give that relief as we have heard from the Hon'ble Finance Minister. There is then no reason for excluding business corporation or any other associations of that type from the operation of the agricultural income-tax. They should be treated just like an individual or or an undivided family who are subject to the law.

These are some of the considerations which we must face even after accepting the principle of the Bill. It is our common experience that in respect of certain clauses there is agreement on both sides. There are also divergent points which could better be settled in a Select Committee across the table. When there is such a variety and gradation in the amount of agreement—when there is such gradation in agreement and disagreement,—these points could be threshed out in a better way in the Select Committee. It is sometimes said by the other side that this is dilatory tactics. I do not see how such a charge can be made. The Bill will not be more than a month and a half in the Select Committee, and considering the advantages we will secure in sending the Bill to a Select Committee, it cannot certainly be said that it is dilatory tactics. We accept the principle; but arguments which could not be advanced on the floor of the House could very well be considered in the Select Committee and a settlement arrived at without any difficulty. You, Sir, know and it is our past experience also that very often difficulties arise when considering a complicated Bill on the floor of the House. It is our experience that as a result of the passing of a particular clause, a certain amendment could not be accepted afterwards although there was agreement on both sides with regard to it. We could not accept it and could not give effect to it on account of the fact that some incompatible clause had already been accepted. In the Select Committee these difficulties will not arise. The whole thing can be surveyed and re-surveyed without any difficulty, whereas on the floor of the House once a clause is passed, there is no possibility whatsoever of reopening that question. Since there is no possibility of reopening that question, the defect would remain there. In this connection, may I, Sir, recall to your attention an incident during the time of the late President? A particular clause was adopted and afterwards both the Government and the Opposition agreed that it required modification but it could not be modified on account of the fact that a vote has been given but it could not be modified on account of the fact that the clause was already passed. In the case of Bills originating in this House, such difficulty is less, because defects may be rectified in another place where they have to go. In the case of a Bill originating in the other House, we do not get opportunities to express our opinion or give suggestions some of which, I am sure, might be acceptable to the members opposite. These suggestions have not been considered by Government. You will remember, Sir, that we have sometimes moved for a joint Select Committee of both the Houses. Many of our difficulties can be solved by having a joint Select Committee of both the Houses. Joint wisdom is certainly superior to the single wisdom of one House. In any case, there is a sort of give and take agreement in such Select Committee. Discussion which is not possible on the floor of this House can be carried on there.

Often we find that a Bill is hurried through in this House. My honourable friend Mr. Mazumdar says that not a comma or semi-colon is altered by Government simply because the suggestion goes from the members of the Opposition. I do not subscribe to that view. I do not believe that Government would be so impervious as not to accept a reasonable amendment simply because it comes from this side of the House. Sometimes a tendency of that type is noticed when the party spirit runs high; but in moments of cooler consideration the honourable members opposite are not so unreasonable.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, the question be now put.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: But I have not finished.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think the discussion should continue. I should like to give full opportunity to the members of the Opposition to express their views.

I now adjourn the House till 2-15 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 2-15 p.m. on Friday, the 26th May, 1944.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 43.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Friday, the 26th May, 1944, at 2-15 p.m., being the forty-third day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 82(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Prisoners taken under Defence of India Rules.

173. Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA DUTT (on behalf of Mr. Shrish Chandra Chakraverti): Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

- (a) the number of prisoners in Bengal under the Defence of India Rules and any other provisions of the law on account of their alleged political activities, specifying the numbers of undertrial, convicted and security prisoners;
- (b) how many applications have been received for payment of allowances to the dependants of the prisoners and how many of them have been rejected and on what ground; and
- (c) how long the security prisoners will be kept in the custody; and if they will be detained during the entire period of the war, which is going on?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) and (b) The information asked for is not readily available and its collection would involve an amount of time and labour that would not be justifiable in war time.

(c) They will not be detained longer than it is considered necessary in each individual case.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether Government do not consider the liberty of the people important enough to bestow labour on for the purpose of collecting figures which we want regarding the security prisoners?

Mr. BIREN ROY: It is a matter of opinion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is it or is it not a fact that the Home Minister is actually looking at the papers of the security prisoners for the purpose of examining whether any of them should be released?

Mr. BIREN ROY: There are so many thousands of applications still pending before the Home Minister that it is very difficult to answer his question: the Hon'ble the Home Minister has to make enquiries into so many things at the present moment that it is difficult to get all these figures.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Because the Home Minister has all the files with him at the present moment, is it not a fact that he knows actually the number of prisoners now in Jail?

Mr. BIREN ROY: I have nothing further to add to what I have already said.

Prisoners of the Chittagong Armoury Raid Case.

174. Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state how many prisoners of the Chittagong Armoury Raid Case are still in jail? Who are they?

(b) Is it a fact that all of them have proclaimed their views as anti-Fascists and urged an united war front in support of the Allies in their war?

(c) Do the Government propose to release them without any further delay?

(d) What is their present state of health? What was their weight when they entered jail and what is their weight now?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) and (d) A statement is placed in the Library.

(b) Yes.

(c) No.

Mr. KRISHNA CHANDRA ROY CHOWDHURY: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware of the fact that one Lokenath Bal, leader of the Chittagong Armoury Raid, published a statement in the Statesman expressing strong views against the Fascists and the Statesman editorially recommended his release?

Mr. BIREN ROY: I am not aware.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state why no answer has been recorded with regard to paragraph (d) of my question?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Yes, Sir, it has been recorded. The honourable member may see (a) and (d) together.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I am sorry, Sir, I had overlooked that. Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to say what is the number of the Chittagong Armoury Raid Case prisoners still in jail?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Only nine—1 in the Alipore Central Jail and eight in the Dacca Central Jail.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state how many years they have suffered imprisonment, each of them, and how many years they have yet to suffer?

Mr. BIREN ROY: I want notice.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state how many are ailing?

Mr. BIREN ROY: That is also given in the statement.

Mr. HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Is the Government aware that Babu Lokenath Bal declared himself to belong to the Radical Democratic Party?

Mr. BIREN ROY: I am not aware of it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is the Government aware of any such thing?

Mr. PRESIDENT: In view of the answer given in reply to (c), I do not think it is necessary.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether it is a fact that Benode Behari Dutta has lost 12 lbs. in weight?

Mr. BIREN ROY: That is also in the statement and it is also stated there why it is reduced.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state that indifferent chronic bronchitis from which he is suffering could be defined as a sort of consumption?

Mr. BIREN ROY: It is not consumption.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: In view of the fact that his weight has come down from 102 to 90 lbs. will the Government consider the desirability of releasing him at once? Sir, there is one difficulty and that is that the Hon'ble Home Minister is not here when the supplementary questions are being answered with regard to the Armoury Raid prisoners. I think he should have been here, so that he could give his personal opinion with regard to this matter in the light of the supplementary questions, e.g., he could have considered whether 90 lbs. is a sufficiently dangerous limit where the question of his release could be taken up.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I understand Mr. Roy has full authority to answer the questions on behalf of the Chief Minister.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether he does not consider this reduced weight sufficiently alarming for Government to consider the question of his release?

Mr. BIREN ROY: It is not alarming. When he entered the jail he was 102 and now it is 90; it is reduced only by 12 lbs.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Has the Hon'ble Minister taken any medical advice in the matter, namely, that if a man's weight is reduced from 102 to 90 lbs., is it not sufficient reason for his release from jail?

Mr. BIREN ROY: That is a matter of opinion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Government take medical opinion whether he should be released on account of such a reduction of weight due to chronic bronchitis?

Mr. BIREN ROY: The prisoners are regularly examined and the jail doctors submit regular reports.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is the report anything like that?

Mr. PRESIDENT: He has already replied your question.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is the Government assured by the medical officer that in spite of the fact that he lost 12 lbs. in weight he need not be released? I want to know whether it is the duty of the doctor to recommend release in such a case without being asked to do so?

The Hon'ble Mr. Khwaja SHAHABUDDIN: On a point of order, Sir. How does this question arise out of it—whether medical opinion has been taken about the release of a prisoner or not? Medical opinion can only be taken in the case of an illness and if he is ill he can be treated in the jail hospital. But how does the question of medical opinion arise here?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of order, Sir. Is he explaining on behalf of the Home Minister or on behalf of the Parliamentary Secretary?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Shahabuddin, I think the question is pertinent in this way that if a person is very ill, certainly the jail authorities can say that though they can give the prisoner the best medical help, still the jail atmosphere is not congenial for the prisoner. I think that is the ground on which Mr. Das is asking the question.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I ask whether Government would consider the desirability of putting Binode Behary Dutta's case before the medical board for releasing him after consulting the doctor?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, you are putting so many questions at a time that it is very difficult for Government to answer all the questions together.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: All right, Sir. Will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether the Government is prepared to place the case of Binode Behary Dutta before a medical expert or a medical board to ascertain whether he could be released in view of his indifferent chronic bronchitis?

Mr. BIREN ROY: I have already answered that question. There are regular medical inspection in the jail and in this particular case the prisoner's state of health is not so alarming as to necessitate his release.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Would Government consider the desirability of putting his case —

Mr. PRESIDENT: Government has already replied to that question.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: General speaking, as Mr. Shahabuddin has already pointed out, it has never been raised in the medical board or before the medical expert as to whether the prisoner should be released on account of his indifferent chronic bronchitis. So, our supplementary question is, whether Government are agreeable to put this matter pointedly before a medical board to ask them to consider whether under the circumstances the prisoner should be released.

Mr. BIREN ROY: Expert opinion has already been obtained and the opinion is that the prisoner's case is not sufficiently alarming as to consider the suggestion of releasing him.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: My original question was—(d) What is their present state of health? What was their weight when they entered jail and what is their weight now? And in reply a statement has been laid on the table from which I find the names of Ganesh Ghose, Anantalal Sen, Subodh Kumar Chowdhury, Lal Mohan Sen, Sukhendu Dastidar, Saharam Das, Lokenath Bal and their weights have also been given. But in the case of Benode Behary Dutta, when he entered the jail, was 102 lbs. and now his weight has been given as 90 lbs. and he has been suffering from an indifferent chronic bronchitis. So, under the circumstances I want to know whether Government will consider the desirability of placing the case of Binode Behary Dutta before a medical board for his release.

MR. PRESIDENT: He has replied to that point already. So, what more do you want from Government to hear? Put your question specifically so that Government may say "yes" or "no" to your question.

MR. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: All right, Sir. Will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether the Government is prepared to place the case of Binode Behary Dutta, whose weight has been reduced from 102 to 90 lbs. and who is suffering from indifferent chronic bronchitis, before a medical board or before a medical expert for the purpose of ascertaining whether his case is fit for release?

MR. BIREN ROY: I repeat my previous answer that all these cases, including that of Babu Binode Bihari Dutta, were placed before an expert medical doctor and his case was not sufficiently alarming as to justify the consideration of the suggestion made by the honourable member.

MR. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, there are other questions.

MR. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, I gave you sufficient time to put supplementary questions.

MR. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: All right, Sir.

MR. PRESIDENT: Questions over. Mr. Haridas Mazumdar.

MR. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, would you please pass over the next item in the agenda that stands in my name for the next day?

MR. PRESIDENT: You do not want to move it to-day?

MR. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: No, Sir, not to-day.

MR. PRESIDENT: Let the matter stand over. We now come to the next item, namely, Non-official Resolutions. Mr. Nur Ahmed.

NON-OFFICIAL RESOLUTIONS.

MR. NUR AHMED: Sir, the other day when I was speaking I suggested that Government have done and are doing all that lies in their power to do for spreading education among the Scheduled Caste people. In support of this I quote from the Government of Bengal's Report for the year 1940-41. In that report it appears that the number of students of Scheduled Castes has increased appreciably as compared with that of 1939-40. In that year there were 444,945 male students in all institutions of Bengal and 93,570 girl students in all the institutions totalling 538,515 as against 473,403 in the year 1939-40. This increase has been effected in one year, and the number of students of both sexes has increased by 65,112. Government in that year gave special facilities for the boys and girls of the Scheduled Caste people and they have spent Rs. 10,000 for books and slates for the Scheduled Caste students and Rs. 5,400 worth of scholarships have been provided for in high schools and Rs. 72,000 have been spent on scholarships and stipends for Scheduled Caste students and Rs. 28,344 for college students. Government have set apart Rs. 5 lakhs for encouragement of education among the Scheduled Caste students. In support of this argument I want to cite comparative figures of the progress of Muslim students side by side with those of Scheduled Caste students. Of course, I know that comparison is a very bad thing. But I make this comparison from no other motive but to show that Government is wide awake to the needs of the Scheduled Caste children.

From the comparative figures given in this year's report, Appendix 4A, I find that in that year in class I of the primary schools there were 897,483 Muslim students and 244,979 Scheduled Caste students. But in class IV we find that the Muslim students were reduced by 9/10ths and at the same time the Scheduled Caste students were reduced by 8/9ths. From 24,400,000 their number was reduced only to 24,000 in class IV where the number of Muslim students was reduced from 9 lakhs to 80,000 only. In class VI the number of 24,000 was reduced to 7,361. In the case of Musalmans it was reduced to 24,916 only. Again, in class IX, this number was reduced to 1,858, but in the case of Muslims it was reduced to 10,655 only. So, taking these figures as they stand it is apparent that the Scheduled Caste students in Bengal are advancing more rapidly than the Muslim students in Bengal. We all of us on this side desire that they should make much more rapid progress in the field of education; we have every sympathy with them in this. And I think Government is doing all that it possibly can for them. But one thing is apparent. I find that in respect of collegiate and post-graduate education their number is very miserable. They need encouragement in the stage of collegiate education and also in respect of post-graduate education. I find that the resolution is very wide; it wants that Government should set apart a sum of Rs. 50 lakhs for the advancement of the education of the Scheduled Castes. I am sorry to remark that although I heard with great attention the speech of the honourable mover of the resolution, yet I did not find anything in his speech or in his resolution which justifies the setting apart of this huge sum of money, such as 50 lakhs. He has not formulated any scheme in the course of his speech as to how this sum should be spent nor has he given any indication of the same in his resolution.

Sir, there is another view. Government's allotment for education is limited. But if for the education of Scheduled Castes alone Rs. 50 lakhs is allotted, what will be the result? There are other minor and backward communities and they may come tomorrow and demand more than 50 lakhs. In this way, all the money that is provided for in the Budget on the head—Education, year after year, will be ear-marked for this and that community and for general purposes there will be nothing left. On that ground, I am sorry I cannot support this resolution while I have got the utmost sympathy with the spirit which underlies this resolution. With these words, I oppose the resolution.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Mr. President, Sir, personally speaking, I have the greatest regard for Mr. Mazumdar and I congratulate him for tabling this resolution. However, the irrelevant and illogical statements made by Mr. Mazumdar should not go without any comment. If the motive behind a demand of this nature by the members of the Opposition, whoever they may be for the time being, whether my colleagues on this side now or my friends on the other side hereafter, is to gain cheap popularity or to expose the then members of the Government, it must be discouraged. Mr. Mazumdar on the one hand demands 50 lakhs of rupees for the education of the Scheduled Castes who deserve it and on the other characterises the 30 Scheduled Caste members of the Legislative Assembly as weather-cocks (Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Question.) Mr. Mazumdar denies that he has said so. But if I remember aright he termed the members of the Scheduled Castes belonging to the Bengal Legislative Assembly as weather-cocks. I pause for an answer. (Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: You did not follow what I said.) Yes, I am slow in understanding: therefore, I could not follow Mr. Mazumdar. Does Mr. Mazumdar suggest that because many members belonging to the Scheduled Castes are with the Coalition Party now in power, therefore they are weather-cocks? Can Mr. Mazumdar blame them if they choose to occupy the front benches of the other side after centuries of oppression and injustice supplemented by the denial policy followed by the Hindu-Muslim Coalition Ministry which came into power with their help at the end of 1941? The only way in which Mr. Mazumdar's remarks can be explained is that it shows how the Patrician aristocracy is suffering from a burning sensation on account of the division of the political power hitherto exclusively enjoyed by them.

Now, Sir, before leaving this subject, I must draw the attention of the authorities to their failure in the discharge of their duties. Ever since 1938, provisions are being made annually in the budget for the advance of the education of the Scheduled Castes; but, Sir, the Ministry and the officers concerned deserve severe condemnation on account of their failure to draw up any scheme and on account of the unusual delay in spending the money which had to be surrendered for not being spent. Year after year, stipends are granted when our students go home after appearing at the annual or at the university examinations. This certainly reflects no credit on the part of the Government and I hope this procedure will be rectified in the near future.

With these few words, I support the resolution of my friend Mr. Mazumdar.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Mr. President, Sir, first of all, when I got copy of the notice of this resolution I did not know whether it was meant to be a serious recommendation of this House or whether Mr. Mazumdar was trying to make some political capital out of this resolution. Sir, from what has been said by him the other day and from what I have heard just now from my friend over there, it appears that he was trying to behave as a person who has gone before an auctioneer without really meaning to take the article but just to keep his rival out of the field by simply outbidding. The Opposition should seriously consider the responsibility that they are involving themselves in by bringing forward a proposal like this. It should not be forgotten that they are the alternative Government. Therefore, anything which they themselves cannot implement if they are called upon to accept office today, they should not press only to embarrass the Party which happens to be in office at the present moment. So far as the attitude of the Muslim League is concerned, they have not only accepted a definite and liberal policy but they have translated it into action. They are trying to help those sections of the population who had so long been suffering from disability on account of the prejudices of the ruling classes or of a section of the public and they are trying to remove those disabilities. The Muhammadans are also in the same category with the Scheduled Castes. So, whenever any effort is being made for uplifting the educational interests of the Muslims, uplifting of the Scheduled Castes is also going hand in hand. So far as the Hindu brothers are concerned, I mean the Caste Hindus, whenever any step was taken for the education of the Scheduled Castes, the Caste Hindus stood in the way of their progress (Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Never, never.) (Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Question.) For instance, there is not a single Scheduled Caste member in the Senate. At the time of the Muslim Vice-Chancellor one Scheduled Caste member was taken in, but as soon as that gentleman's tenure of office expired and during the Vice-Chancellorship, for example, of Dr. B. C. Roy, an effort was made to put another Scheduled Caste member in his place but the chance was denied. So, in the Senate there is not a single Scheduled Caste member today.

Can it be said by the Scheduled Caste members who are sitting with the Opposition and by the Caste Hindus who are pressing their cause that there is not at least one Scheduled Caste man in Bengal who can go to the University and sit in the Senate and take part in its proceedings along with other members of different communities? However anxious we may be to help them in this matter, we cannot so effectively do it as can be expected from a representative of their community, because we cannot understand their needs intimately. So far as the Muslims are concerned, they have never been behind any community in pressing forward the case of the Scheduled Caste people in the sphere of education. Look at the record of the past Ministry. In the Ministry which remained in power from 1937 to 1941, in spite of Mr. Fazlul Huq being its Chief Minister, the Muslim League Party succeeded in having this principle recognised that the Scheduled Caste people deserved special consideration, and they did so not in a spirit of bargain. They recognised that the children of the Scheduled Caste people who are backward in education deserve some consideration and that this was in the interest of the nation. But in spite of that Ministry's profession and preaching that they would look into the interests of the Scheduled Caste people, the Scheduled Caste people were left in the same position as before. They did not implement what they had preached for four years. They again got opportunities from 1941 to 1942, but what they did in those 16 months? They did not even succeed in spending the money which was left to them by the retiring Government. They had opportunities of placing before the Legislature two Budgets; but in none of these budgets any special provision was made for the advancement of the education of the Scheduled Caste people. Is it an indication of the attitude of the Caste Hindus or of the representatives of the Party to which Mr. Mazumdar belongs, namely, the Hindu Mahasabha? Still they profess that they are anxious for the uplift of the Scheduled Caste people.

Then came this Muslim League Government again in the year 1943 and they immediately recognised the demand of the Scheduled Caste people in the matter of education. My honourable friend Mr. Amulyadhane Roy surely knows what difficulties this Government and the Party that is supporting this Government have had to face in pressing forward the claims of the Scheduled Caste people in all branches of public life. But it has its limits. We have to go by slow degrees so that an unnecessary agitation and bitterness may not grow on that account. Whenever any occasion arises, we always try to do something for the Scheduled Castes people and we wish we could do more for them. But surely it does not lie in the mouth of the Caste Hindus who have all along stood in the way of the Scheduled Castes people to say that they are very keen for the betterment of this backward community. We have not only preached this but we have implemented our profession.

This side of the House is not accustomed to talking much about programme but they do much more than what they preach. The proposal which has been made, I should say, would have given us happiness: for the education of the Scheduled Castes community who number about a third of the Hindu community in Bengal, or almost practically half of the Hindu community, 50 lakhs will not be sufficient according to the standards on which other countries are spending for education. Nobody would be happier than ourselves if we could spend 40 to 50 lakhs of rupees for the Scheduled Caste community and if it were possible for the Government to give this community 50 lakhs, the Muslim community 150 lakhs and another 50 lakhs to the Caste Hindus, it would be a happy day for any Government that comes into power and especially for the Government that is in power in Bengal today. Therefore, expressing our full sympathy for the Scheduled Castes and underlining what I have said already regarding the intention of Mr. Mazumdar in moving his motion, I submit that Mr. Mazumdar will be well advised to withdraw his motion because there is nothing more to be declared on the floor of the House in connection with this matter. All that has been done is there and will continue to be done so long as the present Ministry remains in power.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I rise to support the resolution which has been moved by Mr. Haridas Mazumdar suggesting that a sum of 50 lakhs be set apart for the education of the Scheduled Castes people. Their population as recorded in the last census is about one crore and to ask for 50 lakhs would be asking for eight annas per head only. What has been asked for is: 40 lakhs for primary and 10 lakhs for higher education. But taking into consideration the illiteracy prevailing among members of this community, I do not consider that this sum is excessive, for, as I have said, taking into consideration the total population of this community it comes to about eight annas per head only. There is so much sly attempt to win the support of this community by weaning them away from the Caste Hindus that the Muslims want to show that they love the Scheduled Castes community more than the Hindus. I should like to say, Sir, that blood is thicker than water and whatever my friends of the Scheduled Castes may think it is but fair and true to say that we love them as dearly as we possibly can; they are the flesh of our flesh, they are the bone of our bone. To doubt the love of the Caste Hindus for the Scheduled Castes is something strange on which no stress should be laid by our friends on the other side. It may be a political game that they are trying to play and score but they should not at all doubt the motive of the Caste Hindus in putting forward a resolution for the uplift of the Scheduled Castes community. This emphasis on motive was laid only in order to show the want of love of the Caste Hindus for this backward community. The charge is baseless.

Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury pointed out that it was only at a time when there was a Muslim Vice-Chancellor that one Scheduled Caste gentleman got in as a member of the Senate and that since then no other gentleman from this community was ever put on the Senate of the Calcutta University. But Government could very well have nominated a gentleman from this community if it liked on the Senate. Nearly 80 per cent. of the Senators are taken in by nomination and nomination is in the hands of the Government. So, the League Government in exercise of this power of nomination could easily have put in a gentleman from this community, if it liked, on the Senate or on the Syndicate. It is really mischievous to put the blame on the Hindu Vice-Chancellor for this glaring omission. But I say that putting one or two men on the Senate or on the Syndicate is not quite the thing that is required or the same thing as actually making provision for the advancement of the education of these people. What is really wanted is not to put in a representative of this community on the Senate or Syndicate of the Calcutta University but to put in a much bigger amount at the disposal of the Scheduled Caste community to be spent upon their uplift and education.

I do not say that they should not be there: they should be and they will be there. But one or two persons to represent the Scheduled Castes people on the Syndicate without any money for accelerating the pace of education among them will not improve the position. Really, what we want to know is how far the Government is prepared to spend for the uplift and education of the Scheduled Castes people. We should be clear on this point as well as regarding the quota allotted to them in the different services. Certain amount was actually allotted for the education of the Scheduled Castes. I think 5 lakhs was ear-marked for the uplift of the Scheduled Castes and several lakhs have also been ear-marked for the uplift of Muslims. Were those monies spent for them? No. Even in respect of service certain ratio has been prescribed for the Scheduled Castes and Muslims. In this connection, I may say that my friend Mr. Amulyadhane Roy moved a resolution for the appointment of an enquiry committee in order to ascertain how far these ratios were observed in the case of the Scheduled Castes and how the ratio rules are being worked. That was due to non-observance of the Ratio Rules in the services. Then again, Sir, a large amount of money was ear-marked for the Scheduled Castes. Has that been spent on the improvement of the position of Scheduled Castes? If not, why not? Except an interval of 16 months, when another Government came in, the gentlemen who adorn the Treasury benches now were in power from 1937 to 1944. Was anything substantial done during this period for the amelioration of the condition of the Scheduled Castes? Nothing has been done. So a large proportion of the blame falls on them. They were all through there. From 1937 to 1944 is a long time—full seven years minus 16 months. During all this time you only showed sympathy for the purpose of winning them over with a view to aggrandising all political power. Then you came to show your fangs, beating and driving away 25,000 Scheduled Castes people from Narayanganj subdivision to Agartala. That was two years ago and that was the measure of the love you showed for the Scheduled Castes. The less said about your love and your uplift work for the Scheduled Castes the better. It was the Caste Hindu community which rehabilitated them after that.

Now, Sir, here is a specific proposition. That proposition is: to set apart Rs. 50 lakhs for the education of Scheduled Castes people. This means only annas eight per head. With these words, I support the resolution moved by Mr. Haridas Mazumdar.

Alhadj Khan Bahadur Shaikh MUHAMMAD JAN: Sir, I support the resolution moved by my friend Mr. Haridas Mazumdar. I do not think there should have been so much controversy over this simple affair, as was evident from the speech of Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury. It is the opinion of most of the members of the House that a large sum of money should be set apart for the education and uplift of the Scheduled Castes Hindus and if this resolution is passed, it will go a great way towards it. Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury said the other day that the Opposition, which really speaking is the Government of tomorrow, should not make unreasonable request to the Government of today. I may add that Government of today should not refuse any reasonable demand which the Government of tomorrow may ask for today. So, I think he should not have opposed the resolution. With these words, I support the motion.

Khan Sahib NURUL AMIN: Sir, I welcome the spirit of the resolution heartily, although I cannot see eye to eye with the mover on account of the form of the resolution. I do not doubt the sincerity of Mr. Mazumdar. It is for the members of the Scheduled Castes to draw their own inferences about his bona fides. I do not also accept the Bengali adage in this case that the mother's sister who feels more for the child than the mother is characterised as an all-devouring devil. Sir, the views of the Muslim members belonging to the Muslim League have been expressed by more than one member fully and ably. It is well-known that the Muslim League stands for all the depressed, suppressed and oppressed classes. It has taken up the fight on its shoulder against the vested interests to relieve the depressed classes of the tyrannies to which they have been put from time immemorial. It is a happy augury of the day that the undaunted spirit with which the Muslim League is working for the backward classes has, after all, moved those who had so long neglected the interests of the depressed classes. Had not the Muslim League roused this feeling throughout the country, even lip-deep sympathy, as has been expressed in this resolution by Mr. Mazumdar, would not have been shown. (Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Question.) There is, no doubt, a very great need for fighting for the amelioration of the present condition of Scheduled Castes people in all spheres of life—political, educational and social. So far as political advancement is concerned, I find a good deal of apprehension in the minds of the Caste Hindus when the Scheduled Castes want to stand on their own legs. I was surprised to find in today's paper that Mr. Mazumdar was very much perturbed as the Scheduled Castes members of the Assembly were not honouring the Poona Pact in the constitution of the proposed Secondary Education Board. He has not hesitated to disturb even the sickly Mahatma to come to his rescue in regard to the Secondary Education Bill which is being introduced in the other House in which the Scheduled Castes have been given seats through separate electorate. Mr. Mazumdar wants that they should be under their tutelage always and that they must not try to shake off the natural guardianship of the Caste Hindus. Thanks to the MacDonald Award, later on modified by the Poona Pact, for the first time the political entity of the Scheduled Castes has been recognised!

Sir, so long as the Indians do not come out of the guardianship of the British they will not be free; so long as the Muslims do not come out of the guardianship of the Hindus, they will never attain their goal; similarly, so long as the Scheduled Castes do not come out of the tutelage of the Caste Hindus, they will not be able to grow up to their full stature.

Sir, if Mr. Mazumdar and the supporters of this resolution belonging to the Caste Hindu community really mean to give them some benefits and some advantages which they think they are entitled to for a very long time, I think, they should come out with a practical resolution and not an impracticable resolution like this. The resolution asks the Government to set apart Rs. 50 lakhs in the current year which is impossible. Nobody can think of it in the middle of the year! The Budget is long passed. So the setting apart of this sum of Rs. 50 lakhs for the education of the Scheduled Castes this year is an impracticable proposition. I have every reason to think that this resolution does not mean what it proposes to do. The principle of the resolution has already been accepted and given effect to by the present Government. Already 5 lakhs of rupees has been set apart for the education of the Scheduled Castes. I do not say that this sum is sufficient for them, and I fully agree that more and more money should be granted for this purpose. I do not know the attitude of the Government towards this resolution, but I should suggest and advise that in future budgets, allotment of funds for the education of the Scheduled Castes should be increased. Sir, instead of coming up with this resolution, I would expect Mr. Mazumdar to come up with a practical suggestion in the shape of a scheme fully giving the details of how the money should be spent and what amount can be reasonably expected from the provincial revenues out of the entire allotment for education. This sort of practical suggestion we will welcome. With these words, Sir, I oppose the motion in its present form, as it is impossible to provide Rs. 50 lakhs in the current budget.

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Mr. President, Sir, I did not like to speak on this resolution, as I thought that it was a non-controversial resolution. But having heard certain irrelevant statements from my honourable friend and esteemed colleague Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury, I could not resist the temptation of speaking a few words on the subject. The resolution is a simple one and it is admitted on all hands that the spread of education of the Scheduled Castes children is a problem of such magnitude that it requires not only Rs. 50 lakhs but much more. I heard speeches from most of the honourable members of this House, and I think that there was no dispute and no difference of opinion with regard to the fact that the sum was required for the improvement of the education of the Scheduled Castes people. In view of that, I think the House should have unanimously adopted this resolution. The question as to whether funds could be had or not is a different matter which could have been considered later on. While Government are professing that they want to do a good deal for the Scheduled Castes people, and that their love for the Scheduled Castes' people is much more than that of the Caste Hindus, let them prove that, let them show that in actual practice. They say that they have provided 5 lakhs of rupees this year. But 5 lakhs of rupees for the entire Scheduled Castes people of the province is nothing. What is the rate? It is not even one anna per head. My honourable friend Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury raised a question as to what the Caste Hindus have done for the Scheduled Castes people.

I will remind him that for the last 150 years the Caste Hindus have established schools in the province—more than 2,000 high English schools are going on in this province and about 94 per cent. of them are being nourished and maintained by money supplied by the Caste Hindus. Sir, who are entitled to study and get their education in these schools? Not Caste Hindus alone; they are not for the Caste Hindus alone, they are open to all classes of people, Muslims, Caste Hindus, Scheduled Castes, Christians, Anglo-Indians, Europeans and for whoever else may come. The Caste Hindus' money has been spent for the last 150 years for the education and the uplift of the country. What has been the contribution of Government up to now? We all know the contribution of Government for the uplift and education of the people of Bengal. In 150 years what is the state of education in this Province of Bengal, nay, in the whole of British India? The percentage of illiteracy is very high and the percentage of literacy is roughly from 11 to 12 per cent. It is not a question of educating Caste Hindus or the Scheduled Castes or Muslims alone. The problem is to educate the entire Indian population and the entire population of Bengal, so far as Bengal is concerned.

There is another question which my honourable colleague Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury raised and that is: as to what the Hindu Mahasabha has been doing for the uplift of the Scheduled Castes. As a matter of fact, they have taken up this question as one of the most important items in their programme. The Hindu Mahasabha has started a college for the Scheduled Castes. In the Scheduled Castes area a college has been already started and we are also going to start another college. It is the Hindu Mahasabha that is taking the initiative in this behalf and is going to spend large sums of money for this purpose. We are not simply professing, but doing tangible uplift and welfare work. The present Muslim League Ministry professes that it has the welfare of the Scheduled Caste community at heart but they are doing all this simply for catching votes and for aggrandising political power. I had hoped to hear the Scheduled Castes Minister sitting on the Treasury bench on behalf of his community and I wanted to speak after hearing him, but I now find that he is not willing to speak. He may speak even after me but up till now he has not spoken a single word.

I have great pleasure in supporting this motion. As a matter of fact, if a resolution were brought up tomorrow for setting apart 50 lakhs for Moslem education, the Caste Hindus would gladly support such a motion.

and help in providing this fund somehow or other, if necessary, even by taxation. Caste Hindus are not so selfish as to place any obstacle in the way of the uplift of education either of the Scheduled Castes or the Muslims or indeed of any other community who may be backward in this province.

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMED: Sir, I am afraid I cannot look at the resolution from the same angle of vision from which my friend Khan Sahib Nurul Amin has looked at it. He welcomed the spirit of the resolution but found it difficult actually to support it. I will look at the matter from another point of view. I have my sympathy with the resolution but I question the spirit of the resolution. It is crying for the moon so to say to ask for such a huge sum when we know definitely that there is no money to be had for the purpose, that we are running a deficit budget of an unprecedented and extraordinary nature. It is really amazing the mover has seized this occasion for making a proposal which requires a large sum of money.

That seems to be so ungracious a proposition in view of the fact that the whole provincial education budget is being run at a cost of Rs. 1,18 lakhs. Thus it seems that the proposition made out in the resolution is nothing but simply playing with a very serious matter. If the mover had come forward with a resolution asking for something—some reasonable amount—for meeting the educational needs of the Scheduled Castes people, the proposition would have come in a different way with practical suggestions and a sum could easily be found by re-renching some other head. But 50 lakhs cannot be had—if you ask for the moon, it cannot be had. This is clearly an instance of misplaced generosity. It has been suggested by Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee that the Caste Hindus have done and are doing all that is possible. But I may tell you, Sir, that the Scheduled Castes are the creation of the misdeeds of the Caste Hindus. If they are doing anything they are doing it in penance and in expiation—to expiate the wrong done to the Scheduled Castes who are the victims of oppression of the Caste Hindus. The majority of the people who come under the category of the Scheduled Castes are part of the Hindu population. But why should there be such classification as Scheduled Castes and Caste Hindus, unless there has been something which rendered this class of people unfit to be—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It is Imperial Division.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: It is the Imperial policy.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, you are the leader of a party. You at least should not interrupt in this way.

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMED: As I was going to say, Sir, even Mahatma Gandhi is aware of the miseries cast on the Scheduled Castes. Of course, we do not find hardship inflicted by the Brahmins of Bengal on the Scheduled Castes to the same extent as it is in Madras and even in U. P. (Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: We are not concerned with that. Confine yourself to Bengal.) I mention it because they are also the same Brahmins and part of the same community. Then, Sir, there is no scheme or plan behind the resolution as to how this money will be spent. If a sum of Rs. 50 lakhs is sanctioned for the education of the Scheduled Castes today, my friend Mr. Barua who is also a member of the minority community may ask for a grant of 25 lakhs for the education of his community. If things like that happen, I do not know where do we stop. So I think that this resolution has been brought in a spirit of levity without circumspection and reasonableness. Then, Sir, as I have already said, 50 lakhs is an enormous sum in proportion to the amount spent for the education of the whole province. Therefore, to my mind, the resolution has been put forward only to put the Government in power in a false position. All people who have eyes to see will feel like that. They feel that the resolution comes from a spring which is not honest but is a foul spring—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I object to the word "foul".

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Sahib, you had better not use that word.

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMED: Sir, I withdraw the word, but I did not use it in any malicious sense. However, I wish the Government or the party which is at the back of the Government, had the capacity to spend, why Rs. 50 lakhs, even Rs. 50 crores upon their education; but we must cut our coat according to our cloth. If we go on cutting the coat fantastically, it will be something which no one will wear.

Sir, I oppose the resolution, although I have sympathy for the Scheduled Castes.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA DATTA: Mr. President, Sir, really I had no mind to take part in this debate, because I was under the impression that all the members were in complete sympathy with the resolution. Members opposite began by saying that they had every sympathy with the spirit of the resolution except the last speaker who dissociated himself from that part of the sentiment expressed by other members. I, Sir, cannot for one moment feel as to how this simple resolution could have been the subject-matter of so much heat in this House. The resolution as it stands simply suggests that the Government should set apart a sum, the amount suggested is Rs. 50 lakhs, for the education of the Scheduled Castes. A considerable section of this House is in sympathy with the principle and spirit underlying the resolution; but a few from the opposite section, the section supporting the Government considers the amount as too big. In that event, I expected they would come forward with some sort of amendment as regards the amount. They could suggest a reasonable figure or for the matter of that, it could have been left to the Government to decide as to how much should or could be spent. Instead of that, this resolution has been characterised as one "crying for the moon". The Government say that there are no funds available and that nothing could be set apart. This, I think, is the most unkindest cut of all. If you have any sympathy, as you profess you have, you ought to have come forward with some figure, namely, in place of Rs. 50 lakhs you could say Rs. 10 lakhs. (Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Rs. 5 lakhs.) I hear a voice whispering that Rs. 5 lakhs might be suggested. We all know, Sir, how Rs. 5 lakhs which was provided for in the Budget was allowed to be lapsed. Now, the honourable member says Rs. 5 lakhs. All right, provide Rs. 5 lakhs but why should you condemn this resolution? Why should you say that no amount should be set apart?

Then, Sir, a lot has been said against the Caste Hindus. Well, belonging as I do to the Official Congress Party, I do not feel inclined to say anything in reply so far as that part of the accusation is concerned, except that it is wholly irrelevant and far from the truth. But I agree with Mr. Mukherjee when he said that but for the princely contributions made ungrudgingly by the Caste Hindus towards the development of education in this country, education for everybody—Hindu, Muslim or Christian—the University would not have been what it is today. It was all due to the help of the Caste Hindus. This, I think, the honourable members opposite ought to admit.

Sir, the Congress has always been keen on this problem and in the other provinces arrangements have been made for the uplift of this unfortunate section of our own community. It is unfortunate that so far as Bengal is concerned sufficient provision has not been made by any Ministry. I would, therefore, beg of the supporters of the Ministry to consider the matter more sympathetically, as they profess they want to do good to them. Let there be no dissentient voice against this very simple resolution and let the supporters of the Government show that their sympathy with the resolution is real and not lip-deep. As regards the question of finding money, may I tell my learned friends opposite that when it has been possible for the Government to introduce fresh measures of taxation to meet other needs, Government can, if it is so minded, find the money for this particular cause. Once they feel it is a good cause for which they ought to spend money, as they have said that it is, there should be no want of funds. Where there is a will, there is a way! The only conclusion that one would draw from their attitude towards this resolution is that in spite of all these professions of sympathy, there is in fact no will on the part of the Government to help the cause of education for the Scheduled Castes people. There is the sales tax, which has been doubled, and then the agricultural income-tax which, according to Government, is not meant for improvement of agriculture and thus may very well be spent towards this very desirable object. But this is not to be. The Government is not sympathetically disposed and therefore they cannot and will not find any money to educate our unfortunate brethren.

With these few words, I support the resolution which has been moved by my friend Mr. Mazumdar.

The Hon'ble Mr. TAMIZUDDIN KHAN: Mr. President, Sir, the resolution has been discussed rather threadbare, and I should not therefore like to make any lengthy speech. So far as the principle underlying the resolution is concerned, I would like to say that my friend has not been able to spring a surprise in this respect, because the principle has long been recognised. The principle is that those communities which are backward in education should receive special and generous treatment at the hands of the Government. This principle has already been accepted. So far as the practicability of the proposition is concerned, it has already been shown by honourable members on this side of the House that it is an impossible proposition—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Education is an investment; why not borrow?

The Hon'ble Mr. TAMIZUDDIN KHAN: Sir, my honourable friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das is now full of generosity for the Scheduled Castes people; but the Party to which he is affiliated and the Party to which particularly my honourable friends Mr Majumdar and Mr. Mukherjee are affiliated were in power in this Province for full 16 months. An ounce of practical work is worth more than a pound of advice and mock generosity.

Did they provide a single pice more than what was provided by the previous League Ministry in this respect? They did not provide a single pice more than what was already provided by the Ministry that preceded. That was the real attitude of the party to which Mr. Majumdar and Mr. Mukherjee are affiliated towards the interests of the Scheduled Castes. So far as the present Ministry is concerned, as soon as they came into power they provided 5 lakhs; and if my honourable friends will please look up the pages of the current year's budget, they will see that 5 lakhs has been provided in the budget. Now, I may tell the House that this 5 lakhs is not only a provision for the current year but it will be a recurring provision for coming years also. It has been said that money might have been provided in the budget in the past but that money was not spent. It is not altogether true; some of the money was spent but the whole amount was not spent. That is to be admitted, but if there is any blame in this matter the blame must lie at the door of the great man who is now recognised as the leader of the gentlemen who adorn the opposition benches. He must be held responsible for any non-expenditure of the money that was provided. But I may assure the House that so far as the money provided in the current year's budget is concerned, it is proposed to spend the whole amount and the same amount will again be provided in the coming years' budgets.

It has been said, Sir, "why not pass the resolution and then provide as much as you can". The Party that supports the Government cannot accede to a proposition like that. If the Government party accepts a resolution, it will be the incumbent duty of the Government to act upon it. It is an absurd proposition to say that 50 lakhs should be provided in the current year's budget for the education of the Scheduled Castes. It is an absurd proposition and therefore the Government party can never accede to a proposition like that.

As regards the real purpose of the resolution, I need not say much. The real purpose is indicated from the reception that it has got from the honourable member who belongs to the Scheduled Castes in this House. He has himself read something not quite sincere in this resolution and I think he is quite right. For, look at the composition of the present Government. In no other previous Government in this province were the Scheduled Castes more adequately represented than in the present Government. In the present Government the Scheduled Castes have got as many as three members on the Cabinet. Now, when a member belonging to another community, be that community Hindu or Muslim, when they come up with propositions like this, naturally it raises on one side suspicion and on the other side a feeling of insult: insult, because the Scheduled Castes who are now self-conscious, feel that when other people come with a proposition like this, that means that the leaders of the Scheduled Castes are nobodies, that they have not got eyes to see the real interests of their own community and it must be left to members of another community to open their eyes and to tell them which way their real interests lie.

That is the real implication of an attempt like this and from this point of view I think such attempts are bound to be resented by any self-respecting member of the Scheduled Castes, particularly when the Scheduled Castes have as many as three representatives on the Cabinet of the province. I have already said what is the record of the present Ministry in respect of the provision for the education of the Scheduled Castes. Mr. Lalit Chandra Das said that they want Rs. 40 lakhs for primary education and Rs. 10 lakhs for secondary education. But look at the total amount spent for the education of all the communities. It will not come up to the amount proposed to be spent according to the present resolution (Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMED: They do not mean it.) Yes, they do not mean it. I would submit that the proposition looks like a joke. When a gentleman of the standing and status of Mr. Haridas Mazumdar comes forward with an absurd proposition like this, one is apt to think that he is joking with a serious subject like this. I can assure the Scheduled Castes members of this House and through this House to the entire Scheduled Castes community of the province that the present Government will always be prepared to go as far as possible to further the interests of the Scheduled Castes. The present Government will see that the people of the different communities composing the population of the province come up to the same level in respect of education. Therefore so far as the impediments that stand in their way to come up to the proper level are concerned, every attempt should be made and will be made to remove them. We are now expecting that after the war a new comprehensive scheme will be in operation in respect of the education of the entire population of the province and if at all we are able to give effect to the scheme that we are now considering, then crores of rupees will have to be spent for the education of the people of Bengal. It is proposed that not only primary education will be free and compulsory but secondary education up to a certain stage will also be made free and compulsory. If that day comes, that will be a Red-Letter day for the Scheduled Castes, and in fact for all backward communities. I may say, Sir, that no injustice will be done to any one—no injustice will be done to the Caste Hindus. The great Caste Hindu community has done a good deal for the advancement of education in the province and they deserve their due. Every community will stand on equal footing and every community will receive its due share in education.

Sir, perhaps I am digressing. I have already shown and the honourable members who have spoken from this side of the House have also shown that this is an impracticable proposition and as an honourable member whom I have often found to be reasonable, I would request my friend Mr. Mazumdar to consider whether he should like to have this resolution rejected by this House. If he would accept my advice, I would request him to withdraw the resolution. Otherwise, it will be our painful duty to oppose the resolution.

MR. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, as my friend Mr. K. C. Roy Chowdhury has got a very important resolution standing in his name, I do not like to take much time of the House. I think my honourable friends opposite have read their own minds in this simple resolution. I am a social worker the depressed classes and particularly the Scheduled Castes. I have brought this resolution for the educational advancement of the backward communities in Bengal, like the Scheduled Castes. Therefore, I should press this resolution and I commend it to the acceptance of the House. The acceptance of this resolution by the House does not mean that Government should shelve this resolution like many other resolutions adopted by the House in the past which have been shelved in the archives of the Secretariat. I would have been glad to accept any amendment to the effect, "provided the funds permit". But nothing of the sort was moved. If the Government had any intention to accept this resolution, they could have provided a reasonable sum in the supplementary budget. When money could be had for "Police", money can also be had for the education of the Scheduled Castes. I think they are not sincere about this resolution.

With these few words, I commend my resolution for the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that this Council is of opinion that the Government of Bengal should set apart a sum of fifty lakhs of rupees this year for the advancement of education of the Scheduled Caste Hindus of the Province.

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided.
Ayes being 8, and Noes 23, the resolution is negatived.

Mr. KRISHNA CHANDRA ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, I beg to move that this Council is of opinion that steps be taken to improve the indigenous shoe-making industry of Bengal as carried on by the muchis by supply of leather purchased from big tanneries to Bengalee muchis at reasonable prices and providing facilities to Bengalee muchis for making and selling shoes in at least fifty shops in Calcutta and Howrah, the rent of which is to be borne by Government for the first six months.

Sir, I would like to state at the very outset that by the term "Bengalee muchis" I mean members of the Hindu caste going by that name and also those of my Muhammadan and Christian brethren who still earn their bread by shoe-making, as also those Muhammadans and Christians who have in recent years lost this occupation of shoe-making for causes which I shall relate later on.

We should remember that we are at present considering relief to one of the poorest sections of this poor country which keep our Government going with revenues drawn from their under-paid labour. During the last year's famine the muchis along with fishermen and Bagdis have paid the highest toll of mortality among all sections of the Bengalee community and this has been possible only through the steady economic deterioration of these classes.

As regards the Hindu caste muchis, the following are the figures of population according to successive census reports:-

If castes were returned in the 1941 census, a further decline would have been noticed. I may point out here that on account of the step of not returning castes we have lost a good opportunity of making a detailed study of the various strata of Hindu society.

In course of 20 years up to 1931, there was a decline of 41 thousand or 8.7 per cent.; while the total population of British Bengal rose from 45,491,056 to 50,115,548 so that the increase was about 10 per cent. I am sure that if a separate counting could be made of Muhammadans dependent on shoe-making in 1911 and of their present strength, a similar decline in population would be recorded. Now, Sir, what is the cause of this lamentable state of things? The reason is that Bengalee muchis like Bengalee workmen of other lines have been fighting a losing battle against non-Bengalee hordes coming into Bengal. The term "non-Bengalee" appropriately includes up-country muchis and Chinese shoe-maker of Bentinck Street and Bowbazar, and the gigantic ramification of Messrs. Bata Shoe Co. These men with their superior organisation and resources are able to buy leather in large quantities at cheap rates as well as sewing machines which the poor Bengalee muchis cannot secure. With the influx of western civilisation in the country, the craze for foreign shoes came over our educated people and in our boyhood the name of Dawson's boots and shoes was very well known.

The task of annihilation of a useful community has been completed by the establishment of the Bata Shoe Factory at Budge Budge and its branches. In giving trade permit to this concern the Central Government has been ill-advised. The company is not British and does not belong even to an Empire country. This is a case of a hundred per cent. foreign exploitation. The safeguards with regard to external capital recommended by Pandit Madan Mohan Malavya as a member of the External Capital Committee should at least have been enforced. India is the paradise for capitalists, indigenous and foreign. With the inauguration of machinery in every country large masses have been thrown out of employment, but the State has been compelled to maintain them with the dole for the unemployed. Heavy bills on this head in western countries will be found in the last analysis to fall upon industry. I have made suggestions that Government should come to their rescue and should procure leather from big tanneries and supply the muchis leather at cost price. These poor muchis can neither hire shops in Calcutta nor have their own huts in the city. No one of these poor muchis can compete with the Bata's. Then, Sir, the Bata Company are employing bhadralog young men. They should have taken the Bengalee muchis and trained them and employed them in their firm. They are giving good pay, I admit, to bhadralogs at the expense of the poor muchis. I plead for them and request Government to urge upon the Industries Department to find out whether they can procure leather and supply to the muchis instead of carrying on propaganda. Government should also try to secure shops for them. On enquiry I found that in Howrah certain gentlemen were kind enough to provide small shops at low rent to the muchis. If the Government bear the cost of rent of 50 shops in Howrah and Calcutta for six months—a matter of 1,000 or 1,500 rupees a month—and if the poor muchis who earn their bread by shoe-making are brought in and allowed to carry on their trade in these shops free of rent, these people will stand on their own legs. I submit that Government should take some interest and ask the Industries Department to enquire about the possibility of securing leather for these muchis. With these words, I commend my motion to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved that this Council is of opinion that steps be taken to improve the indigenous shoe-making industry of Bengal as carried on by the muchis by supply of leather purchased from big tanneries to Bengalee muchis at reasonable prices and providing facilities to Bengalee muchis for making and selling shoes in at least fifty shops in Calcutta and Howrah, the rent of which is to be borne by Government for the first six months.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I wish to make a few remarks on the resolution just moved by my friend on the other side. I must say that anything which concerns the development of any industry of Bengal would receive our whole-hearted sympathy and support.

During this famine, the muchis have suffered very much and they should be helped in every possible way. The Government should try to improve their pecuniary condition, so that they may not fall victims of another famine in future. Shoe-making is a very important industry of Bengal. At present this industry is monopolised by people who come from outside Bengal. They earn money in Bengal and take away the major portion of their earnings outside Bengal. That is the state of things now going on. They employ some labour in their factories in shoe-making for their own benefit only. Chinese have made Calcutta their own residence. They carry on this industry and they use hides, etc., from other provinces and countries. Government of Bengal should try to help the development of this industry as much as possible.

As regards the resolution which has been moved by my learned friend, I find that in his resolution he has asked Government to hire 50 houses in Calcutta and Howrah for the benefit of these muchis. But how far that will be a practical proposition, I do not know. It appears from the wording of the resolution that Government should pay rent for those houses but whether those rents would be paid back, there is no mention. The latter part of the resolution, in my opinion, makes it rather impracticable. If one industry is given such help, other industries would also demand Government help and will ask for similar facilities. If the resolution wanted that some subsidy should be given in the shape of supplying hides at a concession rate, I would have gladly supported it. I do not think it will be of any help to the muchs. Practically, this resolution commits Government to hiring some houses. But there is difficulty of Government going into the market to hire houses. At once the rent will be charged higher. Ordinary citizens will not get any house. So from that point of view also, it will be a losing concern. It appears from the statistics that Bengal imports shoe-making materials from Cawnpore worth about lakhs of rupees—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I adjourn the House till 1-30 p.m. on Monday.

First Session, 1944—No. 44.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Monday, the 29th May, 1944, at 1-30 p.m., being the forty-fourth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

Obituary References.

MR. PRESIDENT: Order, order. It is the melancholy duty of the Chair to refer to the passing away of two most prominent citizens of Calcutta and of Bengal who were associated with the Bengal Legislative Council under the previous Constitution.

Maharaja Sushil Kanta Acharyya Chowdhury, of Mymensingh, passed away after a short illness on Saturday last at his Calcutta residence. The Maharaja was first elected a member of the Bengal Legislative Council in 1911. He was re-elected a member of the Bengal Legislative Council under the Montford Reforms as a representative of the Dacca University constituency and he was a sitting member of the Bengal Legislative Assembly representing the Dacca Landholders' constituency. As a member of the Bengal Legislative Council, the Maharaja took a prominent part in the discussions in connection with the amendment of the Bengal Tenancy Act in 1928. One of the leading landlords of the province, the Maharaja was generous to a fault and he maintained fully the traditions of his noble House by contributing to the causes of medical relief and education. The Dacca Mitford Hospital and the Dacca Medical School connected with that hospital owe a great deal to the munificence of the late Maharaja Sahib. The cause of education in Mymensingh is also greatly indebted to him. He was one of the principal benefactors of the Ananda Mohan College, Mymensingh. Though born in an aristocratic family, the Maharaja was extremely simple in habits. He had charming social manners and anybody who came in contact with him was naturally attracted by his character and impressed by his simplicity.

In him Bengal has lost a prominent citizen and the landholding community a noble representative.

Professor S. C. Mukherji who represented the Indian Christian community for a number of years in the Bengal Legislative Council under the previous Constitution expired at his Calcutta residence on Sunday last. He was a keen educationist and was long connected with the Serampore Missionary College. The late Professor took considerable interest in the advancement of education in Bengal. He was a pious Christian, a gentleman to the tip of his fingers, an able debator, and ardent social worker and a warm-hearted friend. In his death Bengal in general, and the Indian Christian community in particular, has lost a noble representative.

I would request you, ladies and gentlemen, to rise in your seats as a mark of respect to the memory of these two deceased citizens.

(Members rose in their seats.)

Thank you. I believe it is the desire of the House that I should convey the sense of our regret to the members of the bereaved families.

(Voices: Yes.)

Adjournment Motion.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I have got an adjournment motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, but I do not think you need read it. Please explain how it is a matter for an adjournment of the House.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, the motion is about severe shortage of supply of fresh milk in Calcutta which is greatly affecting the children and patients—

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I ask you, Mr. Mazumdar, one point—how do you fix the responsibility for this upon Government?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Upon whom should I fix the responsibility, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Calcutta Corporation.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: The Calcutta Corporation cannot tackle such a big problem for which the Provincial Government is responsible, because by slaughtering of cows and other things which the Corporation cannot control this state of things has been brought about. So ultimately Government is responsible for tackling the problem. Sir, it will be an insult to the intelligence of the House if the Government shifts the responsibility on to the Corporation. The Health Officer of the Corporation has already declared that there is 75 per cent. shortage in milk supply.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, that is so. But the point is this: Corporation is an autonomous body and it has got enormous resources. The Calcutta Municipal Act places special responsibility about the supply of milk and other articles of food on the Calcutta Corporation. It is the statutory duty of that body. Unless you can convince me that Government have failed in their duty in this particular matter, I cannot give my consent to your motion.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I would like to point out that it is the duty of the Calcutta Corporation to see that there is fresh supply of milk within the city and to safeguard its quality; but obviously it cannot be the duty of the Corporation to secure supplies from outside, for the milk supplied in the city comes from areas which are not within the control of the Calcutta Corporation. So far as the question of the shortage in the supply of milk arising out of the condition within the city is concerned, it is obviously the task of the Calcutta Corporation; but since the milk supplied is very largely dependent on outside supplies over which the Calcutta Corporation has no control and which are under the control of the Government, this adjournment motion is, in my opinion, in order.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, you are aware that the Calcutta Corporation more than once since 1924 discussed the question of milk supply and proposed to tackle it by having municipal dairies. So you cannot say that it is primarily a responsibility of Government or that the Calcutta Corporation authorities are entirely dependent on Government in this matter. If the Corporation wanted to solve this problem, they could have managed it by having dairies within municipal limits of Calcutta or outside the municipal limits of Calcutta under their control. In view of the special Act constituting the Corporation of Calcutta and the nature of autonomy given to the Corporation under that Act, I do not think you can place the responsibility on Government directly.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Sir, the Co-operative Milk Society is a body which is not under the control of the Calcutta Corporation. It is managed by Government. Therefore, if the Co-operative Milk Society fails to supply milk to the citizens of Calcutta, certainly Government is responsible.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But the Co-operative Milk Society supplements the resources of the Calcutta Corporation. It is never meant to substitute the resources of the Calcutta Corporation. So I do not think I can agree with the suggestion that it is the responsibility of Government. In my opinion, it is primarily the responsibility of the Calcutta Corporation to supply milk to the citizens of Calcutta.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, by moving this adjournment motion I want to draw the attention of Government to this important problem—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, this is not the proper method of drawing the attention of Government. Adjournment or suspension of the business of the House on such a plea should not be resorted to. That would be an abuse of the privilege of moving adjournment of the House. If you are to draw the attention of Government, you can do so through some other means. If you want to censure Government, then and then only you should move an adjournment motion.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, if you allow me I may read in this connection Sir Frederick Whyte's ruling—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have already given my ruling in this matter. I cannot go on arguing with you regarding my ruling. If you, however, want to discuss the general question as to what is the proper occasion for moving an adjournment motion, I am prepared to discuss the matter with you.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I submit that a motion for adjournment is moved for the purpose of drawing the attention of Government to a matter of urgent public importance just to enable the House to discuss it and the Government to make a statement on the subject; and it also provides an opportunity to the members of the Legislature to draw the attention of Government to matters of recent occurrence which could not otherwise be discussed under the ordinary procedure of the House. I would again submit, Sir, that it is very difficult to draw the attention of the Government to any matter of importance, because if we put short-notice questions, consent is not given. Therefore, I would request you to indicate to us what should be the alternative course of action for us in such a matter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The alternative would be in my opinion—if you consider this particular question to be of great urgency and importance from the public point of view—for you to ask Government to make a statement or reply to a short-notice question. If Government refuse to make a statement or refuse to answer your short-notice question or does not answer it in a satisfactory manner, then, of course, other remedies are open to you.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Then, the adjournment motion would be too late, Sir. However, in this connection may I ask the Government to treat my adjournment motion as a short-notice question. As you will agree, Sir, it is a very important matter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If you put a short-notice question on this matter, I am prepared to admit it provided it is in the proper form.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: But even then will the Government answer the question as a short-notice one?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Is the Honourable Leader of the House prepared to give an assurance to that effect?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAHYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: We have just started an enquiry regarding this question and as soon as we get the results of our enquiry, I shall be very glad to intimate the same to the honourable members of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The point is this: as public mind has been considerably agitated over the statement issued by the Health Officer of the Calcutta Corporation, are the Government prepared to answer at short-notice the question which the honourable member proposes to put?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Government should like to verify the statement issued by the Calcutta Corporation before they can make a statement. Perhaps it will take three or four days.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, three or four days for this purpose will not matter much. The House may then take it that Government will make a statement in the matter within the next three or four days.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: In view of this, I agree to withdraw my adjournment motion.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: May I rise on a point of information, Sir? May I refer to rule 98 of our Rules of Procedure which is as follows: No motion for an adjournment of the business of the Council for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance shall be admissible if it relates to a matter which is not primarily the concern of the Provincial Government. In accordance with this rule, may I say that the Calcutta Corporation is situated within the province of Bengal and the affairs of the Province of Bengal are certainly within the purview of the Government of Bengal—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, I am sure you will agree with us that no member of this House will like to infringe the autonomy of the Calcutta Corporation in this matter. It is certainly not primarily the responsibility of the Provincial Government. There is a distinction between a primary responsibility of a local body and that of the Government.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: But, Sir, that has always been done by this Government. I may remind you, Sir, that when you were the Minister in charge of Local Self-Government, you used to interfere with matters regarding the Calcutta Corporation which the Councillors of the Calcutta Corporation did not like at all.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That was for meeting a special situation. I do not propose to discuss or defend what I did as a Minister of Government. The honourable member is confusing the issues.

"Bhog"-ration.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: There is one other matter, Sir. The Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies made a promise that on Monday he would make a statement on the "Bhog"-ration for the Hindu deities. May I expect that statement today?

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Hon'ble Minister rang me up to say that a communique would soon be issued on the subject, but that as he was not in Calcutta that day he regretted very much his inability to be present in the Chamber to make a statement. In the meantime, however, action could be taken in the matter. As the House was going to be adjourned for a few days, on the first day the House would re-assemble the Hon'ble Minister would inform the House of what action had been taken. But in the meantime, he would issue a communique announcing his final decision.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Last time while discussing the motion for reference of this Bill to a Select Committee I briefly referred to some of the features which we find objectionable in the Bill and for which it is desirable that the Bill should be referred to a Select Committee. In that connection, Sir, I would for a moment crave your indulgence to refer to a question which was raised on the last occasion. When a motion for Select Committee is moved, I believe that the whole principle of the Bill can be discussed. There is no necessity to confine ourselves only to the motion for Select Committee. Whenever there is any motion for consideration, there are also motions for circulation and reference to Select Committee. These amendments are first taken up and therefore whatever one has to say whether with regard to the principle of the Bill or on the general questions involved in the Bill have to be stated at the time of discussion of circulation or Select Committee motions. Therefore, the contention of some of my friends opposite who suggested that in a motion for Select Committee no other questions but those relating to the Select Committee would be taken up is not valid. You will yourself remember, Sir, that on many occasions here and in another place when a motion for Select Committee was discussed—

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I interrupt you for a moment? The House accepts the principle of the Bill by accepting the motion for Select Committee. So you can certainly discuss the entire policy behind the Bill.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Thank you, Sir. My second point is this. Since this is a money Bill, a fiscal measure, a member has a right to touch on every aspect of Governmental activity. So far as taxation is concerned, one department of Government is interlinked with another. Now, Sir, this Bill proposes to raise money. Money is raised for one of two reasons—either on account of deficit or if a new type of social service is introduced for which there has been no provision in the past budgets. Beyond these two reasons, viz., either for excess expenditure for which there is no money or in order to meet some new mode of service, i.e., for new social activities—here is no justification for a new tax. It is for these purposes that taxation measures are introduced. Therefore, a taxation measure will always offer one of these two justifications. I do not think the Hon'ble Finance Minister would bring forward a taxation measure for any other purpose. The present Bill wants to raise money but we are not told what is the definite purpose for which the money is proposed to be raised. It is stated that it is desirable that the provincial revenue be augmented and hence this measure is being introduced. But we are not told why the revenues should be augmented. Therefore, I submit, Sir, that in discussing a motion for Select Committee, the whole administration of Government, if one desires, may be surveyed. I believe that when a taxation measure is before the House, you can discuss everything from the lamp-post to His Majesty the King, according to the dictum of Sir Frederick Whyte. I think you will agree that in discussing the motion for Select Committee, we are within our rights—not only within our rights but it is our duty—to survey some of the activities which are responsible for the introduction of these taxation measures.

Now, Sir, we find that in the Preamble to this Bill, there is no statement whatsoever as to why the Government want the money. There have been references by honourable members opposite to the fact that the Floud Commission in its report stated that till the Permanent Settlement could be abolished, the Government might impose an agricultural income-tax in order to augment the resources of the Province. In the Floud Commission Report it was at the same time clearly laid down that moneys derived from the agricultural income-tax should be ear-marked solely for the improvement of agriculture and allied questions. Now, there is no indication whatsoever in the Bill which we have before us today that the money which will be derived from this agricultural income-tax will be devoted solely to the improvement of the condition of agriculture or the condition of the agriculturists. Therefore, Sir, we fall back on the other alternative that Government very likely—I do not know what is in the mind of the Government—have brought forward this Bill in order to augment their resources, because they have found that the existing revenues are not adequate for the expenditure which they have already incurred or which they propose to incur; in other words, this money will be pooled into the general resources of the Province. I know that it is very often stated that moneys should not, as far as practicable, be ear-marked for any specific purpose. It is also quite often the case that the general resources are pooled together just as the allotments for expenditure under different heads are taken up as a whole. Therefore, it is not usually the custom to have a taxation measure in which the money is allocated to a specific head. But I would submit in this case that there are certain special considerations. We have to consider the nature of the Act which is sought to be introduced. We have also to consider the activities of the Government during the last 12 months.

I will take up the first question first. The Floud Commission recommended that the proceeds from the agricultural income-tax should be ear-marked solely for agricultural purposes, namely, improvement of agriculture and improvement of the condition of the agriculturist. They obviously had reasons for making such recommendations, and the reasons are quite easy to see. We find that the agriculturist in Bengal has had a very bad time in the past. It has been our conviction and we have stated it in this House and outside that so far as the Permanent Settlement is concerned, there was expropriation in regard to the tiller of the soil. This expropriation occurred in the year 1793 when the Permanent Settlement was instituted. The agriculturist was expropriated of his rights without any consideration for the past history of this country. However, Sir, this is a question which would take a very long time of the House, and I do not want to go into any further details about it just now. The position is that for 150 years the agriculturist in Bengal has had a hard time, and it was felt by the Floud Commission that he is entitled to relief. Therefore, the Floud Commission recommended that the agricultural income-tax should be devoted solely to improvement of the condition of agriculture and the agriculturist. It was an effort to do belated justice to a class of the community who have been unjustly treated in the past. Now, Sir, I would like to know if the Government want to devote the expected income to this purpose. If not,

I want to know why they want to deviate from the principle laid down by the Floud Commission so far as the agricultural income-tax is concerned. They must explain why they want to absorb the funds that may be obtained from the agricultural income-tax into the general revenues of the Province. This brings us to the second consideration, namely, the activities of this Government in the past.

Now let us consider the deficit which has resulted since the last famine. I need not go in detail into the causes of the last famine. There were various causes and the most fundamental cause was the denial policy; but the deficit has resulted from inflation. The inflationary process was set up because of the political background in which Governmental policy actually took shape. Here in India, Government had to pay more wages, more profits and they had to pay more for materials than in other countries under their sway. Because of greater payment for wages, profits and materials, Government had to create money. I am sure honourable members will remember that the note circulation of the Government of India went up six or seven times the normal circulation. It was about Rs. 180 crores in 1940; but about the end of 1942 it had gone to over Rs. 700 crores. There has been this inflationary process set up by Government. The political action of the Government in refusing to recognise the Indian demand for independence and transfer of power alienated a very large section of the people. The people did not feel the enthusiasm for the war measures of which we find a very magnificent example in the conduct of the people in England.

The people of England were prepared to and did undergo hardships; the people of Russia also had undergone tremendous hardships and paid for the war because they felt that it was their war and they were fighting for their land and for democracy and all that. But here the people were not convinced about the morality of the war. Whatever was done here in connection with the war was done purely out of the motive of profit. The Government of India did bring in this inflationary process in order to find the necessary men and materials for the conduct of their war effort. Unfortunately, it so happened that for all these acts of commission and omission of the Government of India and the failure of Whitehall, poor Bengal had to suffer. It was Bengal which suffered on account of the acts of omission and commission of Mr. Churchill's Government and the Government of Lord Linlithgow. Conditions were bad throughout India because the people had no enthusiasm for the war. But Bengal suffered most because Bengal was in the war zone. Of all the provinces of India, Bengal was the one province most affected by the war. The people were, therefore, suffering because of the lack of political foresight on the part of men like Mr. Churchill and Lord Linlithgow.

That was the background, Sir, in which the famine took place. It was because the denial policy was instituted against a background like this that these terrible sufferings took place. In answer to a question today, we are told that about 3 crores of rupees were spent only in the treatment of destitutes in hospitals. Sir, all these were charges which were directly the result of lack of sympathy in general to the war effort, because the people did not feel it to be their own war. The famine occurred against the background of the inflationary process set up by the Government of India and engendered by the peculiar military situation in which Bengal found herself to be a war front. Bengal had not been prepared for this. The Government of India had never thought that any attack would come from the East and therefore all the processes of defence had to be reversed and had to be brought back to the Eastern frontier. That is the background. Since the expenditure that has been incurred during the war could be directly or indirectly attributed to the war, this Government should have gone to the Centre for a subvention, in view of the background which I have just now described before the House. This is the background, Sir, in which this huge deficit has been incurred—

Mr. PRESIDENT: How long more will you take, Mr. Kabir, to conclude your speech? The last day you said that you would take 10 to 15 minutes more and you took about 15 minutes; today also you have taken about 10 minutes.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I admit, Sir, that I have been speaking for a long time. It was my intention to finish soon, but since then many points have come up. As you know, Sir, if I am irrelevant or if I repeat myself unnecessarily, you can pull me up. But so far I have not, I believe, repeated a single argument. Besides, so far as taxation measures are concerned, I submit that there is no time-limit. Therefore, if without repeating myself or without being irrelevant, I speak for even a couple of hours, —though certainly I have not that intention, —I shall be within my rights.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Still, for the convenience of other members I think you should practise some amount of self-control in this matter.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I will try to be as brief as I can. I am afraid, however, that very often interruption means more time because one has to build up the argument afresh. I was saying, Sir, that it was the duty of the Government to have gone to the Centre for some subvention rather than attempt to raise this money by imposing an agricultural income-tax upon the people during this crisis.

I have now placed before the House my argument about the background to the famine which was created by the inflationary policy of the State. You will remember, Sir, that about the middle of February, 1943, it became quite clear that there was an acute shortage of foodstuff in this province. In this very House a question was asked—I forget who asked the question, it might have been Mr. Nur Ahmed or it might have been some one else. The answer then given was that there was shortage in this province. As a result, there was further aggravation in the state of uncertainty in the public mind. Thereafter, we in this House attempted to have Bengal declared a deficit province. We urged that there should be an appeal to the Central Government and other provinces and countries outside India for sending foodstuff here. That was unfortunately not done. On the contrary, the Government which came into being on the 24th April, 1943, did an act which I cannot characterise as anything else except enmity with the people of this country. This Government on assumption of office declared that there was no shortage of foodstuff. They also said that whatever apparent shortage there was, was due to the people themselves. Hoarding by the local people was, the Government said, the only reason for the people's difficulty. This was perhaps true as far as the Government were concerned, for probably Government were the greatest hoarder as was actually proved at a later stage. They were responsible for whatever difficulty was felt. But the irresponsible statement of Bengal Ministers was an instance of the cruelest treachery to the people. Government were guilty in three respects. First of all, they diverted the responsibility of feeding the people from the Government by their declaration that there was sufficient foodstuff in the province. The question of responsibility of the Government only arises when there is actual famine condition or scarcity and the condition is such that the people cannot feed themselves without governmental help. Such condition existed last year and yet the Bengal Ministers went about saying that there was no scarcity or famine. There was, therefore, an error of judgment on the part of Government, if it was nothing else. If a less charitable view is taken, it may be described as enmity to the people. Certain activities followed as a result of which Government are responsible for the great calamity which we witnessed last year. The Government diverted the attention of the people from the gravity of the situation by their declaration that there was no dearth of foodstuff. Then, Sir, a division was created among the people themselves by this sort of propaganda. The Government said that there was sufficient foodstuff but that on account of private hoarders difficulties were created. Instead of a united people pressing Government to take responsibility, we had the spectacle of the people divided among themselves and blaming and suspecting one another. There was suspicion in the mind of even Mr. Suhrawardy! He would have a food drive in which it was necessary that every household should be ransacked! This made the people nervous and was responsible for more black-marketing business. Large amount of foodgrains were brought to Calcutta, as in that strange order of Government, Calcutta and Howrah were excluded from the purview of the food drive. At Calcutta and Howrah there were a number of huge warehouses ———

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir certainly you are entitled to discuss the principle of the Bill. But don't you think that you are far away from the motion before the House?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I submit, Sir, that this argument is relevant to the motion before the House. If Government had ear-marked money from the proposed tax for the purpose of agriculture, the position would have been otherwise. They are not going to do so. There is no intention on the part of Government to ear-mark the money from the present Bill. Before we vote for this money, we must know the purpose for which the money raised by this taxation will be spent. Why should we vote additional moneys if these are to be squandered or misspent? I am giving instances of the way in which additional expenditure was incurred through the acts of omission and commission of this Government.

This Government, I contend, must bear the main responsibility for the tragedy of last year because of their acts either of oversight or lack of foresight or it may be that because they did not have the imagination to see what would be the condition of this Province. I am sure that you yourself will see that it is absolutely necessary to the argument that I am building up to consider these questions. My contention is that money proposed to be raised by the present Bill should be ear-marked. We in this House should not be prepared to give a blank cheque to the Government, especially after they have proved by their activities of the last 12 months or so that they do not deserve a blank cheque. That is why I stated before that their insistence that there was no food shortage was mainly responsible for the tragedy of 1943. It prevented the inflow of food from outside. Private individuals went on saying that there was shortage but the Government—a responsible Government and a Government which it must be admitted has a large number of the members of the Legislature behind it—said the opposite. When such Government make the statement that there was no shortage, naturally people outside this Province and people outside India, who do not know in what way the Government of India Act is made to function, believed it. I am sure you, Sir, have seen the recent statement of Lord Halifax in which he stated that Bengal has the same kind of Government as one of the States of the United States of America has got! If that is the sort of propaganda carried on by British functionaries, is it surprising that many Englishmen and Americans should believe that Bengal had really a popular Government? By not searching the godowns of Calcutta and Howrah, the Government helped whatever rice was in Bengal to accumulate in these places. This is an example of the lack of efficiency and the lack of imagination on the part of the present Government that we regret.

The Government of Bengal said that there were hoards but these hoards could not be unearthed in spite of a very highly developed police system, a highly developed espionage system, a highly developed Intelligence Branch—an Intelligence Branch which can almost read people's thought before they are thought! We feel that the attention of some members of the Intelligence Branch might be devoted to better purpose than shadowing innocent people. In spite of such an Intelligence Branch, they could not find out the hoards. Therefore, it would be right to say that actually there were no hoards, and if at all there were any hoards, they were with Government themselves. These hoards were released later on when lakhs of maunds of rice and paddy were wasted in the stations of Jessore and Khulna and in the godowns of Narayanganj, Dacca, Chandpur and elsewhere having been rendered unfit for human consumption. These activities of the present Government were responsible for the loss of public revenues. The foodgrains which were allowed to rot in the godowns cost money, and today we have to impose new taxes. Money was literally thrown into the Hooghly, Padma, and Brahmaputra. Food was allowed to be wasted while tens of thousands of people starved. The reasons why I emphasize on this aspect of their activities are two-fold: during the last year they tried to shirk their responsibility of feeding the people by false cries of hoarding. Government were responsible for the wastage, the extraordinary wastage of probably lakhs and more than lakhs maunds of foodgrains. Today we are again faced with a deficit which is largely on account of the acts of Government. Government have spent about 3 crores of rupees for treating people suffering from the effects of starvation. This need not have been spent if food came to the people in time. If in the months of May and June, when the people of Bengal were clamouring for food, Government had arranged for foodstuffs to come from outside, if Government had not failed miserably in their duty, if they had not gone out of their way to mislead public opinion all over the world, the tragedy of 1943 would not have taken place. In this way they have made themselves responsible for the murder of many lakhs of people of this province. But for their gross mismanagement, this question of destitutes would never have arisen at all, this question of hospitals for destitutes also would never have arisen at all. All these hospitals ministered to people whose health was shattered because they had to go without food. This relief had to be given to the people because their resistance had been undermined day by day, week by week, month by month on account of starvation and all the evils and misery attendant on starvation. After all, these conditions had been created by Government. All this expenditure, I am sure, would not have to be incurred if the Government had taken courage at the right time and taken proper steps.

Government did not realise the magnitude of the terrible calamity that was coming, but they ought to have foreseen that a calamity of some sort was coming. Probably nobody was able to visualise that the calamity would be of a magnitude unprecedented in the history of the province; but there is a difference between the private individual and the Government. It was the obvious duty of the Government at least to try to foresee the calamity. Even if they could not realise the magnitude, it was obviously their duty to take all possible steps as a precautionary measure. I am quite confident, Sir, that if this Government had made in May and June that appeal which it made in September and October, and had received in May and June that help which came from outside in September and October, lakhs of people would not have died for want of food. I am sure the charges on the provincial exchequer would have been much less than what has been actually incurred. Government fought shy of giving relief at the time when relief was possible and necessary. The result of all this was that when they were actually forced to give relief, the magnitude of that relief was more than what it would have been if that relief were given in proper time. The conduct of Government supplies a glaring, bitter and tragic instance of that common proverb—a stitch in time saves nine. There was not one stitch in time and the nine stitches have not saved the province. On the contrary, valuable food worth lakhs of rupees has been lost and what is even more tragic, valuable lives have been lost. This is the background, Sir, and this is the reason why we cannot accept the Bill without modification.

I have already stated at the outset that I am not against an agricultural income-tax as such, or any other taxation measure, provided the taxation aims at the benefit of the people of the country. Taxation is an instrument for diverting the superfluous wealth of the rich and providing social services and utilities, such as health, education and other services for the poor. Therefore, I am not against taxation as such. But when the record of this Government is so black—and I have suggested they themselves know that their record is black—how can we give a blank cheque to this Government? I consider it necessary to state the reason and purpose of my supporting the reference of this Bill to a Select Committee. There are, on the one hand, the recommendations of the Flood Commission. On general principles, without going into the merits or demerits of any Government whatever, they laid down the policy that any money derived from an agricultural income-tax should be devoted solely to the amelioration of agriculture and the welfare of the agriculturist. These are general principles which we all accept; but in addition to that, when we have a Government whose bona fides are subject to question, whose ability has been proved to be almost nil and whose efficiency is at the very lowest ebb, which has branded itself by lack of imagination as one of the most callous of Governments that a country can tolerate, when we have a Government like this, how can it be expected—against the background of the general principles laid down by the Floud Commission—how can it be expected that this Government should be trusted with so much funds? We know the way in which the present Government is spending money. I might again briefly refer, as I referred on the last occasion, to the fact that if this Government has excelled in anything, it is certainly in creating new departments which with all their paraphernalia of officers and other things do not know what exactly to do. Elsewhere, with expansion in the number of civil servants, the amount of civil service actually increases; but here in Bengal we have a paradoxical situation. In all other countries, the increase of civil servants always means an increase of service available to the people; but here we have a strange paradox, namely, that increase in the number of civil servants is attended with a decrease for civil service almost in the reverse ratio. In such a situation, how can it be expected that Government should be given this blank cheque?

These things, Sir, could be thrashed out much more conveniently in the Select Committee than on the floor of the House. It is known to everybody in this House that if a suggestion is made on the floor of the House, it is rarely accepted by Government. In the Select Committee, in the relatively calmer and cooler atmosphere, it is possible for Government to take the members into confidence and approach the problem in a spirit of co-operation. This is not always possible on the floor of the House. There, the Hon'ble Minister who presides over the Select Committee may take the members into confidence. For all these reasons, it is very desirable that the Bill should be sent to the Select Committee. I will not go into greater details. I have already taken more time than it was my intention at first to take and I leave this argument here. But before I conclude, I must say one thing. It is that Government always take this House in a casual manner. They have considered important Bills elsewhere and sprung them upon us and rushed them through—got them through—without even changing a comma or semi-colon. If there were joint select committees of the two Houses, we could discuss these Bills in a more detailed manner. When the Bills came before the House later on, so much criticism and discussion would not then be necessary. But as it is now, we are asked to father a baby which is sprung upon us. Plans completed, constructed, without any possibility of modification by this House are thrust upon us. How can we accept a thing in the planning of which, in the shaping of which we have no hand? Whatever emerges as an Act, you know very well, is an Act of the Legislature in which both Houses concur. We always find that important Bills are discussed in detail in the Select Committee elsewhere. After the Select Committee has given shape to it and the Bill is passed elsewhere, it is brought before this House. Now, Sir, as a revising Chazzler, it is the duty of this House to examine every Bill thoroughly instead of hurrying or rushing through them. If we hurry, we would be failing in our duty. A joint Select Committee would I think meet the situation and obviate the difficulty at present experienced. It is up to this House to see that its rights are not trampled in this manner, and it is not asked to rubber stamp and merely endorse what has actually taken place in another House.

There is another consideration why this motion for Select Committee should be accepted by Government. Government wants to hurry the Bill through. If so, they can ask for an earlier date by which the Select Committee report will be completed. The date of the Select Committee report could be modified, provided there is general agreement. In the motion which has been moved, it is proposed that the report of the Select Committee should be submitted by 31st July. This is a short period. I think it would not be a longer period than if the Bill is actually considered clause by clause on the floor of the House. With the consent of the House you may, if you so choose, have an earlier date. Unless some such accommodation is made by Government, this House—at least those members who lack blind faith in the Government—are not prepared to give a blank cheque to the Government. I know that some honourable members on the other side think that whatever they do in this House is right. Only this afternoon I was saying to a friend—a member of this House—that when the Delphic Oracle said that Socrates was the wisest man of Greece, Socrates was at first surprised, for he was conscious of his own lack of knowledge. Later on, he admitted the correctness of the Oracle, for while he knew little and knew that this was so, the others did not know and yet thought that they knew everything. I would ask the Hon'ble Finance Minister who often gives lectures on Economics to members on this side of the House to remember the prophecy of the Delphic Oracle. The findings of Economics are varying today. The economics in which my friend might have been brought up or the economics in which his youthful days were passed have already been largely discarded. I would ask him to cultivate something of the humility of Socrates, something of the attitude which is not cocksure and dogmatic about everything. These considerations should persuade Government to accept this motion for a Select Committee. If it goes to a Select Committee, I am quite sure that in this House we can thrash out different clauses and make of it a better Bill than the one which has come here. You will bear me out that on more occasions than one this House has materially improved Bills. When Bills are brought here, this House has to apply its mind and it has often done so in the past. Unfortunately, we do not have here today one of my honourable friends who is a specialist in what we call technical amendments. If this technical specialist had been present amongst us today and lent his services, it might have been of great value to the Government. Therefore considering all these things, I would urge very strongly upon Government to accept the motion for Select Committee.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Mr. President, Sir, at the very outset I hasten to say that there is no question about the equity of the measure and there is no question that the agricultural income-tax should not be one of the principal sources of revenue in Bengal. That is what I said when I moved my motion for circulation of the Bill for eliciting public opinion thereon. There has been difference of opinion with respect to time. In my opinion, it is not the opportune time when this tax should be imposed. War is on and the condition of Bengal is not what it is in normal times. But the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has expressed an opinion which has been supported by the Party that is behind him that this is the most opportune time for such a measure. In fact, my honourable friend Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury opined that many people have piled money upon money by Government contracts and therefore this is the time when a tax like this should be imposed. I am of opinion, Sir, that those persons who have made themselves rich by war contracts will go scot-free. In fact, these are the people who have made bank balances, and whenever they wanted to invest their money, they did so by acquiring lands and buildings in urban areas, and the rest of the money they devoted to business purposes. Most of this class of people will not be affected at all by the provisions of this Bill; and those who will be affected, Sir, are big agriculturists and rent-receivers and revenue-payers. These people are mostly over head and ears in debt. The Finance Minister knows this fact very well. Now, I would like to ask the Finance Minister to remember that these big agriculturists, rent-receivers as well as revenue-payers in the mufassil have got to respond to 101 local calls, to contribute to different funds, particularly to those related to the War. Last year they contributed nobly to Sir Herbert's call for 40 lakhs for Indian Red Cross. This year Mr. Casey, the Governor, has appealed to them to contribute Rs. 44 lakhs for the same Indian Red Cross. This huge amount of money will also be realised mostly by contributions taken from these big agriculturists, rent-receivers as well as revenue-payers. Sir, is it the proper time when the Finance Minister thinks that they must be overwhelmed with taxes? I think, Sir, that Government ought to remember one important fact in this connection that whenever there is a proposal for imposition of a fresh tax, people's grievances ought to be met. Sir, our grievances are many, but our particular grievance is that the prices of the necessities of our life have gone sky high. The price of rice in spite of control is rising everyday. The price of mustard oil, the price of kerosine, sugar and coal and the price of everything that is necessary to keep our body and soul together have gone sky high and beyond control. Government have so far failed to enforce controlled prices in order to enable us to live a peaceful life. The economic life of Bengal is at a very low ebb today, and the people are feeling the pangs of hunger. Is it the opportune time when Government should have come forward to overwhelm the people of Bengal with a new tax like this agricultural income-tax?

Sir, I say that although agricultural income-tax should be one of the principal sources of revenue in Bengal, yet if it is not imposed for the improvement of agriculture solely, it is apt to be misapplied. The money should be spent for the right purpose; otherwise it will be misused. Sir, the Government is very cryptic as to the reason why this taxation should be imposed. All that has been stated in the Statement of Objects and Reasons for the Bill is that the Government want money. In order to add to the revenues of Bengal, this taxation is going to be imposed. These are the words: "Whereas it is necessary to make an addition to the revenues of Bengal and for that purpose to impose a tax on agricultural income derived from land situated in Bengal." That is what is stated to be the purpose of the Bill. I would like to say that one reason why the Finance Minister has not come forward to ear-mark this revenue for the needs of agriculture is that he desires to meet the deficit from the proceeds of this tax. Now, Sir, if that is his object, then we should refuse him this tax, or if we at all allow him to get this tax, we should say that at least this tax should not be spent on meeting the deficit as he wants to do. Sir, I may say that in the course of one or two years we have raised the revenue of this province from Rs. 16½ crores to Rs. 23 crores. That is a good achievement in all conscience. The expenditure side now has come to 33 crores and if that is so, whose fault is this? How could expenditure go up so much if a huge amount had not to be spent on famine and extraordinary charges in India? The famine was the offshoot of the war and the extraordinary charges in India are also the result of the war effort. So far, therefore, as the deficit is concerned, it should be met by the Government of India and not by us. In whatever way this huge deficit may be met, my contention is that not a pie of this agricultural income-tax should be spent for the purpose of meeting this deficit. Now, Sir, our view is that this tax should be devoted solely to the purpose of the improvement of agriculture and projects connected with agriculture. Is it at all possible, Sir, that we shall be able to carry any of our points in the open House here with the Finance Minister shadowing over the members of the Government party? On the contrary, Sir, if the Bill is referred to a Select Committee, in its cool atmosphere, we can get certain amendments passed. As I deal with this point as to whether there is any such possibility in the Select Committee, I may remind members as to what happened in connection with the Land Alienation Bill which Government introduced and got passed for the purpose of helping those who were obliged to sell lands at the time of the last famine at a price not exceeding Rs. 250. I may mention that the Bill as originally introduced in this House was full of errors, so much so that we had to submit a large number of amendments and our amendments were many and various. This was found out by the Hon'ble Mr. Tarak Nath Mukerjee, Member in charge of the Bill, who turned to us for help in order to have his Bill passed and suggested that in order to improve the Bill we might meet at a conference. Well and good; we readily agreed but we found afterwards that he was economising, that is to say, he did not call us but he called his party, gave them tea which was promised to us and considered our amendments. They accepted at that meeting almost all the amendments of which we had given notice, so that when a new draft of the Bill emerged we found to our surprise that our amendments were all accepted.

The result was that the Bill was passed into law without much hitch. The Hon'ble Revenue Minister came out with leaflets containing full page photograph of himself and took credit for himself. Another experience of ours is this. There was the Animal Diseases Act. A Select Committee were called. When we went there, we found the members of the Government party were very reasonable and listened to our suggestions in a co-operative spirit: there were many changes and many amendments were accepted and the Bill was passed without much controversy. That is our experience. So in the Select Committee many things could be amicably settled which it is not possible on the floor of the House. We have however our bitter experience in respect of the Sales Tax Bill, which was not referred to a Select Committee. There the members of the Government party wanted to get through the Bill without any change or modification, and the Opposition could do nothing because the Government party with overwhelming majority blindly voted for it. Now, Sir, coming back to the question of improving the condition of agriculture with the proceeds of this tax and ear-marking the same for this, the Hon'ble the Finance Minister objected to the term "earmark" and said that it is bad finance. I would like to tell you, Sir, that the Floud Commission did not use the word "earmark" but specifically recommended that the tax which will be raised out of agricultural income should be devoted solely to effecting agricultural improvement. Now, Sir, the Floud Commission, some of the members of which are now among the Government party, and some of them were also experts, expressed their opinion that the tax should be devoted solely for the purpose of agricultural improvement. But the Finance Minister said that it would be bad finance if this fund is applied solely for agricultural improvement. I do not understand how it could be so. I hope the Hon'ble Minister will enlighten the House on this point. I am just saying why it is possible for the proceeds of this tax to be devoted for the purpose of agricultural improvement and even ear-marked. There is such a thing as the Railway Board of the Government of India. The Railway Board has a separate finance. There the Railway Board raises its own revenue and spends it for the purpose of improving the railway system throughout India. Of course whenever there is excess, it gives it to the general budget but its finances are separate. Why can't we have an Agricultural Board —

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Are you quite sure that the amount expected to be raised by this tax will cover the agricultural budget or even a fraction of it?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: No question of covering the whole agricultural budget—it may meet part of it. I may now tell you how an Agricultural Board which would be presided over by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Agriculture —

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: We have Agricultural Advisory Board —

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Not the Agricultural Advisory Board but I say, an Agricultural Board like the Railway Board of the Government of India.

Sir, the Hon'ble Finance Minister told us that even without ear-marking the amount for the purpose of agricultural improvement they had lavishly financed the Agriculture Department. Their contribution of 2 crores of rupees has been devoted to the improvement of agriculture. Well and good. Add to this amount the agricultural income-tax proceeds and give that Board sufficient amount for the purpose of agricultural improvement and for projects connected with improvement of agriculture, such as irrigation, transport facilities and many other things, and let the Board be responsible for improvement of agriculture in Bengal. Agriculture is one of the nation-building subjects. Sir, I think that in order to avert a future famine, the Agriculture Department must remain responsible to the people. Burma has gone at least for the present, and with Burma export and import have also gone for the present. Now, every other province will be trying to be self-supporting. But we are having deficits every year and are expecting help from other provinces. We should also try to be self-supporting in respect of the essential supplies. The Agriculture Department should have a separate Board like the Railway Board which will be entirely responsible for the improvement of agriculture, so that Bengal may not have to look to the provinces for help or may not have to import food supplies from outside. Bengal is a rich and fertile country and so it can certainly stand on its own provided a competent Agricultural Board with a competent Agriculture Minister to preside over it is set up to utilise all the money that can be received from the Government for the purpose of averting famine in future.

Sir, the most important reason why this Bill should be sent to a Select Committee is that there it may be considered in a calm atmosphere. Take for instance, the question that if Government say that the Bill will come into operation from April, 1944, we will say in the Select Committee that it is not the proper time for the Bill to come into operation until the war is over, and that until Bengal returns to its normal time the provisions of this Bill cannot be given effect to; and as Government has at its back a big majority there is some hope in the Select Committee, while there is none in the open House. We hope the Select Committee members of the Government will be reasonable men. What hope we have here?

The taxation limit has been placed a bit high. In fact, all the electors and voters, every member of this House will be brought within the ring of this measure, although many members of the Lower House and their constituencies may get away scot-free. Not a single voter not a single member of this House will escape from the operation of this Bill. I say, therefore, that this is a Bill which should be considered very carefully by each and every member of this House and that is best done in a Select Committee. If the matter does not go to a Select Committee but is considered here straightaway on the floor of the House and the Bill is passed without the change of a comma or a semi-colon—that is a proposition which each and every member of the House will consider not to be fair.

Now, Sir, there are very important sections in the Bill, for instance, sections 4, 6, 7 and particularly 8 which provide as to how the assessment and allowances are to be made. With regard to allowances, my contention is that they should be very carefully considered. With regard to the allowances, in our opinion, one very important omission has been made and this has been pointed out by my friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee, who quoting from the relevant English Act, showed what the position in England was. He pointed out that the cost of maintenance of family members will not be taken into account in estimating the costs which should be deducted for the purpose of arriving at the net agriculture income. What hope have we here, in this House, when we move our amendments, that my friends on the other side will consider the propositions coolly and vote according to reason?

There are other sections also, such as section 49 and others, in regard to which European members think seriously. In fact, Mr. Laidlaw referred to this and pointed out certain inequities but after examining these points he ended by blessing the Bill and supporting it. That is to say, if those inequities of which they complain go off, then "Devil take the rest" was his idea. He did not care what would happen to us. As regards clause 49, Khan Bahadur Momin—I do not find him here, perhaps he would be coming up when the bell would ring for a division, if a division is called—Khan Bahadur Momin has suggested that one should pay income-tax in the country where it is actually earned and should not escape payment here by paying his tax in some other country. That is a point of great importance and we would like to know whether it is covered by section 49. It is such a beautifully-worded section that it may mean anything—both for and against giving relief. The Hon'ble Minister will attempt to show that it does not mean what we think it means. Is there any possibility for us in the open House to have any changes in the wording of this section brought about? It will be said that the section is an intricate and a technical one and very few members could understand it. Finance Minister will rise as an expert and say that it does not convey the sense that we think it does. But if the matter is discussed in Select Committee we can express our ideas fully and state our views with reasonable chance of success and may also know in what respect they differed from the amendments that were adopted in the Select Committee of the Lower House. There are various other matters connected with the Schedule also where there is room for serious difference of opinion between the Government and ourselves. It is a very contentious measure which touches the economic life of a very large body of people in the whole of Bengal. Under such circumstances, it is but fit that this measure should go for consideration in a Select Committee in a cool atmosphere where things can be decided coolly. With these words, I support the motion for reference of the Bill to a Select Committee.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Mr. President, Sir, I rise to support the motion for reference of this Bill to a Select Committee. I must at the outset make clear to the House what the Congress Group of this House think about this Bill. I may say that so far as the principle of this Bill is concerned, we agree and we have no objection to such measures being brought for the benefit of the people at large. We have always favoured an equitable liquidation of the vested interest. But the question is: how is the money which will be realised going to be spent and how will it be utilised? All these things are not at all clear from the Statement of Objects and Reasons. I think that the Statement of Objects and Reasons is a necessary part of any Bill that is presented before this House. It has been so vaguely worded. It has not been printed even and has been typed on a slip of paper—(The Hon'ble Mr. Goswami: Paper shortage. Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: What about Bengal Weekly, where do you get paper for that?) The previous speakers, my friends Mr. Kabir and Mr. Das, have both exhaustively pointed out that Government should have some policy for which a tax is to be imposed. The Floud Commission recommended that the agricultural income-tax could be levied with a view to gradually lowering down the prices of zemindari, so that in future it could be acquired: that was the real motive underlying their suggestion for the imposition of the agricultural income-tax. But the present Bill goes nowhere near that. The Government do not care whether the conditions of agricultural people improve or not. It is not with a view to give a fillip to agriculture itself that the tax is being imposed.

So, for what purpose this money is going to be spent, they do not care to tell us. It is evident that this money they want to spend for extraordinary expenditure, the expenditure which Government have to incur on account of war. In this view of the matter, the Congress Party cannot agree to any taxation unless the proceeds thereof are especially ear-marked for the purpose for which the Floud Commission had already recommended it.

There is another point. Our Finance Minister has always been in the habit of saying that this measure is imposed to counteract inflation—

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I have never said it in connection with this Bill.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: But we have read in the papers that you have said this elsewhere. I am also anticipating his argument. Another argument that he has placed before us is that Government is competent enough to spend money in whatever way it likes. These are the arguments that are at his disposal. But, as for inflation, it is such an important matter that it cannot be discussed in the time that is at our disposal. It is really a technical subject and this inflation is more caused by the action of the Government—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Chakraverti, the Hon'ble Finance Minister never referred to inflation.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I wish to say here that I have never said that this particular measure is principally an anti-inflationary measure. I have never adduced that argument in support of an agricultural income-tax. I did not consider it in that light, although any measure of taxation is in some way or other anti-inflationary.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: As for the propriety of the tax, it has been argued rather threadbare by our friend, Mr. Kabir, and I fully endorse his views. The only thing on which our friends are depending is Government majority in the House. They have very little to say by way of refuting the cogent reasons advanced by the Opposition in support of the motion for referring the Bill to a Select Committee. With these words, I resume my seat.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, the other day my honourable friend, Mr. Humayun Kabir, spoke at great length of the various disadvantages from which our Province was suffering, namely, the Permanent Settlement and several other evils. This afternoon he continued his speech and mentioned other ills to which this Province has been a prey, viz., famine and pestilence. I listened to him with great interest and a great deal of patient attention. The speeches on both the occasions have been instructive; but I was wondering how by sending this Bill to a Select Committee he would be able to cure all these evils or prevent the recurrence of famine and pestilence. This is a taxation measure and I think the House is competent to discuss the provisions of the Bill calmly and dispassionately in this air-conditioned Chamber.

It has been said of this Bill that the yield of this tax will be swallowed up in paying the staff that will be needed for its collection. I may inform the House that I have had for some time now an approximate idea of the total amount of cost for collecting this tax. As regards the proportion that it will bear to the total receipts—that will depend on what the total yield is. Competent persons have estimated the yield at various figures. The divergence is so great that it would not be proper for me to express any opinion upon it at the present moment. If we take the most conservative figure, then I am told that the cost of collection would be something like 5 or 6 per cent. of the total receipts. If the yield is greater, according to the optimistic estimate, the cost of collection would be proportionately lower. I do not, therefore, think that there is any substance in the apprehension that the yield of this income-tax will be all consumed in paying salaries.

Then the question, a very old question, of ear-marking the proceeds of this tax for a particular purpose was again discussed this afternoon. Well, Sir, I have given my reasons for not being able to accept the proposition that a certain tax should be ear-marked for a certain purpose. My honourable friend, Mr. Lalit Chandra Das, tried to draw an analogy between the Railway Board and what he proposed, namely, a Board of Agriculture for Bengal. The Railway Board has a self-contained budget. The Board does not only provide for a budget for railway expenditure; but also contributes a large sum of money to the Central Exchequer, that is, to the general revenues of the Government of India. Here we only expect a certain amount of money which will help the Government to devote more attention to nation-building activities. I can very well understand why the Floud Commission recommended that the proceeds of this income-tax should be devoted to the improvement of agriculture. Agriculture had been a neglected subject in this province. That is unfortunately true. But if honourable members will be good enough to look at the budget which I presented to this House last September and particularly the budget which I presented last February, and if they will further kindly total up the items that come under "Agriculture" and the items representing agricultural improvement, they will find that more than two to three crores of rupees are being spent for agricultural improvement. It is true that perhaps we would not have undertaken this heavy expenditure but for the lessons of the famine. I admit that; but the fact is that the expenditure that has been made and will be made in the next few months will be of such a character as will find favour with the House. And I may also say that the character of this expenditure commits Government to further expenditure in future years.

With agriculture you must, of course, take into account projects of irrigation. I am afraid it will be necessary for Government to come before the appropriate House of Legislature for a large supplementary grant to finance our projects which were not included in the budget, but which were fore-shadowed in my Budget Speech.

Sir, I can assure you that it is the intention of Government to devote as much money as possible to the improvement of agriculture. Our rehabilitation projects are also very important because they are for the improvement of the condition of agriculturists and should automatically change the face of the countryside in Bengal. There was perhaps another idea in the mind of the members of the Floud Commission. They probably regarded the agricultural income-tax as a kind of compulsory investment. If the land is to be improved by Government, Government will have to get money to effect that improvement. It is well-known that there are certain common tasks to which the revenues of the country must be devoted. The proportion in which they are to be distributed in a particular year must be determined by the Government of the day. It is said that much of the extra expenditure last year and much of the extra expenditure which will be incurred during this year in this province are due to the famine and aftermath of famine: and that that amount is chargeable not to the provincial revenues but to the Government of India. It was possible to tell this House during the last budget discussion that the Government of India had already promised a subvention which the honourable members of the House and I considered very inadequate. I am grateful to the honourable members of all sections of the House for their support in my demand from the Government of India for a larger subvention. It is my expectation that as a result of negotiations which are still in progress it will be possible for the Government of Bengal to get out of the Government of India a very much larger subvention. I have placed my figures before the Government of India. They are neither too high nor too low. I have tried to be as reasonable as possible. But I can assure the House that while I am not in a position to divulge at what stage the negotiations are at present, I may say that I have reasonable expectation that Bengal will not have a bad deal from the Government of India. It is quite true that much of the deficit from which we are suffering is due to causes which are external to the normal requirements of the province; and, therefore, I feel that it is the duty of the Government of India to come to our rescue. I hope honourable members will not expect me to say very much more on this subject at this stage. All that I wish to plead on my behalf is that I have not been neglectful of my duty in this matter.

But as regards the agricultural income-tax, its equity has been admitted by economists in India. I happen to belong to a community which will be affected by this tax, and I can realise the feelings of members of that community, because I feel that this Bill will certainly be an additional burden. It is an inescapable burden. It was said that we have not followed the English income-tax with regard to deductions for maintenance of families in this Bill. This, Sir, is not a comprehensive income-tax Bill. Nor is the incidence of the tax anything as high as that in the United Kingdom; and if we were to allow deductions for cost of maintenance of the families on the United Kingdom basis we would find that our rates would be higher and not lower than what they are mentioned in the Bill.

I hope, Sir, that honourable members will not insist on sending this Bill to a Select Committee. I want to say this plainly that it has never been my idea or intention to treat the Upper House lightly. I have considered it a very salutary provision of the Constitution which compels Government to come to the Upper House, because in the Upper House we can discuss things in a calmer atmosphere. I wish to make it quite clear that it is not my intention that the Bill should come out of the House without a change of a comma or a semi-colon in case a change is necessary, and I am not sure that I shall not myself be asking this House to accept some amendments proposed by myself. So I hope the House will absolve me of the charge that Government treat this House lightly. Sir, I do not wish to detain the House any longer.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. There are two amendments before the House. I shall put them one after another.

The question before the House is: that the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, as passed by the Assembly be referred to a Select Committee consisting of—

- (1) The Hon'ble Mr. Tulsi Chandra Goswami, Minister in charge of the Finance Department,
- (2) Mr. W. B. G. Laidlaw,
- (3) Mr. Shrish Chandra Chakraverti,
- (4) Mr. Lalit Chandra Das,
- (5) Mr. Nur Ahmed,
- (6) Mr. Khorsheed Alam Chowdhury,
- (7) Mr. Sultanuddin Ahmed,
- (8) Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury,
- (9) Khan Bahadur M. Abdul Momin, C.I.E.,
- (10) Mr. Biren Roy, and
- (11) the mover,

with instructions to submit their report by the 31st July, 1944, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a quorum shall be four.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, as passed by the Assembly be referred to a Select Committee consisting of—

- (1) The Hon'ble Mr. Tulsi Chandra Goswami, Minister in charge of the Finance Department,
- (2) Mr. Lalit Chandra Das,
- (3) Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta,
- (4) Mr. W. B. G. Laidlaw,
- (5) Mr. Humayun Kabir,
- (6) Mr. Nur Ahmed,
- (7) Khan Sahib Nurul Amin,
- (8) Khan Bahadur M. Abdul Momin, C.I.E.,
- (9) Rai Bahadur Radhica Bhushan Roy,
- (10) Mr. Biren Roy, and
- (11) the mover,

with instructions to submit their report by the 31st July, 1944, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a quorum shall be four.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Now I shall put the substantive motion to vote.

The question before the House is that the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, as passed by the Assembly, be taken into consideration.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: I understand that Government propose to fix the 12th of June as the date for consideration of the Bill, clause by clause. So all amendments that are sent to the office by 11 o'clock on the 5th of June, will be in order.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Can you not make it 7th, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Why, that will be more than 7 days. Consider, Mr. Das, for how many days this Bill has been before this House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The office will require sufficient time to consolidate those amendments and to circulate them—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Government has given time till the 12th June and it is for consideration whether this space of time should be divided up between the members of this House and the office—I think, Sir, 5 days would be sufficient for the office.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, that cannot be done, because there are two holidays intervening.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: There is one difficulty, Sir. 5th is a Monday and many members will be returning from week-end on that day; therefore Tuesday, the 6th would be a more suitable day.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, honourable members must be very anxious to put in amendments and they are already considering them, no doubt. In this view the week-end is no obstacle.

Well, this concludes the business on the agenda. Now it may be remembered—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Can you not change the time from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sir, on the same day, because 11 o'clock is too early?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, there is no objection to that, if it suits your convenience.

Dates for putting in amendments to Bills.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House will remember that a point was raised as regards the time for putting in notices of amendments to the substantive motion that the Bill be taken into consideration and also on the clauses of the Bill, and the Chair was asked to give a ruling on the interpretation of the Rules of Procedure in this respect. There is also an impression that it had been the invariable practice in the past that only after the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration had been accepted, notices of amendments to the clauses of the Bill were put in. I went into the whole question very carefully and I find that the impression was not correct. The procedure regarding the consideration of a motion falls into two stages. The member has at first to move the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration. The period of notice for such a motion is 21 days in the case of Bills introduced in this House and not referred to a Select Committee; 15 days in the case of a Bill introduced in this House and referred to a Select Committee, and 10 days in the case of a Bill coming from the Assembly. Power is, however, reserved to the Chair in all these cases to allow such a motion to be moved at shorter notice. If the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration is carried, the Bill is actually taken into consideration. For this no period of notice is prescribed. This will be clear from the language of rule 66 and rule 80 which indicates that the actual consideration may be taken up at any time after the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration is carried. As regards the amendments to the clauses of a Bill, the position appears to be this: Notice of such amendments must reach the office at least 10 days in the case of a Bill introduced in this Council and at least 7 days in the case of a Bill coming from the Assembly, before the first day on which the Bill is actually taken into consideration. No power is reserved to the Chair to reduce this period of notice except that on an oral request made by a member at a meeting of the Council, the Chair may admit an amendment at shorter notice than that mentioned above.

But the question to which such short-notice amendment relates cannot be taken into consideration on the day on which the amendment is thus admitted unless the Chair directs otherwise.

There appears to be an impression that notice of amendment to the clauses of a Bill should be given after the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration is carried. There does not, however, appear to be anything in the rules to justify this assumption. The misconception appears to have been created by the expression "agreed to" in rule 62 and the word "carried" in rule 80. But it will be seen that rule 62 merely provides that after a motion that a Bill be taken into consideration is agreed to, any member may "propose"—that is to say, move an amendment to the Bill. Rule 80 again provides that after a motion that a Bill be taken into consideration is carried, the Bill shall be taken into consideration. I should add here that for purposes of convenience the Chair has sometimes fixed dates for amendments to the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration and also dates for amendments to the clauses. I have had all the Bills which have passed into law since the inception of the Council examined, and the analysis furnishes the following information:—

The total number of Acts passed since 1937 were 72.

Cases in which dates for amendments to the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration and amendments to clauses were both fixed simultaneously on the same day were 18.

Cases in which dates for amendments to the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration and amendments to the clauses were fixed on different days were 4.

Cases in which dates for amendments to the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration and amendments to the clauses were fixed by circular were 10.

Cases in which dates for amendments to the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration only were fixed and no dates were fixed for amendments to the clauses were 3.

Cases in which dates for amendments to the clauses of the Bill only were fixed and no dates for amendments to the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration were fixed were 5.

Cases in which no dates were fixed either for amendments to the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration or for amendments to the clauses were 32.

It will be seen that only in 4 cases, dates of the two kinds of amendments were fixed on different dates; whereas in 18 cases which included important Bills like the Bengal Finance (Amendment) Bill, 1940, Bengal Co-operative Societies Bill, 1940, Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Bill, 1941, and Bengal Raw Jute Taxation Bill, 1941, the dates were fixed simultaneously. The practice has not been uniform. I may add that a circular issued on the 29th February, 1940, to all the members informing them that the matter was left entirely to them.

As I have already stated there appears to be no doubt that amendments must reach the office at least 10 or 7 days as the case may be before the first day on which the Bill is actually taken into consideration. In fixing this date Government must, therefore, give the members sufficient time to enable them to send their amendments so as to reach office within the prescribed period of 10 or 7 days.

The Council stands adjourned till 1-30 p.m. on Monday, the 12th June next.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 1-30 p.m. on 12th June, 1944.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 45.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Monday, the 12th June, 1944, at 1-30 p.m., being the forty-fifth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

Obituary Reference.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. It is the melancholy duty of the Chair to announce the death of Khan Bahadur Muhammad Asaf Khan who was a member of this House from 1937 to 1943. The Khan Bahadur was a member of the Rangpur Bar for over 40 years. He was closely associated with the local self-governing institutions in his district and was elected Vice-Chairman of the District Board of Rangpur. The Khan Bahadur represented in this House the Rangpur Muhammadan Rural constituency and was a man of sound and sober views. He always impressed those who came in contact with him by his gentlemanly and dignified bearing. I request you, gentlemen, to rise in your seats as a mark of respect to the deceased.

(Honourable members rose in their places.)

Thank you, gentlemen. I take it that it is the desire of the House that the Chair should convey the sense of condolence of this House to the members of the bereaved family.

(Honourable members: Yes, Sir.)

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Export of rice from Birbhum and Midnapore.

176. Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if rice has been exported from the following places to places outside the district—
 - (i) Dubrajpur, East Indian Railway, district Birbhum,
 - (ii) Bolpur, East Indian Railway, district Birbhum,
 - (iii) Sainthia, East Indian Railway, district Birbhum,
 - (iv) Nalhati, East Indian Railway, district Birbhum, and
 - (v) Ghatal (in boats), district Midnapore;
- (b) if so, if such export was effected at the instance of the Government of Bengal or Government of India; and
- (c) if it is in the contemplation of the Government to stop immediately all export of rice or paddy from districts where there is a deficit; if not, why not?

MINISTER in charge of the CIVIL SUPPLIES DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy): The position on the 13th September, 1943, was as below—

(a) Yes.

(b) No, the exports in question were normal trade movements.

(c) Exports to places outside Bengal have been prohibited by the Government of India as well as by the Government of Bengal. Government do not at present contemplate prohibiting exports of rice and paddy from districts where there is a deficit. In their opinion, it will be inadvisable to interfere with trade movements until such a course becomes absolutely inevitable.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state when this question was received in his office?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: A few days before the 13th of September, 1943.

Security prisoners.

177. Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

(a) the total number of security prisoners now in the custody of the Government detained under the different sections of the Defence of India Act and Rules made thereunder;

(b) the total number of such prisoners released by the present Ministry since it assumed office; and

(c) the total number of security prisoners taken into custody under the operation of the said Act and Rules, made thereunder since the assumption of office by the present Ministry?

MINISTER in charge of the HOME DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) (i) Political security prisoners—1,275 and (ii) Criminal security prisoners—2,516.

(b) (i) Political security prisoners—528 and (ii) Criminal security prisoners—figures not readily available.

(c) (i) Political security prisoners—151 and (ii) Criminal security prisoners—figures not readily available.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether these figures refer to the present or some previous dates and if so to what period of time?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (I ask for notice—may I correct the answer?) I think it is about the end of April.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether there have been any releases since the end of April?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I think there has been some so far as the criminal security prisoners are concerned.

178. Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

- (a) how many of the security prisoners taken under the Defence of India Act and Rules, have so far been released by the Government since the present Ministry took its office;
- (b) how many of the security prisoners referred to in part (a) are still in jail or in detention;
- (c) whether he promised to set up a tribunal to go through the cases of the security prisoners;
- (d) if so, when that promise was made and if such a tribunal has been set up; and
- (e) if not, why that promise has not been implemented yet?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (a) 533.

(b) Criminal security prisoners—2,507 on 14th May, 1944, and ordinary security prisoners—1,277 on 14th May, 1944.

(c) No.

(d) and (e) Do not arise.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether it was not intended that the cases of these security prisoners should be scrutinised by a Special Tribunal?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I am not aware of it. As far as I know, there was no suggestion of any judges being deputed for that purpose. But Government on its own decided to have the cases of these men examined by a retired District and Sessions Judge who has gone into their cases and submitted a report.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is it a fact that as a result of that report the release of the political prisoners is so slow?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I am referring to the security prisoners and not to political prisoners.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Regarding political prisoners—were not charges placed before them?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: According to the revised rules framed under the Defence of India Act, Special Ordinance, we are taking action.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Does this mean that charges have been placed before them for answering them?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Yes.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether on the charges being placed before them they replied to those charges?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if all the political security prisoners have been informed of the charges for which they have been apprehended?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I do not accept the word "charges". All I want to convey is that according to law action is being taken and I would refer the honourable members to the provisions in the new Ordinance in this connection.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: In accordance with the provisions under the new Ordinance have the charges against these political security prisoners been conveyed to them?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As I said, action is being taken as contemplated in that Ordinance.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is the action being taken in all the cases of political security prisoners up till now?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Yes.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: How many of the political security prisoners have, as a result of such information being given to them, replied to those charges or accusations or in whatever other term the Hon'ble Minister might choose to call them?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice. As this question does not directly arise out of this question, naturally I was not prepared to reply to this question.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Since when the charges are being made known to them?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Since the new Ordinance came into force.

Release of persons detained under Defence of India Rules.

179. Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if the Government are considering the question of releasing the persons detained under the Defence of India Rules; and
- (b) if the Government are also considering the question of any policy of releasing those detenus?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No; but a general review of all their cases is constantly being made in consultation with Government's Security Advisers and persons whose continued detention is considered no longer necessary are being released.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DATTA: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to explain what is meant by Security Advisers?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Persons who advise Government on questions of security prisoners.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DATTA: It is naturally a paraphrase of the expression used. So, will the Hon'ble Minister please state what is meant by Security Advisers? How is that body constituted?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Very likely the Director of Civil Supplies, Bengal, and the Home Department.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Have the Government actually set up any body called the Security Advisers?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, the Hon'ble Minister has not separately answered part (b) of 179.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I would refer the honourable member to the last line of the reply.

Arrest of Mr. Iswar Chandra Mal, M.L.A.

180. Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state whether he is aware that Mr. Iswar Chandra Mal, M.L.A., was arrested in August, 1942?

(b) Was he arrested as a result of any activity on his part or out of mere apprehension on the part of the Government?

(c) Was his arrest followed by any demonstration or other open outburst?

(d) Are the Government aware that Mr. Mal has always been a confirmed believer in non-violence?

(e) Is it a fact that his arrest removed from Midnapore one of the strongest supporters of the non-violent political activity?

(f) Are the Government aware that the presence of Mr. Mal would be a powerful influence in the organisation of relief in the affected areas of Midnapore?

(g) Are the Government prepared to release him unconditionally?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (a) Yes.

(b) He was arrested as a result of his activities in furtherance of the mass movement.

(c) to (e) and (g) No.

(f) That is a matter of opinion.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state under what rules or Act Mr. Iswar Mal was arrested?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Was Mr. Mal arrested as a result of conviction in any court?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Not as far as I am aware and here I am speaking from memory.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Has the Hon'ble Minister any evidence that Mr. Mal had any direct activities in furtherance of the mass movement as described in answer (b)?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Mr. Mal was arrested during the regime of the previous Ministry and I assume that the arrest was made because they had definite information that Mr. Mal was involved in those activities.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please enquire whether there was any evidence about his activities in furtherance of any alleged movement?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: It should be assumed that Government will not arrest and certainly will not detain any person if they were not sure that there were grounds for keeping him there.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Arising out of (d) and (e), is the Government answer based on the result of an inquiry or is it merely an opinion on the part of the Government?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I think that in this respect I would like to amend that answer and say that we are not in a position to state what a man definitely means or not.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware of any activities of Mr. Mal during his long political career which can be suggested as contrary to the principle of non-violence?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: This is a purely debatable point, but all I can say is that there was reason and justification for his arrest.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that representations were made from the people of Contai to the effect that Mr. Mal should be released, so that he might be able to take part in the relief organisations and save thereby the lives of many people of Contai subdivision?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: That may be so, but on the ground of public security it was not advisable to release him.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether this representation on behalf of the people of Contai was made in 1942 or thereafter?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: During the régime of the previous Government.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Is the Hon'ble Minister in a position to say what action, if any, was taken and what order was passed by that Government in respect of that representation?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: It should be obvious to the honourable members that the petition was rejected, as he is still under detention.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DATTA: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether these representations were made after the outbreak of famine in 1943?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I think representations were made at the time of the cyclone and since then there have been further representations.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what is the decision of his Government with regard to the representation regarding the release of Mr. Mal?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have already stated that Mr. Mal is being detained on grounds of security, and we are still of the opinion that it is not advisable on the ground of public security to release him.

Mr. Narayan Chandra Bhattacharjee.

181. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state if he is aware—

- (i) that Mr. Narayan Chandra Bhattacharjee, who is on military service on leave, was knocked down by the military lorry No. 345 on the 24th April, 1944, between 12 and 1 p.m. near Tollygunge;
- (ii) that after having been knocked down the lorry in question ran away without taking the wounded to the nearest hospital;
- (iii) that a member of the military police who chanced to pass that way took him to the Sambhunath Pandit Hospital for first aid and thence to the Alipore Military Hospital;
- (iv) that cases of accidents by military lorries have become very frequent; and
- (v) that the military lorries generally fail to carry the wounded to the nearest hospital after accidents due to their contributory negligence or careless and rash driving?

(b) If the answer to above be in the affirmative, what steps, if any, do the Government propose to take to stop recurrence of accidents of this nature in Calcutta and its suburbs by controlling rash and negligent driving?

(c) Do the Government consider the advisability of making a sifting enquiry into the matter in co-operation with the military authorities concerned without further loss of time?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (a) (i) Yes; the number of the military lorry is not yet known.

(ii) I have no information on the point.

(iii) and (iv) Yes.

(v) Such cases have occurred.

(b) and (c) The need for tightening up control over military vehicles has been brought to the notice of the military authorities and they have done a great deal to improve matters. The number of military traffic police has been substantially increased and military police patrols are now operating regularly in the Calcutta area. There has been a marked improvement owing to the insistence of the military authorities on the control over the traffic of military vehicles.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether it is still a fact that at night military trucks and lorries are running without masks over the headlights?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As far as that question is concerned, a certain number of vehicles do so perhaps because it is unavoidable when they are outside the Calcutta area where mask is not compulsory and especially on the mufassil roads when it is necessary that the headlights should be without masks; and as they come into Calcutta area it is not possible to put on the masks immediately. So there is that difficulty, and that is why you see some of the military vehicles without masks in the Calcutta area.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that the number of military vehicles without masks is far greater than the number of military vehicles with masks in the street area?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I believe that may be so.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister please assure the House that necessary representations will be made to the military authorities and also to the police that masks be put on the headlights of military lorries that are being extensively used in the streets of Calcutta?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As I have already pointed out, Sir, it is very difficult for motor vehicles which may have to go out of Calcutta at short notice or may be coming to Calcutta and being used both inside Calcutta and outside Calcutta, to have masks on their headlights. I myself found it difficult to do so when once I had occasion to go to Hooghly and Chinsura and came back at night. And while I wanted that there should be a mask put on the headlight it was not possible to do so.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Does not the Hon'ble Minister consider it important that from the point of view of the safety of the pedestrians or the users of the roads at night, some steps should be taken even by the military authorities in respect of military lorries which come on the streets of Calcutta at least for the first time during the night, to have necessary arrangements for putting on masks on headlights in the streets of Calcutta which are in darkness during the night?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: We have made representations to the military and they are trying their best to help and co-operate with us as far as possible.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that in spite of military police being posted at some points, the road rules are being very often violated by military lorry drivers in the sense that they do not know on which side to drive?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I think these complaints have become things of the past: at present there is a marked improvement and there is very little violation of the traffic rules.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please take steps so that military lorries without any mask should move at a strictly enforced speed limit of ten or five miles per hour, that is to say, at a considerably lower limit than cars which have got masks?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I will take a note of the suggestion of the honourable member; but I doubt very much if they are a practicable proposition.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that just at the corner of this House there are military lorries which pass round this building and rush down this lane at such excessive speed that it often endangers the safety of the people who cross it, to enter the building—I mean members of this Legislature?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I am not aware.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister consider the desirability of issuing instructions and notices to the Calcutta police that it should remove cases of accident caused by these military lorries to the hospitals immediately?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Well, Sir, that is already being done.

Illness of Mrs. Leela Roy.

182. Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state if he is aware that Mrs. Leela Roy, a security prisoner in Dinajpur, is seriously ill?

(b) Will he please state the nature of her illness?

(c) Is it a fact that her immediate transfer to a Calcutta hospital has been recommended by the jail authorities of Dinajpur?

(d) What steps have the Government taken for her treatment?

(e) Will the Government permit her husband Mr. Anil Roy, a security prisoner at Dum Dum, to be with her in view of her serious illness?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (a) and (c) Yes.

(b) Her case has been diagnosed as a fibroid of the uterus.

(d) Dr. M. N. Sarkar, a specialist now attached to the Eden Hospital, was sent to Dinajpur to examine Mrs. Roy and prescribe treatment. As soon as she was fit to undertake the journey, she was transferred to Calcutta and is now in the Eden Hospital under the treatment of Dr. Sarkar. An operation was performed on the 29th May, 1944.

(e) Arrangements have been made to enable Mr. Anil Roy to visit his wife in hospital for one hour every day for 7 days.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state what is her present state of health?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I want notice.

Disturbances at Dacca.

183. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

(a) if he is aware that disturbance of the nature of local riots took place at Dacca on the 14th May, 1944;

(b) if so, what are the causes of such disturbance;

(c) what steps have been taken by the Government to prevent recurrence of riots at Dacca; and

(d) if the Government propose to give effect to the recommendations of the Larkin Report in this connection?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (a) There was no general rioting. The trouble which began on the 14th May is now confined to cases of stray stabbing and assault.

In answering part (a) of this question the Hon'ble Minister added the following at the end: This was the state of affairs when the answer was drafted, but by the grace of God for a number of days there has been no incident and restrictions are being gradually relaxed.

(b) It would not be in the public interest to make a statement on this point at present.

(c) The Defence Scheme has been brought into operation. Extra police have been drafted into the town. Collective fines have been imposed in the affected areas.

(d) The recommendations of the McNair Committee are being implemented.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state why the recommendations of the Larkin Report, as suggested in the question, were not adopted and what are the differences between the Larkin Report and the McNair Committee Report?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to answer the first half of my supplementary question regarding Larkin Report?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I do not know what he is referring to about Larkin Report.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what are the recommendations of the McNair Committee?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice.

Mr. J. W. R. STEVEN: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if any fines have been collected? If so, how much?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Here again I ask for notice. I do not know whether any fines have been collected. But certain fines have been imposed and I think the total amount will come to something about Rs. 80,000.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if the McNair Committee's recommendations and those of Larkin Report have been published?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As far as I am aware the recommendations of the McNair Committee have been published. But I do not know what the honourable members mean by the Larkin Report. We are not dealing with the Secondary Education Bill, Sir.

Mr. HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state how many persons have been killed in the riots?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether there was such a thing as the Larkin Report with regard to disturbances in Dacca?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Whenever there is a riot the Commissioner of the Division concerned sends a report. If the honourable members mean that report, I do not know. But at present no report about what action will be taken in case of a riot has been received from Mr. Larkin.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: May I ask the Hon'ble Minister whether he knows of any report of Mr. Larkin, Commissioner of the Dacca Division?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No, I am not aware of it.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, may I ask Mr. Haridas Masumdar to enlighten us about what he means by Larkin Report?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, are you prepared to answer this?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is it admissible to ask cross questions like this? I submit, Sir, if you permit such cross questions we shall also put such questions to other members. But will it be regular?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, it will be regular.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if he is aware of any recommendations made by the Commissioner of the Dacca Division, Mr. Larkin, in connection with the riots that took place in 1940-41?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I want notice. I do not know what recommendations Mr. Larkin made in 1940-41.

Centres for the Apprenticeship Admission Examination.

184. Rai Sahib JOGENDRA NATH ROY: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Commerce, Labour and Industries Department be pleased to state whether an examination known as the Apprenticeship Admission Examination is held by the Board of Apprenticeship Training, under the Industries Department and that the Principal, Calcutta Technical School, is the Secretary to the said Board?

(b) If so, when and at what places is the said examination held?

(c) Is it a fact that according to rule 2 of the printed rules the said examination is held in Calcutta and at such centres as may be fixed from time to time by the Board and that Kalimpong, Kharagpur, Asansol and Pahartali are generally other centres for the examination?

(d) Is it a fact that whenever candidates were forthcoming the examination was held at Asansol at the St. Vincent School for the European and the Anglo-Indian boys?

(e) Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state for how many years the examination was held at the Asansol centre and when was it last held there?

(f) What arrangements have been made by the Board for holding the examination at Asansol now that the St. Vincent School, where the examination used to be held, is not functioning there?

(g) Is it a fact that some six Indian students applied in time for permission to sit for the said examination to be held in the middle of May, 1944, at the Asansol centre?

(h) Is it a fact that in disregard of the printed rules the Secretary to the Board declined to arrange for their examination at the Asansol centre? If the answer is in the affirmative, why was this permission refused? Was the matter placed before the Board? If so, when? Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to lay on the Table, a copy of the resolution or minutes of the Board on the subject?

(i) Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state why and when the centre at Asansol was abolished?

(j) Is it a fact that Asansol is proposed to be a centre for the examination for the Anglo-Indian and European candidates only, and that Indian candidates are to be denied the privilege and compelled to come down to Calcutta to appear at the examination?

(k) Are the Government aware that Asansol is a centre for the Matriculation Examination of the University of Calcutta as also for the School Final (Science Side) Examination held by the Education Department, Bengal? If so, will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state why arrangements for holding the Apprenticeship Admission Examination cannot be made at Asansol?

(l) Did the Secretary request the authorities of any of three recognised high schools at Asansol to lend accommodation for the said examination? If so, with what result? If not, why not? -

(m) Did the Secretary request the Inspector of Schools, Burdwan Division, or the local civil authorities to lend one responsible officer for conducting the examination at the Asansol centre? If so, with what result? If not, why not?

(n) Are the Government aware of the grave risk and the serious hardship caused to mufassal candidates, on account of the prevalence of epidemics and the difficulty of securing accommodation in Calcutta now-a-days?

(o) Will the Government be pleased to issue immediate instructions to the Secretary, Board of Apprenticeship Training, to have these candidates examined at Asansol?

MINISTER in charge of the COMMERCE, LABOUR and INDUSTRIES DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Shahabuddin): (a) Yes. Mr. E. J. Hogben, Principal, Calcutta Technical School, is the present Secretary of the Board in his personal capacity.

(b) The examination is held twice annually, usually in the months of May and December and is generally held in Calcutta but other centres such as Kalimpong, Kharagpur, Asansol and Pahartali are opened from time to time under special circumstances at the discretion of the Board.

(c) and (n) Yes.

(d) The examination was held in Asansol only on two previous occasions and the centre was open to all candidates irrespective of race, creed and community.

(e) For two years. The last examination was held in December, 1941.

(f) None at present. A venue other than the St. Vincent School can be fixed if and when the Board decide to hold the examination at Asansol.

(g) Yes; but the applications were received too late for making necessary arrangements.

(h) Does not arise, in view of reply to part (g) of the question.

(i) Does not arise, as places other than Calcutta are not regular centres under the rules.

(j) No.

(k) Yes. As the Board have no staff for carrying on the examination work outside Calcutta, new centres are not generally opened unless special circumstances justify it.

(l) and (m) No. As it was not proposed to hold the examination there this year, any such reference was not necessary.

(o) This is not practicable at present but I am prepared to consider this before the next examination is held in December next, if necessary.

Rai Sahib JOGENDRA NATH ROY: Arising out of (g), will the Hon'ble Minister please state when were these applications received?

Mr. BIREN ROY: I want notice.

Rai Sahib JOGENDRA NATH ROY: What was the actual date of examination?

Mr. BIREN ROY: In May.

Rai Sahib JOGENDRA NATH ROY: I want the specific date.

Mr. BIREN ROY: In the second week of May.

Rai Sahib JOGENDRA NATH ROY: I want definite date.

Mr. BIREN ROY: As for actual date and hour, I want notice.

Non-provision of medical assistance at Laksam and Barkanta.

185. Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if the Government are aware of the fact that no provisions for medical assistance have been made at Laksam (Paschimgaon) and Barkanta (Chandina) where subordinate civil and criminal courts have been shifted from Comilla;
- (b) if the Government are aware that there is an outbreak of diseases, like cholera, small-pox, dysentery, malignant malaria in those places, affecting seriously the health of the people of those places; and
- (c) if the Government propose to make suitable provisions for medical relief in those places without any further delay?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department, the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): (a) Medical assistance has been provided at both places. An Assistant Surgeon was appointed for each place in February, 1944. Prior to this a Sub-Assistant Surgeon was appointed at Chandina; construction of necessary hospital buildings were completed in November-December, 1943. A 10-bed hospital is now functioning at each place, in addition to famine relief medical measures.

(b) Yes.

(c) Suitable provision has been made already.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DATTA: Will the Hon'ble Minister or rather the Parliamentary Secretary please state whether Government has taken any step preventive or curative to meet the situation arising out of the recent outbreak of malignant malaria in those areas?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Hospitals have been established and also famine relief centres have been opened and they are capable of preventing these diseases.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DATTA: It would be quite apparent that hospitals can never provide for the epidemic outbreak of malignant malaria. My question is: whether Government has taken any step either preventive or curative to stop the menace of the outbreak of malignant malaria?

Mr. BIREN ROY: Yes, quinine is being supplied and injections are also being supplied.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DATTA: To whom the quinine is being supplied—to the hospitals or to the people affected?

Mr. BIREN ROY: To the hospitals and to the Extra Assistant Surgeons appointed who are working in those areas.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DATTA: Is the quinine supplied sufficient to meet the outbreak of malignant malaria in the two subdivisions?

Mr. BIREN ROY: That is a matter of opinion.

Deaths due to malaria in Bengal.

186. Mr. BIRENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state—

- (a) the total number of deaths due to malaria in the different districts of Bengal, during the months of October, November and December, 1943;
- (b) what are the sources of information utilised by the Government in collecting these figures;
- (c) what arrangements have been made by the Government to ascertain the correct census of the wide prevalence of this disease; and
- (d) if he is aware that in the Sadar subdivision of the Mymensingh district the distribution of quinine has been this year less than nominal; if so, why?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): (a) The honourable member may be referred to statement placed in the Library in reply to clause (d) of question No. 153 of the current session.

(b) Village chaukidars, presidents of union boards, sanitary inspectors, Subdivisional Officers, District Health Officers and the Director of Public Health in districts. In municipalities, the local registrars of births and deaths and the District Health Officer and the Director of Public Health.

(c) It is impossible to "ascertain the correct census" of this disease in existing circumstances. Malaria cases treated in hospitals and dispensaries form the basis of the information available to Government regarding the prevalence of the disease.

(d) No; 1,286 lbs. of quinine and 229 lbs. of cinchona were distributed in the Sadar subdivision of Mymensingh district from November, 1943, to date.

Mr. BIRENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOWDHURY: Is the supply more or less than it was last year?

Mr. BIREN ROY: It is more than last year.

Point of Information.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL HAMID CHOWDHURY: Sir, may I rise on a point of information? The question regarding the supply of copies of the Civil List to the members of the Legislature had been referred to the Committee of Privileges, and that Committee made its recommendations, urging the Government for revival of the privilege hitherto enjoyed by the members. We do not know if any action has been taken by the Government on that recommendation. Now, may we enquire through you, Sir, whether the Hon'ble the Leader of the House or any of the Hon'ble Ministers present to-day will enlighten the House as to what action, if any, has been taken in the matter?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will the Hon'ble Leader of the House enlighten the House on the point?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The Government have taken note of the decision of the Privilege Committee, and they will try to accede to the request of the Privilege Committee, as far as possible.

Point of Privilege.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: On a matter of privilege of the House, Sir. We find from the list of outstanding questions which has been circulated that the Civil Supplies Department have got as many as 72 questions outstanding. If the Hon'ble Minister replies at the rate of one question per week, then this House will not certainly thank him for such a performance. As regards the Home Department, there are about 22 questions outstanding. I hope, Sir, that you will kindly look into the matter and see that the answers, especially those relating to questions about the Civil Supplies Department are expedited; for, with regard to this department, the questions are mostly of an extremely topical nature and if they are not answered in time, it very often happens that the whole point of the question is lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I admit the force of the argument of the honourable member and it is not for me to say that the fact that there are so many questions pending in my name is to my credit. At the same time, Sir, I must say that I have been very much hard pressed for time. Moreover, most of the questions have, as a matter of fact, been already answered in the last session in connection with the various debates on the Food situation that took place from time to time. This session, fortunately, there have not been so many debates and, consequently, if I may say so, most of these questions have probably become out of date and members must have lost interest in them. (Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: No, no. They are still interested in them.) In this view, Sir, I have tried to collect some questions which I believe are wholly out of date, and I do not know how to proceed with them. I believe there are about 10 questions which I have collected in this way. I can answer them if honorable members are not prepared to withdraw them as they have become wholly out of date and members have lost all interest in them and will only mean expenditure of paper, ink and printing, and may also tire the House.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I would only draw attention to two points: one is that in many cases it will be found that the questions are of a similar nature and very often different members have put questions almost on the same topic and therefore the figure 72 outstanding questions is not as forbidding as it seems, if the Department really takes up the questions seriously. Then, with regard to the second point, the Hon'ble Minister has just now stated that he has collected about 10 questions which he considers to be out of date, and if Government has failed to answer them, they simply condemn themselves by this statement. Therefore, it is not for honourable members to say which questions may be answered, but on the contrary it is for the Government to see to it how best they can avoid such lapses in future; the House will, at any rate, take this as a permanent evidence of the incapacity of Government to deal with them.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, I am afraid the honourable member has not appreciated the first portion of my remark, namely, that all these questions have been answered in some form or other in the course of the debates held in this House or in another place—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, may I refer to a short-notice question of which I gave notice regarding the rise in prices at Dacca, which has become due for answer more than a month ago and yet the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies has not cared to answer that question.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is a short-notice question, Mr. Das. Has the Hon'ble Minister accepted it?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I do not know if he has accepted the short notice, but even in the ordinary course it is time now that it should be answered.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I would like at this stage, if I may, to make a suggestion, because I want to meet the wishes of the honourable members. A short-notice question has to go through the Chair and if the Chair admits it, then it comes to me and then it is not always that they reach me in time. In view of this difficulty, may I suggest that honourable members may kindly contact me through the Secretary to the Legislative Council regarding any short-notice question that they want to be answered. I shall do my level best to answer short-notice questions as such, provided, of course, they are answerable in time.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: 'Sir, I think the Hon'ble Minister is making things very funny—

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: He sends a short-notice question and if he wishes to have a reply, he should contact the Minister through the Secretary—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I have sent a short-notice question to the Department and why should I again contact the Secretary just to enable the Hon'ble Minister to give an answer? The whole thing is funny. As you know, Sir, you have actually admitted the question as a short-notice question and given your consent—

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: May I suggest that the honourable member does not realise the "very funny" situation. He does not realise that after the President has consented to short-notice, the Hon'ble Minister has got to accept it. Therefore, Sir, I was suggesting, as I wished to accommodate the honourable members, that, lest I should lose sight of the question, if the honourable member really desires to have an answer of his short-notice question, he may contact me through the Secretary. If he does not wish to do so and if he considers the situation very funny, he will have to take the risk of refusal of his short-notice question.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But why should we contact the Hon'ble Minister through Secretary in the case of a short-notice question? We put questions through the Council and in due course we expect answers from the Ministers concerned. We cannot take upon ourselves the burden of contacting the Minister in order to remind him.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I repeat the suggestion I made the other day in this connection? Evidently, a large number of questions are outstanding in the Department of the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies and some of them may have become out of date. I would request the Hon'ble Minister to go through them and with regard to those which have become out of date he should make suggestion to me that the honourable member or members who have put those questions may be requested to withdraw them. I am prepared to discuss the matter with the members who put the questions and if they are willing to do so, the questions will be withdrawn. I think this will reduce the number. But I should impress upon the Hon'ble Minister that his Department should try to answer the questions that are outstanding more quickly. Delay in reply to questions is one of the reasons why the number of short-notice questions are increasing. The members having failed to receive reply to ordinary questions, try to get answer by putting short-notice questions in the hope that Government will pay more attention to short-notice questions. That is really what has happened. I would request the Hon'ble Minister to look into the whole matter more carefully and try to expedite the answers as far as possible. Everybody knows and appreciates that he has a very heavy department to run. But it is the privilege of the House to receive replies to questions put by the honourable members. It is certainly not, if I may say so, for the honourable members to go and contact the Ministers personally for eliciting replies to short-notice questions. Short-notice questions are put through the Chair. I go through each and every one of them very carefully and unless I feel that a particular question should be admitted at short-notice, I do not admit it as such. I never allow members to overburden the department for nothing. So I suggest that the Hon'ble Minister should go through the questions and if he is impressed of the urgency of the questions, he should expedite answers. I think that will solve the problem.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, there are certain questions put to the Hon'ble Minister regarding the formation of food committees and complaints regarding the formation of these food committees—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will you please specify to which particular question you refer? There are more than one such question and your observation refers to all of them generally.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, with regard to my question regarding bhog ration, the Hon'ble Minister promised to announce the decision today, if not earlier by a press communiqué.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I wanted to pass order on the file regarding bhog ration, but considering the sentiments and religious duties of the Hindus, I feel that the matter is of such importance that I shall take Cabinet decision on it. I think, therefore, that I will have to take a little bit of more time.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: When is the decision expected?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I think by Thursday the decision will be announced. [Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, there is a Bengali proverb called ranga (red) Sukraber (Friday). The Hon'ble Minister has got a red Thursday.] After all, the deities are still being fed and none of them are starving.

Statement on milk situation in Calcutta.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, in connection with the short-notice question of Mr. Haridas Mazumdar, I promised to make a statement regarding the milk situation in Calcutta. Sir, Government are aware of deficiency of milk supply in Calcutta. This is due to the fall in the imports of milch cattle from other provinces into Calcutta during the last two years and also to the very large increase in demand owing to the increase in the population of the city. This scarcity is however not peculiar to Calcutta alone as owing to the depletion of the cattle population there has been a fall in the milk production throughout the province while there has been increase in demand. Government are prepared to recommend transport facilities to persons wishing to bring milch cattle to Calcutta from other provinces, but as there is an overall shortage of milch cattle in the province, it does not seem possible to relieve the situation by bringing more milch cattle from the districts to Calcutta. In any case the supply of milk has hitherto been in the hands of private individuals and if any person asks for special facilities to produce more milk in Calcutta, his request will certainly be considered. Government are also considering a proposal for prohibiting the use of a milk for non-essential purposes. I should like also to add that the milk question cannot be solved satisfactorily unless private individuals and farms start dairy farms in extensive scale.

Adjournment Motions.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I have got a motion for adjournment.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I have also got two adjournment motions standing in my name.

Mr. PRESIDENT: There are four adjournment motions.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: On a point of order, Sir. Mr. Lalit Chandra Das has given notice of two motions. I submit that it is not in order. I want to know whether a member can give notice of a number of adjournment motions and wait for his chance to pick up one of them. I submit again that that is not the rule. That is an irregular practice.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: That shows that neither is urgent.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That would be considered according to the time of the notice. The earliest one was given on 5th June, 1944. Mr. Das, I would like to know which one you want to move.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: First, I shall move the adjournment motion notice of which was given on 9th June, 1944.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Then I take it that you have withdrawn your first motion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Why, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Don't you realise that you cannot move more than one motion at a time?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: The other will remain standing in my name.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You must make up your mind which one you want to move.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I would like to have a direction from you on this question. It is a very relevant question which has been raised. For it may sometimes happen that two or three incidents take place which are all of great importance, and it may be difficult for a member to decide which of these he is to move first by way of an adjournment motion, because all of them require discussion on the floor of the House. I would therefore request you to consider this question and let us know what procedure should be followed—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, I have considered that question. It depends on the member. He is to decide which is most important. He cannot keep another motion as a second string to his bow. Now, Mr. Das, which one do you propose to move?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I have not finished my submission. The point on which I wanted clarification is that if a member gives notice of two motions both of which may be of importance—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, I am not prepared to discuss this question generally today. Let us first of all dispose of these motions.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: All right, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Lalit Chandra Das has given notice of a motion for the adjournment of the business of the House which runs as follows:—

“That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance and of recent occurrence, namely, the very serious situation which has arisen in Chittagong by the sudden rise in the price of rice this month, reaching the level of about rupees sixty per maund at present, causing great hardship and sufferings to the people, resulting from the failure of the Government to maintain supply and enforce its controlled prices.”

Now, first of all, this is merely an allegation, Mr. Das. What evidence have you to support your motion?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, these are facts. I don't think you are going to take evidence. All that I can state is that I have got facts in my possession. From these facts I have drawn up my adjournment motion. I undertake responsibility for all the facts stated therein, and I also undertake responsibility for the truth of the statement embodied in this motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But how do you substantiate those facts?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, these facts are gathered from very responsible and reliable sources.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Apart from the assertion that these are facts, have you got any documentary evidence or anything of the kind?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: No documentary evidence but oral.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Then it is unsatisfactory. Suppose when an incident takes place, it is either reported in the Press or it is alleged in a document. Have you got anything of the kind in your possession?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I put a short-notice question about the price of rice in several districts, and I sent to you a cutting from the paper. Upon that also I wanted to move an adjournment motion. But so far as the district of Chittagong is concerned, the situation has assumed an unprecedented seriousness since June——

Mr. PRESIDENT: But you must appreciate the point, Mr. Das, that the business of the House cannot be suspended merely on the assertion of a particular fact. The fact should be substantiated by reference to documentary evidence.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: So far as that is concerned, when a member asserts that he has got information from very reliable persons, for instance, from Mrs. Nellie Sen Gupta, Haji Badi Ahmad Chowdhury and several other people of Chittagong, who have definitely said that as a matter of fact the situation in Chittagong is abnormal, so much so that the prices of rice have risen to about Rs. 60 per maund, and that the people are under very great hardship and suffering—I think what you are to see is not to question me about this—it is the inherent right of members of a legislature to put in adjournment motions on matters of urgent public importance. But a member cannot stand cross-examination here——

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is not a question of cross-examination. But if the Chair has to admit each and every adjournment motion because an honourable member of the House asserts that it is a matter of definite public importance, that will place the Chair in an awkward position. Therefore, I am afraid I cannot give my consent to your motion: I refuse my consent. You should be ready to substantiate the facts stated in your motion——

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I have got an adjournment motion also.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: The motion runs thus:—

That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation that has arisen owing to the banning of the Hindu Sammelani which was to be held at Lora in the district of Barisal on the 3rd and 4th of June, 1944, under the presidency of the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan and also banning of all meetings for a period of fourteen days in certain divisions in the districts of Barisal, Faridpur, Khulna and Jessore from the 2nd June, 1944, to 16th June, 1944.

I have now read my motion, Sir, but I do not know if I have the permission of the Chair to move it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, the Chair gives you the permission. Is there any objection?

(The Hon'ble the Home Minister objected.)

In that case those who support the motion will kindly rise in their places.

(The requisite number of members rose.)

The motion is admitted, and will be taken up after Question hour tomorrow.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will that give us the usual two hours' time to discuss the motion?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, full two hours are available under the Rules.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: With reference to my adjournment motion, may I take it up tomorrow?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, one has already been admitted today. You may mention it tomorrow.

Message from the Bengal Legislative Assembly.

Mr. SECRETARY: Sir, the following message has been received from the Bengal Legislative Assembly:—

"The Bengal Legislative Assembly at its meeting held on the 26th May, 1944, agreed to the Bengal Non-agricultural Tenancy (Temporary Provisions) Extending Bill, 1944, as passed by the Bengal Legislative Council, without any amendments.

SYED NAUSHERALI,

Speaker,

Bengal Legislative Assembly."

SECRETARY (Dr. S. K. D. Gupta): Sir, the following communication has been received from the Government, intimating the action taken by them on the motion regarding grant-in-aid for the improvement of the conditions of the sailors, seamen and soldiers, etc., moved and adopted by the Council on the 12th March, 1943, under rule 112 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules:—

Since the above resolution was passed, the Government of India have shown themselves alive to the post-war interest of the enlisted classes and have established a post-war reconstruction fund for the betterment of these men. With this end in view, the Provincial Government also are considering, at the instance of the Central Government, a proposal for the establishment of agricultural headquarters as a post-war reconstruction scheme for the rehabilitation of certain areas of this province. The question of granting scholarships to the children and dependants of the enlisted men at approved agricultural and industrial institutions in this province as a post-war reconstruction measure is also under consideration.

In the circumstances, the Governor does not consider it necessary to make any further representation to the Government of India on the subject.

Governor's Assent.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have to inform the honourable members that the Bengal Non-agricultural Tenancy (Temporary Provisions) Extending Bill, 1944

ES ABSENT.

[12TH JUNE, 1944.]

1944, which was passed by both Chambers of the Bengal Legislature, has been assented to by His Excellency the Governor under the provisions of section 76 of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The next item is: discussion clause by clause of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, as passed by the Assembly.

Clause 1 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that before clause 1 of the Bill,—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Wait a moment Khan Bahadur. There are certain difficult points that have arisen about this Bill. I would like to consider them. One is, for instance, the definition of the term "person" in clause 2. The Ruler of an Indian State has been included there. But there is no corresponding definition in the Indian Income-tax Act including the Ruler of a State. The Bill has some penal clauses. Suppose, the Ruler of an Indian State is served with a notice and he does not comply with the notice: he may be criminally proceeded against—that will create an unprecedented situation. So whether that definition is ultra vires or intra vires of this Legislature has to be considered. In that view of the matter, I suggest that we adjourn today and take up the matter tomorrow.

The House stands adjourned till 1-30 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 1-30 p.m. on Tuesday, the 13th June, 1944.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 46.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Tuesday, the 13th June, 1944, at 1-30 p.m., being the forty-sixth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

Adjournment Motion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I have got an adjournment motion standing in my name.

Mr. PRESIDENT: We are discussing today another adjournment motion. You may mention your adjournment motion tomorrow.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, will you waive the question of urgency tomorrow?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Mr. President, Sir, I beg to move that this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation that has arisen owing to the banning of the Hindu Sammelani which was to be held at Lora in the district of Barisal on the 3rd and 4th June, 1944, under the presidency of the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan and also banning of all meetings for a period of fourteen days in certain subdivisions in the districts of Barisal, Faridpur, Khulna and Jessore from 2nd June, 1944, to 16th June, 1944.

Sir, I have got a notification before me and I would like to place the notification itself before the honourable members of this House and before you, Sir. The notification appeared—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I may just remind the House that the mover of an adjournment motion can speak for 20 minutes, the other members for 10 minutes and the Hon'ble Minister in charge for 20 minutes.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, the notification was published in the Calcutta Gazette, Extraordinary Edition, on the 1st June, 1944, and it runs as follows:—

Whereas the Governor is satisfied that for the purpose of securing the public safety and the maintenance of public order it is necessary to prohibit the holding of or taking part in public processions, meetings or assemblies in certain areas;

Now, therefore, in exercise of the powers conferred by sub-rule (1) of rule 56 of the Defence of India Rules the Governor hereby prohibits during the period from the 2nd to the 16th June, 1944, inclusive, the holding of or taking part in public processions, meetings or assemblies consisting of more than five persons in the areas shown in the Schedule:

Provided that this order shall not apply to assemblies held for bona fide religious or marketing purpose.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, may I mention that the Hon'ble Minister is to reply to the debate on this adjournment motion but I see the Home Minister is not present in the House. Shall we wait till he comes?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: The Home Minister is on his way.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: The Schedule is as follows:—

- (1) The Bagerhat subdivision of Khulna district;
- (2) The Gopalganj subdivision of Faridpur district;
- (3) The Pirojpur subdivision of Bakarganj district; and
- (4) The Jhenidah, Narail and Magura subdivisions of Jessore district.

Therefore, we find that a requisition has been made of the Defence of India Rule 56. Now, let us consider what the Defence of India Act is.

I would, first of all, refer for the information of the honourable members of this House to the preamble to the Defence of India Act (Act No. XXXV of 1939). The preamble runs as follows:—

“And whereas the Governor-General in his discretion has declared by proclamation under sub-section (1) of section 102 of the Government of India Act, 1935, that a grave emergency exists whereby the security of India is threatened by war; it is hereby enacted as follows:”

The preamble, therefore, makes it clear that the necessity for enacting the Defence of India Act was the emergency created on account of war and the rules framed under the Defence of India Act have reference to the main purpose of the Act itself. Now, Sir, I submit for the consideration of the honourable members of this House whether this banning had anything to do with the emergency that has arisen on account of the war that is now prevailing on the borders of India.

Sir, the Hindu Conference which has been banned was organised mostly by the Scheduled Castes people in the district of Barisal for the purpose of consolidating the Hindus and for the purpose of improving their socio-economical and educational facilities. It was to be a conference not merely of the Scheduled Castes but the entire Hindu community and was to be presided over by the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, a man well-known for his calm temperament, cool judgment and moderate views. The order for banning the conference was issued on the 2nd of June on the eve of the conference—the days when the conference was to be held being the 3rd and 4th of June. Mr. P. R. Thakur, a member of the Bengal Legislative Assembly belonging to the Scheduled Castes, was the Chairman of the Reception Committee and the conference was advertised for more than a month. The order was served on the site of the conference in the presence of a large number of armed constables less than 24 hours before the meeting of the conference on the 3rd June. This did not in any way damp the enthusiasm of the people. All arrangements for the conference were complete and huge sums were spent for the pandal and other necessary equipments. The pandal was large enough to accommodate over 50,000 people and it was expected that there would be a gathering of one lakh of people from all over the province to hear the deliberations of the leaders who were invited. It is alleged that for the preservation of peace and order, it was necessary that the conference should be banned and people should not be allowed to congregate in large numbers because of the communal disturbance which had taken place in the Bagerhat subdivision of Khulna district. Sir, the disturbance in Bagerhat arose on account of a land dispute between two rival parties and the disturbance is said to have taken place some time between 25th and 27th May. It is said by the Chief Minister that the Superintendent of Police of the district of Barisal sent out an alarming report and that a conference was held in his presence with the Deputy Inspector-General, Presidency Range, the Intelligence Branch of Police, Additional Secretary, Home Department, Deputy Inspector-General, Bakarganj, the Commissioner of the Presidency Division and the Chief Secretary of the Government of Bengal. It was unanimously decided that the conference should be banned. Sir, we have it that neither the District Magistrate of Barisal nor the Subdivisional Officer of Bagerhat, the venue of the original disturbance, nor the Subdivisional Officer of Pirojpur had been consulted nor had they asked that the conference should be banned. It is said that they asked for the additional police help. I would ask the honourable members to consider whether the Chief Minister was justified in banning the conference without reference to the local authorities who were mainly responsible for the preservation of peace and order. Sir, we do not know whether Sir Nazimuddin before he took the drastic step had consulted His Excellency the Governor. After all, under the present Government of India Act the Government of Bengal is practically carried on by His Excellency the Governor, although nominally it is being conducted by the Ministry.

It is a matter of considerable importance affecting the entire Hindu community in the province; and I have no doubt that it will be realised that it is a matter in which Sir Nazimuddin, if he acted without consulting His Excellency the Governor or without calling a meeting of the Cabinet, has done something which he ought not to have done. Sir, we would like to know the opinion of the Hindu Ministers, specially the caste Hindus and the Scheduled Caste Ministers individually as to what they think of this action of the Chief Minister. Now, Sir, the Chief Minister has stated that before he took the drastic step he had consulted Dr. Syamaprasad Mookerjee and requested him to stop the conference. We do not know what conversation actually took place between the Chief Minister and Dr. S. P. Mookerjee as it was left in the dark. One thing is clear, however, that Dr. Mookerjee did not agree with Sir Nazimuddin and did not agree to stop the conference. Now, Sir, I would like to emphasise upon the honourable members of this House as to whether Sir Nazimuddin, while banning the Hindu conference in one part of the province on the ground of peace and order, was justified in holding a "Pakistan" conference at Dinajpur in another part of the province which was opened by him and presided over by the Hon'ble Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy, his first lieutenant. It may be suggested that he expected no golmal at Dinajpur. May be, the Chief Minister had been accompanied by a sufficient number of police force in order to safeguard and prevent any disturbance not only from the members of the non-Muslim communities but also from the Muslims themselves who were opposed to "Pakistan" and who do not belong to the Muslim League. It is thus clear that the present Ministry headed by Sir Nazimuddin is bent upon consolidating the "Pakistan" movement in Bengal and in suppressing all other organisations where Muslims or non-Muslims dare to oppose the "Pakistan" movement. I would like to emphasise upon the Hon'ble the Chief Minister that the Hindus of Bengal, both Caste Hindus and the Scheduled Castes, will not take this insult lying down. They consider that it is a serious encroachment on the civil liberties of the Hindu population of Bengal. I would like further to emphasise that the Hindu Ministers and the few Hindus who are at present supporting the Ministry are doing so purely in self-interest. I would challenge them to have a mandate from their respective constituencies on this specific issue. I would challenge the Hindu Ministers to come out and speak what they have to say in support of this action on the part of the Government. We have heard the Scheduled Caste Ministers in support of the action of the Government. We have also heard Mr. Mukunda Behari Mullick supporting the Government. I am sorry, Sir, that I cannot approve of what they have said and I take it that it was their personal view. We have it on very good authority that one Scheduled Caste Minister went out about a week before the conference and held meetings and tried his best to persuade the people not to attend the conference and to see that the conference is wrecked by the people themselves. It is also said that as these gentlemen failed in their efforts to stop the conference with the help of the local people, at the last moment they got this order issued by the Government of Bengal banning the conference. It is surprising to note that Sir Nazimuddin was trying to keep back from the House the statement of the Superintendent of Police, Barisal, who had reported to the Deputy Inspector-General that permission to hold a Hindu conference at Lora in the district of Barisal had been asked for. The police had nothing to say against such a conference. It seems clear that he returned the petition to the District Magistrate with the remark that the conveners of the conference might be asked to give full facilities to the police to take down notes of the proceedings. The Police Superintendent is understood to have added that he felt that it would be impossible to allow the conference to be held now at the spot selected, as it was the junction of four districts, without adequate police arrangements. It was only when the Opposition pressed hard that Sir Nazimuddin read out the entire letter of the Police Superintendent containing the aforesaid statement in the Lower House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The less you refer to the proceedings of the other House, the better.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I am only referring to some facts. I am not making any personal attacks.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, the less you do that the better.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: This permission was given. As a matter of fact, the Police Superintendent had added that he wanted adequate police arrangements in order to preserve peace. The permission was given by the District Magistrate of Barisal to hold the conference some time between the 29th and 30th May. The conference was banned at the last moment, as I have stated; although the permission was given after the so-called disturbance somewhere in the subdivision of Bagerhat in the district of Khulna. There was no report by the Subdivisional Officer of Bagerhat that the conference at Lora which is 7 or 8 miles from Bagerhat should be postponed on account of the disturbance at Bagerhat. There was no report from the District Magistrate or the Subdivisional Officer that they were afraid of disturbances there if the conference was allowed to be held. So, I submit for the consideration of the honourable members of the House as to whether the Government of Bengal were really unable to quell the disturbance which was going on in a small part in the Khulna district; and even so I would ask the Hon'ble Minister whether that would afford any justification for banning the conference in the way he did. It is painful to note that Sir Nazimuddin tried to suppress these material facts and wanted to give an impression that permission to hold the conference had been given before the disturbance in Bagerhat. The disturbance was of an agrarian nature connected with land dispute between two communities, Moslems and Namasudras. I submit it would be necessary for the honourable members of this House to consider whether there was any justification for an action like this after the permission that was granted by the District Magistrate. I would now request particularly the honourable members sitting to my left, I mean the European members, to ponder whether the Chief Minister had any justification to encroach upon the civil liberties of the Hindus of Bengal in the manner he did. I would ask them to consider whether they would have supported such action if it had taken place anywhere in their country. Whether or not the very promulgation of such an order would have led to bloodshed and murder which the order intended to prevent. As a matter of fact, we have it on the authority of very responsible people that when the order was served in the pandal in the presence of a large force of armed constables, there was a large gathering and the people were very much excited on hearing the news of the ban, and that in response to an urgent call Dr. Shyamaprasad Mookerjee had to start from Khulna to the site of the conference and could with great difficulty pacify the huge concourse of men and women on his giving a promise to hold the conference at the same spot at an early date.

Sir, I would remind Sir Nazimuddin of the declaration he made in April, 1943, when he formed the present Ministry and the promises he held out in the said declaration. Is the action of Sir Nazimuddin in the present instance in consonance with the said declaration, or is it not a direct negation of the same? The challenge thrown out by Mr. A. K. Fazlul Huq, the Leader of the Opposition in the Lower House, has an important bearing on the present question. After all, under the present Government of India Act it is the responsibility of His Excellency the Governor of Bengal and he is the supreme authority so far as every matter, which is of a controversial nature, is concerned. We Hindus—members of the minority community in Bengal—would request His Excellency to consider whether or not this was a serious inroad upon our civil liberties.

We would also request His Excellency to state whether he approves of the action of the Chief Minister in this matter; if so, what are his reasons for this discriminating treatment so far as the Hindus and a portion of the Muslims belonging to the Muslim League are concerned? If the District Magistrates of Barisal, Faridpur, Khulna and Jessore were not consulted, if they did not request the Hon'ble Chief Minister to ban the conference, had the Chief Minister any justification to hold a conference with the other officers without reference to the District Magistrates concerned or without even asking their opinion with regard to this matter? We would request His Excellency to issue a communiqué on all these points. On the contrary, if this action on the part of the Chief Minister has not his approval, whether or not he would like to take action under section 52 of the Government of India Act, where under clause (b) he has special responsibility of safeguarding the legitimate interest of the minority communities. Whether or not His Excellency considers that the legitimate interests of the Hindus have been flouted by the action of the Chief Minister and that it is essentially necessary that action should be taken under section 52, sub-clause (b) of the Government of India Act of 1935.

In the next place, I would request His Excellency the Governor to consider whether the action taken by the Chief Minister helps to preserve a contented base in Bengal so far as the Hindus are concerned. May we not request Sir Nazimuddin to remember that, as the Chief Minister of the Province of Bengal, it is his duty to hold the scales even between the different communities over whom Providence has given him the power to rule? Is it not a flagrant breach of duty on his part when he thus rode roughshod over the feelings of the Hindus and at the same time he himself went to open the "Pakistan" conference thereby giving a section of the Muslims in the province the idea that he would not hesitate to support a section of the population of Bengal and act against the interest of another section of the province? I would request Sir Nazimuddin to consider the far-reaching effect if such an idea is allowed to grow in the Province of Bengal among the different sections of the population over which he is ruling. I would request Sir Nazimuddin to consider whether or not even now he would take steps to prevent the growth of such a feeling and whether or not he would retrace his steps and act in accordance with the declaration he made when he formed his Ministry to ensure communal harmony; and declare even now that he would allow the conference to be held at Lora on the spot where the conference was to be held, if necessary, with requisite safeguards.

I would remind Sir Nazimuddin that the good name which he had earned during the long time he was in the political field and in the Legislature is practically going to be lost because he has allowed a conference to be held by a section of the Muslims who are supporting the Pakistan movement and at the same time banning a conference of the Hindus for the purpose indicated in my speech.

With these few words, I move my motion for adjournment of the House.

MR. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Motion moved: that the Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation that has arisen owing to the banning of the Hindu Sanmelani which was to be held at Lora in the district of Barisal on the 3rd and 4th June, 1944, under the presidency of the Maharajadhiraja

Bahadur of Burdwan and also banning of all meetings for a period of fourteen days in certain subdivisions in the districts of Barisal, Faridpur, Khulna and Jessore from 2nd June, 1944, to 16th June, 1944.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Mr. President, Sir, I beg to support the adjournment motion so ably moved by my friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee. Sir, all the present activities of the Ministry spring from one source, namely, a consuming fear lest it might be unseated by the rising volume of public opinion and the banning of the Lora conference is a case in point. To curb public discontent against one member of the Cabinet it has gone to the length of imagining hostile attack on the benighted town of Howrah in preference to the second city of the Empire. To check the consolidation of all classes of Hindus which might soon become so powerful as to make it impossible for a single Hindu to be on the Muslim League Cabinet, it stopped the Lora conference on the plea that it might lead to a breach of the peace.

Sir, but those who suggest that a conference presided over by the Maharajadhiraja of Burdwan, who may be described as the first Lord of the Realm and whose illustrious House has been a bulwark of Law and Order since the establishment of British rule in the country may aggravate a disturbed situation, are either fools or knaves or both combined. The Government, if it were sincere in restoring normal conditions at the earliest opportunity, would welcome the visit of the Maharajadhiraja at Lora as his presence and sage counsel would more powerfully influence the masses than the fear of the police and the military. This visit for the first time of the doyen of Bengal landlords to an East Bengal village might be a Red-letter day in the history of rural Bengal and usher in a period of goodwill among all sections of the Bengalee community living in villages. That what I say is no exaggeration is proved by the fact that soon afterwards when Srijut Syamaprasad Mookerjee visited those areas, poor Muhammadans made a present of water melons to him. These men of the good Earth are incorruptible and having no sons to apply for posts of Deputy Magistrates or become M.L.A.'s or M.L.C.'s are not interested in our political squabbles. These poor, down-trodden men are the salt of the Earth and keep going many of us here and definitely the Ministers and Parliamentary Secretaries with their immaculate trouser creases. They instinctively know, as a suckling knows its mother's breast, who are their real well-wishers and who simply trade in their name. Large numbers of such men were on their way to the conference and the banning order came as a rude shock to all of them. Sir, as far as my information goes, at least a sum of Rs. 10,000 was spent, and the conveners of the conference should make a test case for recovery of all losses from the Government. If the conference be held on the expiry of the banned period, heavy extra expenditure will have to be incurred as the monsoon will break out by that time. All this pecuniary loss has been inflicted by a Ministry nervous about its position. The District Magistrate did not withdraw the permit issued by him for holding the conference on account of an agrarian riot. Such ebullition of communal passion is bound to occur so long as the law of the land in the shape of the Government of India Act puts a premium upon communalism and so long as mass illiteracy continues. For a minor disturbance of this type to ban a conference organised chiefly by the Scheduled Castes Hindus is to deprive the Hindus of their civil liberties which are being encroached upon more and more during the regime of the Moslem League Ministry in Bengal. Mr. Jinnah and the Moslem League brought charges against Congress Ministries that they trampled upon Moslem rights. These charges have since been refuted and a challenge has been thrown against the League to substantiate the allegations. Whatever that may be, we in Bengal are having a foretaste of how Pakistan will ride roughshod on Hindu feelings. It should be the duty of Ministries in the Hindu majority provinces to treat the Moslem residents not only fairly but generously and take extra caution that their feelings and sentiments are respected. Such has been the case with Hindus in all times. The great Sivaji looked upon imprisoned Muhammadan women as his own mother and made a present of every copy of the Qoran that came his way during military operations to devout Moslems.

The Ministry will not be far wrong—here I mean the Muslim League Ministry—if in this Muhammadan majority province it treats Hindu questions with lenience and takes an extra degree of caution that Hindu feelings may not be wounded. Righteousness exalteth a nation and this noble attitude born of real, inner strength will consolidate Moslem position in India far more effectively than any threat or attack which this the most ancient race in the world knows how to ward off. At a time when save and except Orissa no Hindu majority province has a Ministry, the Muhammadan Ministries had a golden opportunity of setting up patterns of good government acceptable to Hindus. But here in Bengal while four District Magistrates, members of the heaven-born service by whom the Cabinet swears in season and out of season did not recommend banning the conference, the Ministry on the strength of a got-up conference of police officers prohibited a meeting of tens of thousands of Hindus of rural areas who intended to discuss among other things measures of economic progress and relief so badly needed after famine. I had a mind to go to the conference myself and of moving a resolution urging Namasudras and Bagdis, the fighting clans of ancient Bengal, to enlist themselves as soldiers and police constables. The movement has already been initiated and would have been accelerated if the conference were allowed to take place. While this monstrous Government will exact its pound of flesh even from the handloom weaver by way of the hitherto unimposed Sales Tax and will do nothing tangible for our Muchis, Kamars, Kumars and Doms, we Hindus have to do something to keep the बर्हिप्रसन्न, which is another name for society composed of trade guilds, intact as far as possible and thus assure even the humblest citizen a living. Why should the Government hinder us from doing our rightful duty? The famine has proved that the contrivance of protecting the interests of backward Hindus through English-educated Scheduled caste representatives in the legislature is a failure. This division of the community into caste and Scheduled Castes may serve the purpose of Imperialists but cannot fill the sunken bellies of poor men's children. They can be filled only by Hindus of all castes sitting together and devising measures for the preservation of the Hindu society as a whole. Such a sitting has been banned. At the same time the other side of the picture is that a Pakistan Conference was held under the very nose of the Government. In the end, I want to sound a note of warning that it will not help anybody in Bengal; particularly I should like to tell my friends who are sitting to my left that their interests will suffer in the long run if this state of affairs is allowed to go on. With these words, I support the motion of my friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mookerjee.

Mr. MD. HABIBULLAH: Mr. President, Sir, it has become a fashion now-a-days to move any number of adjournment motions. Only yesterday we received notices of as many as four such motions of which two were from one and the same person. Due to the war situation the population of Calcutta has increased. Prices of different commodities have gone up and from the notices of motions for adjournment it seems that the number of matters of urgent public importance has also increased. This reminds me of an article entitled "Charka" contributed by the late Dr. Rabindranath Tagore at the time of the Non-co-operation movement. It was preached at that time by Congressmen that charka would bring swaraj. Dr. Tagore warned the people not to give undue importance to unimportant things.

Undue importance to unimportant things minimise the importance of really important things. Charka could improve the economic condition of the people. But to say that charka would bring swaraj was dangerous, because by putting premium on insignificant things all effective methods to attain freedom were being relegated to the background.

In our Legislature also, by bringing in so many adjournment motions we are minimising the importance of matters of real public importance. Today's adjournment motion seeks to discuss the situation that has arisen owing to the banning of the Hindu Sammilan which was to be held at Lora. Only the other day the Hon'ble Home Minister was condemned for his failure to stop riot at Dacca and also at Bagerhat. Now, Sir, he is being criticised for banning a conference which was likely to have serious results with terrible loss of life and property—that is to say, for his failure to encourage riots. Through you, Sir, I would like to put a question to my friends opposite. What do they want the Home Minister to do? It seems that they want him to allow interested persons to stir up discord—to rouse up communal feelings even in hot-beds of rioting and then to maintain order and peace. They must remember that they cannot have it both ways. Members of the Opposition are now delivering sermons to the Government. Many difficulties would be solved if the physicians would try to heal themselves. I would only request my friends to recapitulate the principles followed by the Government which they so enthusiastically supported only the other day, I mean the Fazlul Huq Government. Under that regime public meetings—even processions—were banned throughout the Province. On one occasion, I remember, Sir, I went to Faridpur to preside over a literary conference and the meeting was banned on the plea that there was bad blood among the conveners of the conference. At Noakhali, Sir, during the Shyama-Huq Ministry there was apprehension of black flag demonstration against some of the Ministers. The Government not only banned the meetings—they put the organisers including the Secretary of the District Muslim League under detention. At Lakshmipur respectable gentlemen including lawyers were beaten, at Feni and other places students were arrested, rusticated, home-interned, deprived of their rights to appear at the examination. Defence of India Rules were used most arbitrarily. I can cite many other instances but time at my disposal would not allow me to do so.

Let us look for a moment to the doings of pure congress Governments of the United Provinces, Bombay, Madras, Bihar and other places. Public memory is not so short as to forget that congress Governments everywhere resorted to section 144 to stop meetings. Our nationalist friends are now-a-days very enthusiastic in supporting the actions of Malik Khizir Hyat Khan and his predecessor Sir Sikandar Hyat Khan. But what is the policy that was followed by them? Is it not a fact that they banned meetings and processions on many occasions?

When Sir Nazimuddin took office as the Chief Minister, he gave an assurance that he would work conscientiously and sincerely to maintain the civil liberties of the people of the province and we are glad to note that he has kept his promise to the letter. He availed of the first opportunity to lift the ban on meetings and processions imposed by Mr. Fazlul Huq, and supported by the leader of the Hindu Nationalist Party, Dr. Shyamaprasad Mookerjee. Not only that, since the assumption of office by the present Ministry, 533 security prisoners have been released. Certainly, this is not a proof of the trampling of civil liberties by the present Government. It has been pointed out by our learned friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee and others that the present Government was not always impartial. I can assure them, Sir, that they are absolutely wrong to form such a notion. You may be aware that a meeting of the Provincial Muslim League Council was to be held by the middle of this month at Dacca. The Secretaries of the Provincial League and the District League made all arrangements. But at the instance of, I think, Sir Nazimuddin the venue and date of this meeting have been changed. We think, Sir, there was absolute justification for the banning of the meeting to be held at Lora. A few miles away from the place there was a full-fledged riot during the last week of May and as many as 300 houses were burnt and looted. Responsible leaders both of the Muslim and the Scheduled Castes people have said that communal feeling had been strained in the neighbouring areas. Local officers apprehended bloodshed. The place itself was a hot-bed of communal feeling. Not only that: only three years back a serious disturbance took place there involving loss of life and property. Under the circumstances, what alternative the Home Minister had but to ban the meeting? It has been argued that the disturbance at Mollarhat was of an agrarian nature. But, Sir, when the quarrel between boys on the playground could develop into a communal riot, what was the guarantee that agrarian riots would not be converted into large-scale communal riots? It seems, Sir, that the gun powder was ready and the Home Minister did not allow it to be ignited. Our information is, Sir, that the local peace-loving Muslims and Hindus are blessing Sir Nazim for his prompt action which has saved thousands of people from death and destruction.

We on this side, Sir, are not less enthusiastic about protecting civil liberty than friends opposite. Most certainly we prize civil liberty—but, Sir, we value human life more.

With these words, Sir, I oppose the motion for adjournment moved by my learned friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBIS: Mr. President, Sir, I beg to support the adjournment motion and in doing so I would like to tell my honourable friend who has just taken his seat that the civil liberties which they like are not liked by the people of Bengal. It is perfectly clear to the people of Bengal that the supporters of the present Ministry like a particular brand of civil liberties manufactured in their own factory. By civil liberties we mean right of free association, freedom of speech, right to ventilate our grievances, right to tell the authorities what we want and what we do not want. Honourable members would remember the circumstances under which the notification complained of was issued by the Governor banning that Hindu conference. There was that Secondary Education Bill hanging. There was certainly enthusiastic support for this Bill from one section of the population and there was equally determined opposition by another section. The Ministry was anxious to pass that Secondary Education Bill and there was no doubt that a certain section was equally determined to oppose that Bill. That was the situation in the country when a Hindu conference was arranged for whose agenda did not include any controversial matter. The Caste Hindus were to meet the Scheduled Castes there under the presidency of a very enlightened zemindar of the province who could have given a lead to the Scheduled Castes of this Province.

But that has been banned only on the ground that an agrarian riot had taken place a few days before a few miles away. What that agrarian riot had to do with this conference one cannot understand. We have found that that power was exercised under the Defence of India Rules. Now, as it has been pointed out that the Defence of India Rules have got absolutely nothing to do with the banning of a meeting of this nature, I say, Sir, that the notification banning this conference was an abuse of the Defence of India Rules. I say that it is an instance of the prostitution of the Defence of India Act and Rules. They had got absolutely no power to do that under the ordinary law. Nothing was proved or suggested why this Hindu conference should have been banned at all, and but for the Defence of India Act they could not have usurped that power to ban this conference. I should say that it was most cowardly: because, you know, when an order is passed or purported to be passed under the Defence of India Rules, it cannot ordinarily be tested in a court of law. You have got that power from the Central Government only for a particular purpose. It is for the efficient prosecution of the war, for the defence of India and the like. Why do you abuse those rules? I would submit to the House that almost simultaneously the Hon'ble Ministers themselves, I am sure at public expense, went to hold a Pakistan meeting at Dinajpur in North Bengal. I do not know, Sir, if the Government of India Act allows the Hon'ble Ministers to draw their travelling allowance and travelling charges when they make a trip to further their Pakistan scheme. I think that the Government of India Act does not allow it. But still you issue a firman here, stop and ban the meeting at Lora of the Hindus and you go merrily to Dinajpur, where we understand there was a strong opposition by a section of the Hindu community to the meeting being held on the Government ground and to the forcing of Hindu shopkeepers and others to contribute to the funds of that conference. I say, shame, shame and shame.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Sir, I rise in support of the motion of my friend, Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee. In doing so on behalf of my Party, I would first of all make our position quite clear. We do not view this action of the Government from a communal standpoint at all. Our party does not think that it is a case of the suppression of any conference of the Hindu community. Rather, our party thinks that this action of the Government aims at the suppression of the real grievances of a considerable section of the public of Bengal. It is a pure accident that this conference was convened at the instance of the Scheduled Castes. They do form a very important section of the public, an important class of the people of Bengal, and they have every right to ventilate their grievances, to discuss about the ways and means for the promotion of the welfare of their community. So, as an important section of the people of Bengal they convened this conference, and the action of the Government in banning it was nothing but a suppression of the desire of the public to ventilate their grievances and to devise ways and means for their future welfare.

It seems that for the first time we can notice a particular system in the action of Government. They have been utilising the extraordinary powers given them by the emergency legislation, viz., the Defence of India Act for subserving their own political objects. Whenever they find that other means fail, they just employ these extraordinary powers. This is one instance and the other instance is close at hand, namely, their action regarding the Howrah Municipality. In both these cases, the history is the same. First, a preliminary attempt is made to put the situation under control and when that fails, the application of this extraordinary power comes in. If I may be permitted to say, this action on the part of Government in refusing the holding of meetings is nothing but a base imitation of the Fascist methods. Sir, what is the Fascist method? It is nothing but this: let not the voice of the people be uttered. There should be only one voice in the country and that is the voice of the Nazis. That is the basic philosophy of the Fascist method and it seems that the system followed by the present administration day in and day out is the same. Conferences can be held only under the auspices of the Moslem League but other conferences must be suppressed because there is the apprehension of a breach of the peace and also because the war-efforts in this province may be hampered. It is the same thing that Hitler and the Nazis would say. One voice in the country, one opinion in the country and other voices and opinions must be suppressed under the semblance of law. So, Sir, this action on the part of the Ministry is nothing but a faked imitation of the Nazi methods. What, after all, are the facts? It was not a conference called by any political party. It was a conference called by the member of the Scheduled Castes. The president-elect was a non-party gentleman and it was well-known that no political party was taking any active part in the organisation of this conference. (A VOICE: Mr. Majumdar was going to attend the conference.) Well, Mr. Haridas Majumdar might be going to attend; but it is quite recently that Mr. Majumdar has grown up to !

a party man at all; he belongs to a political party of which you are not afraid. You are afraid of another party, and the party of which you are really afraid was not in the field there. That is why I say that no political party was on the scene. Really, no political party had organised the meeting: it was an organisation of the Scheduled Castes members of the Province only and there were good reasons for it. During the last famine,—for which the credit or discredit goes wholly to the present Ministry,—it was these people who were most hard hit. Millions of people from this community had died on account of starvation due to the magnificent tackling of the food situation by this Ministry and this class of people was apprehending a similar fate this year too. So they wanted to discuss the future of their society and other things in this conference. Sir, all other countries are now planning what they should do after the war. Of course, we are not in a position to discuss that but the Scheduled Castes people could very well discuss at least what their welfare should be and what provision they should make to face a famine which they apprehended would arise out of the scarcity of food this year also. They had no confidence in the administration, and also in their tall talks about there being no scarcity in the country at all. They had very bitter memories of last year's famine which was brought on by the inefficiency of the administration and by the unimaginative handling of the food problem last year; and that is why the Scheduled Castes people had organised this conference to consider how the situation in the country affected their interests and to find out ways and means how to keep themselves alive from the starvation which seemed to stare them in the face once again.

It is further known to all that epidemics of cholera, malaria and other diseases have broken out in a violent form not only in that particular district but in all parts of Bengal. So it is the common interest of everybody to meet and discuss how to avert that menace. Therefore, Government ought to have encouraged such assemblage which sought to discuss the economic problem and to discuss the problem of epidemic diseases which is threatening to assume serious proportions. Instead of that we find that though the District Magistrates of the four districts concerned, who were the best persons to judge the situation, did not report apprehending any danger—though they did not apprehend that there was any risk of breach of the peace, there was some apprehension somewhere else. There was some guilty conscience which apprehended that there would be ventilation of grievances about inefficient administration and of their misdeeds, if the conference was to be allowed. They apprehended that if the conference was allowed to take place, their misdeeds will come out. I repeat that it is a base imitation of the Nazi method. (Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMED: It is the Congress method.) I am not here to defend the Congress. Meet me on that platform and I will reply to you there. Now, as I was saying, the local authorities did not report against it. There were no political agitators behind the conference. It was convened by the members of the Scheduled Castes. They first of all tried their utmost to frustrate the meeting by other means and when that failed, that weapon, the Defence of India Act, ready at hand, came to their rescue, as it did in the case of a very important municipality in Bengal also only the other day. It is apparent that the whole action is indefensible. Instances have been cited that such and such things were done while Mr. Fazlul Huq was the Chief Minister. But why do you imitate Mr. Fazlul Huq—

(Here the member reached time-limit.)

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: May I have 5 minutes?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think you should finish your speech now.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: May I have half a minute to finish my sentence?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: So I would say that this action on the part of Government is indefensible on the principle of equity and good government.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, will there be no exception in the case even of party leaders in the matter of time-limit?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Rules do not allow that: rules are very definite.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, Khan Bahadur Habibullah—
(Mr. HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: I am not a Khan Bahadur). Oh! you are not yet? We are hoping that you will be one soon. Sir, in him we have got a very worthy successor to our much-lamented friend, Khan Sahib Maulvi Abul Quasem. Mr. Habibullah Chowdhury asked us: what we would expect of the Home Minister to do? We certainly want the Home Minister to keep to his own promises. During the regime of the present League Ministry and as the leader of the League party he made at least one promise and that promise is about civil liberty. Mr. Habibullah Chowdhury with pride said that during the regime of his Ministry, Sir Nazimuddin redeemed his promise and released as many as 550 political prisoners. But it ought to be known to every one here that this release took place in 15 long months and in the course of this period as many as 151 fresh political prisoners were taken inside the jail. Then again, 1,300 political prisoners are still rotting in jail. When they took office, they promised that one of their main programmes would be to tackle the problem of the release of the political prisoners and that they were in sympathy with the hard lot of these prisoners.

If this is the measure of the sympathy he promised, then we must say that this is no sympathy at all.

Sir Nazimuddin made another promise—promise of two Freedoms and not Four Freedoms like that of Mr. Roosevelt. Those two freedoms are—freedom of association and freedom of speech. Now, Sir, where is the freedom of association and where is the freedom of speech? He has his own freedom of speech. There is no doubt about it. He can hold a conference for his own benefit in Dinajpur; but he could not allow a conference of the Hindus which was to have been held at Lora. That has been banned, and why? This reminds us of the story of the wolf and the lamb in Aesop's Fables. The wolf was drinking water in the up-stream and the lamb was drinking in the down-stream. The wolf asked the lamb why he was mudding his water. Whereupon the lamb retorted: how could he spoil the water when the wolf was drinking in the up-stream? Then the wolf said if it was not the lamb, it must be his forefather; and so saying he finished the lamb. Now, here Lora is in the down-stream and Mollarhat is in the up-stream. Moreover, the riot was an agrarian one and it had nothing possibly to do with the holding of this conference at Lora. Lora is six miles away from the place of the riot and the mighty Madhumati river intervenes. Then, why should the conference be banned? It has been said that the S. P. thought that there was likely to be a breach of the peace; but there was the District Magistrate as well who did not consider the situation to be at all grave. The District Magistrate is really the man who is responsible for the peace of the district. The District Magistrate neither promulgated section 144 nor did he take any such step. Lora although not far from the four districts, none of these four District Magistrates ever asked the Home Minister to issue an order banning the conference. The whole thing is this: the Hindu community was very much agitated over the Secondary Education Bill as well as over the Agricultural Income-tax Bill. They wanted to express their grievances at that conference. The Secondary Education Bill is one of the most important things which the Leaguers want to pass and it is so to say the foundation upon which they want the edifice of the Pakistan to be built up. They cannot allow the mufasil people to come forward in very large number and state their grievances against the Bill—particularly the Schedule Caste people who called the conference. There is no other meaning of banning the conference at Lora. If the Pakistan conference could be held directly against the wishes and feelings of the Hindus, there is no reason why the conference of the Hindus should have been banned. It was a non-political meeting. It was to express opinion upon the Secondary Education Bill. And this was not even allowed. We heard from somebody who once belonged to Government party that the report at first was that the meeting was to have been scantily attended and that would show that the Hindus were not very earnest about the Secondary Education Bill. They allowed the preparations to proceed which were completed at the cost of Rs. 10,000. But when it was feared that the meeting would be attended by nearly 50,000 people, mostly belonging to the Scheduled Castes, the Ministry could not allow the conference to be held and so taking advantage of the lawless law, the Defence of India Rules, they suddenly banned the meeting. This was zooloom, pure and simple. With these words, Sir, I beg to support the motion of my friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I am really surprised at the speeches that have been delivered to-day from the other side of the House; and what surprises me most was the air of righteous indignation and assumed innocence displayed by the Opposition and the mis-representation of facts made by their speakers. I have never, I think, defended a better case than the one I am doing to-day. I cannot understand how the honourable members after having read the Government case in the papers can get up one after another and make such speeches. Most of the members who have spoken to-day are great lawyers, and naturally they can always speak in defence or support of any case that comes before them. Now, Sir, I would like to place before the honourable members of the House what the real facts are as regards this matter and particularly the general proposition that has been put forward accusing us of depriving the gentlemen opposite and the Hindu community of their rights and civil liberties. Sir, those members sitting over there supported a Government which banned all public meetings, all processions and all freedom of speech. It is surprising that they accuse us of depriving them of their civil liberties. As a matter of fact, at present except in one or two places you can hold meetings without permission anywhere you like and speak whatever you like; and yet look at the air of righteous indignation, because one particular conference has been banned at a place where there was a serious danger of rioting and spreading of communal tension over a wide area including four districts. Now, Sir, I am surprised that Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee, of all people, should read out the statement of the Superintendent of Police of Barisal and not finish up that portion in which he said that he was definitely of the opinion that if this conference was allowed to be held there was the likelihood of a terrible loss of life and property. This portion he omitted, and he read out only the front portion of the statement where the Superintendent of Police dwelt purely on the legal aspect of the question. As a matter of fact, the question of permission did not arise about this conference. There was no ban on the conference. (Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: The District Magistrate gave permission to hold the conference and he did not ban it.) The District Magistrate did not ban the conference, because he did not realise the full magnitude of the situation. As a matter of fact, the communal tension in the various subdivisions became so intense and the situation was so serious and the demand for more police from the Superintendents of Police of various districts was so urgent that we had no option—Government had no option—but I shall deal with this aspect of the matter later on—but let me again ask gentlemen who get up and glibly declared that the Mollarhat affair had been an agrarian riot, how can these gentlemen knowing the facts and having read in the papers what has happened in those districts, treat this as a mere agrarian riot when a large number of people were killed and as many as 400 houses were burnt. An agrarian riot takes place when Hindus and Mussalmans combine together and fight another Hindu-Moslem group. But in this case it was not so. It was a case of dispute between the Moslems and the Namasudras and how can gentlemen opposite try to make out a case which is not here, I do not know. (Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: The riot was over land, and therefore it is an agrarian riot.) If, Sir, the dispute starts over land and if it takes a communal turn, is it still to be termed an agrarian riot? In this instance let them go to the place and find out whether the riot did not take a communal turn. If it was an agrarian riot, then how is it that the Namasudras and Moslems from Gopalganj crossed over in support of the people at Khulna and in Bagerhat subdivision? (Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: They were the relatives of those men.) Sir, can it be supposed that the people at one place had so many relatives as 2,000? I am surprised that they should be deliberately trying to mislead the people. I cannot understand this attitude. And what is more—

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: On a point of order. The Home Minister accused us of having deliberately misled the people. Is he in order?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Then, look at the situation in the district of Jessore. There again the trouble started owing to the murder of a Moslem which led to a disturbance of the peace and it immediately took a communal turn. The Scheduled Castes, Namasudras and Moslems started the disturbance, the tension grew among them and very quickly that tension spread into a riot. And, Sir, where is that place where the conference was going to be held? It was a junction of the river where the boundaries of four districts meet and the area was inhabited mostly by Namasudras and Moslems, people who may be described as very war-like. And what is more, after the incidents at Mollarhat large numbers of people were making attempts to cross the river and a riot was apprehended. They poured forth from Faridpore, Khulna and Jessore. It was definite that in those districts there was high tension. As a matter of fact, the Superintendent of Police, Jessore, asked for police reinforcements; the Superintendent of Police, Khulna, also asked for police reinforcements and the Superintendent of Police, Bakarganj, declared that he had not sufficient force to cope with the situation in view of his having sent a number of police to Dacca. Instead of these gentlemen being grateful for having avoided what might have otherwise developed into a very serious situation in Bengal involving hundreds of square miles and affecting lakhs of people, they find fault with the administration. (Mr. LALE CHANDRA DAS: That is your reading.) There can be no other reading. If you judge this question impartially, then you cannot have any other conclusion. This particular conference in the circumstances in which it was going to be held was fraught with the gravest possible danger and the safety and tranquillity of the people of the subdivision would have been jeopardised if it were allowed to be held. If the conference was allowed to be held, riots would have started and after that Government would have had no legs to stand upon. The honourable members themselves would then have got up and said—"knowing the circumstances, why did you allow this conference to be held; knowing that there was high communal tension in the three subdivisions of the Jessore district and knowing that the people there were excited in that vast and wide area where communication is bad and where the mobility of the police is restricted—knowing these things fully well—why did you allow the conference to be held"—you yourselves would have blamed the Government in that case for not stopping the conference. I ask these gentlemen, Sir, supposing this had happened, what would have been the reply of Government? (Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: This would not have happened.) You may say "this would not have happened", but we know that there was grave danger of riots. So instead of taking a reasonable attitude and without realising the gravity of the situation you have taken a perverse attitude. That is not the way of ventilating a genuine grievance. You are not ventilating a genuine grievance here; but because you have got an opportunity of attacking the Government you are doing so without any genuine purpose: because a particular conference has been stopped at a place where there was high communal tension, you are trying to make a grievance.

Now, Sir, members of the Opposition have mentioned more than once the name of the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan. We have also great respect for the Maharajadhiraja because every one knows that his family has never taken part in communal matters. The Maharajadhiraja of Burdwan was informed about this delicate situation without my knowledge by the Inspector-General of Police and as soon as he was informed of it, he decided not to leave Darjeeling.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: We are issuing a statement very soon contradicting that. It is far from the truth.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order Mr. Mazumdar.

Mr. Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I know he came down from Darjeeling on the same day as I came down from Dinajpur and he could not have therefore gone there on the day of the conference if he wanted to attend it. There is no point in the argument that because the Maharajadhiraja of Burdwan would preside, the conference should have been allowed. It is a fact that there was communal tension, that there was communal trouble in Mollarhat. The honourable members opposite cannot deny that under the changed circumstances—the situation having so changed since the Maharajadhiraja accepted the invitation—no Government could allow this conference to be held in spite of the fact that the President-elect of the conference was a person of such a high position and character as the Maharajadhiraja.

But the important point is this: that there was going to be a huge gathering. I do not believe that there would have been 60,000 to 100,000 persons, but the information was that local people were very strongly divided over this question of holding a conference there. (Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: What is your estimate of the likely attendance?) Nobody can estimate about a thing which did not occur. Sir, the fact remains that apart from all these things, communal tension at those subdivisions was at its height and there was a riot at Mollarhat which is only 6 miles across the river and if anything happened on this side of the river there would have been a flare-up in all the four subdivisions of the four districts. It would have been almost impossible for the police available there to cope with the situation. We have had experience of communal troubles in the rural areas. We know how communal riot spreads like wild fire and with such rapidity that no police can cope with it. Therefore, I maintain that as far as this question is concerned, Government were justified in stopping the conference. As I said somewhere else, the banning of meetings has been only for 14 days in those subdivisions. There is precedent all over India for such action. Sir, there is nothing to prevent the holding of a conference in any other place. In fact, the Hindu Mahasabha is holding conferences galore. Even this year more than one conference was held by the Hindu Mahasabha in other parts of Bengal and no notice has been taken of those meetings. These gentlemen opposite forget that they have never been prevented from holding conferences. They are making a fuss over this conference which has been postponed owing to certain unavoidable circumstances.

Now, Sir, I submit that the issue of the Secondary Education Bill was not before the country. (Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: It was before the country.) How can these gentlemen get up and talk about the curtailment of civil liberties day in and day out? They are holding conferences against the Secondary Education Bill, declaring from house-top their decision against the Bill, criticising Government and opposing the Bill. With what face these gentlemen now get up and say—(Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: There was a special significance in this conference.) My friend Mr. Ambica Datta, I am sorry, Mr. Kamini Kumar Datta, speaks of the Nazis. But his leaders are holding conferences in the parks of Calcutta about the Secondary Education Bill. They talk now of the curtailment of civil liberties. Have they no sense of proportion? This is a most irresponsible attitude. This can only incite communal feelings. Nothing can be more objectionable than this deliberate attempt to make out a case that Government are biassed against a particular community.

Here, this Government has given all the facilities and all the privileges which the Hindu community have never enjoyed under any Government; and yet they get up and say that they are being unfairly treated at the hands of the present Government. While we are trying to restore them their rights and privileges they come forward and say that they are being prejudicially treated by us. As a matter of fact, the Government that they supported and the Government they stood for put members under detention whom we released; and especially some members of the official Congress block in the other House whose benches are now full and one-third of whom were in jail are the loudest in their protests.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, having heard the Hon'ble the Chief Minister with regard to the incidents that are being discussed in the House today, I could not but admire the way in which the Hon'ble Chief Minister was laying out his case before the House. I am sorry, Sir, that he could not dare to utter a single word in support of his action in allowing the Pakistan conference at Dinajpur to be held on the same day as the Hindu conference at Lora was banned. I thought that he altogether forgot what he himself spoke in opening the conference at Dinajpur, and what his first lieutenant the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy spoke as President of the Pakistan conference at Dinajpur. I am sorry, Sir, that he did not dare utter a single word in justification of his action in allowing this Pakistan conference to go on on the same day in one part of the province while banning the conference at Lora in another part of the province which was conveyed by the Scheduled Caste people for the purpose of consolidating the Hindus. I am surprised to see that the Hon'ble Sir Nazimuddin had nothing to say in justification of the banning of the conference, although the District Magistrate had permitted the conference to be held after the disturbance at Bagerhat which was over by the 27th of May. The permission granted by the District Magistrate of Barisal was after the 27th May. Sir Nazimuddin could not refer to this matter because he had nothing to say in justification. He had no case so far as this matter was concerned. That is why he chose the best course of remaining silent on the point where he had no answer to make. Now, Sir, I think that Sir Nazimuddin knew very well that this conference had been announced a month before and that thousands and thousands of rupees had been spent for this purpose. It is reported that Rs. 20,000 were spent for the purpose of erecting the pandal and making other necessary arrangements for holding the conference. This was not done in a day. This was going on from day to day preparatory to the conference which was actually to take place on the 3rd of June.

What were the facts which necessitated Sir Nazimuddin to promulgate the order on the 1st of June? The order of banning was printed on the 1st of June and I believe it was decided to issue the order on the 31st of May. And yet we find that the District Magistrate of Bakarganj permitted the conference to be held on the 29th or 30th of May. But Sir Nazimuddin without referring to the District Magistrate of Bakarganj and only a police report banned the conference. I submit that when Sir Nazimuddin was speaking, he accused me of not placing one single sentence in the report of the Superintendent of Police, Barisal. The sentence reads that the Superintendent of Police reported that if the conference is allowed to take place, there would be a riot and so forth. I do not know what were the actual words used by that officer; but I have stated that the Superintendent of Police definitely stated that—and I have mentioned all these in my opening speech—that adequate police arrangements should be made if the conference is allowed to be held. The District Magistrate of Bakarganj no doubt had the report of the Superintendent of Police before him and permitted the conference. The Superintendent of Police may have said these things but the District Magistrate who was superior to the Superintendent of Police was certainly entitled to exercise his judgment and the District Magistrate did not rely on that statement of the police chief. The District Magistrate is an I.C.S. officer—I understand he is a Muslim—and there is no doubt that with a full sense of responsibility in his mind he allowed the conference to be held. I submit, therefore, that Sir Nazimuddin's utterance in this House that there was ample justification for the order has no basis to stand upon. What Sir Nazimuddin was saying surprised me most of all. He was quoting instances of such action on the part of the last Ministry. We are not here to support the action of the last Ministry nor are we holding a brief for the last Ministry. We are judging the acts of the present Government with reference to the facts that are existing now. Having regard to the facts that I have placed before this House in moving the adjournment motion—facts which have not been controverted by him—I submit that there was absolutely no justification for the order that he has promulgated.

I have failed to notice in his speech any reference to the point that I mentioned in my opening speech, that is, as to whether the Cabinet was consulted or whether His Excellency the Governor was consulted by him in this matter. Sir Nazimuddin has nothing to say so far as this matter is concerned. What is wrong, he asks. He says that in other parts of this province the Hindus have no grievance; they have held and can hold any number of meetings and conferences they like, and that they were not allowed to hold only one conference at Lora. And he asked where were the grievances on this account? As a matter of fact, he stated in support of his action that the last Ministry had banned all public meetings throughout the province. We do not know, Sir, under whose orders those banning orders were passed. We do not know whether the last Ministry was really responsible for those orders or whether those orders were issued by the then Governor behind the back of the last Ministry. We do not know these facts. But even then they are quite irrelevant to the present case. If the last Ministry had no justification for issuing those orders, then I hope Sir Nazimuddin is not supporting these actions of the last Ministry.

Is it that Sir Nazimuddin is quoting the instances of the last Ministry as a precedent, as a justification, for the present order passed by the Government banning the meeting? Is it his contention that he wants to justify the order passed by him in the present instance because the last Ministry passed such and such orders? I submit, Sir, that Sir Nazimuddin will not say anything of the kind. If that is not so, why cite this precedent to justify your action? Why bring in these irrelevant matters? That is not the issue. You are clouding the issue by bringing in irrelevant matters, only to throw dirt and for the purpose of misleading some of the European members who are supporting the Government. (Here the member reached time-limit.) I hope that the House will adopt the motion which I have moved.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is the motion of Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee: that this Council adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation that has arisen due to the banning of the Hindu Sanmelani which was to be held at Lora in the district of Barisal on the 3rd and 4th June, 1944, under the presidency of Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan and also banning of all meetings for a period of fourteen days in certain subdivisions in the districts of Barisal, Faridpur, Khulna and Jessore from 2nd June, 1944 to 16th June, 1944.

(The motion was negatived.)

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The points raised in connection with the Agricultural Income-tax Bill will take more time to consider. So the House stands adjourned till 2-15 p.m. on Friday next.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 2-15 p.m. on Friday, the 16th June, 1944.

First Session, 1944—No. 47.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Friday, the 16th June, 1944, at 2-15 p.m., being the forty-seventh-day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2) (a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BHOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

188. Mr. KADER BAKSH: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state—

- (a) whether the local authorities reported, after the Food Census in the district of Dinajpur was over, that Dinajpur was a deficit area so far as rice was concerned;

- (c) whether any rice and paddy were exported out of the district when the Food Census was going on and thereafter up till August, 1943; and
- (d) if so, what quantity of rice and paddy was exported during the aforesaid period mentioned in part (c)?

MINISTER in charge of the CIVIL SUPPLIES DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY): (a) Yes, the Balurghat and Thakurgaon subdivisions were reported to be deficit areas while the Sadar subdivision was reported to be a surplus area.

(b) Balurghat subdivision	... - 258,237
Thakurgaon subdivision	... - 166,329
Sadar subdivision	... + 6,760

(c) Yes.

(d) 22,654 maunds approximately, of which 11,654 maunds were despatched ex-Government stocks to other deficit areas where distress was more severe. The balance of 11,000 maunds belonged to the Bengal and Assam Railway.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: What are the deficit districts in Bengal?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: This question does not arise out of this.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You have mentioned the other deficit districts.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, he does not ask to which deficit district the rice was sent but he asks what are the deficit districts of Bengal. That is a general question.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: What are the deficit districts to which ricé has been sent?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: As far as I remember, to Dacca and Faridpur.

Standard cloth.

189. Mr. NUR AHMAD: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state—

- (a) what quantities of standard cloth had been indented by the Government of Bengal up to the 30th November, 1943; and out of the total quantities received how much has been distributed to each district of Bengal;
- (b) whether any standard cloth has been sent to the Chittagong district;
- (c) if so, what is the quantity of the same;
- (d) what are the agencies through which standard cloth has been sold in each district; and
- (e) how much standard cloth has not been supplied to Bengal as yet?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) The total quantity of standard cloth indented for up to 30th November, 1943, was 179·08 million yards. The total quantity indented for up to 30th April, 1944, was 283·75 million yards. A statement showing the distribution, district by district, up to 30th April, 1944, is laid on the Table.

(b) Yes.

Failure of crop in the Contai subdivision.

190. Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKERJEE: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state if his attention has been drawn to the fact that in the Contai subdivision in the district of Midnapore, there has been failure of crops in the flood-affected area inundated by Kalighai and Subarnarekha floods with the result that the total paddy output of the subdivision will not meet its requirements?

(b) If so, will he be pleased to state if he intends to stop export of paddy from the subdivision?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) Yes.

(b) It is not proposed to stop exports of paddy from the subdivision. Exports from the district are already banned except under permits granted by this department.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state why exports will not be stopped so that the output of paddy in the subdivision may meet its requirements?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: It is administrative area and not a geographical area. Consequently, it is not possible to stop export of paddy from the subdivision.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister take steps so that the subdivision may not be affected for want of paddy crops?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Steps have already been taken and stocks have been built up in Contai and in 28 different places.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is the stock sufficient for meeting the requirements of the population of the subdivision?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: That is the purpose of the stock.

Rationing in Barrackpore.

191. Mr. LATAFAT HOSSAIN: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state when rationing will be introduced in the Barrackpore subdivision of 24-Parganas?

(b) Have shopkeepers for the supply of rations been selected?

(c) If so, what is the percentage of Muslim shopkeepers so selected?

(d) If not, do the Government propose to fix the percentage of Muslim shopkeepers at 50?

(e) If the reply to part (b) be in the negative, on what basis or principles will the shopkeepers be selected?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) Rationing has already commenced in the area with effect from the 1st May, 1944.

(b) Yes.

(c) 11 per cent.

(d) and (e) Do not arise.

Mr. LATAFAT HOSSAIN: With reference to answer (c), will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state why a very small number of Muslim shopkeepers have been selected?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: It is possibly due to the fact that there has been paucity of Muslim shopkeepers in that area and possibly it is also due to the fact that the selecting agencies were not well disposed towards the Muslims.

Mr. LATAFAT HOSSAIN: Is it not a fact that the Muhammadan shopkeepers were not invited at the time of the selection?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I do not think, Sir, that invitations were issued to any class of shopkeepers either Hindu or Muslim. So far as I remember, certain local authorities were asked to send a list of names of the shopkeepers to the selecting authority, i.e., the Deputy Controller of that area, and it is from that list that the Deputy Controller has made a selection.

Mr. LATAFAT HOSSAIN: Is it not a fact that the officers who submitted the list of names omitted the names of Muhammadan shopkeepers at the time of preparing the list?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Does the honourable member mean to say that the persons who sent up the names of the shopkeepers were affected by communal bias and consequently they did not send the names of the Muhammadan shopkeepers? If he wants to say that, then it is much more than I can say, Sir.

Excavation of river Dakatia.

192. Mr. MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Communications and Works Department be pleased to state whether any representation has been received by the Government from the people of Raipura thana of Noakhali, for the excavation of the river Dakatia? If so, what action has been taken by the Government?

Mr. BIREN ROY, PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (on behalf of the Minister in charge of the Communications and Works Department the Hon'ble Mr. Barada Prosanna Pain): The information wanted is being collected and will be supplied as soon as available.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether any representation was received by Government from the Raipura thana of Noakhali for the purpose of excavating the river Dakatia?

Mr. BIREN ROY: A representation has been received by the Department of the Hon'ble Minister but not by him personally.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Is it a fact that some of the Ministers gave an assurance to the people that the khal would be excavated in the near future?

Mr. BIREN ROY: I am not aware.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: When was the representation received?

Mr. BIREN ROY: I want notice.

Mr. NARESH NATH MOOKERJEE: Sir, may I know why the Hon'ble Mr. Pain is not present in his place in the House today.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is not a question that arises out of this question.

Mr. NARESH NATH MOOKERJEE: I asked that question because the question is one which is to be answered by that Minister.

Relief staff at Rajbari.

193. Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHOWDHURY (on behalf of Dr. Kumud Sankar Ray): Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Revenue Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if the Communal Ratio Rules were maintained in appointing the relief staff at Rajbari; if not, why not;
- (b) if the Government sanction was obtained for making these appointments;
- (c) if these appointments were made after due advertisements in newspapers;
- (d) if any of the original appointments have been rescinded; and
- (e) if so, how many and on what grounds?

MINISTER in charge of the REVENUE DEPARTMENT, (the Hon'ble Mr. Tarak Nath Mukerjee): (a) The communal ratio was maintained in appointing the general clerical and menial staff but not in the case of camp hospital and workhouse staff. It was not possible to maintain the communal ratio in the appointment of medical staff for dearth of suitable candidates with the requisite technical knowledge. In the case of workhouse staff preference had to be given to persons having the necessary educational qualification and special fitness for the posts.

(b) Sanction of Government was accorded in some cases to the creation of the posts, actual appointment being made by the Collector.

(c) and (d) Yes.

(e) Appointments of three nurses were set aside in order to maintain the communal ratio.

Mr. NARESH NATH MOOKERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister please say if these three nurses were Hindus, Muhammadans or Christians?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEE: I want notice: I am not sure.

Mr. NARESH NATH MOOKERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister please say whether efficiency has been impaired by this decision?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEE: No, Sir; information goes to show that efficiency has not been impaired.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Questions over.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I gave notice of certain questions in connection with the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill—

Mr. PRESIDENT: You gave notice——?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Yes, Sir, I gave notice of certain questions in connection with the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, and I think it would be very convenient if answers to these questions were given before the Bill is taken up. In the circumstances, may I pray that the questions may be treated as short-notice questions?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Those questions are with me at present and I am considering their admissibility.

Adjournment motion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, there is an adjournment motion standing in my name.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: In my name also, Sir.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: There is an adjournment motion standing in my name also.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, Order. The first adjournment motion stands in the name of Mr. Haridas Mazumdar. But in view of the fact that the subject-matter of the motion is at present under adjudication of a court of law, it cannot be discussed here. So, that motion does not arise. The next motion standing in Mr. Das' name is also on the same subject. So, on the same ground it cannot also be moved. The third and the fourth motions, standing in the names of Mr. Haridas Mazumdar and Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee respectively, are also on the same subject and cannot similarly be moved. The last motion is that of Mr. Lalit Chandra Das, which runs as follows:—That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the failure of the Government to build up and maintain an adequate supply of rice to make an equitable distribution of the same at controlled price to the population in the deficit areas of the South-Eastern coastal districts of Bengal where the price of rice has gone skyhigh as evidenced, besides other informations of quite recent time, by the Calcutta Gazette of 15th June, 1944, resulting in a very serious situation so much so that most people generally are in great distress and misery and in fact starving.

I have considered this matter and in view of the fact that the grievance is a continuous one and that it is supported by the price-list given in the Calcutta Gazette of last week, I give my consent to it. Is there any objection?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: Yes, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Hon'ble members who are in support of the motion please rise in their seats. (Members of Opposition rose in their seats.) Thirteen members have risen; consequently Mr. Das has the leave of the House to move his motion. I suggest that we take it up immediately. Is there any objection? (There was no objection.) I may remind that under the Rules the mover will have 20 minutes to speak and the Hon'ble Minister 20 minutes to reply and 10 minutes for each other member who wishes to speak on this motion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move: that this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the failure of the Government to build up and maintain an adequate supply of rice to make an equitable distribution of the same at controlled price to the population in the deficit areas of the South-Eastern coastal districts of Bengal where the price of rice has gone sky-high as evidenced, besides other information of
.....

Sir, a complacent mood has been maintained by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Civil Supply since his assumption of office and that complacency still persists. There was a time immediately after the assumption of his office when he declared that there was sufficient rice in Bengal to meet the situation last year. He maintained that complacency for quite long. We persisted in saying that the situation was worse and we raised such a row that our voice was heard from all parts of the world—not only from different parts of India, but from different parts of the world. Later on, the Hon'ble Minister admitted that famine condition existed; and although we moved that famine should be declared in Bengal, the Government refused to declare famine but only admitted that famine conditions existed in some parts of the province. That was another indication of the complacent mood on the part of the Hon'ble Minister while Bengal was suffering from famine. This year at least, bounteous Nature has dowered Bengal with bumper crop and we had hoped that we would be able to tide over the difficulty at least for a year.

We are in the middle of the year and we are not yet out of the wood. Many feel that the remaining six months are difficult months and that food difficulties may reappear in certain districts of Bengal, particularly in Chittagong, Cox's Bazar and Noakhali. From the estimates prepared by the experts it was understood that due to the bumper crop of last year there should not be any difficulty to meet the requirements of the people. It is quite clear, therefore, to me at least, as I will presently show, that the Government has failed to make adequate procurement of rice in Bengal and to stock them up in deficit areas, so that when necessary the stocks might be distributed among the population according to their needs. It will be said on the Government side by the Hon'ble Minister that sufficient stock of rice has been purchased by Government and kept in different parts of Bengal. Again, there is the question of transport of rice from one place to another. If transport is not in the hands of the Provincial Government, by forethought and proper action from the very beginning of the crop-harvesting, arrangements should have been made to transport rice from the surplus areas to deficit areas in such large quantities as to meet the dire necessities of the people at any time of the year. In Cox's Bazar, the price of rice is 12 chittaks per rupee. It is awful! On Noakhali side, rice is selling at Rs. 20 per maund and above, as will appear from the Calcutta Gazette of 15th June, 1944. In Chittagong Sadar, rice is selling 1 seer 2 chittaks per rupee. If this is the situation, we want to know what the Government was doing so long. It is not that the situation developed suddenly. It will appear from the Gazette that the situation has been steadily deteriorating from the first half of April, 1944. Now, we are in the middle of June. Our information is that the situation has not improved. Acute distress is prevailing there. There is control of the price of rice but Government cannot enforce the control price. Rice is being sold at such a high price that it is not possible for ordinary people to purchase rice even when it is available. It has been argued that because of the higher wages paid by the war industries in that locality, labourers are in a position to purchase rice. I say, Sir, that is a myth. The labourers get at best Rs. 2 per diem while the price of rice has gone over Rs. 40 per maund. If that is the situation, one can easily conceive how matters are faring there. We have also received reports to the effect that hunger has driven many females to take to a life of shame and their number is not small. The number can be counted by thousands. It is disgraceful to say the least. I want to know what policy the Government is pursuing in this matter. It is necessary that their policy should be known. Is it to the effect that there should be perpetual stringency in the acquirement of foodstuffs in districts which are near the war zone with a view to force the people to become recruits in the army or labourers or to help the war efforts in different ways? Or is it that the policy of Government to supply rice to the people has been much hampered for lack of proper facilities of the movement of rice from one part of the country to another? We want to know what policy Government are following. In April and May, the Calcutta Gazette showed that the price of rice in the south-eastern coastal districts of Bengal went up by over Rs. 30 and in some places over Rs. 40 per maund. I do not know what the Government were doing all these days. Why there should be still inadequacy in the matter of supply of rice in these parts of Bengal? I would invite the attention of the Hon'ble Minister of Civil Supplies to the Calcutta Gazette of June 1. The prices ruled sky-high in April and May, and we are now in the middle of June.

What explanation can be given by the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies for continuation of such high prices?

It is surprising, Sir, that although these are sea-side coastal districts, the people there cannot get even salt at controlled price, at the price at which we are purchasing salt in Calcutta or at the price the salt is available in other parts of the province.

Now, Sir, as regards war effort, Noakhali and Chittagong have supplied a large number of seamen to the Navy and they are reported to be doing splendid work; and as regards labour force, these two districts have supplied a very large number of labourers who are helping the war efforts considerably. Now, Sir, the families and the kith and kin of these people who have been left behind in their homes are starving. Instances are not rare where they have been compelled to leave their own localities and fly elsewhere in search of food. These are the condition of the families of absentee labourers and other poor people. Sir, the condition of the middle-class bhadralog people can better be imagined than described. The male members of these families have been compelled to come to Calcutta and other places for earning their livelihood. But owing to the high price of foodstuffs in their home districts, whatever they send to their families is scarcely sufficient to procure them food and the result is that their family members are starving.

There is another class of people who are very hard hit, namely, the teachers. The condition of teachers is horrible, so much so that they have been reduced to a very indigent condition and their family members are also starving. This is the situation, Sir, in Noakhali as well as in Chittagong and Cox's Bazar.

I wonder, Sir, why relief should be so late in arriving at those places. It may be said by the Hon'ble Minister that the Civil Supplies Department had no information of this sort regarding the price of rice and that their information is different; but we shall have to rely upon the statement that has appeared in the Calcutta Gazette and that statement cannot be brushed aside—although our information is something different from that statement. The real facts have not appeared even in the Calcutta Gazette. What appears therein is that the price is somewhere over Rs. 40 per maund and somewhere below, but over Rs. 30, in Noakhali, Chittagong and Sadar, but our information is that it has reached the level of Rs. 50. There is another difficulty, Sir. When communications are sent from those parts of the coastal districts, they hardly reach the addressees or even if they do reach at all, they reach very late and that after being censored. When such facts are known they are required to be ventilated and sent to the Press, so that others may know and so that there may be conjoint efforts on the part of the public to come to the rescue of the suffering people. But when this information is sent to the Press and it is expectantly looked to to appear next morning in the Press, we find no mention of these correspondences or these news-items or anything of the sort in the newspapers. We do not know what happens to them; it may be that they are censored by the Press Advisor as a thing which should not be published. The only opportunity, therefore, that we get is to move an adjournment motion in the Legislature and that is the only opportunity that we have got to ventilate the grievances of those people so that redress may reach them as early as possible. With these words, I move my motion and commend it to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: that this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the failure of the Government to build up and maintain an adequate supply of rice to make an equitable distribution of the same at controlled price to the population in the deficit areas of the south-eastern coastal districts of Bengal where the price of rice has gone sky-high as evidenced, besides other informations of quite recent time, by the Calcutta Gazette of 15th June, 1944, resulting in a very serious situation so much so that most people generally are in great distress and misery and in fact starving.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the adjournment motion that has been moved by my friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das, in connection with the food situation in the Chittagong district town and its subdivisions. Sir, it is surprising to note that in spite of numerous actions taken by the Government under the Defence of India Rules prohibiting the public from entering into the rice trade and notifications issued under the Defence of India Rules under which the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies has sought to fix the price of rice to a certain figure in the district, we find that in the week ending 15th June the price of rice in Chittagong has risen up to the figure of Rs. 60 a maund, the official figure as published in the Gazette being a little lower.

Sir, I would like the Hon'ble Minister of Civil Supply to answer why, since rice is selling at a price varying between 12 and 13 rupees in the district of Dinajpur, no arrangements were made in time to transport rice to Chittagong side and again if sufficient stocks are available from the rice purchased by the agents of Government and are now in the possession of Government, as is admitted by the Hon'ble Minister—why these stocks of rice could not be sent in time so that the price of rice in Chittagong would be the same as in the other districts? The normal trade channel has been completely blocked and Government have practically taken the control of the entire rice trade in Bengal. If that is so, it is the duty of the Government to see that the price is maintained all over Bengal on the same level or slightly different on account of the difference in the cost of transmission. Now, Sir, the position is that no rice is available in Chittagong while there is plenty of rice in other districts—for instance in Dinajpore. Who is responsible for this shortage? Why was it not anticipated that due to want of transport facilities it would not be possible for the Hon'ble Minister to keep sufficient stocks in Chittagong? Why did he not anticipate this and so organise the trade channel and the local traders that they might have been able to bring sufficient stocks of rice in time for the consumption of the people? The position is that we have been informed that not only the price of rice is very high in Chittagong but that even at a high price it is not available and that the people there are starving for want of foodstuff. As a matter of fact, we have been informed, and it is a matter of shame for the present administration that about 30,000 women of middle-class families have been brought down to Calcutta for the purpose of prostitution—simply because these unfortunate women could not make their living in Chittagong. We have been further informed that a regular trade is being carried on with these women in Calcutta and that numerous brothels have been started for their accommodation. Sir, my friend Mr. Nur Ahmed sponsored a Bill for the suppression of brothels and that Bill was referred to a Select Committee and when we pressed that the Select Committee Report should be published immediately so that steps might be taken for the suppression of this trade, the matter was adjourned and it has not been allowed to be brought in again. I submit that it is a shame for the present administration that they could not supply rice and other foodstuffs, could not take steps for the purpose of keeping a stock of foodstuffs for the people of Chittagong so that they may not be in want and they may not be compelled to leave the district of Chittagong and come out to Calcutta for the purpose of making their living. I do not think it necessary to dilate on this point. With these words, I support the motion of my friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Mr. President, Sir,—

Mr. NUR AHMED: Mr. President, Sir, may I say a few words—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Nur Ahmed, I have already called upon the Hon'ble Minister to reply. I waited for some time but you did not get up.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I thought that other members of the Opposition would speak and that is why I was waiting.

Mr. PRESIDENT: However, as you belong to the Government party and as no other member of the Government party has spoken, I allow you to speak.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I wish to say a few words in connection with the adjournment motion which is under consideration. I have come back from Chittagong very recently. I tried to gather real facts regarding the condition prevailing in Chittagong while I was there.

As regards the price of rice, I found that in three thanas, namely, in Fatikchhari, Mirsari and Banskhal, the rice was selling at 1½ to 2 seers a rupee. In other thanas, rice is at present selling at 1-4 chittaks per rupee and with the approach of monsoon in some of the thanas the price is going up, namely, the rice is selling 1 seer per rupee. Sir, it is not a fact that rice is not available. Rice is available in the black market, and not in the open market. The reason is that the people very much fear to bring rice for sale in the market for fear of the bakshis system of the police.

Then, Sir, in Chittagong town the rationing system has been fully introduced and it is working there very satisfactorily. There is no complaint about the rationing there. The District Magistrate has made excellent arrangements, so much so that even guests and people who go to Chittagong for a short period get their ration cards within a few hours of their arrival. Only vegetables are selling at abnormally higher prices. Wheat and other things are there in sufficient quantities. Rationing system has been introduced in suburban areas to the extent of 25 per cent., i.e., in Double Moorings and in Panchailish. It is true that the poor and the middle-class people are in real difficulty in the rural areas. Workhouses have been opened in Chittagong and the District Magistrate controls these workhouses. At present there are 31 workhouses, which I think is very insufficient. Government have 643 free kitchens in Chittagong in 1943; in their place, there are only 31 workhouses.

Then as regards arrangement for medical treatment, it is not adequate in Chittagong. During my visit there I have not found a single smiling face. About 70 per cent. of them are suffering from malaria. I must thank the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Civil Supplies for I always found him very sympathetic towards the situation in Chittagong. My experience of the previous Ministry tells me that this was not so during their time. At that time Chittagong was very hard hit and in spite of my efforts I could not succeed in getting supplies sent to Chittagong.

In February, 1943, I got from my son a letter saying that the price of rice was rising rapidly. I did not believe it, because I myself had purchased rice at Rs. 13 a maund only a few days ago. Again, after 15 days I got another letter from my son informing me that rice was selling at Rs. 40 a maund. I did not believe even this; but subsequently I had to believe it. I drew the attention of the past Ministry to this state of affairs in Chittagong but they did not send any supplies there. But with the advent of the present Ministry, the Government sent some supplies to Chittagong.

As regards the present situation in Chittagong, I find that the District Magistrate is personally inspecting every centre of relief. Government have opened some controlled shops in the mufassil area and one of the features of rationing in Chittagong is that Government have fully utilised the normal trade agency. There is no Government-owned shop. All shops of ordinary shopkeepers have been employed by Government for selling foodstuffs at controlled price. Some of these shopkeepers resort to malpractice, because some of the Sub-Inspectors whom Government have employed to inspect these control shops and who draw Rs. 75 a month as salary extort moneys as bribes from these shopkeepers. One of my relations who happens to own such a control shop has said to me that he has got to pay bribe every month to the Sub-Inspector. I told the District Magistrate about this fact. He assured me that he would pay a personal visit to such shops in order to find out such cases of malpractice. I must thank him for the energy and the activity that he is showing for the good of the people of Chittagong.

I did not receive any information about the death of people due to starvation. Of course, the vitality of the people has been lowered owing to undernourishment. I fear that if Chittagong is not organised more fully on the famine basis, then with the advent of the coming monsoon there may occur deaths due to disease and starvation. Therefore, I appeal to the Hon'ble Minister, whom we thank for all the help that he has rendered, to take steps in this direction. The District Magistrate of Chittagong told me that he had some stocks at his disposal. But I told him to augment his stock by 50 per cent.

I oppose the motion on the ground that the facts have been exaggerated as regards Chittagong. I have tried to give a correct statement of the facts as I have seen and as I have been able to gather from the people of Chittagong.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Mr. President, Sir, I think it is an extremely unfair indictment on the part of Mr. Lalit Chandra Das that as regards Chittagong or as regards the general food situation in the province I am in a complacent mood. Sir, I realise the difficulties of Chittagong.

I will not in the course of this debate embark upon what I consider are the difficulties of the province as a whole or how we are attempting to meet them. I feel, Sir, speaking shortly, that this province will never be out of the woods. It is a deficit province as every one knows and it will be our constant duty to keep a watch on the situation and to make the best of the difficulties with which we are confronted. The policy of procurement and of feeding the deficit areas on which we have embarked has—I think it must be admitted even by honourable members of the Opposition—proved to be somewhat of a success,—far better than we had hoped for. The price of foodgrains is fairly low in most parts of Bengal—so much so that from certain sections there is already a cry for the fixation of a minimum price. We have endeavoured to bring down the price of foodgrains as well as the price of other commodities which the agriculturist has to purchase. The price of neither has come down to an extent which we can regard with complacency. Consequently, we shall always have to be on the watch.

As regards Chittagong itself, one must realise that it is a forward area in very close proximity to the war zone. It is perhaps rather difficult for honourable members here to realise what that means. It means that the entire movement to that place is dislocated. It means that storage is dislocated; it means that distribution and movement within the district is dislocated. It means too that labour is diverted to other channels; it means that arable lands have to be given up for military purposes. It also means, as honourable members know, that boats which used to form a very important asset of a Chittagonian are no longer available. He is not able to carry on business, to move foodgrains or to fish—and one of his most lucrative methods of earning, namely, through dry fish, has been denied to him. These difficulties are there and we greatly sympathise with them. We have tried our best to move foodgrains on to that area. The Military have placed certain space at our disposal and we have utilised it to the full. We tried to send foodgrains from Dinajpur by the metre-gauge line but we do not know what has happened to the wagons—(Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Since what time?) Some time back, and I believe they are still on the way. They do not reach in time. But in spite of that we have built up a sufficiency of stocks. In spite of these difficulties, in Chittagong itself today there is a sufficiency of stocks to enable the District Magistrate to ration the urban area hundred per cent., to ration 25 per cent. of the suburban area and to ration 10 per cent. of the rural area. He considers that there is a submerged section of the population,—that would be about 10 per cent.—who need special protection. There are many others who are earning more than they have earned ever before. I do not deny that the rise in prices has hurt a section of the people. But if one considers the rise in the income as well, it will be seen that the rise in prices has not hurt such a large section of the people as would normally have been affected. —Sir, would Mr. Humayun Kabir cease from moving about the House? It is impossible for me to concentrate my thoughts—

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I am surprised to find that it has attracted the attention of the Hon'ble Minister—

Mr. PRESIDENT: There should not be so much movement in the House.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: As I was going to say, Sir, there has been an increase in the income also. It is not merely a few contractors in Chittagong and Noakhali who are making money. All the money that is being spent by the military in that area—and that money is considerable—is being received by the general people, there. Now, for instance, if a villager is able to get Rs. 10-8 for a fowl, he will certainly have a much larger purchasing power than he had before. It is true that every villager has not got fowls. It is true too that the number of fowls is not unlimited. But at the same time, when fowls fetch this price and eggs are fetching annas two each, it means that there is more money in the hands of the villager for him to spend. Therefore, the economic price of foodgrains must rise—there can be no question about it. It must rise—it is a phenomenon which must occur. If it did not occur, the entire system of economics would be falsified. For that reason, you must realise, the rise in prices in that area has not brought about that general dislocation and that general distress which it would have brought about under similar conditions in normal times. There has been local inflation and the local inflation is reflected in the prices of commodities.

Now, Sir, what we propose doing is this: apart from the general orders which we have passed to ration Chittagong district as a whole, we are, as an immediate target, making preparations to ration 50 per cent. of the population. I have suggested that 10 per cent. of the population who are very poor may be given rations up to 3½ seers per week; so far as others are concerned, I am rationing them at the rate of 2 seers per head per week, subject to that as the supplies of foodgrains increase, their supplies will also be increased.

Now, Sir, there are certain indications which make us feel that the distress is not so considerable as my friends would like to make out or as the figures would indicate. Gruel kitchens, as the honourable members probably all know, have been closed down because the attendance in them declined. We have opened workhouses and all arrangements are in existence to operate them.

Now, Sir, if there were distress—actual and great distress in that area,—there can be no denying that the people would have gone to the workhouses for succour; but the workhouses are empty. I agree that there is a certain section of pardanashin ladies who cannot go there so also the bhadralog classes. It is true there is that section and we are making efforts to cater to their needs; but the workhouse is an indication of general distress. If people do not go to the workhouse, it is not open to any one to say that there is very great distress and people are dying all over the place. When we have opened an avenue for them for subsistence and given them facilities where they can find food and shelter, it is quite clear that if they do not take advantage of those facilities it is due to the fact that they are not in distress, at least for the time being.

Then, there is another foodgrain which was largely utilised during the distress period and which has come to the help of the people of Bengal in many places; I am referring to bajra. I have sent plenty of bajra to that area. Now, unfortunately members belonging to the bhadralog class, from which most of my honourable friends come here, have been making a joke out of bajra. They have created an atmosphere that bajra is not good for the people, with the result that a prejudice has arisen against it to the detriment of the poor. The poor have suffered, I definitely assert, for the jokes of the honourable members in this House and outside. They have got money and can buy foodgrains such as rice, wheat, atta and so can afford to deride bajra; but there is a section of the poor that cannot afford to buy rice, wheat or atta. They can buy bajra but as they think that bajra will give them pain in the stomach, they do not buy it. In many places throughout Bengal bajra has saved the people and there is a demand for it even now. On this occasion we have sent bajra to Tangail where its efficacy has been much appreciated. We have sold bajra in large quantities in Manikganj. In Chittagong we are selling bajra at Rs. 4-8 per maund which is less than our procurement price. This ujra is selling at Rs. 7 per maund in other parts of India or even at a higher price than that; but in order that the poor people in Bengal may take advantage of this cheap foodgrain, we are selling it at Rs. 4 per maund. You know, Sir, that so far as paddy is concerned, the rice produced is two-thirds in weight; one-third is wasted in husk. But as far as bajra is concerned, out of 10 seers only $\frac{1}{2}$ seer is thrown away as husk and $9\frac{1}{2}$ seers are available as food. It is a good food and it is palatable. It can be made into pita which our people readily understand. With that food available of which we have sent plenty to Chittagong, with that food available for the poor, it is not possible for any one to say that people are dying of distress because they cannot purchase rice at Rs. 40 per maund. We are also sending gram there to be sold at cheap rates, and gram is an article of food which can be of use to people in distress. Their consumption is a sign by which we can find to what extent people are in distress or are not. There are the gruel kitchens, there are the workhouses and there are the cheap foodgrains; but if people do not take advantage of them, I do not think, Sir, that their condition can be as bad as has been depicted. But apart from that, I feel it is our duty to assist people before they are brought down to the level of distress. It is our duty to provide them with foodgrains as cheaply as we possibly can, and this duty we are discharging at the present moment. A propos of gruel kitchens, the District Magistrate has a lakh of maunds of rice set apart entirely for the relief of distress, and he has not permitted himself to touch it for rationing purposes. He has stocked the rice in various parts of Chittagong and no sooner will distress appear, than this stock of rice will appear for use through the gruel kitchens. But apart from this, we have got stocks in Chittagong itself and in Choumuhani and in other stocking places to the extent that storage is available. May I point out that while we are trying to send foodgrains to Chittagong there are no sufficient facilities for stocking the foodgrains even in that place, and therefore we have had to stock foodgrains outside the district; but we have made arrangements to move these foodgrains into Chittagong as occasion will arise. Apart from this, Sir, we have made arrangements to send foodgrains via Dinajpur through metre-gauge line and Tistamukghat and then by barges as well as by the rail-route and also from Calcutta to Khulna by rail and then by barges. We hope that when the rains begin, we shall be able to send directly by boat from Dinajpur. In order to facilitate movement by river, the American Army has been good enough to place certain tugs and sea-mules and barges at our disposal. These are now being assembled. It will take some time to assemble them. But it is gratifying to note—and I think, Sir, we ought to give due thanks to the American Army for having been good enough to place these at our disposal—that these would facilitate our movement considerably and that is the reason why I can look forward with some hope to tackle the problem in future. I do not know whether it will interest the honourable members, but it is not merely to show that Chittagong has my sympathy but because I want to organize the movement of food-grains to Chittagong, the storage in Chittagong, the distribution in Chittagong and the rationing in Chittagong under my personal supervision that I propose to go down to Chittagong as soon as the legislative work here frees me from it. I am most anxious to go there—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: That will be in the Pujas.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: No, I hope not. I will go much earlier: within the next four or five days, if possible. Arrangements have been made which will, I am sure, bear fruit within the next fortnight.

Already I have instructed that the stocks of foodgrains that have been arranged for Chittagong should be moved to Chittagong and be distributed there. I hope, therefore, that this statement of mine will be found satisfactory by this House and by the people of Chittagong.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: May I speak a few words on the motion, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, it is not the usual practice to allow other Ministers of Government to speak when the Minister in charge of the department concerned has spoken. But if you want to speak as the Chief Minister on the general policy regarding the situation, I am prepared to make an exception in your case.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Thank you, Sir. I would particularly request the honourable members to bear in mind that so far as this question of supplying foodgrains to Chittagong is concerned, it is fraught with great difficulty because we are in the midst of a war. Although with the help that we have received from the military authorities we have been able to a certain extent to improve our movements of foodstuff in the province as a whole, we are still at a great disadvantage so far as Chittagong is concerned. The main route of supply, namely, the railway, is to a very large extent taken up with supplying military stores and personnel. The other route, namely, the sea, that also,—practically the major part of it,—is taken up by the military and it is only after very many representations that the military has given us a certain amount of tonnage space for carrying foodstuffs to Chittagong. It is not that we have not got enough foodgrains to send to Chittagong. By the grace of God we can flood that district with foodgrains: we have got sufficient stocks of foodgrains with us not only for the district of Chittagong, but also for Tipperah and Noakhali; but our difficulty is mainly of transport. We have been trying our utmost from the very beginning of the season to send as much as we can to these three districts, particularly to Chittagong; and all our efforts have been concentrated on this one particular point, viz., how to dump foodstuffs into the Chittagong district. We realise the difficulty in which the people of Chittagong are placed. But during war certain areas have to put up with a certain amount of hardship, because under certain circumstances it becomes inevitable. We have taken steps to see, as the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies has just now explained, that people, particularly the poor people, are not starved, and for this purpose we have built workhouses all over the district.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: How many, please?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Well, a very large number of them; I cannot give you the exact number.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: 16 major workhouses and 40 minor workhouses.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As has been just now explained by the Civil Supplies Minister, there have been spread over the whole of the distressed area 16 major work-houses and 40 minor work-houses so that if there is want, they can go there and get enough to maintain themselves. We have taken precaution that people should not starve this year and we are confident that nowhere in Bengal there will be any starvation. There may be hardship. I am even prepared to admit that as far as parda women belonging to the poor and middle-class are concerned, there may be certain amount of privation; but I am confident that there will be no starvation. We have also kept in readiness arrangements for gruel kitchens — (Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Have you given orders that no mortality figures should be published?) That I say is absolutely incorrect. I do not know how this wrong information has got currency. I am enquiring into the matter. The only possible explanation may be that we are reorganising our system of getting information of mortality figures. A different agency has recently been introduced for collecting this information and that as such the union boards have been asked not to send these reports. That may be the only explanation for this rumour. The Public Health Department has taken up this work and mortality figures are now being collected through the Sanitary Inspectors. We are trying to organise the machinery of getting this information through a more reliable source than through the union boards which used to get information through the chowkidars. It is not a fact that we have given orders to the union boards not to send mortality figures. Now, Sir, I am thankful for the interjection of Mr. Lalit Chandra Das as his interjection has enabled me to clear one incorrect information which has gone very much against Government and for which it was very difficult to find explanation and which incidentally gave colour to the fact that we apprehend a large number of deaths which we do not want to be recorded. On the other hand, it is just the reverse. We have improved the system of obtaining information regarding mortality, so that we may be able to get more reliable statistics of mortality figures.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the destitutes dying in hospitals be taken as deaths from starvation, if they die?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Well, it depends on whether they die of starvation or from diseases. If they die in hospital after being admitted as a starvation case, then that will be recorded as death from starvation. But if they die of any chronic disease or on account of other causes, they will be considered as death from diseases. It depends on what are the facts. I think the hospital authorities will be able to give proper idea as to whether a person dying there is dying on account of disease or due to starvation. They are the experts and they are competent to say whether a case of death there is due to starvation or due to other causes.

Now, Sir, as I was going to say, arrangements for reopening the gruel kitchens are ready and, God forbid, if conditions grow worse, we will open them immediately. So that our second or third line of defence is ready for the people suffering from starvation. Last of all, I want to point out that if within a few days we have good rains we shall have a good prospect of aus crop, and the food condition will certainly be improved, and particularly relief from districts like Tippera and Noakhali will be made readily available to Chittagong even at the present moment. You will realise, Sir, that both in Tippera and Noakhali certain quantities of aus has been grown. Cultivators in these areas naturally are withholding their aman paddy but will release them if they are fairly certain of their aus paddy. The prospect of aus paddy, so far as East Bengal is concerned, is fairly good, though this lack of rain during the last few days may have given some cause for anxiety. In some places, we have had rains and we hope to tide over the difficulty.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I shall be very brief in my reply. I desire to say a few words in reply to the Chief Minister's speech regarding the recording of deaths of destitutes in hospitals. I do not know what he has in his mind when he says that the sanitary inspectors have been asked to furnish the number of deaths from starvation. I do not think that the Chief Minister has improved the position. A destitute may die in hospital from starvation and the sanitary inspector may say that the destitute was suffering from some illness. The Government should issue a press note contradicting the news that no order has been issued asking the union boards not to keep registers of deaths due to starvation. Even if, say, 250 people died from starvation in any area, that will not be recorded. So, in spite of the Chief Minister's explanation, I would request him to issue a press note on the point.

I am sincerely thankful to the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies for the assurance that he would visit Chittagong soon and make all possible efforts to relieve the distress of the people of Chittagong. In spite of all that Mr. Subrawardy has said, Sir, the income per capita of the people in that area is not at all satisfactory. I do not believe that the people over there have got more income due to war. Some may have an increased income but their number can be counted on fingers' ends. Last year the prices of food articles were so high that it was not possible for the people to make both ends meet. It is so this year also in Chittagong.

As regards gruel kitchens, last year's experience shows that food distributed by those kitchens brought diseases which ultimately led to deaths of many destitutes.

As for workhouses, I do say, Sir, that their number is too small. There are only 60 workhouses in a district 200 miles long.

With these words, Sir, I move that my motion may be accepted by the House.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, Mr. Lalit Chandra Das's —

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: On a point of order, Sir. May I know whether the Hon'ble Minister has a second right of reply?

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Hon'ble Minister can reply to the new points raised by the mover of a motion.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, Mr. Lalit Chandra Das's enquiries are: if a destitute dies in hospital, how would the death be classified. Now, Sir, the Hon'ble the Chief Minister has replied to that in some measure, namely, that if the destitute dies in the hospital due to starvation, that will be classified as death due to starvation, but if he dies as a result of an attack of cholera or some other disease, death will be classified as death due to illness.

The deaths of destitutes in hospitals have all along been classified as deaths from starvation even if they have died from diseases. We do not want any idea to get about that we wish to shirk or minimise the difficulties that are there before us.

Now, Sir, Mr. Das says that a Press Note should issue to contradict the rumours that are going about that instructions have been issued by Government to the effect that no deaths from starvation should be recorded by union boards. Now, Sir, with very great respect I say that I do not think that any reasonable man can ever make such an assertion. I feel that the honourable members in this House are making this assertion for political purpose. But no reasonable man outside can possibly make an assertion that Government have issued instructions to the effect that deaths from starvation should not be recorded. Deaths from starvation have been recorded, and will continue to be recorded, if any such unhappily occur; and there is nowhere a single word therein to the effect that deaths from starvation should not be recorded. I suggest that any Press Note issued by the Government to counteract such a silly propaganda would make Government look very silly indeed. You cannot circulate absurd rumours and then ask Government to issue forward anything that you like, and you can ask that Government a Press Note to contradict it. But there must be a certain amount of commonsense, a certain amount of reason behind it before Government issues a Press Note —

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, will there be no time-limit for the Hon'ble Minister?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The Hon'ble Minister is subject to time-limit, and I am watching it.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Then, Sir, Mr. Das has referred to the inadequacy of workhouses. Sir, how can persons like Mr. Das who are not conversant with the affairs of Chittagong make that statement? There are certain portions in Chittagong which are considered to be surplus areas and from which movements to deficit areas are possible. We have located stocks and hoards which we have requisitioned, and this has created a certain amount of disturbance amongst the richer classes who want to hold on to their stocks and do not want to release them for the poor people. The workhouse has obviously not been started in the surplus areas. If we leave out those areas, we do consider that the number of workhouses and the subsidiary workhouses which have been set up by the District Magistrate are quite sufficient. Had there been only one workhouse, and people in distress did not go to that workhouse, that would be sufficient to indicate that there was no distress.

I have been in constant correspondence with the District Magistrate of Chittagong, because I feel that the difficulties of Chittagong are much greater than the difficulties in other districts, and consequently I took it upon myself to keep a watch on its situation. And so far as the local district officer can give a guarantee, he says that he has made most definite arrangements; and Mr. Stuart is not a person ---

Mr. PRESIDENT: Please confine yourself to the point, and do not refer to what the district officer has guaranteed.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I was talking about the workhouses, Sir, in which connection the district magistrate has guaranteed that he had made definite arrangements and also that so far as Chittagong is concerned, there will be no deaths from starvation, if he can avoid it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is: that this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the failure of the Government to build up and maintain an adequate supply of rice to make an equitable distribution of the same at controlled price to the population in the deficit areas of the South-Eastern coastal districts of Bengal where the price of rice has gone skyhigh as evidenced, besides other informations of quite recent time, by the "Calcutta Gazette" of 15th June, 1944, resulting in a very serious situation so much so that most people generally are in great distress and misery and in fact starving.

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:--

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House will now take up non-official Resolutions.

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: Sir, we were under the impression that no business would be transacted after this adjournment motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Why you should be under that impression? The adjournment motion did not take for two hours.

Now, on the last occasion Mr. K. C. Roy Chowdhury was in possession of the House.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: No, Sir, Mr. Nur Ahmed was speaking.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am sorry. Yes, Mr. Nur Ahmed.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, in the meantime, may I ask for certain information?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Sahib, you may do it at the end of the meeting.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Mr. President, Sir, the other day when the House adjourned I was stating the reasons why I cannot support this resolution in its present form, although I have got the fullest sympathy with the principle underlying this resolution. There is no two opinion in the country that these muchis should be helped in their shoemaking trade. Bengal has to depend on other provinces for shoes. Bengal must be self-sufficient in this respect. These muchis of Bengal are the standard-bearer of this trade. At present their condition is very miserable. The price of tanned leather is very high. This resolution specifically mentions two ways in which to help these muchis—one of them is to supply tanned leather at a reasonable price. Tanning industry in Bengal is not up to the mark. Cawnpore is the pioneer in this respect. Some machines have, no doubt, been brought in Calcutta for making chrome leather; but more machines are necessary. Bengal is a surplus area for hides and skins. According to one estimate, India produces 20 million of cattle hides, about 23 million goat skin and 3½ million of sheep and buffalo; of this total quantity, only 75 to 80 per cent. are tanned in India and about 25 per cent. or 20 per cent. used to be exported before the war.

Sir, Madras has built up a very good tanning industry and it has taken advantage of all the materials that are available for tanning. Here in Bengal the most important question is the supply of materials for tanning at cheap rates, so that the muchis can compete with other competitors who import or manufacture shoes in Bengal.

Then the second question is that Government should give the muchis sufficient grants and thereby enable them to devise new methods and new designs in the manufacture of shoes as are being done in Madras and Cawnpore.

Sir, I must make it clear to the House that I do not oppose the idea of helping the muchis, but I oppose the resolution as it stands in its present form.

Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: Sir, I whole-heartedly support the resolution moved by my friend Mr. K. C. Roy Chowdhury. A proper approach to the problem of post-famine reconstruction can be made not by gratuitous relief for some time but by enabling the distressed people to stand on their own feet. That will be substantial work and if we select a few deserving sections of the community and make them self-supporting on the principle of minimum expenditure for maximum result, these in their turn with their buying power restored, will keep others going. A little leaven leaveneth the mass. If the funds of the Government in regard to rehabilitation work be judiciously spent, good tangible results may be obtained—results to which the Government may point years afterwards as the standing monument to their earnest endeavour. I may cite one example. At Salkhia (Howrah), a well known cotton mart, a trouble arose between cotton merchants and upcountry cotton-carders with the result that one of the merchants who was a man of the Midnapore district brought from that place about 100 Bengalee carders who are since holding their own. These men on being questioned how they came to learn carding replied that Birendra Nath Sasmal of hallowed memory had trained them. These 100 men are now earning their bread through good work done long, long ago by a God's good man. If one individual can do so much, cannot the Government do very much more? But to do so it should have the proper perspective. It should cease to think that the bhadralog is the only person that matters. We ourselves are also not less blameworthy. We devote 90 per cent. of our time and energies to matters concerning directly or indirectly the bhadralog class, Hindu or Muhammadan. A glance at the proceedings of the legislature will prove this. If we served our Hindu-Muslim-Christian muchis, tantis, kalas, kamars, kumars, malakars, dhobas and chasis, i.e., shoe-makers, weavers, oilmen, blacksmiths, potters, florists, washermen, cultivators with half the zeal that we displayed all these years in securing meticulously the Hindu-Moslem ratio in services, i.e., the bhadralog brotherhood, the country would have by now been much better-off and the village artisans who suffered grievously in last year's famine and died in large numbers would have managed to survive the shock. The reservation of seats for Scheduled castes has demonstrably failed of its objective because these castes are trade guilds and during 6 years of the working of the Government of India Act, 1935, not a word has been uttered in the legislature as to how the living of muchis, dhobas, haris (cane-weavers) and doms can be secured and improved.

Sir, the worst and most exclusive caste in India's history is rising before our eyes in the shape of the English educated community, an exotic, which may be best described in the words of the late Panchkori Benarjee as সদাশ বক্শের চৌপা পানা. An educated muchi representative in the legislature will never bring a brother muchi into his mental picture except as an English educated person. We owe, therefore, a debt of gratitude to Mr. K. C. Ray Chowdhury for bringing for the first time into this air-conditioned and heavily cushioned chamber the half-naked muchi who sitting in his cottage cross-legged makes shoes with leather bought at an exorbitant price from the middleman who fattens at the expenses of the poor worker. If only leather can be supplied at the wholesale price not on credit but strictly on cash terms, this vast community consisting of 414,221 [4 lakhs 14 thousand 2 hundred and 21] souls among Hindus alone, according to the census of 1931, with an equal number, as far as we can judge, among Moslems will become prosperous. If the Government pay the rent of 50 shops in Calcutta for 6 months and allot them to Bengalee muchis in the ratio of, say, 22 to Hindus, 22 to Moslems and 6 to Christians, these brethren of ours will be able to capture a large portion of the vast Calcutta market for all time to come. It has been found at Howrah that with the earnest efforts of some philanthropic gentlemen some Bengalee muchis first gained a footing in the town about 12 years ago and now the number of their shops has increased at least tenfold. If we can make the experiment successful in Calcutta, we can extend it to other towns. But the main thing is that the Government is proverbially shy; it should work honestly and passionately with the zeal of a partisan and select working muchis who are already earning their bread in villages by shoe-making. At least in respect of these down-trodden people the Government should be sincere and not select such men as will merely consolidate the position of M.L.A.'s and M.L.C.'s of the Ministerial party. This humanitarian work should not be reduced to a vote-catching campaign. The question is so dear to our heart that if the Government accept this very modest resolution, Mr Ray Chowdhury and myself with some of our assistants, who have made a close study of the problem for years in a missionary spirit undertake to co-operate with the Government and assist it in its day-to-day work. The great Swami Vivekananda said: অল্প মুচি দেখেই হোমার বজ, হোমার ভাই. These poor men with their underpaid labour keep everyone of us going. The task is not at all difficult. If the honourable members here will excuse a personal reference, I may state that in the Pannalal Seal Vidyamandir, a free polytechnic high English school which I have had the good fortune of organising, a number of boys successful in the Matriculation examination could not secure jobs in offices and are earning their bread by bookbinding and tailoring and shoe-making which they had learnt in our school. If the Government will work in the right spirit, it will stop the annihilation of a large and useful section of the community. While almost all castes have recorded an increase of population, the muchis have shown during 20 years from 1911 to 1931 (the last census in which castes were duly returned) a decline of nearly 9 per cent.

Now, what is the cause of this lamentable state of affairs? The reason is that Bengalee muchis as Bengalee workmen in all lines have been fighting a losing battle against non-Bengalee hordes coming into Bengal. The term "non-Bengalee" appropriately includes Chinese shoe-makers of Bentinck Street and Bowbazar. These men with their superior organisations and resources are able to buy leather in large quantities at cheap rates and sewing machines which the poor Bengalee muchis cannot secure. With the influx of Western civilisation in the country the craze for foreign shoes came over our educated people and in our boyhood the name of Dawson's and Latimer's boots and shoes passed from mouth to mouth. This perverted taste for foreign goods began to throw our muchis out of employment and the process was later on accelerated by the advent of non-Bengalee shoe-makers.

The task of annihilation of a deserving community has been completed by the establishment of the Bata Shoe Factory at Budge Budge. In giving working permission to this concern, the Central Government has been ill-advised. The company is not British and does not belong even to an Empire country. This is a case of a hundred per cent. foreign exploitation. The safeguards in respect of external capital recommended by Pandit Madan Mohan Malavya as a member of the External Capital Committee should at least have been enforced in this case. India is the paradise for capitalists, indigenous and foreign. With the inauguration of machinery in every country large masses have been thrown out of employment but the State has been compelled to maintain them with the dole for the unemployed. Heavy bills accruing on this head in Western countries will be found in the last analysis to fall upon industry. The principle claimed in those countries is that he who throws me out of employment must maintain me, if not on a decent level, at least on the subsistence level. Here the dole for the unemployed is not a State obligation and capitalists from all corners of the world are allowed to come in and carry on their nefarious work of reducing the children of the soil to penury. The fundamental principle of Hindu varnasram dharma is that all the four castes should be kept in a good running condition and Manu is eloquent in enjoying that britha, i.e., occupation of every particular section of the community should be carefully preserved. Thus, according to Hindu polity, insurance against unemployment is a paramount State obligation and if after the war in a self-governing India an ideal form of self-government is introduced, as is hoped for by Dr. Moonje, a foreign company like the Batas will not be able to throw tens of thousands of our men out of employment and every mucha, Hindu, Moslem or Christian, will be assured his living. Here the Provincial Government can give protection to our indigenous shoe-making industry by following the example of Srijut Rajagopalachari in respect of handloom cloth and by imposing the Sales tax on factory-made shoes while keeping cottage-made shoes tax-free. But the "cowdung-headed" Ministry, of course, could not comprehend the protective value of a Sales tax on mill-made cloth and no such tax on handloom cloth. If it did not take away the small advantage so far enjoyed—

Mr. BIREN ROY: On a point of order, Sir. Is not the word "cowdung-headed" objectionable?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think Mr. Mazumdar it is not a very dignified expression, although it may not be unparliamentary.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I am not going to withdraw it since it is not unparliamentary—

Mr. BIREN ROY: It is not good English at any rate.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I do not care for good English. Sir, the cowdung-headed Ministry—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, although the expression is not unparliamentary, I think you should avoid such expression.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, it has been coined from the well-known Bengali expression "গোবর-পোকা মাখ".

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Yes, Sir, it is a translation of the Bengali expression “গোবর পোকা খাওয়া”. As I was going to say, Sir, the cowdung-headed Ministry—

Mr. BIREN ROY: Again he is using that expression.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The expression is not unparliamentary and I must leave it to the good sense of the honourable member as to whether he should withdraw such expression or not.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: If it did not take away the small advantage so far enjoyed by the village Tanti, who in the case of doubling the Sale tax on mill-made cloth would have enjoyed a higher traffic protection, we would have requested the Ministry for a similar protection for muchis.

With these words, I support the resolution moved by my friend Mr. K. C. Roy Chowdhury.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I have just been informed that the Advocate-General's opinion might not be received in time by the Government. So, instead of meeting on Monday, we might meet on Tuesday next.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am just told by the Secretary that the opinion would be received by today. So, we may sit on Monday.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: To avoid uncertainty, we might sit on Tuesday. I hope the opinion of the Advocate-General would be made available to us in the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Usually the practice is that Government do not disclose the opinion they receive from their law officers.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a matter of privilege, Sir—

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I understand that the Judicial Secretary has rung up the Advocate-General for the opinion. So, I think the opinion has been received and therefore there would be no difficulty in our sitting on Monday.

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right. I adjourn the House till 1-30 p.m. on Monday, the 19th June, 1944.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I wanted to mention a matter—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have already adjourned the House. Please mention that on Monday.

Adjournment.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 48.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Monday, the 19th June, 1944, at 1-30 p.m., being the forty-eighth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

Condolence Resolution.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN:

As the Leader of the House it is my melancholy duty to take your permission to move a condolence resolution on the sad demise of a great son of Bengal, Acharya Sir Prafulla Chandra Ray. Sir¹ Prafulla Chandra is known not only in India but throughout all the civilised countries as a great scientist. He has rendered singular service to the country as a scientist and as a philanthropist. This is not the time to dilate upon the various qualities of his head and heart. I would now place the condolence resolution for the acceptance of the House. The resolution runs as follows:—

“This Council expresses its deepest sorrow and sense of irreparable loss which the country has sustained at the demise of Acharya Sir Prafulla Chandra Ray who distinguished himself during his long life as a scientist of International reputation, creator of an Indian School of Chemistry, founder of a great chemical industry in India, helper of the poor and the distressed, and, above all, as a philanthropist and selfless man and conveys its sincerest sympathies to the bereaved members of his family.”

Mr. PRESIDENT: Resolution moved: that this Council expresses its deepest sorrow and sense of irreparable loss which the country has sustained at the demise of Acharya Sir Prafulla Chandra Ray who distinguished himself during his long life as a scientist of International reputation, creator of an Indian School of Chemistry, founder of a great chemical industry in India, helper of the poor and the distressed, and, above all, as a philanthropist and selfless man and conveys its sincerest sympathies to the bereaved members of his family.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Sir, on behalf of my Party, I associate myself with the condolence resolution moved so eloquently by the Hon'ble the Leader of the House. It is not necessary to dilate upon his qualities of head and heart. He was one of those of whom any country can be proud. He was one who makes history. The revered Acharya was not only a scientist of extraordinary eminence but also a philanthropist and, above all, an intense patriot. Deep love for his country actuated all his activities. His country can never forget him. His memory will remain imprinted on the sands of time for ever. The best way to adore his memory would be to imitate his spirit of self-sacrifice and service to the country.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL HAMID CHOWDHURY: I associate myself fully with the sentiments expressed in the resolution which has been so eloquently moved by the Hon'ble the Leader of the House. Sir, the 16th of June will go down in the history of Bengal, nay of India, as one of the most memorable dates. It is on that date that India lost one of its greatest leaders, Deshbandhu Chittaranjan, and it is on that date that India has again lost one of her noblest sons, a most distinguished scientist and an eminent philanthropist. Sir, this is not the occasion to dilate on the various qualities of the head and heart of the illustrious deceased. It would be better if we show respect to his memory rather in silence. I am fully in agreement with the Leader of the Opposition that we can show our respect to the memory of the illustrious deceased by imitating the noble examples set by him. He was a person in whom we never smelt anything communal. He was popular amongst all sections and communities in this country.

With these few words, I lend my whole-hearted support to the resolution which has just been moved by the Hon'ble Leader of the House.

Mr. DHIRENDRA LAL BARUA: Mr. President, Sir, we meet today under the shadow of a deep gloom cast over the whole country by the demise of Acharya Sir Prafulla Chandra. The last of the Romans is gone. His death has created a void in the public life of Bengal and the world of science which is not to be filled up soon. Bengal has lost in him the friend, philosopher and guide of her new-born industries. India has lost in him a pioneer among the scientists who was able to build up a School of Chemistry and a teacher the sole mission of whose life was to help his students and to make them greater than himself. A true patriot was he and his was a dedicated life. The Bengal Chemical Works would remain as a lasting monument to his industrial and commercial genius. A life-long bachelor and a saint by his moral purity, Acharya Prafulla Chandra was a democrat by religious conviction and fought well the battle for freedom. I hope both the Government of Bengal and the public will combine to appropriately perpetuate the memory of such a great man, so that the posterity may derive inspiration from his noble example.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On behalf of my party I associate myself with the sentiments that have been expressed in the resolution. In Acharya Prafulla Chandra we have lost not only a scientist but a prince among men. He was admired not by Bengal or by India alone but by the whole world. He was a scientist but he was not only a lover of science but a lover of philosophy too. He was a philosopher in his own life. He lived a life which may be called a life of plain living and high thinking. His was a dedicated life, dedicated to the welfare not only of Bengal which he loved so passionately, but of India and also of the whole world. He lived for Jagat hitaya, ভগ্নকিতায়, that is, for the good of the world, and in him, personally speaking, as my friend has so well said, we have lost a friend, philosopher and guide. I appeal to the country at large to follow his illustrious footsteps, and the light of the life that he led like Dadhichi for the welfare of the country. He was a lover of the poor and particularly of the poor students. He was a lover of those who lived in the villages. His memory should be perpetuated in a befitting manner. With these words, I again associate myself with the sentiments of thankfulness of the Nation expressed in the resolution moved by the Hon'ble the Leader of the House.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I desire to associate myself and the Party to which I have the honour to belong with the resolution moved by the Hon'ble the Leader of the House. In Sir P. C. Ray's death Bengal has lost her noblest son. He was a great scientist. He applied his knowledge of science to bring about the industrial regeneration of this country. The Bengal Chemical and Pharmaceutical Works will for ever stand out as a monument to his achievements in that direction. To urge young Bengalees to take to the path of industrial development and to add to the wealth of the province and to wrest the initiative from outsiders was his great passion. Many of our fellow countrymen followed that advice with considerable profit to themselves and to the country. He was an embodiment of plain living and high thinking. Any one who came in contact with him was struck by the simplicity of his manners and habits. He used to live with his students and gave them of his best. He was one of the greatest philanthropists and through the "Sankat Tran Samiti" of which he was the founder, he came to the rescue of the distressed and the needy irrespective of their caste or colour. He was also a great social reformer and an intense patriot. India is poorer today by his death.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: Sir, I desire to associate myself with the resolution moved by the Leader of the House. I was a student of Sir P. C. Ray for several years in the Presidency College. If one has to form an idea of what Sir P. C. Ray has done for the people of this country, one must read his book entitled "History of Hindu Chemistry". Through that book he has placed India in the forefront so far as achievements in the realm of positive sciences are concerned. He appeared at a time when India had fallen far below so far as achievements in the realm of scientific investigations were concerned. Throughout his discourses with his students he urged that India should attain the foremost place in the matter of investigations in chemistry and other positive science. But although advocating scientific advancement of the country he never forgot about the cottage industry. His own life was full of self-denunciation. He led a very simple life and devoted practically his entire income to the education of deserving poor students. He gave away practically everything he earned for his country. His donation to the Calcutta University is well-known and his last Will which he is said to have executed is proof of what he has done for his country and for the uplift of his countrymen. His work in connection with the Bengal Flood in 1936 will be remembered throughout Bengal, because of the fact that many millions of lives were saved at that time. As has been well said, he was not only a scientist but also a philanthropist and an industrialist. But for him the great College of Science could not be started. It is no exaggeration to say that but for him,—a scientist of his calibre and simplicity,—we could not have attracted the munificent donations from Sir Tarak Nath Palit and Sir Rash Behari Ghosh which led to the foundation of the great College of Science in Bengal. Sir, I associate myself wholeheartedly with the resolution that has been moved.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I deem it a great honour to be associated with the sentiments expressed on this occasion. I was privileged to be a student of the late Sir Prafulla Chandra Ray more than a third of a century ago. I still remember the affectionate words with which he inspired his lectures. His philanthropy and other social activities are well known. He was also a great teacher. Abstruse scientific subjects were made so very simple and lucid by him that everyone could understand them. He has created numerous students with a burning desire to pursue scientific knowledge; and though he is dead, his work will live after him. In Bengal, a large number of the students have started scientific associations under his advice and direction. In fact, there are already many research laboratories and research associations and other research institutions which derive their inspiration from him.

With these words, I beg to be associated humbly with the resolution.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Mr. President, Sir, we meet today under the shadow of a great calamity that has fallen on Bengal, nay, on India, by the death of a great man who raised Bengal, not only Bengal but the whole of India, in the estimation of the world by his achievements in the realm of scientific researches as well as by his philanthropic activities. Sir, at a time when the country is passing through a great crisis, we have lost a great man and his loss, I think, is irreparable. He has left before us an ideal which we should follow, an ideal of simple living and high thinking. He was a friend of the poor throughout his life. By his death today we really stand poorer before the world. Our only prayer to the Almighty is: may Bengal follow the lead given by him and may his soul rest in peace!

Mr. C. E. CLARKE: Mr. President, Sir, on behalf of the members of my Group, I would like to associate myself with the expression of sympathy that has been made in this House in connection with the loss that has been sustained so recently. We understand that it is a deep grief for the province of Bengal and for that reason at this juncture our sympathies are definitely with the expressions that have been made.

With these few words, Sir, I would like to associate this Group with the expressions of sympathy.

Mr. MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Sir Prafulla Chandra is so great a figure that it needed no speech from me to indicate the irreparable loss that the world at large, and Bengal in particular, has sustained by his death. But, Sir, I would be failing in my duty if I do not associate myself with the resolution that has been moved by the Hon'ble Leader of the House. His passing away, though in ripe old age, would be felt by every Bengalee as a personal loss. To India it is a national calamity.

As a Scientist, Prafulla Chandra towered head and shoulders above all other Indian chemists. Not only that, he was the founder of the School of Indian Chemistry. Almost all the distinguished chemists of the country owed their greatness to his encouragement. He will be remembered as a pioneer of research work and industrial application of chemistry. He was great as a Scientist. But as a man and patriot he was perhaps greater. During the last quarter of a century he was the heart and soul of all relief organisations of our country.

Himself a student all his life, he had a profound love for students. His door was always open to them. He always tried to solve the unemployment problem among the Bengali youth. Plain living and high thinking was his ideal.

Prafulla Chandra is no more. Long live Sir Prafulla Chandra.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Chair associates itself wholeheartedly with the sentiments expressed by the honourable members representing different parties and groups in this House and offers its tribute of respect to the memory of the great Indian who had just passed away. We meet under the shadow of a national calamity. The fact that Sir Prafulla Chandra Ray has died full of years and honours can hardly minimise our sense of loss or reduce the poignancy of our grief. In his demise India has lost one of her noblest sons who raised her status in the eyes of the world. As a great scientist, an erudite scholar, a teacher, a social worker and a patriot Sir Prafulla Chandra helped the up-building of modern India and directly influenced the character of the Nation. Through his life-long devotion to researches in Chemistry, he helped the advancement of the bounds of human knowledge in this department of science and created the Indian School of Chemistry. He also succeeded in inspiring a band of brilliant students who have applied their knowledge and researches to the development of industry in this country. Sir Prafulla Chandra's noble and patriotic mind always disapproved of the idea that his countrymen should lag behind the progressive countries of the world in matters of business and industry. In his writings, public utterances or in private conversation he never missed an opportunity to rouse the spirit of self-help and to encourage the constructive genius of young Bengal in this respect. He gave impetus to industry and exhorted young men to take to business instead of service.

He lived the life of a Rishi. Simple and unostentatious in his habits the great Acharya Prafulla Chandra exemplified in his own life how the noble principle of plain-living and high-thinking could be actually realised.

Sufferings of humanity always touched his heart and he exerted his great influence in organising relief in times of famine and distress.

A Prince amongst men has passed away. We deeply mourn his loss and try to receive consolation in the hope that his life will continue to be a beacon light and we his grateful and admiring countrymen will receive inspiration from his sacred memory for generations to come.

I shall now put the resolution to vote. The resolution runs as follows:—

"This Council expresses its deepest sorrow and sense of irreparable loss which the country has sustained at the demise of Acharya Sir Prafulla Chandra Ray who distinguished himself during his long life as a scientist of International reputation, creator of an Indian School of Chemistry, founder of a great chemical industry in India, helper of the poor and the distressed, and, above all, as a philanthropist and selfless man and conveys its sincerest sympathies to the bereaved members of his family."

I would request the honourable members to rise in their places to signify their approval of the resolution.

(Honourable members rose.)

The House stands adjourned till 1-30 p.m. to-morrow.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 1-30 p.m. on Tuesday, the 20th June, 1944.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 49.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Tuesday, the 20th June, 1944, at 1-30 p.m., being the forty-ninth day of the First Session, 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order: The House will recall that we had to postpone the consideration of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill for considering certain important points. Now, one of the points that I have to consider is the incorporation of the expression "Ruler of an Indian State" in his official and public capacity. The point that arises out of this definition is: can the Provincial Legislature impose taxation on properties of Indian Rulers situated in British India and owned by Indian Rulers in their official and public capacity? Can the Provincial Legislature in connection with the imposition of this tax, impose certain duties and obligations on the Rulers of Indian States in their official and public capacity? These are the two main questions. Out of this, it follows that if the Indian Ruler who is included in the definition of the word "person" in his official and public capacity does not comply with the duties and obligations sought to be imposed upon him, can the Provincial Legislature undertake legislation for bringing him within the criminal jurisdiction of a court of law in British India? In this connection, I would like to draw the attention of the honourable members to certain provisions of the Government of India Act, 1935. There is the proviso to section 2(1) of the Government of India Act and there it is laid down that all the functions of the Crown in relation to Indian States should be exercised through the Crown Representative and officers under the Crown Representative. That is one section of the Act to which I would like to draw the attention of honourable members.

Then, there is section 285 of the Government of India Act, 1935, which preserves the rights and privileges of Indian States which existed before the passing of the present Government of India Act.

In this connection, I would also like to draw your attention to clauses 53, 54 and 60 of the Bill now under consideration. Now, would not clauses 53 and 54 of the Bill, read with clauses 2(9) and 2(15), make the Ruler of an Indian State subject to prosecution and punishment by British Indian court of law? That is another point which requires consideration. I would also like to draw your attention to section 155 of the Government of India Act. Section 155 exempts from Federal taxation the Indian State's income except income derived from trade and business. These are the main points on which I would like the views of the honourable members before I finally make up my mind.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, I submit that these indications should have been given to us on the last sitting day. We have not come prepared and it will take at least a day to consider these points and give our considered opinion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, we should at least have one day to consider these points. We have not come prepared for this.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Let us discuss the points as best as we can today.

I hope in giving your suggestions you will confine your observations precisely on the points I have just indicated. In a matter like this the discussion should be cut short as much as possible.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, I submit that since Government have already considered these points, we would like to hear the Government point of view first. Let us hear what they feel about these points and what their suggestion is about the points raised by you, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: After the matter has been discussed by the honourable members, I propose to request the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to give the Government point of view.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Would it not be better if Government open the discussion on these points? They have already passed the Bill in the Lower House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Government do not feel any difficulty about the matter. The difficulty is felt by the Chair and probably also by some members of the House. This is a question in which I presume there is no party distinction. Every one of us should have an open mind on a question like this. I, therefore, draw your attention to these points so that if any honourable member wants to give his views, he may do so.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, as the Government feel no difficulty in the matter and as the House feel certain difficulties, may I suggest that the Government should open the discussion since they are supposed to be acting on expert legal advice. We have not had the benefit of any such assistance. In the circumstances, much valuable time would be lost if the discussion is not initiated by the Government. I think it is better for the Government to open the discussion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have given you the points. Don't you think that would be the wrong way of beginning the discussion? Government do not feel any difficulty. The difficulty is felt by the Chair and some members of the House.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I would draw your attention in this connection—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Do you propose to open the discussion?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Yes, Sir—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, before Mr. Mukherjee opens the discussion, may I say a few words? You, Sir, very concisely put our difficulty before the House and knowing our difficulty the Hon'ble Finance Minister may very well tell us the Government point of view so that we may proceed methodically.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, the difficulty of Mr. Lalit Chandra Das may be appreciated because he has no case to formulate before the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Chowdhury, nobody is entitled to waste the time of the House. Only those members who feel any difficulty in this case and have some views to offer may speak. It is not that every member would like to speak on an intricate question like this.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, he has asked Government to help him.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not approve of the suggestion. Let us hear Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee first.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I have considered the question and having read the provisions of the Bill and the privileges of the Ruler of an Indian State I submit, Sir, that there seems to me various insuperable difficulties in the way of Government so far as provisions in the Bill are concerned. I would, therefore, in the first instance, confine my contention to the provisions of the Bill itself.

I would request the honourable members to consider first of all the definition of the word "person" in clause 2, sub-clause (9) of the Bill. Here, the definition of the word "person" includes a Hindu undivided family, a firm, a company and the Ruler of an Indian State. Now, if we refer to sub-clause (12) of the same clause 2, we will find that there is again the reference to the Ruler of an Indian State. Sub-clause (12) says "principal officer" used with reference to an Indian State, a company or any other association—I am leaving out a company and any other association and restrict my observation to the Ruler of an Indian State. Again (a) of sub-clause (12) provides as follows: the manager or agent in Bengal of the Ruler of the Indian State and (b) states: "any individual connected with the Indian State, company or association upon whom an Agricultural Income-tax Officer has served a notice of his intention of treating him as the principal officer thereof." Here, Sir, the Bill provides as to the meaning of the words "principal officer" in relation to the Ruler of an Indian State. There is another sub-clause which directly refers to the Ruler of an Indian State—sub-clause (15). It states "Ruler of an Indian State" means the ruler of such State in his public and official capacity. Here we have an independent definition with regard to the ruler of an Indian State and there can be no objection so far as this definition is concerned.

Again, if we look to clause 3 of the Bill, we will find that it proposes to provide for assessing the Ruler of an Indian State independently of the definition of the word "person". Therefore, it is not necessary to have recourse to the definition of the word "person" in order that the Ruler of an Indian State is to be assessed with tax. I may tell the honourable members beforehand that I do not object to the principle of the Bill in assessing tax upon the Ruler of an Indian State. I am proceeding on the assumption that the Bengal Legislature is competent to tax the Ruler of an Indian State with reference to his income from agricultural land situated within Bengal.

Although doubt has been expressed I am not going to enter into that question; but I am proceeding on the assumption that a Ruler of an Indian State is liable to be taxed and our object would be to make a provision in the Bill for enforcement and collection of the income-tax so that there may not be any legal difficulty hereafter. Now, for that purpose I am referring, Sir, to this definition and to clause 3 of the Bill. I need not refer to the other sections now, but I would refer, Sir, to clause 45 of the Bill, which runs thus:—

“When an assessee is in default in making a payment of agricultural income-tax, the Agricultural Income-tax Officer may in his discretion direct that, in addition to the amount of the arrears, a sum not exceeding half that amount shall be recovered from the assessee by way of penalty.”

This is a penalty clause which is being imposed upon the assessee and so we need not take recourse to the definition of the person, because the assessee includes the Ruler of an Indian State. Then if we refer to the proviso to sub-clause (3) of clause 45 we find that—

“The Agricultural Income-tax Officer may forward to the Collector a certificate under his signature specifying the amount of arrears due from an assessee, and the Collector on receipt of such certificate, shall proceed to recover from such assessee the amount specified therein as if it were an arrear of land revenue:

Provided that without prejudice to any other powers of the Collector in this behalf, he shall for the purpose of recovering the said amount have in respect of the attachment and sale of debts due to the assessee the powers which under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, a Civil Court has in respect of the attachment and sale of debts due to a judgment-debtor for the purpose of the recovery of an amount due under a decree.”

Now, here you will find, Sir, that the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, have been incorporated for the purpose of enabling the Collector to enforce realisation of the taxes that have been imposed upon the assessee including any penalty that may be assessed upon him. If we look to the Civil Procedure Code itself we will find that so far as the Ruler of an Indian State is concerned, a separate provision has been made for the purpose of serving notices and bringing suits against the Ruler of an Indian State. I would refer the honourable members of this House to the provision of sections 84, 85 and 86 of the Civil Procedure Code, particularly to the provision of section 85. There, we will find a provision made with reference to the appointment of a recognised agent by the Ruler of an Indian State and all proceedings by or against the Ruler of an Indian State have to be carried on through the instrumentality of the recognised agent so appointed under section 85 of the Civil Procedure Code.

There, in section 85, you will find a provision for the appointment of recognised agents and the amendment that has been made after the passing of the Government of India has been incorporated by reason of the adaptation rules. Now, Sir, so far as the provisions of the Bill are concerned, the definition of the word "Principal Officer" in clause 12 of section 2 seems to me to be in conflict with the provision of section 85. If we have to take steps against the Rulers of States we have to incorporate provisions analogous to the provision in section 85 of the Civil Procedure Code for the purpose of carrying on proceedings against the Rulers of Indian States. That is the first point which I make so far as the provisions of the Bill are concerned. I say that the definition of the word "Principal Officer" with reference to the Rulers of Indian States in sub-clause (12) of clause 2 should be changed in order that it might be in consonance with the Government of India Act and section 85 of the Civil Procedure Code. We may take the help of section 85 of the Civil Procedure Code and drop the definition of "Principal Officer" or of "Rulers of Indian States" with reference to the provisions of the Bill for the purpose of enforcing the collection of the tax which is to be assessed upon an Indian State. So far as the definition of the word "person" in sub-clause (9) of clause 2 is concerned, if we omit, so far as the definition is concerned, the words "the Ruler of an Indian State", there will be no harm because we have already assessed the Ruler of an Indian State under clause 3. By including in the definition of the word "person" the "Ruler of an Indian State", we have sought to include him in all other provisions of the Bill where instead of the word "assessee" the word "person" has been employed and most of these sections deal with penal provisions; the other sections deal with provisions for the enforcement of the tax that is to be assessed upon an assessee. What I submit is that if we proceed on the assumption that the Ruler of an Indian State is liable to be taxed so far as his income from agricultural land within Bengal is concerned, we have to make provision on different lines. There are certain provisions for the enforcement of the tax against the Rulers of Indian States, but it would not do to lump up the provisions relating to the enforcement of the tax against Rulers of States with other persons who are being taxed under the Bill. As a matter of fact, Rulers of Indian States have got various privileges and are immune from proceedings in the courts of foreign States—I take British India as a foreign State so far as the Ruler of an Indian State is concerned. Now, Sir, the point may be raised as to whether there is any such Ruler of an Indian State within Bengal who has got the rights of a sovereign prince or that of a ruling chief as they are ordinarily understood. I think this would not be strictly relevant with reference to the point that we are now arguing—that may be one of the points raised. I may say that the Principal Ruler of an Indian State within Bengal is the Tripura Raj and the Cooch Behar Raj. So far as Tippera Raj is concerned, I find that it has been held in a case, Indian Law Report, 9 Cal., 535 pp., that he has got the privilege of a sovereign state; so far as others are concerned the position is the same as with reference to Tippera State. Therefore, that question need not trouble us. A point may be raised that the Rajs—the Tippera Raj and other sovereign princes, they have got estates within British India and they do submit themselves to the jurisdiction of courts in British India by bringing in suits against tenants for the purpose of realising rent, for enhancement of rent and taking all sorts of proceedings against their tenants. Another point may be raised as to whether by bringing suits and thus submitting to the jurisdiction of courts within British India the sovereign states waive their claims which they can claim under the ordinary law as being Rulers of the Indian States. That point you will find discussed and decided in a very recent case decided by the High Court of Calcutta which is reported in 44 Calcutta Weekly Notes, pp. 333. This was a case in which there were proceedings relating to the property of the Nawab of Rampur who is the Ruler of an Indian State and who has got a property, not agricultural property, but house property in Calcutta, and the question was raised there as to whether the Ruler of an Indian State can waive their privilege by submitting to the jurisdiction of a court in British India. The judgment was pronounced by Justice Nasim Ali and Justice Rau—Justice Rau actually delivered the judgment on the constitutional question. His expert legal knowledge on the point cannot be doubted and his knowledge of constitutional law is known to everybody. I think he is one of the best constitutional authority in the whole of India. You will find that Mr. Justice Rau in delivering the judgment referred to the case of the Parlement Belge in five probate Division, p. 197, with reference to the privilege of a sovereign state. The judgment in that British case was pronounced by the Lord Chief Justice Brett. At page 219 we find this particular point discussed. There the question was as to the liability of a ship belonging to a sovereign authority which carried certain properties of that State to be confiscated by another State for certain reasons which I need not dilate upon.

The ship arrived in a foreign state and there were some proceedings in connection with which it was said that some of the properties found in the ship should be confiscated for answering certain claims raised by the ambassador in the extra territorial jurisdiction. At page 219 the point is discussed. "To implead an independent sovereign"—I mean the King of Belgium—"in such a way is to call upon him to sacrifice either his property or his independence. To place him in that position is a breach of the principle upon which his immunity from jurisdiction rests. We think that he cannot be so indirectly impleaded, any more than he could be directly impleaded. The case is, upon this consideration of it, brought within the general rule that a sovereign authority cannot be personally impleaded in any court". The argument is that he cannot be personally impleaded but the property which is brought within the jurisdiction of the foreign state,—in this case the immoveable property which lie within Bengal,—may be touched. That argument is noticed in the next paragraph. "But it is said that the immunity is lost by reason of the ship having been used for trading purposes. As to this, it must be maintained either that the ship has been so used as to have been employed substantially as a mere trading ship and not substantially for national purposes, or that a use of her in part for trading purposes takes away the immunity, although she is in possession of the sovereign authority by the hands of commissioned officers, and is substantially, in use for national purposes. Both these propositions raise the question of how the ship must be considered to have been employed.

As to the first, the ship has been chartered by the sovereign of Belgium, by the usual means, declared to be in his possession as sovereign, and to be a public vessel of the state. It seems very difficult to say that any Court can inquire by contentious testimony whether that is true or not.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will it be a good analogy?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: It would be a good analogy and I shall show you that. The point is considered in the very next sentence. We have got here to consider the immovable property because we are concerned with that only. I may pass on to the paragraph where the particular point is considered.

"Whether the ship is a public ship used for national purposes seems to come within the same rule. But if such an inquiry could properly be instituted it seems clear that in the present case the ship has been mainly used for the purpose of carrying the mails, and only subversively to that main object for the purposes of trade. The carrying of passengers and merchandize has been subordinated to the duty of carrying the mails. The ship is not in fact brought within the first proposition. As to the second, it has been frequently stated that an independent sovereign cannot be personally used, although he has carried on a private trading adventure. It has been held that an ambassador cannot be personally sued, although he has traded; and in both cases because such a suit would be inconsistent with the independence and equality of the state which he represents. If the remedy sought by an action in rem against public property is, as we think it is, an indirect mode of exercising the authority of the Court against the owner of the property, then the attempt to exercise such an authority is an attempt inconsistent with the independence and equality of the State which is represented by such owner. The property cannot upon the hypothesis be denied to be public property; the case is within the terms of the rule; it is within the spirit of the rule; therefore, we are of opinion that the mere fact of the ship being used subordinately and partially for trading purposes does not take away the general immunity."

That is the passage that I wanted the honourable members to know. Now if you refer to this case you will find that Mr. Justice Rau stated that the immunity of a Ruling Prince is there and the fact that he has submitted to the jurisdiction of the Court does not absolve him from claiming the right of immunity in a proceeding which may be enforced against him personally. There are other cases, Sir, which have been cited in the judgment of Mr. Justice Rau, but I do not intend to take the time of the House by referring to them. Therefore, Sir, what I would submit for the consideration of the honourable members of this House is that in considering the provisions of the Bill, as I have already indicated, we should proceed on the assumption that the Ruler of an Indian State is liable to be taxed and prescribe provisions for the enforcement of the tax keeping in view the special privileges enjoyed by them. We have to think out and make provisions which would be consistent with the provisions of the Government of India Act and the other provisions contained in legislative enactments like the Civil Procedure Code for the purpose of finding out what would be the machinery through which we can legally enforce realisation of the tax that has been imposed upon the Ruler of an Indian State. I may refer, Sir, to some of the other sections, take for instance, the clause 24—Machinery of assessment. Here the provision is as follows:—"The Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall, on or before such date in each year as may be prescribed, give notice, by publication in such newspapers and in such other manner as may be prescribed requiring every person——” Now, under our definition of “person” we need not include a Ruler of an Indian State here. But if the proposal which I have made that the Ruler of an Indian State should be deleted from the definition of “person” here is accepted, we may add a recognised agent of a Ruler of an Indian State. That would make the provision legal and there would be no difficulty in enforcing the submitting of returns by the recognised agent. Similarly, in clause 25, we may add to sub-clause (2) after the words “If the Agricultural Income-tax Officer is not satisfied without requiring the presence of the person,” the words “or the recognised agent of the Ruler of the Indian State”. If we add that to this sub-clause with reference to the Ruler of an Indian State, that would make it perfectly legal.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You suggest that the words “Ruler of an Indian State” should be dropped from the definition of the word “person” and that there should be consequential changes.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Yes, Sir, that is exactly so. That is my submission, Sir, and I do not think I need take the time of the House any longer.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: As far as we on this side of the House are concerned, the issues have been very carefully clinched by the Chair. We have to consider two points: firstly, as to the competency of the House to legislate in respect of immoveable property owned by Rulers of Indian States within the province of Bengal; and then secondly, if we can legislate as to the penal provisions arising out of infringement by any Ruler of an Indian State of the rules that may be laid down. Practically these are the two points on which we are to give our attention at present. As to the Indian States and Rulers of Indian States, their standing and position has been defined in section 311 of the Government of India Act, 1935. An Indian State has been defined to include any territory, whether described as a state, an estate, a jagir or otherwise, belonging to or under the suzerainty of a Ruler who is under the suzerainty of His Majesty and not being part of British India. “Ruler” in relation to a state has been defined to mean the Prince, Chief or other person recognised by His Majesty as the “Ruler of the State”. As to this definition we are already circumscribed, for it has been already defined in section 311 of the Act and that definition together with section 2 makes it clear that the question of International law would not be applicable to these States, because the States do not form a nation and they are not sovereign states in the sense of being a paramount power. As a matter of fact, the constitution of Indian States has no parallel in the world at all; it is a peculiar mixture of history, theory and convention and usage, of treaties—and not even of treaties, for there are certain Rulers in respect of whom there are no treaties at all—as far as I know. I live very close to the Tripura State and have some connection—(Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMED: I believe you are on the Council of this State.) Yes, I am an Advocate of the High Court of the State of His Highness the Maharaja of Tripura.

As I have said, the principle of International law would not be applicable in the case of the Rulers of Indian States. It would appear from the definition of the Indian State and from section 2 that they are a subordinate power under the British Crown which is the paramount power. Of course, when the Federation would come into existence, their relationship with the Crown would be governed by the Instrument of Accession but till the Federation is completed as pointed out by you, Mr. President, section 285 would be applicable and the relationship would be the same as it exists at present. I had some occasion to look into the legal and constitutional status of the Ruler of an Indian State. I am perhaps giving out a secret—if it can be called a secret—the Tippera State had occasion to consult me about the proposed new constitution in that State and my legal help was taken. At that time I studied the constitution of the States and their power and it did seem to me that they were not a sovereign power at all. They, of course, enjoy some of the rights of a sovereign power; but at the same time they are subordinate to the paramountcy of the British Crown. It is a sort of a mixed constitution of which you will find no parallel anywhere in the world and as such the analogy of a foreign State involving the application of the International law would not be applicable to the Ruler of an Indian State in all its features and may not be helpful in all its aspects regarding the relationship between the States and the British Indian courts. Looking into sections 84, 85 and 86 of the Civil Procedure Code to which reference has already been made by my predecessor, Mr. Mukherjee, it would appear that the conception of the Ruler of an Indian State owning a property in British India has already been thought of. Indeed, if it is urged on behalf of a Ruler of an Indian State that he will not come within the scope of any legislation passed by any Legislature in British India at all, his position will be all the worse, because in that case he can neither sue nor be sued. The right to sue or be sued is regulated by sections 84 and 86 of the Civil Procedure Code. The right to sue or be sued is the elementary right given by the Statute, and the ruler of a state has been given right to sue in any court of British India.

Under section 84, a foreign State may sue in any court of British India provided that such a suit has been recognised by His Majesty or by the Governor-General in Council and provided also that the object of the suit is to enforce private right invested in any such State or in any officer of such State in his public capacity. If the Ruler of a State owns property in British India, in that case if he really wishes to possess any legal right at all and if he wishes to have any remedy in the municipal court within British India, he must come within the category of section 84, that is to say, the object of the suit must be to enforce a private right vested in the head of such a State. He may also possess property in an appertaining state in his private capacity. For example, in the case of Chakla-Rosanabad, in our district, and also in Noakhali, income is derived by the Ruler of Tripura from that. It is not Hill Tippera, as my friend said but the real term is Tippera State. For the revenue collected from the Tippera State there is a budget which has got to be sanctioned in the Council and there are other formalities to be gone into but the income which His Highness derives from Chakla-Rosanabad is not included in the revenue of the State. The income derived from this source is completely at the disposal of the Maharaja. There were some troubles before but so far as the present arrangement is concerned, there is no difficulty. There are two kinds of incomes, one is derived from the State and the other from his personal property. The question of inheritance arose as to whom the zemindari should go to after the demise of the Maharaja. The Calcutta High Court issued a special Rule and according to that Rule the properties would go to that person who has been the Ruler of the State and not to his legal heirs under the Hindu law.

But that does not take away the right of the Ruler of a State as the head of the State under section 84. Provision has also been made under section 86 to institute a suit against the Ruler of a State. Of course, it requires the sanction of either of the Governor-General or rather of the Governor-General in Council—

MR. PRESIDENT: Mr. Dutta, I may draw your attention to the amended section of the Act.

MR. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Yes, Sir, I am thankful to you for reminding me of the change. Of course, there is a difference between the Governor-General and the Crown Representative. No sanction is necessary to institute a suit against the Ruler of a State by a tenant.

I am referring to all these things because the Municipal Courts in British India have been given the seisin to take cognisance of matters relating to the immoveable properties owned by the Ruler of a State within the boundary of British India. This shows that it is not beyond the competency of the Municipal Courts to take cognisance of matters relating to the properties of the Ruler of an Indian State situated in British India and to give relief in respect of those properties. So the question would arise whether we can levy taxation in respect of properties owned by the Ruler of a State but situated within the Province of Bengal. I would say that our provincial legislature is competent to do it and for that power of legislation we may look to sections 99, 100 and 101 of the Government of India Act, 1935. I do not find any restrictions placed therein. Section 99 says, "Subject to the provisions of this Act, the Federal Legislature may make laws for the whole or any part of British India or for any Federated State, and a Provincial Legislature may make laws for the Province or for any part thereof." Now we are not making laws for any Federated State but we are making laws for the property situated within the Province of Bengal. We are not making any laws for any Federated State at all. Section 99 says that "Provincial Legislature may make laws for the Province or for any part thereof." I do not think that there is any bar in any of these sections to the Provincial Legislature legislating for taxation in respect of properties situated within the Province even if these properties would happen to be owned by the Ruler of a State. In this connection, I am very thankful to the Hon'ble President for referring to section 155 of the Government of India Act. Though it is not exactly an application of the Government of India Act, yet it may give us a little guide. Section 155 says, "Subject as hereinafter provided, the Government of a Province and the Ruler of a Federated State shall not be liable to Federal taxation in respect of lands or building situate in British India or income accruing, arising or received in British India." So it would appear that this section was inserted in respect of Federal taxation, and I need not dilate upon this section now. There was some purpose behind this section, because when Federation would come into existence the States would make themselves liable to the legislative powers of the legislatures of the Federation even in respect of the Federated State. So this precaution was taken, but there was a proviso, namely:—

“Provided that where a trade or business of any kind is carried on by or on behalf of the Government of a Province in any part of British India outside that Province or by a Ruler in any part of British India, nothing in this sub-section shall exempt that Government or Ruler any federal taxation in respect of that trade or business, or any operations connected therewith, or any income arising in connection therewith, or any property occupied for the purposes thereof.”

Nothing in this section shall exempt any Ruler from any federal taxation in respect of any land, or building or income being his personal property or income. So it would appear that though this precaution was taken in respect of federal taxation, there was no similar provision made in respect of provincial taxation. The reason for this is quite apparent, because it is only the Federation which could make law in respect of Federated States. Provinces could not make any law in respect of any Federated State, but while taking such precaution in respect of federal taxation we find one indication here that in respect of properties owned by the Ruler of an Indian State in his private capacity, though he is the Ruler of an Indian State and holds it as the Head of the State, that even was made liable to federal taxation and was not exempted from the operation of federal taxation. So this rather strengthens the claim of the Provincial Legislature to levy taxation on properties owned by the Ruler of a State even in the provinces. Therefore, considering the present relationship of the Rulers of Indian States with British India, I am of opinion that the Provincial Legislature is competent to legislate in respect of properties situated within this Province in view of the unfettered power given under section 99 of the Government of India Act.

However, in respect of the penal consequences imposed on account of the breach of certain provisions of the Bill, very intricate questions may arise. I think that that point should be cleared up because in respect of the Rulers of Indian States no immunity has been provided for in the Indian Penal Code. Suppose, the Ruler of a State commits a crime in British India which is an offence under the Indian Penal Code. Whether such Rulers of Indian States will be placed on their trial by the Crown or not, that is a matter of policy, and therefore that is a different matter altogether; but so far as the criminal law of British India is concerned, no immunity has been provided up till now. That point was once considered, vide I.L.R. 56, Allahabad, 128, which says that no such immunity does exist in regard to the Rulers of Indian States. As you know, Sir, in case of prosecution it is the Crown which prosecutes and the Crown may prosecute or may not prosecute in a particular case; but I may repeat that there is no immunity in favour of Rulers of Indian States. Section 306 of the Government of India Act enacts that the Governor-General is not subject to the ordinary jurisdiction of any court. Immunity has been provided for in his favour and in favour of other officers but there is no such exemption for any Ruler of an Indian State. So trouble may arise and I think that it ought to be provided against. Because it will give rise to various complications to make provisions as to the penal consequences in such a manner that it would not be applicable to the Rulers. They may be made applicable in respect of the Principal Officer or Agent of the Rulers of States, as my friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee stated, in the light of section 85 of the Civil Procedure Code. But the question is: whether such a provision can be made to touch the agents of Indian States within the province. Even if that is not possible, I do not see any reason why it would not be possible to make the Principal Officer amenable and subject to the penal consequences of the sections of the Act. I for myself do not think that they should be exempt from the liability to tax because they happen to be Agents of an august personage. I do not know why they should escape unscathed.

So my suggestion is that some of the clauses ought to be re-drafted so that the penal consequences would be applicable. In this connection, I would suggest that clauses 24, 25, 32, 33, 41, 43, 53 and 54 may be recast so that this sort of complications may be avoided. My view is that this Legislature is fully competent to impose taxation in respect of property situated within the province if it happens to be owned by the Ruler of a State, as in the case of anybody else.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, I have heard carefully what the previous speakers have said on the points placed by you before the House. Mr. Dutta has supported the contention that this Legislature could legislate on the line indicated in the Bill. But I have not been able to follow Mr. Mukherjee. He did not in so many words raise the question of ultra vires. He suggested certain improvement for certain reasons. But the questions raised by you have not been answered by him. I proceed from the point that we are a sovereign legislative body. (Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Oh! sovereign legislature!) It has been held before the 1935 Act came into operation that the Central Legislature which was acting under a much restricted right under the older Act was considered to be "sovereign" with regard to those legislations which were delegated to them. The Parliament had no jurisdiction over that Legislature so far as the legislations coming under the scope of those delegated powers were concerned. Therefore, with regard to those matters in regard to which legislative power has been delegated to a particular legislature, they are entitled to legislate. If it creates complication with neighbouring States that is a matter of International law. That cannot take away the power of legislation. Full sovereign state in England have full legislative power covering all aspects of life in England. If we examine the question whether the British Parliament has jurisdiction over properties situated in Great Britain but belonging to a foreign power, it will be seen that Parliament has all the powers over such property as upon private property. Now, Sir, coming back to our province, we have been given certain rights and the rights are with regard to territory: in other words, with regard to what territory can we legislate: secondly, with regard to what subject we can legislate: and, thirdly, with regard to what persons we can legislate. Once the territory, the subject and the person with regard to which we can legislate comes within, or are not excluded from our jurisdiction, no question of expediency or International complication can be raised and it shall not deter this House from taking action on those grounds. Examining from that point of view, we find that section 99 of the Government of India Act defines territorial jurisdiction with regard to which Provincial and Federal Legislature shall legislate.

Section 100 relates to the subject and refers to Schedule VII, wherein we have three lists of which the Third List deals with concurrent legislation. Therefore, the subject is within the territorial limits of the Province. It satisfies one condition. If the subject relates to the Provincial List, it satisfies the other condition. If there is no objection under the Act wherein there is exemption created with reference to a particular person, then no exemption could be claimed or allowed. Now, Sir, sections 99 and 100 are known to you and the exception is created in section 110, but that exception also does not include the subject. Then there are conditional powers given under section 108 and under this section we can legislate on certain subjects only after consent being obtained. The question which you have raised, Sir, is whether we have got power to pass the Bill as it is. We have jurisdiction to pass a Bill like this. If the restrictions do not directly refer to prohibiting this legislation, then we have got the right. There is no such dispute, as far as I have been able to gather, whether it lies within our power to legislate on this subject.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will you please refer to section 104?

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: That relates to subjects which are not included in any of the lists. These are what are called "Residuary matters". Section 2 does not refer to the private laws of state but to International questions. In all these things, the Crown Representative, or in other words, the King, shall be responsible.

Section 285 makes it subject to any acts of accession which will hereafter come but till that comes, present laws which govern these relations shall govern them. Section 86 of the Civil Procedure Code provides for agency only. This presupposes jurisdiction. Sections 84, 85, 86 and 87 of the Civil Procedure Code presuppose jurisdiction, but it is in order to satisfy the political side of the question and not to drag in a personality of the status of a sovereign that an agent is created. Therefore, the Crown Representative only permits and nominates the agent. The Crown Representative has not got any other function as provided in section 86. Section 87 provides that a representative of a sovereign state can sue and be sued and shall be sued in the name of that State under the Civil Procedure Code. The Civil Procedure Code lays down procedure by which rights are exercised. And since it says that a Prince or an ambassador shall be sued in the name of the State, it presupposes jurisdiction. Section 155 provides that the Ruler of an Indian State shall be exempt from Federal taxation. When Parliament was considering the rights of the different legislatures as regards taxation, they did not forget about what will happen if the Provincial Legislature makes any Ruler liable to taxation. The proviso makes it clear that even in the case where exemptions are created from Federal taxation, that exemption shall not apply in the case of a Ruler in respect of his trade or business. Under the Federal taxation if the Federation should impose a tax like this, their right is absolute. I should go further and say that if a Federated State should acquire a land in Calcutta for the purpose of exercising its function and appoints an agent who shall be acting as the representative of that State to deal with some other powers in Calcutta, then even that State will be taxable under the Provincial law.

Khan Bahadur M. SHAMSUZZOHA: Sir, the Government of India Act, 1935, may be taken as a self-contained Act and the Interpretation Chapter which begins with section 311 is perhaps the key—

MR. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Sahib, I hope you will be brief, for the House would like to hear the Hon'ble Finance Minister.

Khan Bahadur M. SHAMSUZZOHA: Yes, Sir, I shall be brief. As I was saying, the Interpretation Chapter supplies the key to the interpretation to the sections in the Act. That being so, from the definitions of the terms "Indian State" and "British India", it is quite clear that in this connection it has been conceived that there should be a clear-cut demarcation, a clear-cut distinction between what is a State, a Province, territory in British India and also the term "Indian State". The last three words in the definition of the term "Indian State" will conclusively show that there has been a clear-cut distinction. Indian State includes any territory, whether described as a State, an estate, a jagir or otherwise, belonging to or under the suzerainty of a ruler who is under the suzerainty of His Majesty and not being part of British India. Therefore, as soon as a territory comes within British India it cannot be within an Indian State. Indian State is a term by itself. Therefore, when we refer to section 2, it contemplates a case only of legislation with regard to Indian States themselves, that is, when we conceive of it as a legal entity itself. Therefore, if a territory is not within British India, the proviso to section 2 or section 184 does not have any application whatsoever. Therefore, I submit that the proviso and section 184 do not impose any bar whatsoever to our legislating over any territory or piece of land which the ruler of an Indian State may own within the Province. So it is abundantly clear that so far as the provisions of the present Bill are concerned, this House is competent to legislate and the Government of India Act imposes no bar whatsoever to our doing so.

MR. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, may I suggest that on this very intricate and interesting question we may hear the opinion of the Advocate-General in person?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, at first my honourable friend was scouting the idea that there was anything in the points raised. And now he has gone to the opposite extreme of thinking that the question is so difficult that we cannot decide anything without the help of the Advocate-General. I think he has now realised that the subject is not very easy to decide and has got its subtleties and difficulties.

The House should be grateful to you, Sir, for giving it an opportunity of placing its views on this extremely difficult and complicated question. It is also a question of considerable constitutional importance. Sir, the question has been argued from different points of view and I think the issues have been considerably narrowed down. I should say at once that in respect of properties situated within Bengal but belonging to an Indian Prince, the Provincial Legislature has a right to impose tax on agricultural income arising out of those properties. Of that, I believe, there is no reasonable doubt. The only question of importance is where my honourable friend Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury has left off. There is no doubt that the Provincial Legislature is competent to deal with the subject in the abstract; the real difficulty is as to whether you can legislate against Indian Princes who are an elusive body, who are just within the jurisdiction of the Province or just without it. It is this elusive question which, I think, you, Sir, have placed before the House for elucidation. I should think that nothing should depend upon the fact that Bengal is a smaller legislature than the Central Legislature. After Provincial Autonomy, Bengal possesses supreme powers, at least powers equal to the Central Legislature with regard to such subjects as are specifically allocated to it in the Seventh Schedule to the Government of India Act.

In the circumstances, no distinction should be allowed to be drawn on that score. We have supreme power, in fact, sovereign power, as Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury has rightly pointed out. In fact, when the Parliament has delegated power to legislate to a subordinate legislature then, within that delegated power, the subordinate legislature must have supreme and plenary powers of legislation. Combining all these considerations, I think it is reasonably clear that the Bengal Legislature has full and complete powers of legislation to impose agricultural income-tax on land within the province. Now, a difficult question arises as to what should be the machinery to enforce the law. That is the crux of the whole thing. It would not be proper to shut our eyes to the difficulties regarding the execution of the law. We have come here as members of the Legislature to pass laws which would not be mere pious wishes. We have come to pass laws which would be enforced and behind which there should be adequate sanction. If there is no adequate sanction behind the law, we cannot, as responsible members of the Legislature, be parties to it. As Mr. Mukherjee has rightly pointed out, the most important thing is the provision for adequate machinery to enforce the law which is wanting in this Bill. Mr. Mukherjee has drawn attention to sections 84, 85 and 86 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The difficulty of importing these sections into this Bill seems to me to be this: that, in the Code of Civil Procedure, choice is given to the Indian Princes to appoint agents, who could sue and be sued on behalf of their masters. If they accept the choice, the agents could be sued and they could sue on behalf of their masters. The question is whether the Indian Princes will appoint agents for the purpose of receiving notices and be bound by the law.

Under the Code of Civil Procedure, the advantages and the disadvantages are equally balanced between British India and the States. In this Bill, by the appointment of agents, the advantages will be all on the side of the Province and the disadvantages will be all on the side of the Indian Princes. In the circumstances, the Indian Princes may well decline the honour and then what will you do? Then again, the mere appointment of agents will not be enough. Other provisions would be needed, which would require negotiation or conference with the Princes to settle. The difficulties are not very easy to solve.

The next question is the question of criminal law. That has not, I believe, been sufficiently dealt with. So far as the criminal liability is concerned, it is not easy to say that an Indian Prince, if he commits an income-tax offence here in Bengal, while remaining within his own State, could be punished easily. There are insuperable difficulties in this matter. The question arose in 1839, nearly 105 years ago, when Lord Macaulay was the Law Member here. He was entrusted with the task of drafting a Penal Code for India. He dealt with this question with his usual exhaustiveness. He was puzzled by the varieties of the rights, privileges and liabilities and the indefinite character of the rights and obligations and other matters incidental to each Indian State. Then he felt that it would not be proper to define in general terms the rights and liabilities of Indian Princes and he thought that the Indian Penal Laws should not apply to them.

The question as it stands at present is ably summarized by Dr. Gour, in his Penal Law of India and his words may be read with your permission. I read from paragraph 34 of Volume I, Fourth Edition: "As foreign ambassadors are exempt from the Code, so are also foreign sovereigns, and for the same reason." Then later on in paragraph 38 dealing with the Indian Princes he said: "Indian Feudatory Princes and Princes in political alliance with Government are not British subjects; nor are their territories British territory. They are therefore exempt from the operation of the Penal Code. And as being heads of their own State they cannot be tried by the tribunals of their creation, it follows that in their case there is no judicial trial at all. Offences committed by them do not, however, as a rule go unpunished, though the procedure adopted for their trial is not that provided by the Code of Criminal Procedure, nor is the evidence adduced sifted in the light of the Indian Evidence Act. The action of the Government in bringing them to justice in an act of State, against which there is no appeal to judicial tribunals, and the sentence passed on them need not conform to the description of punishments provided in the Code. The usual practice adopted by Government in cases of alleged crime is to appoint a Commission of enquiry which takes such evidence as is forthcoming, draws up its report and submits it to Government for the information of its mind."

"The Government then passes a final order and in doing so it may or may not adopt the recommendation or the findings of the report. If the person affected by the order is aggrieved his only remedy is by a memorial to the higher political authority, before whom he is entitled to no audience by Counsel. He has no remedy in the Civil Court against his conviction if unjust, for this being an Act of State, the Municipal Courts have no jurisdiction to enquire into or judge of its propriety or correctness."

This may also refer to an act done within the State. But the difficulty is that there is no definite authority as to what is to be done in case an Indian Prince commits an offence within British India. Difficult questions of extradition may easily arise. Trial of such a Prince for an offence within British India would be a trial of a Ruler of a sovereign state for an offence and would involve difficult questions of International law. It has been suggested in this House that the position of an Indian Prince is not that of an independent Ruler: that he is, to a certain extent, checked and controlled by the paramount power which resides in British Government. That may be so, but it does not solve the problem. It is true that, to a large extent, the independence of these Indian Princes are affected by the superior powers of the British Government. That is a matter which is between the Indian Princes and the British Government. Whatever may be the division of power between these two authorities, the Central Government or the Provincial Legislature have power—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Sahib, I do not think you need go into the broader question. I shall be grateful if you will kindly confine yourself to the points at issue.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: All right, Sir. My submission would be this: that the Bengal Legislature has power over the subject-matter. With regard to Indian States, I think we have right to legislate but suitable machinery should be incorporated in the Bill by which we could enforce the provisions of the Bill. With regard to the penal provisions, something should be done to see that they are binding upon the Princes. It will not do to say that they can appoint agents for the purpose of receiving punishments. If it were so, many honourable members will be willing to commit fashionable crimes if they could be reasonably certain that they could appoint agents to take punishments on their behalf. In fact, in a case in a Village Union Bench, an accused person did not appear personally, when called but sent his son and the son was convicted. That was possible in a Union Bench but we cannot legislate for that. So far as the criminal law is concerned, no agent can be appointed to take the punishment. In the circumstances, I submit that these matters should be carefully considered in arriving at a solution. We are again grateful to you, Sir, for giving us the opportunity of expressing our opinion on this difficult question.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Laht Chandra Das. Mr. Das I hope you will be brief.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: All right, Sir. Mr. President, Sir, whether we have got jurisdiction to legislate is a point which has been answered by item No. 41 of List No. II of the 7th Schedule of the Government of India Act, 1935. By this an Indian Ruler having lands in British India can be taxed for income derived from his lands situated in British India, and when this is so we are certainly competent to legislate and to impose taxes on incomes derived from lands situated within British India.

Then, Sir, there is another point which arises in this connection, with reference to sub-rule 12 and sub-rule 9 of section 2 of our Bill. Section 2 in defining a "Person" has included within the definition the Ruler of an Indian State. At the same time, by sub-rule 12 it has been clearly stated who the Principal Officer should be in relation to the Ruler of an Indian State. It has been stated under sub-rule 12 that the Principal Officer should be the manager or agent in Bengal of the Ruler of the Indian State concerned. If that is so, Sir, why should the Ruler of an Indian State be personally affected? I say that the Ruler should not be affected in any way. There is a specific section, section 85, in the Civil Procedure Code which lays down that persons specially appointed by order of the Government at the request of any Sovereign Prince or Ruling Chief, whether in subordinate alliance with the British Government or otherwise and whether residing within or without British India or at the request of any person competent in the opinion of the Government, to act on behalf of such Prince or Chief, to prosecute or defend any suit on his behalf, shall be deemed to be the recognised agents by whom appearances, acts and applications under this Code may be made or done on behalf of such Prince or Chief. The only difficulty seems to be simply with reference to criminal prosecution which may be started against persons who are to pay the tax for income arising out of land situated in British India. That difficulty can be obviated, however, if the Government side were a little more explicit. Section 24 of the Bill reads thus: "The Agricultural Income-tax Officer should on or before such date in each year as may be prescribed, give notice, by publication, in such newspapers and in such other manner as may be prescribed requiring every person whose total agricultural income during the previous year exceeded the maximum amount which is not chargeable to agricultural income-tax to furnish, within such period not being less than sixty days as may be specified in the notice, a return in the prescribed form, etc., etc." "As may be prescribed" are the most important words. If Government would by rule prescribe that notices in relation to the Rulers of Indian States are not to be served on the Rulers themselves but upon their Principal Officers, their managers or their recognised agents, then I think the difficulty can be obviated; otherwise great difficulty will arise in relation to Indian Rulers from the provisions of sections 32, 47, 54 and 53 of the Bill, for these are penal sections. Section 32 deals with penalty for concealment of income. But upon whom is this penalty to be imposed? Upon the officer upon whom the notice has been served? If by rules prescribed Government make that clear and frame a rule that the notice is not to be served upon the Ruler of a State but upon its Principal Officer, namely, manager or agent, then I think the penal provisions of the clause can be avoided; otherwise the difficulty will always remain.

In section 47 of the Bill—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think you need go into the clauses at this stage. Your contention is that the House has the power to legislate imposing a tax on the agricultural income arising out of the property of Indian States within the province. You have no doubt about that; but your difficulty is in connection with the penal clauses and you suggest that this difficulty can be obviated by amending those clauses?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: My objection is also with regard to the rule-making powers of Government—to make rules hereafter. They should make it plain here and now. The clauses may be amended. Suppose, under the rule-making power of Government they make no rule in respect of Rulers of States. The difficulty is this: Government may not make any rule so far as the Ruler of a State is concerned. I think, Sir, Government should take steps to make this point specific and clear. They should make liable the Principal Officer or manager as the agent of the Indian State residing in British India and not the Ruler of an Indian State for any criminal acts done under this Act. In my view, the Ruler is immune from any criminal prosecution within British India by British Indian Courts. He may sit quite tight and safe in his own territory and he cannot be extradited.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Mr. President, we all appreciate your desire that an important measure like the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill should not be of such a character as would make it liable to be subsequently declared invalid. I quite appreciate that. But I would submit that the responsibility is with Government to see that a particular Bill sponsored by them is intra vires of the Legislature. I have just had the advantage of hearing a learned discussion on this subject. But long before this discussion, I had examined this very question which has been raised by you, Sir, and other honourable members of the House. I examined the points very carefully myself and also sought expert advice; and I was convinced that all the provisions of the Bill are intra vires of the Bengal Legislature. We have very recently obtained the opinion of the Advocate-General who has confirmed the view taken by Government with regard to the points raised. I may say that the discussion which has taken place in this House this afternoon has convinced me deeply that there is no provision in the Bill which is liable to be declared ultra vires. As regards the question of "policy" raised by the honourable Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta, namely, that Government should see that as far as possible there should be no friction between the Government of Bengal and the Ruler of a State, I may say at once that it is the policy of Government to see that such friction does not take place. As a matter of policy, it is not our intention to administer the Act in the manner suggested. So far as the provisions of this Bill are concerned, I repeat that they are within the competence of this Legislature.

Sir, the main point is: whether the Ruler of an Indian State can be taxed on his properties or investments in British India. I am very glad to find Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta in complete agreement with Government as to the question of competency of this Legislature to enact a law like the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Act. I think it is well-known that some Rulers of Indian States have very large investments in British India and those investments are liable to income-tax by the Central Government. Similarly, it is known that with regard to the properties of Rulers of Indian States, like Chakla-Rosanabad, they are subject to land revenue and not merely to land revenue but to cesses imposed by the Bengal Provincial Legislature. So, there is absolutely no reason on principle why another tax cannot be imposed in respect of those properties. I wish just to refer to the Government Trading Taxation Act, 1926, section 2. I shall, with your permission, Sir, read section 2 of that Act:

"2. (1) Where a trade or business of any kind is carried on by or on behalf of the Government of any part of His Majesty's Dominions exclusive of British India, that Government shall in respect of the trade or business and of all operations connected therewith, all property occupied in British India and all goods owned in British India for the purposes thereof, and all income arising in connection therewith be liable—

(a) to taxation under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, in the same manner and to the same extent as in the like case a company would be liable;

(b) to all other taxation for the time being in force in British India in the same manner as in the like case any other would be liable.

(2) For the purposes of the levy and collection of income-tax under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1), any Government to which that sub-section applies shall be deemed to be a company within the meaning of that Act, and the provisions of that Act shall apply accordingly."

Sir, I have read this particular section of a very important Act for this reason. It is my case that on the basis of the above section the British Indian incomes of Rulers of Indian States in their public and official capacity and also of Dominion Governments, are being taxed under the Indian Income-tax Act and that the provision for service of notice on such Rulers and Dominion Government under the Income-tax Act is the same as in the present Bill, namely, that it can be served either by post or as if it were a summons issued under the Civil Procedure Code.

Sir, I do not think that recent amendment of section 86 of the Civil Procedure Code, to which reference has been made, is a very material point against me.

In that amendment the Crown Representative has been specifically mentioned for the simple reason that the function of a Crown Representative was specifically created by the Government of India Act, 1935. There was no special significance attaching to that amendment.

I submit, Sir, that in view of the very definite opinion of the Advocate-General and of what I have stated, the House will now agree that they can safely proceed to consider the different clauses of the Bill untrammelled by any feeling that any of the provisions enacted here will be successfully challenged in a court of law. Sir, the whole point with regard to the liability of the Rulers to the jurisdiction of courts in British India is this: A provision in this Bill may be inoperative to the extent that a Ruler succeeds in establishing his immunity. A particular provision may be inoperative in certain circumstances and that is the worst that may happen. We have the competency to legislate. We have the power to prosecute, if necessary, the Ruler of a State. But if a Ruler establishes some kind of immunity in respect of something, well there we may lose; but that does not make our law a bad law. This is all I wish to say. Sir, as regards the Rulers of States trying to avoid, it is not always clear what immunities a Ruler may possess. Many hypothetical questions arise. I need not answer them. And yet I think complications should be avoided and our provision should be as straightforward as possible. If law or usage gives an immunity to a person by virtue of his status, we cannot help it. But I submit, Sir, that our provisions have been so carefully framed that we shall not be losers to any considerable extent by the exercise of any immunity on the part of the Rulers. We are not only competent to legislate: we have by this Bill offered a machinery by which the tax on the agricultural incomes of the Rulers of States in Bengal will safely be in the coffers of the Bengal Treasury.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of information, Sir. May I ask the Hon'ble Finance Minister whether it is the opinion of the Advocate-General also?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, I was going to suggest that in view of the fact that Government relies so much on the opinion of the learned Advocate-General, Government may invite him to explain the points to the House.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I have requested the Advocate-General to come and address this House on this aspect of the question. He will be available on Friday next.

Mr. PRESIDENT: In that view of the matter, I suggest that we meet the Advocate-General here on Friday next, and we do not take up any non-official business on that day, provided Government are prepared to give us another day for consideration of the non-official business. It is a very important question; so let us decide that we hear the Advocate-General on the points of law on Friday next.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I have a certain important matter to mention. It is with regard to several notices of amendments regarding this Bill which were submitted late.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Thank you very much for mentioning it. Late amendments will be admitted.

Mr. HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Sir, I gave notice of a question in connection with Tippera Chakla Rosanabad—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have not seen this question.

The House stands adjourned till 2-15 p.m. on Friday.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 50.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Monday, the 23rd June, 1944, at 2-15 p.m., being the fiftieth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: Sir, we are anxious to hear the learned Advocate-General and so there may be no questions and answers today.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. What is it, Mr. Mesbahuddin?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: I was saying that I have advised the Hon'ble Ministers that there would be no questions today, for we would be listening to the address of the Advocate-General. I understood, Sir, that he would be addressing the House immediately we met.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What made you understand that?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: The other day I enquired of the Chair and that is what I understood from you, Sir.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Then why was the list of Questions and Answers circulated to us today?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Are not the Hon'ble Ministers present in the Chamber today to answer the questions?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: No, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: In that case, the questions may be held over today. But without the express permission of the Chair I do not think the Chief Whip of this House had any right to assume that there would be no questions today.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA DUTTA: Sir, the Whip is slighting the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. There is no question of slighting the House. I believe it is a case of misunderstanding.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I enquire how this misunderstanding arises?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mesbahuddin says that he enquired of the Chair and I told him that the Advocate-General would address the House and Mr. Mesbahuddin thought that there would be no questions, though he had no right to do so. I am, however, prepared to take this as a case of genuine misunderstanding. So the questions are held over till the next day.

The Secretary will now read the Message from the Legislative Assembly.

Message from the Legislative Assembly.

SECRETARY (Dr. S. K. D. Gupta): Sir, the following message has been received from the Bengal Legislative Assembly:—

—“The Advocate's Robes Bill, 1944, as passed by the Bengal Legislative Assembly at its meeting held on May 12, 1944, has been duly signed by me and is annexed herewith. The concurrence of the Bengal Legislative Council to the Bill is requested.”

SYED NAUSHER ALI,

Speaker,

Bengal Legislative Assembly.

Sir, I herewith lay on the Table the Advocate's Robes Bill, 1944, as passed by the Assembly at its meeting held on the 12th May, 1944.

Points of law arising out of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The Advocate-General is here to explain the points of law that have arisen in connection with the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill. I would first of all like to place before the House the points on which he is to address the House. I place the points, one by one:—

(1) Is the Provincial Legislature competent to pass legislation imposing duties and obligations on the Ruler of an Indian State in his public and official capacity?

In this connection, I would draw the attention of the learned Advocate-General to the proviso to section 2(1) of the Government of India Act, 1935, under which His Majesty's functions in relation to Indian States can be exercised only through the Crown representative or officers under the Crown representative. So, will the provisions in the Bill, which propose to invest the officers of the Provincial Government with powers to impose duties and obligations on the Rulers of Indian States in their public and official capacity, be intra vires of the Provincial Legislature?

(2) Is the existing usage, according to which the Ruler of an Indian State pays tax on lands belonging to the State within the British territory, such as revenue, cess, etc., applicable to agricultural income-tax which is a personal tax, though assessed with reference to income from land? In view of section 285 of the Government of India Act, 1935, can such tax and obligations be imposed on the Princes? Since section 285 preserves the existing rules and privileges of the Rulers of Indian States, can any fresh liability or duty be imposed upon them?

In this connection, I would also like to mention that the Government Trading Taxation Act of 1926 which is an Act of the Indian Central Legislature, was a consensual legislation based on agreement arrived at in one of the Imperial conferences. That is the genesis of that Act. Can that principle apply to the Bill which is now before the House imposing duties and obligations on the Ruler of an Indian State in his public and official capacity?

(3) Would not clauses 53 and 54 of the Bill read with clauses 2(9) and 2(15) make the Ruler of an Indian State in his public and official capacity subject to prosecution and punishment by British Indian courts? Does not the Bill propose to give jurisdiction to courts where such jurisdiction does not lie?

(4) Clause 61 of the Bill read with clauses 2(9) and 2(15) enables notices and requisitions to be served on the Ruler of an Indian State by post. Can proceedings be started against the Ruler of a State in this manner?

In this connection, I would draw the attention of the Advocate-General to the cases of Mighell vs. Sultan of Johore, of Statham vs. Statham and Gaekwar of Baroda, and of Duff Development Company vs. Sultan of Kalantan. In this connection, I would also draw his attention to section 86 of the Civil Procedure Code, as amended by the Order in Council promulgated after the passing of the Government of India Act of 1935, transferring the power of granting sanction for institution of suits against the Rulers of Indian States from the Governor-General in Council to the Crown representative.

(5) In view of the proviso to section 2(1) of the Government of India Act, 1935, can officers of the Provincial Government, such as the Agricultural Income-tax Officers, exercise powers over the Ruler of a State in his public and official capacity? Provisions conferring rights on officers of Provincial Government—are they not repugnant to section 2(1) of the Government of India Act?

These are the main points. Now, the procedure that I propose to follow is: that after the learned Advocate-General has addressed the House and explained the points of law, there should be no general discussion on points mentioned by him; but if any honourable member feels any doubt in regard to a particular point he may have it cleared by putting questions.

I will now request the learned Advocate-General to address the House.

Mr. S. M. BOSE (Advocate-General): (1) The Agricultural Income-tax Bill seeks to impose a tax on agricultural income. It is covered by item No. 41 in the Provincial List. Therefore, this House has got full and plenary power to pass any law dealing with agricultural income-tax for the province—

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMED: Sir, may I suggest that the Advocate-General may kindly go over to the microphone so that there may not be any difficulty in hearing him?

Mr. S. M. BOSE: Sir, the object of this legislation is to impose a tax on the agricultural income derived from land situated in the province. It is covered by items 21 and 41 of the Provincial List. The Provincial Government has, therefore, full and plenary power to pass laws which would affect lands in the province and income derived from land in the province. The question that has arisen is: whether the Provincial Legislature is competent to impose duties and obligations on the Ruler of an Indian State in respect of such income. It will be clear from the Provincial List, items 21 and 41, that it is within the power of the Province to pass laws on this subject.

With reference to section 2(I) of the Government of India Act, 1935, it may be said that the reservation of the power of His Majesty is "except in so far as may be otherwise provided by or under this Act". It has been provided by this Act that the province has full power to levy tax on agricultural income. Therefore, I submit respectfully that section 2(I) of the Government of India Act does not stand in the way of the power of the Provincial Legislature to deal with this point.

(2) The next question is: Is the existing usage, according to which the Ruler of an Indian State pays taxes on land belonging to the State, within British territory, such as revenue, cess, etc., applicable to agricultural income-tax which is a personal tax, though assessed with reference to income from land? It is expressly covered by items 21 and 41 of the Seventh Schedule. It is true that so far as the Government Trading Taxation Act, 1926, is concerned, it was passed on an agreement between the Government and the Princes; but that is only a matter of historical importance. The validity of the Act does not depend on the existing agreement between the Princes and the Government, but on the fact that that Act has been passed by the Indian Legislature. It is true that that Act was passed before the new Constitution came into force. In considering the question whether this subject comes within the ambit of the Legislature we have to examine the three lists carefully and we find that this Bill does not affect the rights and obligations of the Crown but only seeks to impose a tax on the income which the Princes derive from the lands within the province.

(3) The next question is, "Would not clauses 53 and 54 of the Bill read with clause 2(9) and clause 2(15) make the Ruler of an Indian State in his public and official capacity expressly subject to prosecution and punishment by British Indian Courts? Does not the Bill therefore expressly confer jurisdiction on Courts which such courts do not possess?"

This does not present any difficulty at all. The power of the Provincial Legislature is confined to lands within the province, and any offence arising out of transactions with reference to lands is a matter within the provincial legislative sphere. There is no reason why an Indian Prince who owns lands within the province and who does not pay land revenue should not be brought within the ambit of this legislation. The question whether he can be tried by municipal courts is one which is quite simple. There is nothing in the Act which prevents this Legislature from providing for the trial of persons who have committed an offence with reference to lands within the province. Whether a particular Prince who has committed an offence can claim immunity or not is a matter which is to be decided if and when such question arises. The Prince's claim to immunity is a matter of International Law which is something like Common Law. But the Provincial Legislature has power to abrogate the Common Law, to modify it, and when this is done the immunity so long enjoyed by the Indian Prince by virtue of the International Law disappears. Therefore, if an offence is committed under clause 54, there is no question of any legal bar nor of want of jurisdiction of the Provincial Legislature to pass a Bill which would bring the Princes within the law.

(4) The fourth question is: "Clause 60(1) of the Bill read with clause 2(9) and clause 2(15) enables notices and requisitions to be served on the Ruler of an Indian State by post. Can proceedings be started against the Ruler of a State in this manner?"

Reference has been made to the three well-known cases, namely, the case of Mighell vs. Sultan of Johore, the case of Statham vs. Statham and Gaekwar of Baroda, and the case of Duff Development Company vs. Kalantan Government. In England, International Law applies to its fullest extent, and the Rulers of Independent States can claim absolute immunity and they cannot be tried by English Courts. But here International Law does not apply to its fullest extent. Section 86 of the Civil Procedure Code has curtailed the rights of the Ruler of an Indian State. That is an illustration where the International Law has been modified by Statute. That is exactly what is sought to be done by this piece of legislation. Therefore, the right of immunity, not being an absolute claim, can be modified by an appropriate legislation of the Legislature.

(5) The fifth question is, "In view of the proviso to section 2(1) of the Government of India Act, 1935, can officers of the Provincial Government, such as Agricultural Income-tax Officers, exercise powers in respect of the Ruler of an Indian State in his public and official capacity?"

Sir, I know of no law which prevents a Provincial Government from sending a summons to a Prince, provided it has reference to matters which relate to a legislation within the Province or to a subject within the powers of the Legislature. So long as that subject is within the powers of the Legislature, this Legislature necessarily has all the powers to serve notices and to do everything necessary to attain the main object of the Bill.

These are all that I have got to say in respect of the questions which were put to me for elucidation.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: There are within Bengal the estates of three Indian Princes, namely, those of the Maharaja of Tripura, the Maharaja of Cooch Behar and the Maharaja of Maurbhanj. These lands lie within British territory and if a summons has to be issued against them for any offence under section 53 or section 54 of the Bill, how is the law to be applied to them? How can they be brought out from their own territories and tried in a British court of law? Suppose, a summons is issued against the Maharaja of Tripura and he chooses to remain in his capital at Agartala, how, in that case, is he to be brought before the Indian courts for trial? I would like the learned Advocate-General to kindly throw light on this point.

Mr. S. M. BOSE: In this case it is not a question of the law of extradition at all. If from the facts of the case a notice has got to be served upon the Ruler of an Indian State for an offence under this Act and he chooses not to obey it, then it will simply come to this that you cannot execute the process: that is all. It would just be like an Englishman who owns land in Bengal and has got to pay this tax but he happens to be in London and so cannot be brought out. The law is intra vires; there is nothing wrong with the law. You could not simply execute it on account of the peculiar circumstances of the case.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: In such a case I would like to know whether there can be any machinery for enforcing the payment of the tax. You cannot get the person within the province; that is quite clear. But the question is in what manner under the provisions of this Act this tax can be realised from the Ruler of an Indian State.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That point, I think, does not arise from the questions before the House; that is the business of the draftsman in the Legislative Department.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: The Ruler cannot be brought out from his territory—that we learn from the Advocate-General; but what is the machinery by which this tax can be realised from him if he chooses not to pay it?

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is not the duty of the learned Advocate-General to improve the drafting of the Bill. The Advocate-General has given his opinion on the points of law that arise out of the Bill as it has been drafted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The expression "Indian State" has been defined in section 311 of the Government of India Act, 1935, and that I think will to a certain extent eliminate some of our difficulties. An Indian State, according to this definition, is not any territory which is in British India. So, if an Indian State has got to pay an agricultural income-tax on any land within Bengal, which is within British India, then while functioning in Bengal, it ceases to be an Indian State within the meaning of the Government of India Act. I should like to know from the learned Advocate-General whether this definition will remove some of the difficulties in this respect.

Mr. S. M. BOSE: I am not sure, Sir, if I have followed the question; but the definition of an "Indian State", as given in the Government of India Act, will support the purposes of the Agricultural Income-tax Act. So far as this Bill is concerned, there does not seem to be any difficulty at all, because the definition of the word "person" includes a Hindu undivided joint family, a firm, a company and the Ruler of an Indian State; and the Ruler of an Indian State means the ruler of such State in his public and official capacity. So, if such a Ruler has got land in British territory, then his income from that land may be sought to be affected.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, what I wanted to enquire was this: According to the Government of India Act, we learn that any territory which is within British India is not an Indian State. Will the Government of India Act, by this definition, exclude any area which is owned by an Indian State but which is within the British territory and thus cease to have any of the advantages which are derived by an Indian State by the definition? The definition which removes an Indian State from the category of an Indian State and of all those advantages and disadvantages which are reserved to an Indian State by the Government of India Act, will cease to apply to such area. So the area in which we are legislating will cease to be an Indian State, according to the Government of India Act. In that case, all the troubles vanish. This is only a suggestion. I want to know whether that would be so.

Mr. S. M. BOSE: The definition given in the Government of India Act of an Indian State includes any territory whether described as a State or otherwise. So, it is intended to include other States which ordinarily cannot be included within the definition of the words "Indian State".

That is the only purpose of the definition in section 311. Whether described as a State, an Estate, a Jagir or otherwise, it will be deemed to be an Indian State for the purpose of the Government of India Act.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The other question which I would ask is this: we feel that the Provincial Legislature has a right to impose Agricultural Income-tax on the Ruler of an Indian State. But the question is—the Bill does not provide any machinery for serving and sending notices to Indian States. I would like to know whether proper machinery should and may be introduced in the Bill for making it possible for us to send notices to Indian States and provide for substituted services as there are in the Codes of Criminal and Civil Procedure. Whether in order to make things complete, a suitable machinery could be inserted in the Bill.

Mr. S. M. BOSE: It is for the Provincial Legislature to do so. The Provincial Legislature has full power to adopt proper machinery; whether you will do so is a matter entirely for you to decide.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The Indian Princes have got some special privileges under section 86 of the Civil Procedure Code. There is a recent ruling of the Calcutta High Court, I. L. R. Volume 35, Calcutta, page 777. In that case it was held that a suit for title for land within Bengal belonging to the Maharaja of Tippera was not maintainable in a British court without proper sanction. The question that I wish to suggest is this: that in spite of the power given to the provincial legislature over all persons this law, indicated in section 86, has not been affected in consequence of the enactment of the Government of India Act, 1935. We find that still the Indian Princes enjoy certain privileges under the Code of Civil Procedure. There is the India Order: that has not been allowed to affect this privilege. There is some kind of privilege enjoyed by Indian Princes. So I would like to know whether any difficulty may arise about this privilege which seems to be at the bottom of this conception—whether that privilege may in some way be affected by this enactment.

Mr. S. M. BOSE: Privileges are not conferred by any Act of the Indian Legislature. That is a matter of public International law. This Legislature has plenary power to affect the privileges conferred by those laws not seeking to affect any existing Indian law.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, may I enquire it returns are filed by the principal officer of the Ruler of a State,—principal officer is defined in sub-section (12) of section 2 as “the manager or agent in Bengal of the Ruler of the Indian State”—then who would be liable for criminal prosecution, Ruler of the Indian State or the principal officer?

Mr. S. M. BOSE: If the principal officer violates any provision of the Bill, he will be prosecuted; and if the Ruler violates, he will be prosecuted. There cannot be any vicarious apportionment of responsibility!

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Advocate-General, may I refer you to the portion of Wheaton's International Law where the status of Indian and protected States has been described: “They (Indian States) are not subjected to legislation by the Indian Legislature or by the Legislative Councils of the Presidency in which they are situated; nor is the law of British India administered within their borders”.

Mr. S. M. BOSE: That will be so far as their own State is concerned, not in reference to any State in British India.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I refer to proviso to section 2(1) of the Government of India Act, 1935? It is said, “Provided that any powers connected with the exercise of the functions of the Crown in its relations with Indian States shall in India, if not exercised by His Majesty, be exercised only by, or by persons acting under the authority of His Majesty's Representative for the exercise of those functions of the Crown".

Now, here under the amended section 86 of the Civil Procedure Code, is not sanction from the Crown Representative necessary?

Mr. S. M. BOSE: This Legislature does not affect the power at all. The Agricultural Income-tax Bill does not affect that power in any way. It does not attempt to do so.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I put another question? Does not the Bill go beyond that? Are not certain duties and obligations going to be imposed on the Ruler of an Indian State in his official or public capacity and in that case does it not require the sanction of the Crown Representative, if any power of His Majesty is to be exercised with relation to the Ruler of an Indian State?

Mr. S. M. BOSE: So far as this Bill is concerned, it does not affect the power of the Ruler of an Indian State in his official or other capacity. This Bill does not seek to encroach upon the rights of Rulers of Indian States. It may be that further sanction is necessary. This Bill does not deal with Indian Princes qua Indian Princes; but only with respect to the zemindari or with respect to the lands in the province.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Advocate-General, what about the definition regarding the official or public capacity of a Ruler of an Indian State?

Mr. S. M. BOSE: This has to be read in context with the whole Bill. It only refers to the land of a Ruling Prince in Bengal and not elsewhere. Therefore, the Bill is not seeking to affect the status or the powers of an Indian Prince so far as his own territory is concerned or to curtail his privilege in any way.

Mr. PRESIDENT: An agricultural income-tax like other income-taxes is not a land tax; it is a personal tax, although it is imposed with reference to the Ruler's income out of the land situated in British India.

Mr. S. M. BOSE: A personal Income-tax Bill is confined to income to be derived from property in Bengal and not elsewhere.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Thank you.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: May I draw the attention of the Hon'ble Advocate-General to section 155 of the Government of India Act which runs thus:—

"Subject as hereinafter provided, the Government of a Province and the Ruler of a Federated State shall not be liable to federal taxation in respect of lands or buildings situate in British India or income accruing, arising or received in British India":

In this connection, I may also read one or two sentences from the Notes of Aiyar on the Government of India Act which are as follows:—

"The levy of a municipal rate has been held to be the imposition of a tax within the meaning of this prohibition"; and and then he refers to the Municipal Council of Sydney vs. The Commonwealth which runs as follows:—

"A Municipal Corporation cannot have any greater power to impose taxation than the state by which it was created and by which its own powers are conferred".

Now, it seems to me that the Provincial authority, i.e., the Province of Bengal is created no doubt by the senior authority, i.e., the Crown, and if the Crown and the Federated State are not competent to impose any tax on the Ruler of an Indian State, the ruling which is quoted from the Canadian Commonwealth Law Report, that is, that "a Municipal Corporation cannot have any greater power to impose taxation than the State....." Would not that create any difficulty so far as the Province of Bengal is concerned? I may also read one or two sentences more from Aiyar which are as follows:—

"The word 'tax' in this context has been held to include not only 'an enforced levy for the purposes of general Government' in the narrow sense of the term, but also any imposition by whatever name called. A state which has itself no power to make such a levy cannot confer the power under another name, and in a Constitutional instrument defining and limiting the power of Constitutional authorities, the word 'tax' must be construed in the wider sense and the prohibition of the imposition of the tax must be held to include a prohibition of any such imposition by a delegated authority."

That is the point.

Mr. S. M. BOSE: Not having seen the Australian case, I would not venture an opinion. I would rather suspect that the relevant provisions of the Australian Constitution Act are in terms, entirely different from the Government of India Act, 1935. Apart from that, section 155 of the Government of India Act by its implication suggests that the Province has the power to tax. The power to tax which the Provincial Legislature has, is by virtue of section 100. Section 155 is the only limitation of the power of the Centre to levy taxes. If it was intended to restrict the power of the province, you would have expected similar sections in the Constitution Act.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: May I refer once again to section 285 of the Government of India Act? Under that section, subject, in the case of a Federated State to the provisions of the Instrument of Accession of that State, nothing in this Act affects the rights and obligations of the Crown in relation to any Indian State. Now, as the British Crown was under an obligation not to impose any tax upon any Ruling-Prince before the Federal part of the Government of India Act was enforced, would not that be hit by the provision of section 285?

Mr. S. M. BOSE: It is not a question of the power of legislation at all; the power of legislation is there, but may not be in operation.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: If we can legislate about the criminal prosecution of the Ruler of an Indian State in person, can we also legislate about the process or the summons that are to be served on him and as to how the Princes can be brought down to British India?

Mr. S. M. BOSE: The province has no power to make any law which would bring the Ruler of an Indian State outside his territory.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Exactly so. In this Bill we are legislating about the criminal prosecution of the Ruler of an Indian State in person and the learned Advocate-General says that we are capable of doing that. But at the same time it is said that we cannot legislate as to the proper method of serving the process on such a Ruler. If you cannot do that, then I submit what is the use of having a power which is altogether infructuous!

Mr. S. M. BOSE: That is a question of policy; the power is there. But whether it will have any effect or not is a question of policy.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I take it that no other honourable member desires to put questions to the learned Advocate-General. I thank the Advocate-General for kindly addressing the House and explaining the difficult points that have arisen in connection with this Bill. I propose to give my ruling at that next sitting day. Thank you, Mr. Advocate-General.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I submit that Government have put in certain amendments to this Bill but they have not yet decided whether they would move any of them or not. Government, accordingly, would now want a few days' time for this purpose. I would, therefore, request you, Sir, to adjourn the House till the 3rd of July, when the Bill will be taken up, clause by clause, and finished.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will you allow us to protest against the manner in which Government is getting this House adjourned on the plea that they are not ready?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, I do not think there is anything to protest against. It is a Government measure and an important piece of legislation. Government have also given notice of certain amendments. If they asked for some time to consider those amendments, is there anything to object to?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I have sent out some amendments at short notice after the expiry of the due time. I pray that they may be admitted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: There will now be plenty of time for giving notice of amendments.

The House now stands adjourned till——

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: May I suggest that the House be adjourned till the 4th July and not till the 3rd.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, it is for Government to suggest till which date the House should be adjourned.

(Consultation took place between the Hon'ble Chief Minister and the Hon'ble the Leader of the House.)

The Honourable Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: All right, Sir, we have no objection to the House being adjourned till the 4th of July.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House stands adjourned till 1-30 p.m. on Tuesday, the 4th July, 1944.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 1-30 p.m. on Tuesday, the 4th July, 1944.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 51.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Tuesday, the 4th July, 1944, at 1-30 p.m., being the fifty-first day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Security prisoners.

194. Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

- (a) the total number of security prisoners of this Province so far taken into custody under the Defence of India Rules and Act;
- (b) the number of the families of these security prisoners receiving maintenance allowance from the Government;
- (c) the lowest sum sanctioned by the Government in the cases of the above families and the number of families receiving such sums; and
- (d) if the Hon'ble Minister will be pleased to lay on the Table a statement showing amounts of money granted as maintenance of family allowance against the name of each security prisoner?

MINISTER in charge of the HOME DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) All persons previously detained under rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules are now, by provisions of the Restriction and Detention Ordinance (Ordinance III of 1944), deemed to have been detained under that Ordinance. There are two kinds of such prisoners, one political security prisoners and the other criminal security prisoners. The number of political security prisoners was 1,281 on the 6th June, 1944, while that of criminal security prisoners was 2,516 on the 28th April, 1944.

(b) The information asked for is not readily available and its collection would involve an amount of time and labour not justifiable in wartime.

(c) Rs. 10 per mensem but the information regarding the number of families receiving such sums is not readily available.

(d) The honourable member is referred to my reply to (b).

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Arising out of (b), is it not a fact that there is in the Home Department a record of the number of families of these security prisoners who are receiving maintenance allowances from Government?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Certainly; but the records are in different places and it is difficult to collate them together.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state how the collection of the number will involve an amount of time and labour "not justifiable in wartime", when it would be available from the departmental records? I think the time and labour involved would not be much and it could be easily made available.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I have already made it clear that the records are maintained in different places and not in one place.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is it in different districts and not in the Secretariat here?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Yes.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Arising out of (c), it is said that Rs. 10 per mensem is given as maintenance. Are the Government serious in saying that this sum is adequate for the maintenance when the price of rice is ruling so high?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I believe this sum relates only to those who, according to the rules laid down for allowing such maintenance allowance, are not entitled to anything; these allowances have been granted as compassionate allowances.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: When this allowance has been granted on ground of compassion, could not the Hon'ble Minister extend the limit so that the sum granted might mean some relief to the recipient without putting the figure at Rs. 10 which is ridiculous when rice is selling at over Rs. 40 a maund?

Taking part in election by Government servants.

195. Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVARTY: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state whether Government servants are entitled to propose, second or otherwise actively help any candidate for election to the Legislature or to any local body?

(b) Is it a fact that Mr. Mir Abdus Sayeed, Staff Officer, Ballyganj A.R.P., and Mr. Nasir Ahmed, Staff Officer, Cossipur Fire-Fighting Service, have proposed the name of Dr. Korban as a candidate in the present general election in the Calcutta Corporation?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (a) Government servants are not so entitled.

(b) Mr. Nasiruddin Ahmed proposed and Mir Abdus Sayeed seconded Dr. Korbanuddin Ahmed for a seat in Muchipara Ward No. 9. They did it in ignorance of the rules and have been warned.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, as regards question No. 196 and other questions standing in the name of Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy, may I suggest that these questions may be held over as the Hon'ble Minister has gone to Chittagong?

Mr. PRESIDENT: As the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy is not here, all his questions may be held over.

Security prisoners.

199. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state the total number of security prisoners in jail, of persons detained at home and of convicted political prisoners at present in Bengal?

(b) Is it in the contemplation of the Government to consider the question of the release of the security prisoners without further delay? If so, when? If not, why not?

(c) Is it the intention of the Government to consider sympathetically the grant of monthly help to their families in case they are not released immediately?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (a) (i) Political security prisoners—1,273.

(ii) Criminal security prisoners—2,504.

(iii) Convicted political prisoners—522. The information in respect of persons detained at home is not readily available and its collection would involve an amount of time and labour not justifiable during this state of emergency.

(b) In addition to detailed review of individual cases, a general review of all cases is constantly being made in consultation with Government's Security Advisers, and persons whose continued detention is no longer considered necessary are being released.

The total number of security prisoners released since the present Ministry took office now stands at 533.

(c) Yes. The grant of family allowance has been liberalised and they are now more freely granted not only in the case of proved and absolute necessity but, to a reasonable extent, also in the cases in which the detention of the prisoner has resulted in a loss of legitimate income to his family and dependants.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Arising out of (a)(i) and (ii), will the Hon'ble Minister please state up to what time these figures relate—1,273 and 2,504?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I may refer the honourable member to the answer to question No. 194 where the latest date has been given.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Why this difference then? In reply to my question the figure of political security prisoners has been given as 1,281 and that of criminal security prisoners as 2,516; but in answer to Mr. Haridas Mazumdar's question different figures have been given.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Time factor has been made clear as far as Mr. Lalit Chandra Das's question is concerned; I ask for notice so far as time is concerned in regard to the question of Mr. Haridas Mazumdar.

Collection of paddy in Khairasole.

201. Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Agriculture Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if the Jute Circle Food Committee in the Khairasole police-station in the district of Birbhum has been authorised to realise paddy at a certain rate per acre, varying from 3 to 5 seers, from the cultivators;
- (b) if such realisation has been made compulsory from the cultivators;
- (c) if so, why; and
- (d) if not, if he will consider the desirability of issuing a circular immediately that the delivery is not compulsory?

MINISTER in charge of the AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Saiyed Muazzamuddin Hosain): (a) and (b) No.

(c) Does not arise.

(d) Dharmagola collections are purely voluntary and moral persuasion is used. Necessary circulars have already been issued.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what amount of paddy has been collected on voluntary basis in the Khairasole police-station?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I want notice.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state how many dharmagolas have been started in the Khairasole police-station?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I want notice.

Petition for the supply of "aus" and "aman" seeds.

202. Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Agriculture Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if he is aware that a petition signed by Raghunath Maity, President of Kalighai and Barachowka Flood Relief Committee, praying for aus and aman seeds for the Bhagwanpur, Palashpur, Contai, Ramnagar and Egra police-stations in the Midnapore district has been sent to him;
- (b) if he proposes to make arrangement for the supply of aus seeds forthwith, as delay will render the distribution useless; and
- (c) if he has sufficient stock of the seeds in the areas for distribution?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: (a) and (b) A petition was received but no aus seeds were supplied to the petitioner. The area for which the aus seeds were asked for was not suitable for aus paddy. In spite of this, in the previous year some aus seeds were distributed in the area but the result was not satisfactory. Both the Subdivisional Officer and the Circle Officer, Contai, reported that there was no demand for aus seeds.

(c) For the Contai subdivision 25 maunds of aus seeds were allotted but no distribution could be made as there was no demand.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if it is his information that in the area within Contai subdivision no aus seeds could be sown for want of supply?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: No. My information is that there was no demand for aus seeds.

Distribution of cattle to the agriculturists.

203. Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Agriculture Department be pleased to state whether the Government have adopted any, and if so, what policy for the supply of cattle to the agriculturists for the cultivation of land in the Province?

(b) If the reply to part (a) is in the affirmative, will he be pleased to state the number and value of the cattle to be distributed in the different districts?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: (a) Government have already sanctioned Rs. 50,00,000 for distribution as loans to cultivators for the purchase of cattle. Recognising the shortage of cattle within the Province Government are also making every effort to induce other Provincial Governments to allow exports of cattle from their Provinces into Bengal, but unfortunately till now these efforts have not met with success. Negotiations with Bihar are still continuing, but as the final decision rests with them, this Government cannot force a decision in spite of the urgency of the situation.

(b) A statement is placed on the Table giving allotment of loans to different districts. It is not possible to give any information about the number of cattle.

Statement referred to in the reply to part (b) of question No. 203.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether it is a fact that out of Rs. 6,00,000 sanctioned for the district of Noakhali, not a single farthing has been distributed?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: No, that is not the fact. My information is that some amount has been distributed.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Is it a fact that the District Magistrate of Noakhali is not sympathetic towards giving effect to the scheme?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: No, it is not. The District Magistrate has written to me direct saying that he is advancing the loans after making enquiry as to whether the cultivators are actually purchasing the cattle.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL HAMID CHOWDHURY: With reference to answer (b), will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state on what basis the total sanctioned amount has been distributed amongst the different districts?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: On the basis of demands in the different districts. To the districts where there has been cattle epidemics, larger amounts have been allotted according to the requisition of the district officers; but to other districts where there has not been any report of such cattle epidemics, smaller amount has been allotted.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL HAMID CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether he has received any report of cattle epidemics from the district of Mymensingh?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I do not think there has been any great cattle epidemic in Mymensingh.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL HAMID CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state why the total sanctioned amount has not been distributed in Mymensingh?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Because we keep in hand some amount so that whenever there is further requisition we can meet it from the amount kept in hand.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL COFRAN: Will the Hon'ble Minister please enquire from the District Magistrate of Noakhali how much has actually been distributed to the agriculturists in the district of Noakhali?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I will do that.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state if he has any information of the minimum price of a pair of plough cattle in the district of Chittagong or Cox's Bazar?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I have no official reports; but from reports that I get from members of the Legislature I learn that it is about Rs. 150 to Rs. 200 per head.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state why in the district of Burdwan the amount allotted for distribution among the agriculturists is so very small?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The district of Burdwan was allotted an amount of Rs. 25,000. We gave Rs. 25,000 to every district whether it asked for a loan or not. Evidently the Collector of Burdwan did not ask for any loan for the purchase of cattle, but still we have allotted the sum of Rs. 25,000 to it.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Has any enquiry been made as to the demand from the people in the respective districts?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: It goes without saying that wherever there is a demand the Collector of that district would ask for a loan from Government. When there was no demand the Collector would not evidently ask for any amount by way of loan.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that there is located in Burdwan a large military force and that for the supply of their food a large number of cattle is being sold there?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I am aware of that.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: If the District Magistrate of Noakhali demanded 6 lakhs, why has he not spent that amount?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I have already answered that question. The District Magistrate wants to make sure that the money is actually spent for the purchase of cattle, and that is why he is finding it difficult to allot the loan. Without making himself sure in this respect he has not been able to grant the loans.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Did the District Magistrate of Noakhali demand 6 lakhs of rupees in the first instance?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes; I rather think that he probably wanted more than that sum.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL COFRAN: How is it possible for the District Magistrate to make sure that the money is being actually spent for the purchase of cattle?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: He has asked his Circle Officers to find out if the persons who have applied for the loan have actually settled to purchase cattle with anyone.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL COFRAN: How is it possible for anybody to settle to purchase cattle before he has actually got the money?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I think the idea of the Collector is that settlement can be made with a seller before actual purchase is made.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL COFRAN: Does the Hon'ble Minister approve of an idea like that?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I do not quite agree with the officer there.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL COFRAN: Then what step is the Hon'ble Minister going to take, if he cannot agree with the District Magistrate's idea, to enable the agriculturists to make a loan?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I have already told him that I do not quite agree with his view and that he should make sure that if any sum thus taken as loan is not utilised for the purchase of cattle, it should be refundable to him at once, and he may be given a month's or a fortnight's time for the purchase of cattle.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Since there is shortage of cattle in Noakhali, how is it possible for an agriculturist to settle the selection of the cattle and then apply to the District Magistrate for loan?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: That is what I said to the District Officer; I do not quite approve of his procedure.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to consider that the need for cattle is very urgent now and if the time is allowed to elapse in this way, the cultivators will not be able to get the benefit of this loan?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: What does the honourable member mean by the words "time allowed to be elapsed in this way" when we have made every attempt to bring cattle from other provinces and are making all efforts to help the agriculturists to get cattle?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I mean, Sir, time allowed to pass by correspondence between the Hon'ble Minister and the District Magistrate as to the way in which the advances are to be made, when we have it from the Hon'ble Minister himself that he does not agree with the method followed by the District Magistrate.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I submit that the time is not at all allowed to pass for nothing. We are trying our best to get information by telegrams and other quick means and this is only in the case of one district. Other District Magistrates have not raised any objection.

Adjournment Motion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, there is an adjournment motion standing in my name. May I read it?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Regarding this adjournment motion, I find that you base your allegations on the statement that appeared in an Associated Press message before. There is one press-note also by the Government of Bengal and one by the Regional Food Commissioner, Eastern Region. So what I suggest is—let Government make a statement clearing the position and after that if you still feel that you are not satisfied, then you can come up with your adjournment motion and I shall then examine your adjournment motion and say whether I would allow it or not. Are the Government prepared to make a statement?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Yes.

Mr. PRESIDENT: When?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I propose to take it up when Mr. Suhrawardy, who is on tour, returns—say on the 7th of July, if you like.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: We are not agreeable to this, Sir. It is a very urgent matter and it should be taken up as soon as possible.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: In that case, Sir, we may take it up tomorrow.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir—

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Hon'ble Chief Minister is prepared to take it up tomorrow. I think that is all right.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Yes, Sir.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I sent notice of a motion regarding the prorogation order—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, Mr. Mukherjee, with regard to that I may say that as it is not on the agenda you cannot discuss it today. But I may say that I have disallowed it and if you want to know the reasons, I shall let you know if you come to my Chamber.

Change in the hours of sittings.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I suggest that the time of the sitting of the Council may be changed in view of the fact that the Assembly is no longer sitting.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, I was going to suggest that we might change the time. 1-30 is not convenient to everybody. I suggest that we might sit a little later, say at 2-30 p.m. or 3.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, can't it be 4 o'clock.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, 4 o'clock would be too late. May I have the views of the party leaders on this?

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: Sir, we are agreeable to 3 o'clock.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I also suggest 3 o'clock.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Would that suit Government?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Yes, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Then we shall meet at 3 o'clock from tomorrow.

Assent to Bills by Governor.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am to inform the House that the Bengal Orphanages and Widows' Homes Bill, 1944, which was passed by both Chambers of the Legislature, has been assented to by His Excellency the Governor under the provisions of section 75 of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Communication from the Government intimating action taken on Motion under rule 112.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Secretary will now read the communication received from the Government intimating action taken by them on the Motion adopted under rule 112 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules.

SECRETARY (Dr. S. K. D. Gupta): Sir, the following communication has been received from the Government intimating the action taken by them on the motion (copy enclosed), regarding manufacture of salt in Bengal, moved in and adopted by the Council on the 12th March, 1943, under rule 112 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules:—

The Bengal Salt (Village Manufacture, Storage and Transport) Rules, 1943 (copy enclosed), issued by the Central Board of Revenue, provide all the facilities necessary for the manufacture of salt as a cottage industry in the coastal districts of Bengal and in pursuance of these rules, the schemes launched for the manufacture of salt in the cyclone-affected areas of the 24-Parganas and Midnapore districts as well as in the Chittagong district, are now being worked. Steps are also being taken for launching similar schemes throughout the coastal districts of Bengal. The Governor does not therefore consider it necessary to make any representation to the Government of India on the subject.

Ruling on the point raised in connection with the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I now propose to give my ruling on the point that arose in connection with the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

In this Bill the Provincial Legislature has been given jurisdiction over the Ruler of an Indian State in his public and official capacity. The word "person" has been defined as including the Ruler of an Indian State and the "Ruler of an Indian State" has further been defined to mean such Ruler in his public and official capacity. The words "Ruler of an Indian State" also occur in some of the operative clauses of the Bill. The result is that Rulers of Indian States have been made liable in their public and official capacity to pay certain personal taxes and in that connection duties and obligations are proposed to be imposed upon them; they have been subjected to the jurisdiction including criminal jurisdiction of courts in their public and official capacity; and, finally, the provincial officers are proposed to be invested with authority over such Rulers in their public and official capacity. These are very wide and extensive powers. Neither in the Assam, nor in the Bihar, nor even in the Central Act, has such express provision been made. I therefore thought that before the House proceeded to take the Bill into consideration it should satisfy itself about the validity of these provisions of the Bill. The Upper House is a revising body and it will be failing in its duty if it does not take sufficient precaution to ensure that a proposed piece of legislation is not palpably ultra vires. The Chair accordingly invited the views of the honourable members and requested Government to consider this question and the Chair have had the benefit of the opinions expressed by the members of the House as well as by the learned Advocate-General. I now propose to give my ruling whether the House should proceed with the Bill or not.

It should be made clear at the outset that the Chair is concerned only with the question of legislative competency and has nothing to do with the policy underlying the measure, which is entirely a matter for the House and the Government.

The Provincial Legislature derives its powers from an Act of the British Parliament. In order to examine the extent of the powers of the Provincial Legislature we must therefore first of all see what powers the Parliament possesses. The stream cannot rise above its source and the Provincial Legislature cannot therefore have any powers greater than those of the Parliament. Now it is indisputable from the principle of the sovereignty of the Parliament that the British Parliament has power to legislate with respect to the Ruler of an Indian State in any manner it thinks fit. In fact the Government of India Act, 1935, itself is an Act where such powers have been exercised. Another example is the Attachment of States Act, passed recently by the British Parliament. The Parliament can therefore if it so desires give powers to a subordinate legislature to legislate with respect to Rulers of Indian States. We are now to see whether such powers have been given to the Bengal Legislature.

The powers given to the Bengal Legislature are mainly defined in sections 99 and 100 of the Government of India Act, 1935. Section 99 says that the Provincial Legislature can make laws for the province or any part thereof. Section 100 read with the Lists in the Schedule specifies the subjects on which the Legislature can make laws. One of the subjects is agricultural income-tax.

If these were the only sections on the subject it would have been competent for the Provincial Legislature under the principle of plenary jurisdiction as enunciated in Reg. versus Burah to pass legislation imposing duties and obligations on the Rulers of Indian States in respect of agricultural income. But so far as the Indian States are concerned, sections 99 and 100 do not stand alone. They are to be read subject to section 285 of the Government of India Act, 1935, and the proviso to section 2(1) of the Act. Section 285 provides that "nothing in the Government of India Act, 1935, affects the rights and obligations of the Crown in relation to any Indian State." A right or obligation is "affected" when it is extended, altered or reduced. The section thus preserves the present rights and obligations of the Crown. The proviso to section 2(1) lays down that "any powers connected with the exercise of the functions of the Crown in its relation to Indian States shall in India if not exercised by His Majesty be exercised by the Crown Representative or his officers." The proviso thus appears to be complementary to section 285. Section 285 preserves the existing rights and obligations of the Crown in respect of the Rulers of Indian States, while the proviso to section 2(1) specifies the machinery by which the powers are to be exercised.

As regards the nature of these rights and obligations of the Crown in relation to the Indian States, there has been considerable divergence of opinion. But one thing appears to be settled. Whatever may have been the position in the past, the Indian States are not at present subjects of international law. This view appears to have been judicially recognised in the recent case of Biswanath Singh versus The Commissioner of Income-tax decided by the Allahabad High Court (1942 All. 393). Reference may also be made in this connection to notification No. 1700E., dated the 21st

August, 1891, published in the Official Gazette where it is stated that the "principles of international law have no bearing upon the relations between the Government as representing the Queen-Empress on the one hand, and Native States under the suzerainty of Her Majesty on the other. The paramount supremacy of the former presupposes and implies the subordination of the latter". But though the States have no international existence, they have not lost all attributes of sovereignty. This will be clear from the India Office certificate regarding the status of the Gaekwar of Baroda quoted in Statham versus Statham and the Gaekwar of Baroda reported in (1912) Probate 92, where it is stated "though His Highness is not thus independent, he exercises as Ruler of a State various attributes of sovereignty including internal sovereignty, which is not derived from British law but is inherent in the Ruling Chief of Baroda, subject however, to the suzerainty of His Majesty the King of England and the exercise by the Government of India of such rights and powers of territorial sovereignty as have by treaty, usage or otherwise, passed to or are exercised by the Suzerain." The position appears to be that of constitutional though not of international semi-sovereignty. It has sometimes been described as quasi-international and is probably most correctly summed up in the following words of Sir Frederick Pollock: "The relations between the Government of India and the Native States are governed by a body of conventions and usage not quite like anything else in the world but such that in cases of doubtful interpretation the analogy of international law may often be found useful and persuasive."

From the very nature of the case it is not possible to define these rights and obligations with any precision. They cannot be deduced by merely looking at the treaties, engagements and sanads; for these may be altered by subsequent sovereign acts of the Crown unless the Crown divests itself of the power by a statute—a view recently reaffirmed in the case of Sobhuza II versus Miller decided by the Privy Council and reported in (1926) A.C. 518. For modification of these treaties, engagements and sanads by subsequent sovereign acts we must refer to usage, sufferance or political practice. The language of section 132 of the last Government of India Act also supports this view. It provides that all treaties made by the East India Company in so far as they are in force at the commencement of the Act are binding on His Majesty. It is unnecessary to mention that section 285 preserves these rights.

The legal position thus appears to be this. Any provision of the Bill which contravenes any treaty, engagement or sanad as modified by usage, sufferance or political practice is to that extent invalid being repugnant to section 285 of the Government of India Act, 1935. Moreover any provision that involves the exercise of the powers in connection with the functions of the Crown in relation to Indian States is to that extent void being repugnant to the proviso to section 2(7) of the Act.

Take first the question about the imposition of an agricultural income-tax and the subsequent imposition of duties on Rulers of States. It may be safely assumed that treaties, engagements, sanads or political practice do not generally deal with this matter. If therefore the imposition is to be justified it must be based on some usage or sufferance. According to the existing practice Rulers of Indian States pay revenue and cesses; they also pay income-tax in respect of income from trading operations in India as required under the Government Trading Taxation Act, 1926. Government have contended that the usage regarding the payment of revenue and cesses can be interpreted as indicating that lands owned in British India by Rulers of Indian States are to be treated as mere zamindaries. They have further suggested that by paying income-tax in respect of income from trading operations in India the Rulers have undertaken to pay all kinds of income-tax on their properties in India even if they are not private properties but public properties of the State. But there is another aspect of the matter. Revenue and cess are land taxes, whereas agricultural income-tax is a personal tax, though assessed with reference to land. Taxes on income from trading operations have nothing to do with land. It is therefore possible to take a different view and to hold that there is no true analogy, and that no usage is implied, as suggested by Government. Further, it would be possible to say that the Government Trading Taxation Act, 1926, is really not a good precedent for a Bill of this nature, for before that enactment was passed, a Resolution of the Imperial Conference was deemed necessary and therefore the jurisdiction of the Legislature arose there from engagement or by sufferance.

There is another point which is open to doubt. The tax is imposed on Rulers of Indian States in their public and official capacity. It is thus a State liability. A question therefore arises whether this power to impose the tax should not be exercised through the Crown Representative as envisaged in the proviso to section 2(1) of the Government of India Act, 1935. In the case of Biswanath Singh versus Commissioner of Income-tax already cited, it was held that the private property of the Ruler of Benares was liable to income-tax. But it will be seen that in the present Bill the tax is being imposed on the Ruler in his public and official capacity. The case has therefore no application.

I now come to the point about the assumption of jurisdiction (including criminal jurisdiction) by Provincial courts over the Rulers of Indian States. So far as International Law is concerned the rule is that a foreign sovereign is exempt from every kind of criminal jurisdiction. As regards civil jurisdiction too, he is exempt except when he is a plaintiff and except that in some countries such exemption has been taken away in special cases. In France and Italy, for instance, he is liable for obligations incurred in private capacity. In the case of Statham versus Statham and the Gaekwar of Baroda already mentioned, the English courts held that the rule of International Law applied to Rulers of Indian States exactly as in the case of an independent sovereign. Indian law also appears to make no distinction in this respect between Rulers of Indian States and independent sovereigns. Here I should draw the attention of the House to an important point which appears to have been completely overlooked. It was assumed during the debates that the immunity granted under International Law to foreign princes was taken away in the case of Rulers of Indian States under section 86 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908. But it will be seen on looking at that section that it applies equally to Rulers of Indian States as to independent sovereigns. Besides, the section does not take away immunity but rather confers immunity except in specified cases as will appear on looking into sub-section (2) and other sub-sections of the section. The Indian law is silent as regards criminal jurisdiction in the case of Rulers of Indian States as well as independent sovereigns. The inference therefore is that they are to be treated on an equal footing in this matter. I think thus that there is good ground for thinking that the present usage is that the Ruler of an Indian State is immune from all criminal jurisdiction and he is further immune from civil jurisdiction except as specified in section 86, Civil Procedure Code. I therefore feel inclined to hold that the clauses of the Bill which make the Ruler criminally liable are not free from objection and that the clauses which require civil proceedings to be taken against him can only be operative when the procedure laid down in the Civil Procedure Code is followed. I may add here that under the Government Trading Taxation Act, 1926, a State is treated as a company and hence the difficulties mentioned do not arise. In fact this provision did not occur in the Bill as originally introduced but was inserted by an amendment brought at the instance of Sir Basil Blackett, the Finance Member, for facilitating the working of the Act.

It was contended that the fact that certain individuals may be immune from criminal jurisdiction of courts is no ground for holding the relevant provisions of the Bill to be ultra vires. I am afraid the matter is not so simple as it may appear at first sight. In the Bill, by virtue of the definition of the word "person", a Ruler would be expressly brought within the jurisdiction of courts. The Bill therefore tries expressly to confer powers on courts which it is doubtful whether they can be empowered to assume, having regard to section 285 of the Government of India Act, 1935. It therefore seems to me that to this extent the provisions of the Bill are of doubtful validity.

I now come to the last point, namely, whether the provisions of the Bill empowering provincial officers to exercise authority over the Rulers of Indian States are valid. With regard to this question, certain changes made in section 86 of the Civil Procedure Code are very pertinent. In this section as it stood before, the Ruler of an Indian State could, like any other foreign sovereign or envoy, be sued in the cases specified, with the consent of the Governor-General in Council or his officers. In the section as it now stands revised under the Adaptation Order in Council made under section 293 of the Government of India Act, 1935, the consent has to be obtained in respect of an Indian Ruler from the Crown Representative or his officers, and in respect of others from the Governor-General in Council or his officers. The alteration was presumably made to conform to the proviso to section 2(1) of the Government of India Act, 1935. The view taken thus appears to be that even such a simple matter as the giving of permission to sue is a function of the Crown in relation to Indian States. I think, therefore, that there is serious ground for thinking that the wide executive powers given under the Bill should be exercised by officers of the Crown Representative and not by officers of the Provincial Government.

I am thus of opinion that there are grave doubts about the validity of some of the provisions of the Bill. I do not, however, deny that there is room for divergence of opinion. It is not the duty of the Chair to arrogate to itself the functions of a Court, and I do not think it will be correct for me to stop this Bill by a ruling of mine unless it is indisputably clear to me that it is ultra vires. In the circumstances, I rule that the Bill may be proceeded with.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House will now take up discussion on the clauses of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Mr. President, with your permission, I would like to make a somewhat unusual submission to this House. Government have decided not to move in this House the amendments to some of the clauses of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill of which notices had been given on their behalf and which are on the printed list.

I wish to make it clear that no disrespect to this House is intended by the course we have proposed to adopt. I have, as a matter of conviction, a high regard for the Second Chamber, which, by its composition and traditions, discharges a very important and salutary function in Parliamentary Government. From a personal point of view, I am able to acknowledge with gratitude the friendly reception which I have received in this House ever since, by reason of the office which I hold, it became my duty and my privilege to be present at and participate in the deliberations of this House.

As honourable members are aware, the Assembly is no longer in session. Any amendments to the Bill as settled by the Assembly would have to be referred to that body before the Bill could become law. There is a very strong reason for expediting the passage of this Bill into law.

It is no longer a secret that the Bill is closely bound up with the question of subventions from the Centre. And it is extremely desirable that the Bill should become law and come into force without much delay. The Assam Agricultural Income-tax Bill of 1939 received the Governor's assent on the 18th of August, 1939; and it was found in Assam that owing to this delay there were difficulties in the administration of the Act in the first year of its operation, namely, 1939. The machinery for the administration of the Act has to be set up; people have to be trained and many formalities will have to be gone through. I, therefore, beseech the honourable members to co-operate with me on my assurance that an amending Bill will, without unnecessary delay, be introduced by Government to cure any defects that there may be in the drafting of the Bill as it has emerged from the Assembly.

I realise that there are several obvious mistakes, mainly grammatical. There are mistakes of punctuation. It had been our hope that the Assembly Department would have seen to it that these did not occur in the amended Bill for the publication of which that department was responsible. I have examined these mistakes carefully and, on the advice of experts, I am satisfied that the administration of the Act will not be hampered by reason of these obvious mistakes.

The discussions on the amendments in this House may reveal a large measure of agreement on the desirability of certain amendments. I shall certainly take note of these for the purpose of preparing the proposed amending Bill. Further, certain other desirable amendments may suggest themselves during the first few months of the administration of the Act.

Delay in the passing of this Bill will not jeopardise the subsistence of the present Ministry. It will just weaken our efforts to obtain from the Government of India that measure of financial assistance to which we feel the Province is entitled. We have been promised ten crores of rupees. That, as honourable members will agree, is not nearly enough. And I have no reason to consider the chapter of negotiations for an adequate subvention as closed. Bengal's claim is just. The impact of the war has been very uneven on the different provinces of India. But in order to be able to enforce our claim we must make our position morally and economically unimpeachable by the practice of self-help.

We want large sums of money for various projects of rehabilitation, some of which have already been actively taken in hand. It is true that I took care—as, indeed, it was proper—not to include any conjectural figure representing agricultural income-tax receipts in my Budget for the current year. But whatever the yield of this tax—however small it may be, compared to our needs—it is a necessary measure of self-help. In fact, the imposition of a tax on agricultural incomes is, according to most economists and publicists, long over due. I am afraid there is ultimately no escape from it. Meanwhile, let us not, by avoidable delay, jeopardise our claim to a larger subvention from the Centre. We must, at this hour of our need, stand well with the Centre and deserve what we desire.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I rise on a point of privilege. I would submit to you, Sir, that the procedure which has just been suggested by the Government is unprecedented in the annals of parliamentary history anywhere in the world. I submit, Sir, that it is the duty and the prerogative of every Second Chamber to exercise a revising function over legislation which comes through the other place. Sir, today, by a definite statement made on behalf of the Government, we have been told that the Government not only do not want to move the amendments which they themselves had felt it necessary to move but they have made it clear that they do not want that any amendment should be moved. They want that this Bill should emerge from this Chamber without any change whatsoever and in the form in which it came out of the other Chamber. In other words, Sir, the Government are giving a plain direction to their party-members that they do not want any impartial and judicial consideration of the Bill or any of its clauses on merits. Simply by virtue of the majority which the Government enjoy, they want to ride roughshod over the rights of the members to suggest amendments, and to make corrections which are admitted even by the Government as necessary. You will notice, Sir, that the Hon'ble Finance Minister who has made the statement admitted that there are obvious mistakes in the Bill. There are mistakes of punctuation, there are mistakes in the arrangement of the clauses, titles have been misplaced and transferred from one chapter to another and besides, there are other technical mistakes in the Bill which it is the duty of this House to take into consideration. I am deliberately not referring to the very serious defects in this Bill to which you, Sir, have drawn attention. As you have pointed out it is certainly not the duty of the Chair to take on the functions of a court of law, but it is certainly—as you have rightly done,—the prerogative of the Chair to point out the obvious mistakes which might vitiate the law altogether, not only technical matters regarding punctuation and so on, but very serious constitutional matters which might imperil the very validity of the law. Even in such a case, Sir, we are asked by Government to pass the Bill through without any change, because otherwise it would entail the summoning of another House and we know that they are afraid to face the Chamber in another place. We know that they are not prepared to face the public opinion of Bengal today. We know that in another place they have lost their majority and because they have lost their majority, they have taken recourse to this subterfuge to try to hurry this Bill through in this House. But this I submit, Sir, is to encroach on the rights of this House. This is an instance of the new despotism to which attention was drawn by Lord Hewart, a Lord Chief Justice of England in his book, "New Despotism". This newest type of despotism is the tyranny of the Executive encroaching upon the preserves of the Legislature, when the functions of the Legislature are usurped by the Executive. The plea that at some unspecified date in the future the Government will bring up an amending Bill while the existing Bill, full of glaring and patent mistakes, must be passed as it is, is hardly an intelligent plea. By assurance and half-promises like these the Ministry is trying to usurp the functions of the Legislature. I would, therefore, ask you, Sir, to refer the statement of the Hon'ble Finance Minister to the Privilege Committee of this House. Let us decide once for all whether the Government can lay down that no amendment should be made to the Bill, that they do not want to consider the Bill and the amendments on their merits. The only reason advanced for this extraordinary request is that if any amendments are carried, however necessary they may be, however desirable and imperative they may be on account of the legal and other defects of the draft Bill, it would entail the Bill going to another place. This is certainly an encroachment upon the privileges of the House. I would submit that before we proceed further with the consideration of the Bill this matter should be examined by the Privilege Committee of this House. Government might have so managed their affairs, Government might have so manipulated their majority that they could have defeated even desirable amendments on the floor of the House. But that is one thing. Restriction on the exercise of free discussion and voting and a declaration to that effect is quite another matter. To shepherd a measure through the House in this way constitutes an infringement of the rights of the legislature which is unprecedented. Therefore, I move that the matter may be referred to the Privilege Committee of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Do you want my ruling on this point?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: May I speak on this point, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, but I hope you will be brief.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Yes, Sir, I will be brief and will not repeat what Mr. Kabir has said. In rising to support the proposal of Mr. Kabir I would like to state one fact which is evident from the statement of the Hon'ble Finance Minister. His statement seems to be an extraordinary one and I do not know whether there is such a precedent in Bengal ever since the commencement of the life of the Legislature. I do not think such a procedure was ever proposed or that any Hon'ble Minister proposing to move a Bill in a particular House ever asserted in the face of such a consolidated list of amendments,—which are as many as 497—that he wanted that the Bill should come out from that House as it had emanated from another House without a single change of comma, or even semi-colon, or any other change which might necessitate the Bill having to go back to the originating Chamber.

Now, Sir, there is one aspect of the matter which has been lost sight of and which I want to impress upon the honourable members of this House. I submit that it is a direct insult to the intelligence of the members of this House who have tabled as many as 497 amendments, to ask them not to move any amendments and not to have any discussion so far as these amendments are concerned. It is astonishing to us all to find a request from a man of the position of the Finance Minister that the Bill be passed as it stands without moving any amendment, and without even putting the commas and semi-colons which the Hon'ble Minister himself admits are not properly placed in the Bill, in order that he might not have to face the hot Chamber of the Assembly. I submit, Sir, that the Hon'ble Finance Minister has lost sight of this aspect of the matter. What he thinks is that the honourable members of this House—I find among them many supporters of Government and many who are opposing the Government and there are also many who are independent members—may accede to his request. But he himself has admitted that the Bill has got defects and he proposes that with the co-operation of the members of this House he would bring in an amending Bill afterwards so that the defects which he himself admits are existing in this Bill, might be removed. I do not know if ever such an extraordinary request was made before in this House. The Hon'ble Finance Minister has not possibly realised the seriousness of the situation. You are going to place a Bill permanently on the Statute Book and it is to go out to the world at large as a piece of legislation passed by the honourable members of the Bengal Legislative Assembly and the Bengal Legislative Council consisting of members drawn from all parts of the province. You admit that the Bill is defective, you admit that there are provisions which require consideration. Just now we have got a ruling from the Chair saying that there are serious defects in certain provisions of the Bill with regard to the Rulers of the Indian States and with regard to the enforcement of the provisions themselves. With all these defects the Hon'ble Finance Minister makes a request to the members of this House—please push it through without any change—and it is really a mandate to the members supporting the Government, and a request to the members of the Opposition and independent members—shutting your eyes to the defects, shutting your eyes to all that is there so that he might not have to go to the hot Chamber of the Assembly which he cannot face. But, Sir, there is one thing which the Hon'ble Finance Minister noted and I am glad that he has noted it. He has noted the necessity of the relief and rehabilitation of the destitutes. I am glad that the Hon'ble Finance Minister has referred to this matter in his statement. We know, Sir, that the Relief and Rehabilitation Bill was passed by this House and it was suggested at the time that it was an emergent measure and should be passed immediately so that it might be put into operation before the Ordinance already passed with regard to this matter expired. The Bill was passed by this House. I remember, Sir, that Mr. Clarke, member of the European Party, suggested at that time that there should not be any delay in passing the Bill because the Ordinance was going to expire. Recognising all these, the Bill was passed by this House and then it went to the Lower House for consideration. When the consideration motion came up before the Lower House, the Hon'ble the Finance Minister at the time of moving the Bill fled away and the Bill was not moved at all. I submit the Bill has not yet been passed and in spite of all these things the Hon'ble Ministers advised His Excellency the Governor that there was no business for the Legislative Assembly and so it was prorogued--

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, you need not refer to the proceedings of the other House. You better confine your observations to the point of privilege.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I am not referring to the proceedings of the other House. I am only saying that the Hon'ble the Finance Minister wants that this Bill should be passed in the shape and form in which it now stands; that there should not be any delay because he has got to take steps for the relief and rehabilitation of the destitutes. I say that he had induced the members of this House to pass the Bill hurriedly and we complied with his request, allowed the Bill to be passed but he has left the Bill in the lurch. Therefore, I say that the request the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has made that we should pass this Bill in the shape in which it stands at present is a request which ought to be placed before the Privilege Committee for the purpose of considering whether the request is in order or whether it is a request which is practically a mandate, as has been described by Mr. Kabir, to the supporters of Government that they should not support any amendments good, bad or indifferent. As a matter of fact, some of the amendments are very necessary and in spite of that the honourable members supporting Government have been asked to give their votes in favour of Government.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, on a matter of personal explanation. What I said is: that Government amendments will not be moved and there was, of course, a request that perhaps it would be wiser for us to pass the Bill as it is in spite of the minor defects, simply because it is bound up very closely with the question of subventions from the Centre. My object was far from insulting this House for which I have a very high respect. I hope my submission was couched in a language which could not possibly give any offence.

Mr. PRESIDENT: We have been discussing the point of privilege raised by Mr. Humayun Kabir. I tried to understand how the privilege of the House had been infringed. Government have made certain suggestions and requests and indicated the line of action which Government propose to follow with regard to the amendments of which they themselves had given notice. Now, whether the suggestions were reasonable or proper, it is not for the Chair to make any observation on that point. Government are no doubt free to decide whether they would move the amendments or not.

As regards the party arrangements in the House itself, the members are not bound to follow Party decisions. So the decision of the Party does not take away their privilege. The members can exercise their right of vote in any way they like, whatever the suggestions may be or whatever the advice may be. They are expected to act according to what they themselves feel to be in the best interest of their constituencies or according to their sense of public duty. The Chair feels that no privilege of the House has been infringed and the question of sending the matter to the Privilege Committee does not therefore arise.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, there is one matter on which I would like to say a few words. Having regard to your ruling and having regard to the statement of the Hon'ble Finance Minister that the Government amendments are not going to be moved, would it not be proper for you, Sir, to give us time to place further amendments?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I think the difficulty may be obviated if Government amendments are allowed to be moved by the members of this side, if necessary.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I was going to suggest that if any particular member attaches very great importance to a particular Government amendment, he might be allowed to move it as his own.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, there are serious amendments which are not merely confined to the removal of a comma. Therefore, they should not be ignored.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Nobody ignores them, Khan Bahadur Sahib.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL HAMID CHOWDHURY: Sir, the usual practice and convention of this House is that no other member except the honourable member who gives notice of an amendment is entitled to move it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I know that. But in the special circumstances of the case, I am allowing this procedure. As it is the general desire that we proceed with the Bill without further loss of time, the Chair relaxes these rules and allows the non-official members to move the Government amendments as their own.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, will it be necessary for us to send formal notices of these amendments, or will it be enough if we get up on the floor of the House and move the amendments?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, it will be enough if you get up on the floor of the House and move the amendments.

Clause 1.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 1 stands part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, it is my misfortune to be the first offender against the unusual request which the Hon'ble Finance Minister has made. I believe I shall also be the last offender in this respect, for the last amendment in the list also stands in my name.

Sir, I beg to move that after the Preamble to the Bill, the word and Roman figure "CHAPTER I" be inserted.

Sir, the Bill has been divided into chapters. In an overwhelmingly large number of Acts, both Central and Provincial, as well as in many English Statutes, clauses 1 and 2 have been given the dignity of an independent chapter. It is only in rare cases that they have been relegated to a subordinate position. I do not see any reason why we should not follow the precedent of the majority of the Statutes in this respect. I hope that clauses 1 and 2 would be given the dignity of an independent chapter and be marked as Chapter 1.

With these few words, I hope that the House will accept it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that after the Preamble to the Bill, the word and Roman figure "CHAPTER I" be inserted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I wish to point out that in very important Acts like the Criminal Procedure Code, Act X of 1922, and in other Acts which this Legislature itself has passed in this Chamber, the arrangement is that there is a section called Preliminary and Chapters come afterwards. Therefore, I do not think that it is any very unusual procedure that we have adopted. There may be two opinions on this subject: but as very important Acts contain this arrangement, as I have already mentioned, I have followed the same procedure in respect of this measure. So I oppose the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, before deciding to move this amendment, I have carefully consulted—

Mr. PRESIDENT: You have no right of reply, Khan Bahadur Sahib. The question before the House is: That after the Preamble to the Bill, the word and Roman figure "CHAPTER I" be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that before clause 1 of the Bill, the word "Preliminary" shall be inserted as the heading of clauses 1 and 2.

Sir, this is a very important amendment. It is calculated to cure a serious blunder in legislative drafting. The House will please consider the Preamble. It will be found that the word "Preliminary", which should really be a heading to clauses 1 and 2, and which is invariable in all Acts has, somehow or other, been allowed to trespass into the precincts of the Preamble. The effect of this amendment and other connected amendments relating to the Preamble, would be that the word "Preliminary", which finds an unauthorised place within the ambit of the Preamble, would be banished and expelled from the Preamble and be relegated to its proper position as a heading to clauses 1 and 2. This is the first of a series of amendments in this connection. I have examined over 500 existing Acts and many dead Acts too, but in none of them the word "Preliminary" is to be found in the texture of the Preamble. Sir, this mistake has a very interesting history. The Bill clause, as it was published in the Calcutta Gazette, was slightly different. The unauthorised presence of the word "Preliminary" inside the Preamble was detected, I believe, at the Select Committee stage and though the mistake was noticed, still nothing much was done to cure it. All that was done was that after the first portion of the Preamble, for the comma a full stop was substituted. The effect of it was that the Preamble is now divided into three incomplete sentences—one incomplete sentence before the word "Preliminary", then the word "Preliminary" itself as a complete sentence of one word and then another incomplete sentence, namely, "It is hereby enacted as follows." As a matter of fact, a Preamble always consists of one sentence only. It is never divided into independent incomplete sentences and the interposition of the full stop after the first part of the Preamble has no parallel in any Statute in India. I submit that the first part of the Preamble should end with a semi-colon or a colon; and the word "Preliminary" should be removed and placed below the words "It is hereby enacted as follows;—" As it stands, it is a serious blunder and we cannot be expected to agree to it. If the matter is left as it is, the effect would be disastrous. With these words, I submit that the amendment should be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that before clause 1 of the Bill, the word "Preliminary" shall be inserted as the heading of clauses 1 and 2.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. If we look to the arrangement of the chapters, we find that Chapter I begins with clause 3. What the Khan Bahadur suggests is that the word "Preliminary" should be before clauses 1 and 2. What we find here is: Preliminary—it is hereby enacted as below . . . and then clauses 1 and 2 and then one chapter follows another. That would not be in order. For putting the word "Preliminary" before "It is hereby enacted as below" is putting the cart before the horse. Therefore, I submit that the amendment moved by my friend is so just that Government should not hesitate to accept it.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Mr. President, Sir, I rise to support this amendment but not from a legal point of view: Many legal precedents have been cited by my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad, the mover. As you will remember, Sir, we have sometimes in this House delegated to him functions of draftmanship and references to books of law. I look at the question from a plain commonsense point of view. I feel, like the Khan Bahadur, that the Preamble does not make any sense when the word "Preliminary" stands midway. That is not the point to which I would draw your special attention. What I would draw your attention to is that certainly the clause "It is hereby enacted as follows" covers the whole Bill. This clause is not a "Preliminary" portion of the Bill. It cannot be regarded as belonging to any part or portion of the Bill. On the contrary, after the preamble states the reasons for promulgation of the Bill, the Legislature declares "It is hereby enacted as follows". The titles of chapters are to be divided according to the subject-matter of the different clauses. Therefore, inclusion of the word "Preliminary" here jars, not only against legal precedents, as suggested by the Khan Bahadur, but also against commonsense. Not merely that. I do not quite understand it and I would ask the Hon'ble Finance Minister who has a far greater acquaintance with legal language than myself, I would ask him what precisely is the force of the word "Preliminary" here. What would be the effect if the enactment clause is regarded as the preliminary portion of the Bill. The governing clause I take it is: "It is hereby enacted as follows" and this is the fundamental clause of the whole Bill. That is not a part of a particular section, that is not a section of any particular chapter. To compare small things to great, this clause is to the Bill what the sentence "God said let there be light and there was light" is to the rest of the Bible. The words "It is hereby enacted as follows" are in the position of this first statement of the Bible. It is the genesis of the whole Bill and if there is something wrong in the genesis, its consequences are going to be very wrong indeed. If the Hon'ble Finance Minister can satisfy me on this point, I assure him that I will certainly withdraw my support from the amendment of my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad.

On the other hand, if he himself feels that he has no satisfactory explanation, or that he cannot satisfy any one of us, he should accept the amendment.

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, in rising to support the amendment which has been moved by my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad, I would like to quote the words which the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has said in opposing the first amendment moved by the Khan Bahadur. In support of his opposition to the first amendment of the Khan Bahadur the Hon'ble the Finance Minister quoted the authority of the Civil Procedure Code and contended that the word "Chapter I" need not be incorporated as proposed in the first amendment but that "Chapter I" of the Bill as placed here is in proper place. If we now examine, having regard to the statement of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister, what is enacted, if the preliminary portion is left out of the enactment, the Bill will read as follows: "Whereas it is necessary to make an addition to the revenues of Bengal and for that purpose to impose a tax on agricultural income derived from land situated in Bengal" then comes the word "Preliminary" and then "It is hereby enacted as follows". He has left out the word "Preliminary" which should go first.

As regards the second observation, I want to say that it is well known that the heading of a Bill and the Preamble of a Bill have got to be taken into consideration together and then the other provisions will come. If this is done, we will find that the words "It is hereby enacted as follows" should be part of the Preamble and should not be detached from it. Therefore, I submit that the word "Preliminary" has been misplaced and it ought to be placed in its proper place so that the Bill may come out in a perfect form and not in the form in which it now stands. I know, Sir, that the Hon'ble the Finance Minister will not accept our amendments having regard to the statement he has made this afternoon, but we consider it our duty to point out these glaring mistakes so that it might not be stated afterwards that we overlooked these things and allowed the defects to remain in the Bill.

With these words, I support the amendment.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL COFRAN: Sir, I rise to oppose this amendment on the ground that it is useless. In its present place, the meaning of the word "Preliminary" is quite clear. So we should not waste a good deal of our time over this amendment. If the word "Preliminary" is brought down to a place before clause 1, in that case also there will be no difference in meaning. I, therefore, think it is absolutely useless for us to waste our time and energy over an amendment like this.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, on a point of information. My honourable friend, the last speaker, happens to be a great lawyer and is also as old as myself. Can he tell us whether during the whole career of his useful life he has come across such a blunder?

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Sir, Mr. Humayun Kabir is an author and he publishes his books. I think he will bear me out if I say that he also does not think that the word "Preliminary" loses its meaning if it is not placed properly.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA DATTA: Sir, I presume that when a Bill emerges from this House, the public will take it that the members of the Bengal Legislative Council must have been very careful in going through it. Therefore, if these glaring mistakes are not remedied by the Government, not only would they look small but we also will look small as we have some stakes somewhere. If the word "Preliminary" is to have some sense, it must be placed before clause 1, as suggested by my honourable friend the mover of this amendment. With these few words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I shall not endeavour to convince the honourable members opposite. Of course, it would be much better if the word "Preliminary" could have been transferred to a place lower down; but for reasons of expediency it is not possible, and therefore I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that before clause 1 of the Bill, the word "Preliminary" shall be inserted as the heading of clauses 1 and 2.

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. For the amendment—14, against the amendment—26. The amendment is, therefore, negatived.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 1 of the Bill, after the word "Bengal", the words "excluding the temporary re-settlement estates of Sundarban in the districts of Bakarganj, Khulna and 24-Parganas" be added.

Sir, in moving this amendment I beg to remind the members of this House and the Hon'ble the Finance Minister, the mover of the Bill, the history of the land revenue settlement of the Sundarban estates. The Sundarban estates are not permanently settled; their rent is revised periodically. The landlords are given only a small percentage of the profits according to the collection made by them at the time when the rent is revised. The last re-settlement was made very recently when the revenue payable by the landlords was enhanced considerably and their position now is very precarious. They are hardly able to deposit the Government revenue in time. In the report of the Flood Commission, I would speak subject to correction, there is no suggestion for acquiring these Sundarban estates. As a matter of fact, so far as Sundarban is concerned, Government is really in the position of landlords and it would be a great hardship if upon the small profit which the landlords were allowed when the rent was revised last, an encroachment is now to be made in the shape of this tax. Any one acquainted with the history of the Sundarban estates would realise that these estates had been developed substantially with the money invested by the landlords and during a long period of time the landlords enjoyed little or no profit. The risk which they had undergone in investing large sums of money for the improvement of the Sundarban estates was very great, but they were greatly disappointed when the last settlement took place, and the revenue was revised and enhanced considerably. Sir, I would impress upon the Hon'ble the Finance Minister and members of this House that it would be really a double taxation, a hardship from which the landlords of the Sundarban estates and entitled to be exempted in accordance with the principle already recognised by the Government in connection with the assessment of tea companies and the principle recognised in the English Finance Act. I mean the provision relating to Income-tax in the English Finance Act. It is nothing but a further taxation on the profit which the Sundarban landlords are entitled to enjoy in accordance with the assurance given by the Government at the time when the rent was revised last.

I would remind the honourable members and the Hon'ble the Finance Minister specially of the discussion and the negotiation that took place during the time when the re-settlement of the Sundarban estates was made last: I mean, the dissatisfaction that prevailed among the Sundarban landlords at the time; the offer made by Sir Provash Chandra Mitter, who was then the Revenue Minister, and the terms arrived at at the time. There can be absolutely no analogy between these Sundarban landlords and the other permanently-settled estates in Bengal. There is no question here of a very large profit being intercepted from the collections made by the landlords from their tenants.

As a matter of fact, looking to the history of the Sundarban Settlement, we find that the term Sundarban is commonly used with reference to all the deltaic lands in the districts of 24-Parganas, Khulna and Bakarganj. This tract was not the subject-matter of the Permanent Settlement in Bengal. Regulation 9 of 1816 was passed by the Governor-in-Council on the 26th of April, 1816, making provisions for the appointment of Commissioners of revenue for the area. The provisions of clause 3, section 2, of Regulation 9 of 1825 are with regard to the assessment of revenue for the Sundarban. Literally "Sundarban" means Sundari forest tracts and was once the favourite home of Royal Bengal tigers. There is still a large area there lying unreclaimed being preserved as reserved forest. It may be mentioned at this stage that the maintenance of reserved forest is essentially necessary in order to ensure the lands being benefited with rain water. As a matter of fact, there is a great cry now for afforestation. Expert opinion has now established that forest lands should not be reclaimed and converted into cultivable lands. When Government proposed to settle a portion of Sundarban lands, people did not come forward in large numbers for taking settlement. It was found that the area sought to be settled was below the sea level and in order to be of any use had to be protected by very high and strong embankments to keep away the salt water. Many capitalists were ruined in their ventures. It was found that it was very difficult to protect the embankments as frequent breaches resulted in the embankments unless a very strict watch over the same was kept throughout. When the original revenue was assessed for the Sundarban area, the rent was low, considering all the facts as stated above. After the settlement-holders succeeded at a very great cost to improve the lands, settled tenants on the same and began to earn a good profit from the same, the temporary period having expired, Government proposed to re-assess the rent. As a matter of fact, rent was assessed, in some cases, one thousand times more than the pre-existing rent. It was only when Sir P. C. Mitter, the then Revenue Minister, intervened that the rent was reduced. So far as these lands are concerned, out of gross assets they are to pay 50 per cent. as Government revenue, 20 per cent. for maintenance of embankments and about 18 per cent. as establishment cost. The proprietors' share of cess, rates and taxes come to about $1\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. Public works of utility and construction of tube-wells and tanks, etc., $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.; this leaves a balance of only about 8 per cent. as profit for the leaseholder. It is this 8 per cent. profit again which is going to be taxed under the present Bill.

Now, Sir, when I was speaking on the question of double taxation and was referring to the history of land revenue assessment in Bengal, I referred to paragraph 15 of the Majority Report of the Floud Commission. My statement that the land revenue had been described therein as a tax, evoked a strong protest in the House and it was said that I was drawing a wrong analogy. That I was not drawing a wrong analogy would be clear if we look to the history of land taxation not only in India but in Britain as well. What is the fundamental principle on which taxation is imposed on the subject? The fundamental principle is that the State must have funds to fulfil its ever-increasing functions of governing the people. For that purpose it is necessary that every one earning an income whether from service or from land or by business should contribute a portion of the income to the Government of the country to enable the Government to carry on the administration. Now, so far as land is concerned, it is very difficult to ascertain who was the owner of the land. I am not going to refer to the controversial point whether the State is the owner of land or the landlord or the tiller of the soil; but whatever may be the position with regard to the ownership, there was no question that a certain portion of income from the land is due to the Government. When the Permanent Settlement was made, this tax was taken into account and it will be found if honourable members of this House care to read the Floud Commission Report that at its inception the landlords were allowed only a profit of 10 per cent. the total profit being, as against a revenue of 241 lakhs, a sum of 23 lakhs at the time of Permanent Settlement. Subsequently, the landlords found great difficulty in depositing the revenues and many estates were sold for arrears of revenue and if we look really to the history on this subject, we will find that the present proprietors are mostly purchasers and not original settlement-holders from Government. The number of original settlement-holders can be counted at finger ends. Again we will find that the original settlement-holders could not retain a large portion of their estates on account of the very heavy assessment of revenue and non-realisation of rent from the tenants. Now, so far as the permanently-settled tracts are concerned, it may be said that they have been deriving an inflated income at the present moment and as the revenue is fixed once for all, the State has been deprived of its share of the income which it is entitled to get from the produce of the land. Now, Sir, here we have to pause for a moment and carefully consider the situation. As I stated before so far as the Sundarban tracts are concerned, the revenue was settled very recently leaving the present landlords a very small percentage of profit. If you want to tax again this profit, would it not really amount to double taxation? I would like the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to note particularly this part of my argument that it is out of the profit of 8 per cent. that the tax is being levied. Government is not going to tax or realise any portion of the expenses.

Let us now take the case of the tea growers. I am glad that my colleagues of the European Group have now returned to the House and are going to hear what I suggest with regard to the assessment of the tea companies. It is said that they have to pay certain amount of tax to the Central Government under the Indian Income-tax Act; that they have to pay again a heavy assessment under the United Kingdom Finance Act. It is therefore reasonable and equitable that they should be relieved from paying tax again on the income on which they have paid once before to the United Kingdom. I would submit, Sir, that on the argument which is applied to the case of the Sundarban settlement-holders, these tea growers would be only taxed on the net profits which they derive after paying all outgoings including the taxes payable to the Central Government and to the United Kingdom and the Bengal Government will only claim taxes on the portion of the income left after making these allowances. As a matter of fact, we know that so far as the United Kingdom tax is concerned, an assessee is entitled to allowances which have not been provided for in our Bill and I would test the sense of justice of the members of the European Group of this House and members supporting the Government when I move my amendments regarding the same. But at present I am on the question of excluding Sundarbans. I say, Sir, that having regard to what I have narrated above, exclude Sundarbans altogether or if it is considered essential that the Sundarban proprietors should be taxed as well, give them the same relief which you are giving to the Europeans on the plea of double taxation. I submit that in moving my amendment I am only putting my European colleagues in this House to test. If they want that they should be relieved from the payment of this tax as they have already paid it in the United Kingdom, then so far as the Sundarbans settlement-holders are concerned they too are entitled to say that they should be placed under the same position and be given relief to which they are entitled on provisions similar to what you are going to apply in the cases of the owners of the tea gardens. With these words, I place my amendment before the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 1 of the Bill, after the word "Bengal", the words "excluding the temporary re-settlement states of Sundarban in the district of Bakarganj, Khulna and 24-Parganas" be added.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I rise to support the amendment of my friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee. So far as the re-settlement of the estates of the Sundarbans, in the districts of Bakarganj, Khulna and 24-Parganas are concerned, we understand that the settlement-holders get an actual income of 8 per cent. only and every other thing goes to the coffers of Government. It is such a low margin that no further income-tax should be imposed on these estates.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I feel no embarrassment in opposing the amendment. If honourable members will kindly refer to clauses 6 and 7 of the Bill, they will find that in the matter of reduction of the income-tax of the Sundarbans landlords, their difficulties have been taken into consideration and there is no need for taking any further discriminatory step in their favour. In computing their net income for the assessment of this tax, deductions have been allowed to these Sundarbans landlords in view of their peculiar position. It will further be found that under other provisions of the Bill, namely, under Embankment, sufficient consideration has been paid to the case of these landlords. In view of this, I do not think Government can do anything more.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 1 of the Bill, after the word "Bengal" the words "excluding the temporary re-settlement estates of Sundarban in the districts of Bakarganj, Khulna and 24-Parganas" be added.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I beg to move: that for sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following be substituted, namely:—

"It shall come into force on such date as may be notified in the Official Gazette, not being earlier than three months from the date of publication of the assent of His Excellency the Governor or the Governor-General as the case may be and shall remain in force till the 31st day of March following."

I have no doubt you will bear me out, Sir, that in the British constitutional procedure whenever a tax is imposed, the average tax-payer is given a period of time during which to adjust himself to the new imposition. It is only here that we find that very often taxes are sprung upon the poor rate-payers almost as a surprise and without giving them any opportunity whatsoever of adjusting themselves to the new financial position accordingly. I would submit that the position in this country all the more demands—

Mr. PRESIDENT: The time is up. Mr. Kabir may continue his speech tomorrow. I now adjourn the House till 3 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 3 p.m. on Wednesday, the 5th July, 1944.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what policy is followed by the Government in the matter of withdrawing bans in such cases?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: When applications are made for such withdrawal, they are considered on their merits and if Government find that there is no further necessity for the ban they withdraw it; otherwise the ban is kept on.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Who are the authorities to examine these books?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The Home Department.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: We find that in the case of books like "Pathar Dabi" the ban has been withdrawn, then why the ban on these books have not been withdrawn?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have nothing further to add.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether he has read these books?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Have those gentlemen who are responsible for the banning of these books read the books?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: These books were banned before this Government assumed office.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that a similar answer was given by the Hon'ble Minister himself in a different Cabinet about 3 or 4 years ago?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I do not remember it.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: If I refresh his memory and remind him that the matter was under consideration by him about 4 years ago, will he be prepared to look into the old files?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Well, I may look into the files.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Arising out of answer (b), when the matter is still under consideration, will the Hon'ble Minister please take the trouble to read the books?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I cannot give any guarantee that I shall read all the books; but I shall read the objectionable portions of the books.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please see that the persons who will examine this question know something about the Bengali literature?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As I have already said, there is no committee but the Home Department will examine the question.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please see that the gentleman of the Home Department who examines this matter is a Bengali and has some knowledge of the Bengali literature?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The honourable member may rely on it that the examination will be done most efficiently.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state if these books have been translated into English?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I do not know.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: In looking through the objectionable parts of the books will he read the texts in originals?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The honourable member should assume that the thing will be done efficiently.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I have got an adjournment motion. Yesterday it was decided that the Hon'ble the Chief Minister would make a statement today. So, before he makes the statement may I read out my adjournment motion?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: It is not necessary. The Hon'ble the Chief Minister will now make the statement.

Statement by the Chief Minister regarding export of rice from Bengal to Assam.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, Government have issued a communiqué on this subject and the Regional Food Commissioner has also issued a statement explaining the position. I will just read what has been stated there and add a few words more. It is clear from the statement made that there was no question of giving any rice or paddy from Bengal to the Assam Government or to the Army authorities apart from the question of on purely lending paddy. On account of certain unforeseen circumstances the Army made a demand on the Assam Government for five thousand tons of rice. The Assam Government did not have the rice and then the Army authorities approached the Government of India who approached the Government of Bengal and pointed out that from the point of view of transport it would be very convenient if Bengal could send the rice to Assam and that that quantity of rice would be given back by the Army authorities to Bengal and that it would be convenient from the point of view of transport to send five thousand tons of rice from North Bengal to Assam, and that the Government of India would send to the Government of Bengal the five thousand tons of rice which they would give to Assam from the Army quota. Later on the Army made a demand for another five thousand tons of rice and similar arrangements were made on the same basis and on the distinct understanding that the Government of India would reimburse the same quantity of rice to Bengal from the Army quota, i.e., in all ten thousand tons of rice will be sent from North Bengal to Assam, and before the end of August the Government of India will give back to the Government of Bengal the ten thousand tons of rice which they have sent to Assam. So it will be apparent that it is purely a question of temporary loan which will be repaid by the Government of India from the quota that is reserved for the Army outside Bengal and in other parts of India; and the House will agree with me that as it is extremely important to conserve transport as much as possible both in the interests of the War as well as of the Government of Bengal, that was the best arrangement that could be made. There can be no doubt whatsoever that the Government of Bengal is not sending any rice out of the province apart from what has been sent on the assurance that it will be given back and the total quantity of which is ten thousand tons.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, will you permit me to make a statement on my adjournment motion?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, first let me know if you are satisfied with the statement of the Hon'ble the Chief Minister.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: No, Sir. I am not satisfied at all.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Then you may just put one or two questions to the Hon'ble the Chief Minister in order to elicit from him further information on the subject.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, the matter will be dealt with in connection with the discussion of the adjournment motion more fully and adequately. The matter is this. The Government of Assam issued a Press-note on the 1st of July stating that they wanted to meet certain commitments of the Army and that is why they required the rice and it is not that they had no paddy. The Assam Government had paddy but could not enforce its procurement from their own subjects. The cultivators there had plenty of paddy but the object of the Assam Government is to take away the rice of Bengal in order to bring down the price of rice in Assam and purchase paddy more freely and at lower price from their own people over there. Therefore, I say, Sir, that the Bengal Government had no business to go out of its way to lower the price of rice of another province when its own people in different parts of the Province and in several districts are unable to purchase rice because of very high price. The price of rice in Chittagong and Cox's Bazar and Noakhali is ruling at more than forty rupees a maund. That is the situation; and in a situation like this, export of paddy should take place not from North Bengal to Assam but to the coastal districts of Bengal and to the other deficit areas in Bengal. It looks innocent indeed when the Government of Bengal say that they have sent out 5,000 tons of rice to Assam because they received a call for it from the Government of Assam and that when there is a second call for a further 5,000 tons they will also send that quantity to Assam, and this is the limit of the quantity of rice that Bengal is prepared to send according to the statement of the Chief Minister. But, Sir, a statement has also been issued by the Regional Food Commissioner. In that statement he does not say anything about the quantity that has been or will be sent to Assam; all that he says is that certain tons of rice will be sent to Assam but what the quantity is going to be has not been mentioned. He does not mention anything about the quantity although he says that this province will be re-imbursed later on with further supply of rice. That may be done later on, but at present the people of Bengal are suffering because of the policy that is now being adopted, namely, the sending of rice out of Bengal to Assam which has really got paddy in sufficient quantities but is not purchasing paddy from its own people because the price is so high. It is very curious, Sir: the position is very curious. The Regional Food Commissioner does not mention the limit—

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: He will no doubt confine himself to the limit fixed by the Central Government.

MR. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: The present demand of the Assam Government is for 10,000 tons and later on we will perhaps find that more than that quantity has been actually sent out of Bengal; that will be a very serious situation for this province, Sir. This Government could not control the export of rice in 1942 and even in 1943 and as a matter of fact rice was being exported from the port of Calcutta sometimes with and sometimes without the knowledge of the Ministers. A statement was made to this effect from the Treasury Bench at the time of the discussion on the food situation sometime ago. The result was the famine in Bengal when thousands of people died for want of rice; a huge population was carried away by famine and not only by famine but also by diseases following in the wake of the famine. Even now we are passing through a famine of money and for want of money, people are unable to purchase rice at this abnormally high price. So, why not introduce the rationing system in these deficit areas? Why export rice again, for the people are still passing through acute distress and therefore this policy of sending to Assam paddy and rice in the face of this money-famine will result in food-famine even though rice is sent in dribblets. The Honourable Minister has stated that he is prepared to send out 10,000 tons of rice to Assam in dribblets. This policy is highly detrimental and prejudicial to Bengal and it is a matter of urgent public importance and of recent occurrence. Therefore, I do ask your consent to allow me to move this motion so that the House may have an opportunity to discuss the whole thing.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: From the statement of the Honourable the Chief Minister it appears that it is only a question of loan.

MR. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: The question is not a simple one of loan, Sir. Let me state the whole point thus. How does it look for one debtor country to advance money to a creditor country? It is not at all a creditable position. We must first of all be in a position to be secure in our own house and then consider the question of helping others. When we are in great difficulty, when we cannot manage our own household and when our own people are dying by thousands for want of adequate quantity of rice, why should we show this vicarious generosity of lending our things to others? Perhaps you know, Sir, that the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies has had to rush to Chittagong and Noakhali after I placed my adjournment motion the other day, trying to meet the situation. That is the position which we are in at present. So how the question of loan of rice to Assam, or, for the matter of that, to other province, can arise at this stage? This is the policy—whether it is proper or fair on the part of the Government, who are responsible for the well-being of the people of Bengal, which should be discussed—the question of giving loan to Assam—

The Hon'ble MR. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: It is a question of exchange—

MR. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Whether it is a question of loan or exchange, Sir, we condemn this policy of the Government at this critical time when Chittagong and Noakhali and other places are in deficit so far as rice is concerned and the Hon'ble Minister for Supplies has himself had to run there. Is this the time to advance loans to other provinces? Sir, this is going to deteriorate the morale of the province and we want to discuss this policy through this adjournment motion.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. I have considered this question very carefully and I am of opinion that after the statement of the Hon'ble the Chief Minister this adjournment motion is not necessary and I disallow it.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, May I have two points cleared by the Hon'ble the Chief Minister?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: No, the matter is closed.

ADJOURNMENT MOTIONS.

On Government's failure to provide rations for "Bhog" to Hindu Deities

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I have got notice of an adjournment motion by Mr. Haridas Mazumdar which runs as follows:—

That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the failure of the Government of Bengal to provide for the ration of "Bhog" to the Hindu deities in Calcutta and other rationed areas, though promises in this respect were held out by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Civil Supplies times without number.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, may I make a statement in this connection? As the honourable members are already aware the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Civil Supplies has gone to Chittagong to deal with a situation there. As soon as he comes back, he will make a statement in this House defining the Government policy which has now been settled and the announcement of which awaits Mr. Suhrawardy's return from Chittagong.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: When is he expected?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: On the 6th.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, if I am not satisfied with the statement. I think I will be allowed to move my adjournment motion.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Yes, if it is found in order.

On Government failure to proceed with the consideration of the Bengal Destitute Persons (Repatriation and Relief) Bill, 1944.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I have got notice of yet another adjournment motion from Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherji which runs as follows:

That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation that has arisen by the reason of the fact that the Bengal Destitute Persons (Repatriation and Relief), Bill, 1944, which was passed by this House on the 17th February, 1944, has not been further proceeded with by the Government.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: May I move the motion?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: No; at the very outset I want to know the subject-matter of your adjournment motion. As far as I have understood it from the notice, you want to censure Government by this adjournment motion for their failure to proceed with a Bill which has been passed by this House and sent to the other House for their concurrence.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: Sir, If I may refer to the proceedings of this House, dated the 8th February, page 50, you will find that there is a statement made by the President on that date when the Hon'ble Mr. Tarak Nath Mukherji gave notice of this Bill. I understand that these two Bills which are—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I want to be satisfied that you do not want to criticise the action of any Hon'ble Minister in connection with his activity in the other House.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: No, Sir, I am not going to say what happened in the other House; but so far as this House is concerned, it was stated that that Bill was a very urgent and important one and it was necessary that that should be passed within a certain date because the Ordinance was going to expire soon. Actually, the Bill came before this House on the 17th February last and was passed within 10 days and now we are in July but the Bill has not yet become an Act.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Please explain now how it is a matter of public importance.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: If you, Sir, look to the Hon'ble Minister's statement of the 17th February, 1944, you will find that it was stated there that about 33,000 destitutes had been apprehended and taken into custody by Government and it was necessary that some provision should be made immediately for them.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Are they still in custody?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: They were in custody at the time the Revenue Minister made the statement but I do not know whether the destitutes are still in custody.

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: Sir, may I say a few words in this connection? I submit that it is no longer a matter of urgent public importance, since the situation has immensely improved. Work houses have been established all over the province. At present, the situation is almost normal and we hope that the situation will gradually improve. We wanted to pass that Bill as a precautionary measure but there is no necessity for that now. Therefore, I submit that this motion should not be allowed. Most of the destitutes have been sent back to their homes.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, may I ask the Hon'ble Minister through you whether a conference was held in the Writers' Buildings and whether that conference came to the conclusion that destitutes who were trying to come to Calcutta should be prevented from coming to Calcutta with the help of the railway authorities?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: That conference was held only for the purpose of preventing people from coming to Calcutta to sell rice in the black-markets.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Mr. Deputy President, Sir, there are two points to be considered in an adjournment motion, namely, whether the matter is definite and of urgent public importance. So far as definiteness is concerned, I would refer to the statement made by the Hon'ble Minister when he introduced the Bill. He said that he wanted to pass the Bill in order to deal with a definite situation which had arisen. The Ordinance to deal with the problem would lapse within six weeks of the session of the Legislature, and hence the Bill was introduced at a very short notice in this House. Certain ordinary rules of procedure were suspended and the Opposition and Government came to a mutual agreement in order to facilitate the passage of the Bill.

Now, Sir, thereafter Government for reasons best known to themselves did not proceed with the Bill. It is not correct to say, as the Hon'ble Minister has said just now, that there was no necessity and therefore they did not want to pass the Bill. Actually this Bill was put on the agenda paper on a particular day in the other House, but Government found themselves in a hopeless minority on that day and Hon'ble Minister after Hon'ble Minister got up and said that they did not want to proceed with the Bills standing in their name. Therefore, Sir, it is not a fact that the matter was not urgent or important. The fact is that on a particular day the Government members were not present in full strength—may be, it was an accidental fact, but this did not take away the definite character of the Bill or its urgency—

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKHERJEA: Sir, we have never said anywhere or in the Lower House that we did not want to proceed with the Bill. On the particular day referred to by Mr. Kabir this Bill was not on the agenda at all. On the agenda there were other Bills, such as, the Murshidabad Bill, the Home Department's Bill and the Communications Department's Bill, but I can definitely say that this Bill was not there.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I can testify to the fact, Sir, that on that particular day no Bills were moved although they were on the agenda. These were the Bills that were to be moved, viz., the Murshidabad Bill, the Coroner's Bill and the Bengal Embankment Bill; but the Repatriation Bill was not on the agenda at all.

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: Sir, since February last the situation has immensely improved, and since the establishment of work houses the destitute people are not only getting their accommodation in these work houses but also they are getting scope for work there. So I submit, Sir, once again that there is absolutely no reason whatsoever to think that it is a matter of public importance.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I was going to make my submission, Sir, when the Hon'ble Minister interrupted me—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: How do you establish that it is a matter of public importance?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I was going to state, Sir, that already in the streets of Calcutta we find that beggars are re-appearing. Along with that we find the Government have moved to stop the influx of people to Calcutta without tickets. Now, I take it that the Hon'ble Minister does not suggest that persons of the social status of the Hon'ble Ministers will flock to Calcutta without tickets. If people flock to Calcutta without tickets, it will be because they do not have the wherewithal to purchase tickets; and the Government move to stop this inflow of people without tickets into Calcutta is a clear indication that the Government are anticipating the situation which will be created by the influx of large numbers of persons in Calcutta. Besides, Sir, as was stated a little earlier today, there are signs of distress in different parts of Bengal. We are thankful that the distress is not so great as during the last year, but unfortunately there are unmistakable signs of distress. The attempt on the part of the Government to stop the inflow of people to Calcutta shows that this is an urgent matter and it is also a definite matter. It is this situation which we want to discuss today. This has been created by the failure of the Government to proceed with a Bill which they had hurried through in this House. That is why the matter is definite as well as urgent.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. I have heard both sides. Having regard to the statement of the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Revenue Department, I am not fully satisfied that it is a matter of public importance. Besides, on motions for the adjournment of the business of the House, matters entailing legislation cannot be discussed (vide May's Parliamentary Practice, pp. 249 and 309). It has also been pointed out by the Speaker of the House of Commons (Vol. 108, House of Commons Debate, 5, s. 1339) that if that were allowed, a motion for adjournment could be moved every day when particular honourable members desired a certain legislative measure to be introduced in the House but which was not introduced by the Government. I have, therefore, no hesitation in disallowing this motion.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The House will now resume further consideration of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill. Mr. Humayun Kabir.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, yesterday I had moved that in place of sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following be substituted, namely, —It shall come into force on such date as may be notified in the Official Gazette, not being earlier than three months from the date of publication of the assent of His Excellency the Governor or the Governor-General as the case may be and shall remain in force till the 31st day of March following.

Now, Sir, it will be noticed that this amendment has two parts. The first part deals with the period which should elapse before the Act comes into force. Here I am standing on precedents not only in Great Britain but also in other countries of the world. Except in extraordinary cases, taxation measures are nowhere forced through the legislature, and in any case, new taxation is not imposed on the people without giving them an opportunity to adjust themselves to the demands of the new tax. In other countries the percentage of literacy is much higher, the circulation of newspapers is far greater than we can conceive, public consciousness is much more developed and political feeling strong on account of the existence of the party system. Even in such countries when a new taxation measure is passed, a certain period of time is allowed to elapse so that the different provisions of that measure may be known to all, and there may be no possibility of oppression or exaction upon the unsuspecting public.

If that is the case in countries where political consciousness is far more developed, I would suggest that in a country like ours where literacy is low, where political consciousness is not highly developed, where the party system has not yet come into full operation, where electioneering and the educating of electorates through continual meetings in different areas on specific issue which comes before the legislature is almost unknown —I would submit that in a country like ours it is even more desirable and not only desirable but necessary that a certain period should elapse before taxation measures enacted by the legislature are put into operation. I would like my honourable friends here to consider the fact that our people do not know the intricacies of the law and very often they are unnecessarily harassed. This also is an unfortunate fact. It has to be kept in mind that in many cases, specially on account of the deterioration in the conditions of the services there has been a growing laxity in recent years. As a result, the public are often put to great inconvenience.

In the case of a Bill like the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill which deals with rural people and not with the town-dwellers, not with the municipalities but with the 92,000 and odd scattered villages, where political considerations are almost unknown, where a weekly newspaper is the only purveyor of the news of the world, I would suggest that in such circumstances it is imperative that Government should allow the provisions of the Bill to be broadcast and known throughout the country so that there may be no opportunity either for misrepresentation or illegal or undesirable exactions on the part of the officials. As I have suggested earlier, this practice obtains even in highly developed and politically conscious countries. Therefore, it is all the more necessary and desirable in a country like ours. The first part of my amendment wants to get the principle accepted that whenever a taxation measure is put on the Statute Book, a certain period should elapse so that the provisions of the Bill may be widely known, so that there may be discussions on its provisions and as a result of such discussions on the different sections, an idea of those provisions might gradually percolate to the minds of the masses. There would then be no opportunity for misrepresentations or exactions from the unwary public. I would suggest specially to the honourable members of the House who have anything to do with rural constituencies, to remember that unless they give the masses some such opportunity to be conversant and fully conversant with the provisions of this taxation measure, which is new of its kind, they will be doing a very great injustice to their own constituents; and not only that: they will be making the people in the rural areas liable to exactions of all types.

Now, Sir, the second half of my amendment deals with the question of duration of such an enactment. It has been the intention of my amendment, first of all, to allow a breathing space, so to speak,—a period during which the provisions of the Bill can be widely discussed and circulated so that there may be no room for misrepresentation. The second half of my amendment deals with the actual duration and pendency of the Bill. You will remember, Sir, that we have discussed this subject in this House before. We held that it was desirable that all money Bills should be annual Bills. The Hon'ble Finance Minister was himself forced to admit when discussing this subject that this is a matter which had attracted his own notice. He had himself felt that unless money Bills were annual Bills, the Legislature could not have proper control over the functions of the Executive. He also informed the House that it was his aim when he first came to the Legislature to make some provision by which the Legislature will have control over the Executive. You have such annual money Bills not only in the free countries but also in the Central Government at Delhi. Many members are aware that money Bills are annual Bills, so that appropriations have to be made year after year. This annual appropriation gives the Legislature the opportunity to scrutinise the actions of the Executive and take the Ministry to task if it goes wrong.

Now, Sir, going wrong is not the monopoly of any particular Ministry. The present Ministry has gone wrong in many things and can go wrong again. Its predecessors also erred. The next Ministry may also err. He will be a bold man who will say that he will never err, for to err is human. If you have annual Bills, the Legislature can have a check over executive action. The Legislature should always see to it that an erring Ministry does not err too much. Whenever an erring Ministry wanders away from the straight and narrow path of rectitude, the Legislature must pull it round from the wrong path. It must check the peregrinations of the Ministers whenever they attempt to go astray. The Hon'ble Finance Minister and the honourable members opposite admitted that my proposal was desirable and some such provision should come into being as soon as possible. They also admitted that it was desirable that all money Bills should be annual Bills so that the Legislature may exercise effective control over the Ministry and thereby prevent it from developing a tendency towards becoming irresponsible.

And it is not a new development here. In other places as well, the Executive has tended to transform itself into an irresponsible Executive whenever they found that they could defy the Legislature. In many cases, the executive did defy the Legislature. The history of the British Parliament and the growth of the British Parliamentary conventions are valuable examples of what I say. The British Parliament fought for a long time for the right of having annual money Bills. The British people never yielded on this point. It was sometime in the period of the Lancastrians, I think in the reign of Edward III, that the question first came to the fore. The British merchants and the gentlemen of the boroughs refused to support any new taxation measure and they refused to vote any money unless the King was prepared to listen to their suggestions so far as the disbursement of the money was concerned. From that time onward for almost 200 years this struggle continued. Whenever the King was in difficulty, he accepted the claim of Parliament and promised that it should have control over expenditure; but as soon as things eased a little the King conveniently used to forget his promises. This struggle finally led to a civil war. Charles I attempted for eleven long years to do without Parliament because whenever Parliament was summoned, the very first petition presented was about the control over the expenditure. Through control of annual money measures, the Parliament wanted to exercise control over the functionings of the Executive. In 1629, King Charles I decided to do without Parliament altogether. For eleven long years there was no Parliament in the British Isles.

Here, we have no doubt the statutory budgets every year. Therefore, here the Hon'ble Ministers, who are afraid of public opinion and do not enjoy the confidence of the Assembly, can perhaps do without the Assembly for one year but they cannot do without the Assembly for eleven long years. They will have to face the Assembly and feel the shock of public opinion as soon as February emerges out of the calendar. The Hon'ble Ministers here should realise that since they cannot enjoy the prerogatives of the British monarchs who attempted to usurp the functions of the Parliament, it is better that they should take the Legislature into confidence and facilitate the development of healthy co-operation between the Legislature and the Executive. In that case alone can all parliamentary or legislative activities be settled on a more amicable basis.

After eleven long years, Charles I found that he could not do without Parliament and he summoned what is known as the famous Short Parliament. Even then he had counted without his host. The very first demand made by Pym—an honoured name in British history and one of the finest parliamentarians of England—was about the redress of the long standing grievances of the people. Therefore, Sir, the Parliament was dissolved in the course of eleven days or twelve days,—I do not remember the exact period, but that is perhaps the shortest session of Parliament on record. Ultimately, the King had to submit to the scrutiny of the Parliament. The control of expenditure passed into the hands of the Parliament. Similarly, I have no doubt that the Hon'ble Ministers will also have to face either today or tomorrow the Legislature and public opinion. Now, Sir, as students of history we all know that certain incidents took place which ultimately led to the execution of the King.

The instrument which the British people, I would say by a stroke of political genius, had discovered about three to four centuries ago was the control through annual money Bills. They thought that this would ensure actual supervision over the activities of Government through control of the finance by the Legislature. But they did not achieve their object in a day. For centuries their struggle continued. Sometimes the King won and sometimes the Parliament, but Parliament never gave up the demand that money Bills should be an annual affair. Whenever the King came before Parliament, or rather the Government came to Parliament for money to carry on the administration, the Legislature immediately put its fingers on the sore-spots and required correction of things. Three salutary principles were laid down in the course of the struggle. These three principles for which constitutional struggles went on were firstly, that there should be annual voting of supplies; secondly, that there should be public audit, that is, that every expenditure of the Government should be audited by a committee of the House publicly; and third, and the most important of the points—and which we have not yet developed in this legislature—was that—

Mr. NUR AHMED: I rise on a point of order, Sir. My learned friend's amendment is that this Bill will expire on the 31st of March, 1945, but he is speaking on a subject which is not the subject-matter of his amendment. He says that this Bill will be an annually renewable Bill. This is not relevant.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: He is speaking in justification of that portion of his amendment.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I find that my honourable friend Mr. Nur Ahmed has also like many of his colleagues fallen into the habit of not reading the amendments at all. If he cares to read my amendment carefully, he will find that the purport of the amendment is to make money Bills annually renewable. Therefore, Sir, you have rightly pointed out that it is not a point of order at all but it is merely an attempt to delay the proceedings of this House by obstructive tactics. I am surprised that the honourable members of the Government side have taken it upon themselves to adopt obstructive tactics when the Opposition is prepared to co-operate. In fact, we are advocating the development of parliamentary conventions by suggesting ways and means by which the Executive and the Legislature may co-operate more fully with each other. But to proceed with my points.

I was contending that there were three principles for which the British Legislatures continually fought irrespective of any party. Here I would especially ask the honourable members opposite to note that when parliamentary rights and parliamentary conventions were at issue, there was little of any party in the Parliament. On such issues, there was no question as to who were the supporters of the Government and who were the Opposition. The Opposition and the supporters of the Government very often united over the questions which affect the prerogatives of the Parliament. Now, Sir, to cut a long story short, as a result of the struggle for several centuries and the Revolution of 1688, after the Petition of Rights it was finally decided that all money Bills would be annually renewable. That was a great achievement and is a landmark in the history of the constitutional development of the world. In consequence, since 1688 supplies and demands have been annually voted upon in the Houses of Parliament.

Now, Sir, the Parliament went one step further in order to ensure that the Government or the King did not in any way go behind the Parliament and did not in any way encroach upon the rights of the Legislature. They passed another Act which was called the English Mutiny Act. This Mutiny Act was equally an annually renewable Act. It was definitely enacted that the Mutiny Act shall be annually renewed and the purpose of the Mutiny Act was to pay for the Army. The idea of the Parliament was that if the Army was paid from year to year by annual grants of the Parliament, then the King could never defy for long the authority of the Parliament. King Charles I had shown that the King could attempt to rule without Parliament, but the annual Mutiny Act made a repetition of such attempt impossible. Annual budgets were therefore a direct corollary to the annual Mutiny Act. If the King defied the authority of the Parliament, then the Parliament would immediately stop the passage of the Mutiny Act. If the Army was not paid, the consequence would be that there would be mutiny. This Act continued, I think, for almost two hundred years, and it was only in 1888 or 1889 that it was repealed by Gladstone, another great figure in the parliamentary history of Great Britain. Gladstone felt that the name Mutiny Act had rather a bad odour, a bad savour about it. It suggested as if the British people were very prone to mutiny against their King.

It is certainly a fact that the British people have gone against their King more often than perhaps any other people in the world. As a result they have had a more peaceful constitutional development than perhaps any other country of the world. This was because the British people knew when to strike. They never allowed things to deteriorate to such an extent that the only possible remedy thereafter was violent revolution. The British people revolted against their Kings in time. If they mutinied, they did so only in order to check the depredations of their Kings. They were thus able to effect constitutional progress—and in most cases, peaceful constitutional progress, though there were times when heads did roll even in England. But even when heads rolled in England, they were less in number than the heads which rolled in France, Russia and other countries of the world.

In any case, Gladstone felt that the expression "Mutiny Act" had a bad odour about it and suggested that the British people were always in a rebellious mood. He therefore changed the name into "Army Act" and even today that Act is an annually renewable Act. It should also be remembered that during the course of the present World War which has disturbed the economic and political life of all countries of the world almost beyond recognition, when great dangers have faced the British people, they have never given up this valued right of an annual budget. Even today, supplies are annually voted upon, even today the demands are annually considered and I am not quite sure,—but I believe that even today the Army Act is being annually repeated. It is only in this way that the Legislature, I mean the Parliament of Great Britain, can scrutinise and exercise control and effective control over the functionings of the Executive.

Now, Sir, in our country, we have very few rights. In the Upper House, in terms of the Government of India Act, 1935, we have no right to vote demands for grants. But there is nothing whatsoever in that Act to prevent us from voting upon supplies. There is, I repeat, nothing whatsoever in the Government of India Act, 1935, to prevent us from voting on supplies. If in this House we can establish a convention that there should be annual voting on supplies, we shall then have just as much control over the functioning of the Ministry as the other House has. By their right to vote demands, and their right to refuse particular appropriations, our colleagues in the other House exercise control over the Ministers which we do not exercise in this Chamber. If we establish a convention that we shall have the right to vote upon supplies, that we shall have annually renewable taxation measures, the Ministers will be just as much under our control as they are under the control of the other House.

I now beg to draw the attention of my friends opposite to another peculiar development in British Constitutional history. Without enactment of any definite provision of law and by certain manipulations of the existing practice, the Legislature there has acquired control over the functioning of the Executive. I refer to the Cabinet system. The Cabinet system has no place in British law but is a direct consequence of the practice of annual voting on supplies. If this principle were not there, if such measures were not annually voted upon, then there would be no Cabinet in the British system of administration. Why is it that the King in England is bound to call to the office of his Chief Minister the leader of the party that has topped the polls in the general election? There is nothing in the law to compel him to do so. There is nothing in the British Constitution which compels a King to dismiss a Ministry even if it has not got the confidence of the people. Even as late as the period of the American War of Independence, British Kings had tried to carry on their administration with Ministers that did not enjoy the confidence of the Parliament. Young Pitt when he first formed his Government did not enjoy the confidence of the House of Commons but he gradually acquired it. But with the annual Mutiny Act, such irresponsible Government could not continue. The system of voting supplies developed and became an instrument through which Parliament could turn out a Ministry that did not enjoy its confidence. If this principle of annual voting on supply measures were not there, the King could appoint as his First Minister anybody he liked, he could set up in office any one he chose. The moment Parliament acquired this right of annual voting on taxation measures, the rights of the English Kings became circumscribed. Nobody could form a Government or remain a Minister unless he was sure that he could carry the budget through the Parliament.

I am relating these things for one and one purpose alone. Let us here also evolve, on the lines of the methods by which the British Parliament were able to acquire their power, conventions by which we can check the action of the Executive. I would request my honourable friends opposite to consider this question carefully. It is not a question which affects only the Opposition. It is a thing which would be beneficial to both sides. When a similar question was last discussed in this House, I suggested that after all Governments are temporary affairs. Today somebody is in the Government and somebody else is in the Opposition. It may so happen that tomorrow this opposition may come into power. My friends opposite know that they escaped their fate by the skin of their teeth. Another meeting of the Legislative Assembly and the table would have been turned. Nobody can say that he would be in power for all time to come. No one can say who will be in the Opposition and who will be on the Government side. Healthy conventions should be established which would help all the parties. I would ask the honourable members opposite specially to consider this point. Unless we develop gradually..... I am afraid, Sir, there is too much conversation on the Government benches and the two Hon'ble Ministers sitting there are talking too much. I shall be thankful if you ask them to take their proper place.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I shall see that there is no disturbance. Go on Mr. Kabir.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Thank you, Sir. Honourable members may also have noticed that so far as this particular Bill is concerned, I have tabled very few amendments. I have tabled only three or four amendments in a Bill consisting of 55 or 56 clauses and where there are about 450 amendments tabled by various members. I also could have, if I had so desired, moved as many amendments. What I believe is that if we gain this one point—that taxation measures shall be annual, that the Legislature shall annually review the work of the Executive, that the Legislature shall annually scrutinise the conduct of the executive and see to it that they do not go astray, then I believe we have got the substance of what we need. It will be parliament's triumph not only in this House but in the country as a whole. It is in this way, through struggle and discussion, through give and take, that parliamentary conventions have been built up in other countries. I invite the honourable members opposite to support me in this amendment and see that the power of the Legislature is increased—that the power of the Bengal Legislative Council is increased. At present the Council is almost like a post-mortem House where we carry out examination and dissection of what has happened elsewhere. The moment we have control over the annual supplies, the moment we have annual taxation measure, this House will become just as important as the other House. Through the exercise of proper power, I believe the Legislature can contribute a great deal to the development of parliamentary rule.

I may conclude with one word specially to the Hon'ble Finance Minister. The Hon'ble Finance Minister is never tired of saying that he finds a more reasonable frame of mind in this House than elsewhere. If that be so, he should on his part prove that he really means what he says by helping in the extension of the rights of this House without which this House is reduced almost to the position of a non-entity.

So far as my European friends are concerned, they know all these principles very well. So far as their own country is concerned, they have fought and fought severely and with the blood of their heart for the establishment of their rights. I would like them to remember what very often they forget. Rights cannot be divided geographically. If they do not maintain same or similar rights in all parts of the world, repercussions of that are bound to be terrible. Repercussions may not be immediate, but as the saying goes "The mills of God grind slowly but grind exceedingly small". If they take up an attitude of authoritarianism, of blind support of the Executive, if they take up an attitude of non-parliamentarianism or if they take up an attitude of Fascism, used in the worst meaning of the word, if they take up an attitude of fascism as the prerogative of the Europeans in India, it is bound to affect their own political life in their own country. There are already disturbing signs and thinking people are afraid of the new despotism. The constitutional pundits in their own country are trying to find out how to prevent and resist the aggression and invasion of the State into the most sacred sanctuaries of their private life. They can never do so while they take up an attitude of fascism abroad. I would like them to remember that as they will act here, so they will be made to act in their own country whether they like it or not.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that for sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following be substituted, namely:—

"It shall come into force on such date as may be notified in the Official Gazette, not being earlier than three months from the date of publication of the assent of His Excellency the Governor or the Governor-General as the case may be and shall remain in force till the 31st day of March following."

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I—

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Sir, may I say a few words as regards the length of the speeches—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I rise on a point of order. Can two honourable members speak at a time? You have already called upon Mr. Nur Ahmed to speak and now the Khan Bahadur wants to speak.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I have called upon Mr. Nur Ahmed and he will speak first.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I rise to oppose the amendment moved by the learned Professor Humayun Kabir. His amendment is that the Bill shall come into force on such date as may be notified in the Official Gazette, not being earlier than three months from the date of publication of the assent of His Excellency the Governor or the Governor-General as the case may be and shall remain in force till the 31st day of March following.

Now, Sir, what is the good of wasting time of the Legislature to make a law which will expire in three months. It will be sheer waste of public money. Sir, my learned friend, Professor Humayun Kabir, has raised a very important question of parliamentary privilege and control of this House over finance. Sir, I have gone through his amendment very carefully but I found therein no indication of anything like annual renewal of the Bill. If his amendment is accepted, the effect will be that the Bill will expire on the 31st of March, 1945. My learned friend has referred to parliamentary practice and the Finance Acts of the United Kingdom and also of the Central Assembly. Sir, with all respect to the learned professor I must submit that he is mistaken. If he had gone through one of the Finance Acts of the Central Government, he would have found that by that Act the Central Government did not make any changes in the provisions of the Acts except in the schedule of rates attached to these Acts, such as, Indian Tariff Act, Indian Postal Act, Indian Salt Act or in some provision of the Acts which relates to the imposition of taxes or duties. For example, in the Indian Finance Act of 1940 the Central Government have changed only the rates of telegraph fees, etc., by some provisions in the Act but the substantive Acts have remained on the Statute Book as they were. Also in the Assam Agricultural Income-tax I have found that only the rates of income-tax are changed annually and not the whole Act itself, and this is being done in Assam since 1939. Some years the rate of agricultural income-tax is three pies in the rupee and some years it may not be so but I find that the rate is the same from 1939. My learned friend suggests nothing of this sort in his amendment. Sir, this Act is a very extensive Act containing about 65 sections. So, if the amendment of my learned friend is accepted, it will involve a great deal of time and energy to renew the Act every year and it will become inoperative soon after it receives the assent of the Governor and becomes the law of the land. This will be the state of things if his amendment is carried. There is another ground on which we can uphold the present Bill and that is that the whole purpose of this Act is to secure some subvention from the Central Government and to raise additional duty. The Government will be in a position to secure loans on the basis of this income and also subvention from the Central Government. I would therefore ask the learned professor to take into consideration all these things and see what will be the effect of his amendment if accepted.

If this amendment is accepted, then as I have stated the whole of the time devoted to its consideration by both the Houses will have been wasted. In the case of English Acts and other legislations in the world, I find that there are permanent Acts on a similar basis. Only some sections are reviewed annually in order to vary the rate of the tax. Suppose, we want to reduce or repeal the rate of the salt tax, then only that section will be considered and not the whole Act. If on the contrary the whole Bill is laid under consideration and if it is renewed every year after full consideration, then the work of the House will simply be voluminous and unmanageable and we will never come to a decision. I ask my friends on the other side to consider this aspect of the matter. With these few words, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: Sir, in rising to support the amendment moved by my honourable friend, Mr. Humayun Kabir, with reference to sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, I would like to remove a certain amount of misapprehension which I think is prevailing amongst honourable members who are supporting the Government. Before placing the amendment itself, I would like to place before honourable members the clause in the Bill which is proposed to be substituted through the amendment. In the original Bill the provision so far as clause 3 is concerned, is the following—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: What do you mean by "original Bill"?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: Not the Bill that came out from the Assembly but the Bill as went to the Select Committee of the Lower House. In the Bill we find the following after clause 3: It should be deemed to have come into force on the 1st day of April, 1944. Now, this is an extraordinary state of things in itself. We are now on the 5th of July, 1944, and we do not know when this Bill will be passed here and will receive the assent of the proper authorities so that it might be enforced. The Hon'ble Finance Minister got this amendment passed into the Bill as it now stands. "It should be deemed to have come into force....., etc." I think the Hon'ble Finance Minister knows very well the significance of the word "deemed" in legislative enactments. The word "deemed" is used in cases where the fact is really not so but by reason of some legislative fiction it is said to have come into operation on a certain date. Therefore, although this Bill was not passed and was not taken into consideration on the first of April, 1944, the provisions of the Bill should be deemed to have come into force on the 1st day of April, 1944; that is to say, that this fiscal statute should be made retrospective in its operation.

Having referred to the clause in the Bill itself, I would now refer to the clause by which Mr. Kabir proposes that the clause should be substituted.

It shall come into force on such date..... The amendment is in two parts, as was very clearly pointed out by my friend Mr. Humayun Kabir himself "it shall come into force on such date as may be notified in the Official Gazette, not being earlier than three months from the date of publication of the assent of His Excellency the Governor or the Governor-General as the case may be"..... This is the first part of the amendment and that refers directly to the clause in the Bill itself. Then there is a further proposal that the amendment "shall remain in force till the 31st day of March following." If we have understood the implication there, I think the honourable member proposes that in the first instance this fiscal statute should not have retrospective operation—you should not tax the people before the Bill is considered by the House and is passed into law. So far as this part of the amendment is concerned, I would not repeat what Mr. Humayun Kabir has said in support of the amendment, but I would give additional reasons which would induce the honourable members of the House to accept this amendment. Now, Sir, it is clear that every one of this House knows about the distressing condition in which the people of Bengal passed last year when famine was prevailing admittedly in this province. The distress that prevailed in Bengal last year was unheard of and it was not a distress which was due to natural causes; but it was a distress which was practically the making of man. As a matter of fact, we charge that it was the making of the present Ministry. It is further clear that in the present year in spite of the assurance of the Government, rice, which is the staple crop of Bengal is selling at Rs. 13 or 14—this is the control rate and not the actual rate prevailing in other parts of the province. I say that the people of Bengal, especially those whom we are going to tax by this Bill, have suffered and have not yet been able to recoup from the effects of the distress of last year. If that is so, I submit that the Hon'ble Finance Minister would realise that this tax should not be made to come into operation with effect from the 1st April, 1944, and have a retrospective operation. There is another aspect of the matter which I would like the Hon'ble Finance Minister to consider so far as the amendment which has been moved by my honourable friend Mr. Kabir is concerned. You say "the Bill shall be deemed to have come into force on the 1st April, 1944" therefore you are going to tax the people with reference to the official year from 1st April, 1944, up to the 31st March, 1945. If we look to the other provisions of the Bill, we find that provision has been made to take into account the total agricultural income which the assessee has received in the previous year. Now, what is the previous year so far as the amount of assessment is concerned? Previous year would be 1st April, 1943, to 31st March, 1944.

Now, let us consider, Sir, how the provisions of the Act would affect the people of Bengal. Last year, those few agriculturists who produced some paddy of their own had to buy at a later stage rice which was selling at that time between Rs. 14 to Rs. 120 per maund and we are going to tax those people with regard to income from the 1st of April, 1943, and up to 31st March, 1944. That will be a great hardship and the honourable members should consider whether they should tax the members of their own constituency. As a matter of fact, I made it clear when I moved my motion to circulate this Bill and also in connection with my Select Committee motion that this House represents all sections of people and by this Bill we are going to tax almost one and all and therefore the responsibility of this House is very great so far as the present Bill is concerned. If that is so, I submit, that the honourable members will have to consider whether they should make the Bill retrospective as it is proposed to be made.

Now, Sir, so far as the second part of the amendment of Mr. Kabir is concerned, it says that ".....shall remain in force till the 31st day of March following". With reference to this portion of the amendment, I find that Mr. Nur Ahmed has referred to the legislation in other countries. Referring to the English Finance Act he stated that the English Finance Act is practically a permanent Act except with reference to the Schedule. I think, I have represented him correctly and I speak subject to correction. I say, Sir, that so far as the present amendment of my honourable friend Mr. Kabir is concerned, the proposal is that the Bill should remain in force for one year. That means that if the Hon'ble the Finance Minister who is in charge of the Bill next year thinks that in view of the then prevailing condition the tax is necessary, then he will have to bring this Bill for the consideration of the House. He will have to assign reasons for bringing in the Bill again and then the Bill will be placed before the House again and shall remain in force for another year.

Now, Sir, with reference to this matter, may I remind the honourable members of this House—

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: On a point of order, Sir. The honourable member has already spoken for more than 15 minutes and the speaker previous to him has spoken for 40 minutes. I submit this is against the rule.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: To which rule do you refer?

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: I refer to rule 42, sub-rule (4). Of course, the heading here is "Motions" and it may be objected to that this rule refers to motions and not to amendments to a Bill. To that I shall reply by saying that there are four procedures laid down as regards the discussion on points raised in the House. One relates to questions, the other to motions, the third to resolutions and the fourth to adjournment motions. There is no other way by which a point can be raised in the House and no question can be discussed except by way of raising it as a motion. Therefore, Sir, the general provision relating to motions shall govern all discussions except those which are specially provided for. Now, as there is no special provision in regard to Bills and amendments to the clauses of Bills, this rule 42 is the only rule which would apply. As a matter of fact, Sir, if this salutary rule is not made applicable, there will be no end of the discussion on the clauses of the Bill in the House and it will go on ad infinitum. In every legislature some provisions are made in order even to curtail discussion on certain classes of motions, when it appears not likely to be concluded within a certain time. But here at least this salutary rule should be made applicable.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, may I speak on the subject of this point of order

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Yes.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, so far as I am aware, the rule limiting the discussion on amendments to the clauses of a Bill to 15 minutes has never been applied in the case of discussion of Bills. My learned friend's difficulty is that he fears that there would be no end of discussion. But, Sir, there are some salutary checks on endless discussions. There is a rule that if a member is guilty of tedious repetition, then he can be brought to a halt. Then there is also the rule of relevancy; and the President has always the power to require a particular member to be relevant. If he is found to be irrelevant, then he can be brought to a halt. There is also another procedure which may be resorted to, viz., the closure motion. If any particular member has spoken for an inordinately long time, then it is the President's discretion to stop him and to see that there is a reasonable debate. Therefore, there are checks of reasonableness, of relevancy and of prevention of repetition. I think there is another automatic check in the good sense of the House and in the over-riding power of the President. These are, I think, specific and sufficient reply to Mr. Hamidul Huq's objection.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I point out to you, Sir, that rule 74 of the Council Procedure Rules provides that "if a motion that the amendments be taken into consideration is carried, the President shall put the amendments to the Council in such manner as he thinks most convenient for their consideration." As to the limit of time for consideration of the amendments and for the speeches on the amendments, everything is left to the discretion of the President. The second point that is provided in rule 74 is that—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, you are referring to rule 74. But this rule relates to Bills originating in the Council—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But, Sir, this Bill has come from the Assembly and is now being considered here—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Das, I should like to be assisted only on the point at issue, namely, whether sub-clause (f) of rule 42 applies in the case of Bills.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: My friend, Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury, has referred to rule 42, sub-clause (f), which is in Part IV of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules. There, we find that "except with the permission of the President no speech upon any motion shall exceed fifteen minutes in duration". Now, with regard to a motion itself if you look at rule 37—and for that purpose you will have to go to Part IV also—you will find the following:—

- (1) A matter requiring the decision of the Council shall be brought forward by means of a question put by the President on a motion proposed by the President himself or by any other member.
- (2) A member who wishes to move a motion (other than a motion for which is specified period is otherwise prescribed) shall give notice of his intention to the Secretary ten days before the meeting at which he intends to move the motion:

Provided that the President may, in his discretion, admit at any time any motion at shorter notice than that prescribed by any rule or may admit a motion without notice.

Now, let us look at other provisions on this subject. Part V deals with the question of Legislation and the gentlemen who framed the rules under this Part considered that the question of legislation was the most serious thing to be considered by members of the House and as it has been admitted that the Upper House is a revising Chamber, the framers of the rules advisedly did not make any provision for time-limit in respect of speeches on amendments in Part V itself. If we now come to other parts of the Procedure Rules, I mean Part VI, here we will find that that part deals with resolutions. There again, we find that there is a rule, rule 93, which provides for a specific time-limit for discussion of resolutions. Then if we go to Part VII, there again, we will find a rule, rule 102, which lays down limitation of time for discussion of adjournment motions. These are the four Parts dealing with discussion in this House, namely, Parts IV, V, VI and VII. These four parts deal with discussion and with regard to every one of them except in the case of the part that deals with legislation, we find a time-limit provided. Therefore, I submit that the question about time in the case of speeches on amendments to Bills was specifically and advisedly left undefined, because we know that while dealing with legislation we have to speak of many things. As my friend, Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad, has pointed out the penalty of repeating oneself, the penalty of going beyond the bounds of relevancy—these are enough checks on a speech apart from the question of time-limit. Therefore, I submit that the point of order raised by Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury has no legs to stand upon.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: With regard to rule 42 my submission will be that it is absolutely irrelevant for the consideration of the present matter, because rule 42 has got no relevancy with regard to the matter we are now discussing. Discussion in regard to legislation is governed by Chapter V, as has just now been pointed out by my friend Mr. Mookerjee. It will be found that Part V is divided into several chapters or rather sub-parts (a), (b), (c), (d), etc. If you look to (d), you will find that provision is made there for consideration of amendments to Bills. We are not at all concerned with Part IV; we are concerned with Part V, as we are dealing with legislation and we are considering the question of amendments to Bills after the question of taking it into consideration has been adopted. Therefore, the framers of the rule took into consideration the fact as to whether there should or should not be any time-limit with regard to these discussions. As has just now been pointed out, there is a time-limit provided for consideration of various other motions; but so far as these motions are concerned, Part V(d) does not at all refer to any time-limit. Therefore, the contention that rule 42(f) lays down a time-limit for speeches on Bills is absurd and is absolutely irrelevant. You are now to consider, Sir, whether within Part V you find any rule which would restrict the member as to time save and except the discretion of the President. So far as the question of amendments to Bills are concerned, there is absolutely no time-limit imposed on the members and reference to rule 42 is irrelevant.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, you told me that rule 74 refers to Bills originating in the Assembly and asked me to explain how it applies here. I say that rule 74 read with 80 would show that it applies to Bills sent to this House from the Assembly. If you look to rule 80 which says—“If the motion made under rule 77 that the Bill be taken into consideration is carried, the Bill shall be taken into consideration and the provisions of these rules regarding consideration of amendments to Bills (save that the period of notice of amendments shall be seven days) and the subsequent procedure in regard to the passing of Bills originating in the Council shall apply”, it will be seen that rule 74 shows the procedure regarding Bills originating in the Council and sent to us or returned from the Assembly. Therefore, I say that rule 74 applies in this case. It is the only rule which refers to the procedure for consideration of amendments. Rule 42 does not apply to amendments to a Bill and it has been admitted by Mr. Chowdhury himself that there is no such provision relating to amendments to a Bill. But for the consideration of the amendments to any Bill, rule 74 is the only rule, where it is stated: “the President shall put the amendments to the Council in such manner as he thinks most convenient for their consideration”. Ample power has been given to carry on the debate just as the President would allow and no fetter has been placed on the discretion of the President. In fact, much latitude has been given to all members in such cases to discuss the provisions of a Bill from different points of view so that there may not be any loophole left. So my request is that you consider rule 74 read with rule 80 which deals with the procedure for the consideration of amendments. Section 42 referred to by Mr. Chowdhury has no application here.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, the question has been raised as to whether rule 42 applies or not. In this connection, definition of the word “motion” may be read. What is a motion? The word “motion” has been defined in sub-section (5) of section 1, Part I of the rules. It says “‘motion’ means a proposal made by a member for the consideration of the Council relating to any matter which may be discussed by the Council, and includes an amendment”. So, Sir, the definition makes the meaning of the word “motion” clear and rule 42 says that it will apply in the case of a motion. So, according to this definition, amendment to a Bill or any matter which is the subject-matter of discussion in this House is a motion. Therefore, in my humble opinion rule 42 applies to amendments to Bills also.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, we have listened to the points raised by Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury; but before I speak on the points which he has raised, I would refer to the particular clauses in the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules. I would draw the attention of the honourable members to the convention of this House and I would mention to you, Sir, that it has already been held in this House by more than one President that there is no definite time-limit so far as the discussion of amendments is concerned. I do not remember whether you have given any such ruling but I definitely remember that the late Hon'ble Mr. S. C. Mitter gave one such. Very recently when the circulation motion of this Bill was before the House, my friends opposite raised the question of the limitation of time. I claimed that there was no such time-limit fixed for such motions and I was upheld by the Hon'ble President that so long as I do not violate rule 15, I was free to discuss anything I liked and that so far as money Bills are concerned, anything is relevant from the post-boy to His Majesty the King. I think that is the exact language used by the President of the Central Legislative Assembly during the discussion of a select committee motion with regard to a money Bill.

Now, coming to rule 42, as has already been pointed out, it deals with motions. It refers to time-limit in connection with motions. Part VI deals with resolutions and Part VII relates to adjournment motions. There is time-limit for all these different debates but there is no such time-limit for the discussion of amendments to Bills. In the case of legislation, there is a glaring and significant absence of any time-limit because it was never intended that there should be time-limit so far as discussion on Bill clauses is concerned. I would draw your attention to rules 66 and 67 where the procedure for considering the Bill clause by clause is laid down. Mr. Lalit Chandra Das has referred to rules 74 and 80 which taken together, govern our proceedings so far as consideration of Bills are concerned. I would therefore submit that rule 15 governs the whole procedure of the Legislature and it gives to the President the power to control debates and prevent irrelevancy or repetition. Beyond rule 15 no other rule applies so far as the discussion of matters relating to legislation is concerned. Therefore, I submit, Sir, that you will hold that the point of order raised by Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury is not maintainable. Rule 42 specifically refers to motions. We shall be governed by Part V, namely, by rules 48 to 86.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: In regard to the point of order raised by Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury, the point at issue is: whether sub-clause (4) of rule 42 of the Council Procedure Rules applies in the case of legislation also. I have very carefully considered the matter, and I find that the word "motion" occurs twice, once under Part IV and again under Part V. Part V deals with legislation, and there is no provision anywhere under Part IV for imposing any time-limit. There are two rulings in this connection. One ruling was given by the late President Mr. S. C. Mitra in which he ruled that "our rules do not provide for any time-limit as regards the speeches during the discussion of Bills." Then he referred to another ruling in the Central Assembly where exactly the same question arose. One honourable member, Mr. Ahmed, asked—"Is there no time-limit for speeches, Sir?" The ruling of the Chair was—"The honourable member is referred to the Rules and Standing Orders. There is no time-limit when legislation is being discussed." So, I rule the point raised by Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury out of order.

MR. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, may I again point out to you that—Several Opposition Members including Mr. Lalit Chandra Das: Sit down, sit down. You have no right of reply.

MR. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Don't howl. Keep quiet. I am rising on a point of order.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Don't show your temper. That is not a point of order.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: That is for the Chair to decide. You keep quiet. Sir, I wanted to ask you one point.

Several honourable members of the Opposition. Don't ask anything, sit down.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: You dam——(inaudible). (Shouts and counter-shouts went on.)

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, he has called us "dam buggers." He must withdraw it. (Cries of "withdraw", "withdraw" from several Opposition members.)

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: I have not said that.

Dr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: He says he has not used that expression.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: If he is a gentleman, he should stand up and say that he has not said it.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: I did not say "dam buggers". What I said was "paglas", and I withdraw it.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: What he said was "dam paglas".

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: Sir, to bring down the temper of the House, I resume the thread of my argument. I am glad that my honourable friend Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury raised this point of order as we have still got to consider about 497 amendments and considering the seriousness of the Bill and the seriousness of the situation, and also the seriousness of the fact that a new tax is going to be imposed upon the poor agriculturists of Bengal, I think the point of order was raised just in the nick of time and decided to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Now, Sir, to resume the thread of my speech with reference to the amendment that has been moved by Mr. Humayun Kabir. I think I was dealing with the second part of the amendment when this interruption was made. The second part of the amendment states that the Bill shall remain in force till the 31st day of March following. Now, Sir, if we refer to the statement of the Hon'ble Finance Minister and the repeated appeals that he has made to the House so far as the present Bill is concerned he made it quite clear that the Bill has been introduced by reason of the unprecedented fact that the budget of the present year was in deficit to the extent of more than 11 crores. I submit that the Hon'ble Finance Minister will realise and I think he should be attentive to what I say now—for I see that he is now attending to other business. I do not know, Sir, whether you will ask him to listen to my remarks. (Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA DUTTA: That is not showing proper courtesy to the House on the Minister's part.) Sir, I am saying something which should be listened to by the Hon'ble Minister.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SAHABUDDIN: Sir, I find that the Hon'ble Finance Minister is speaking to an honourable member of the Opposition who has gone over to him for some information and it is hardly graceful on the part of the Opposition to complain of this.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: May I submit that I was only explaining certain things to an honourable member of the Opposition at his own request and may have appeared to be inattentive, but I did not mean it.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: I think what we are saying are all meant for the ears of the Hon'ble Finance Minister and if he does not care to listen to us it would probably be useless for us to refer to these matters.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: It is almost time for us to adjourn; may I therefore enquire how long you will take to finish your speech, Mr. Mukherji?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: About 10 minutes or 15 minutes, because I shall have to refer to Finance Acts of other countries.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I suggest that we sit longer hours in order to make some progress with the Bill.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherji, you better conclude your speech today in another five minutes.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: I am sorry, I have an engagement just at 5 o'clock today and so I would like to continue tomorrow. It was ordinarily understood that as this House never sat beyond two hours, today also it would not sit longer. That is why I made an engagement at 5 o'clock. If the time is extended, then proper notice should have been given to us beforehand. If, however, that is the sense of the House we are quite prepared to sit longer hours, but today I submit that we may stop at this hour.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherji, I can give you 10 minutes if you conclude your speech today.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: Sir, I may finish my speech tomorrow, as I may take 10 or 15 minutes. I have got an engagement just now and I think it is an unreasonable request which the Hon'ble Leader of the House has made to extend the hours.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I think there are precedents of House sitting till midnight. So my request is not at all unreasonable.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: In case of longer sitting and change in the hours of sitting, we want previous notice.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: There are also precedents of Parliament sitting till early hours in the morning. The request made by me was not unreasonable. I do not force the honourable members to sit for longer hours. It is only a request.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Certainly, Sir, if you so desire, the hours may be extended. But generally this House does not sit for more than two hours. Today as there was no previous notice, it may be inconvenient to some members. If it is the desire to have a longer sitting hours, in future you may extend the time after consulting the different parties. The Leader of House is prepared to sit up till midnight, we are also prepared to do so.

Khan Sahib NURUL AMIN: Sir, when you asked Mr. Mukherji to finish his speech in 10 minutes, he was agreeable but afterwards he said he had engagement. He said nothing when you granted him 10 minutes to finish his speech.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I think the point should be considered by the House as to how long it should sit. But before the settlement is made, I do not think we should sit for more than two hours. So I adjourn the House now till 3 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 3 p.m. on Thursday, the 6th July, 1944.

Mr. Deputy President (Khan Bahadur ABDUL HAMID CHOWDHURY, J.P.) was in the Chair.

Points of Information.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, we find from today's agenda that there are no questions, though a large number of questions tabled by the honourable members still remain unanswered. Will you kindly enquire from the Government whether they intend to answer these questions at all or whether, as was once said by the Hon'ble Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy, questions if they are not answered in time become so out of date that they need not be answered at all.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, every attempt is being made to answer questions as quickly as possible. The bulk of the outstanding questions relate to the Civil Supplies Department and every body knows how busy the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies is. So, some delay is bound to take place in regard to questions relating to his department. As regards the questions of the other departments, their number is not at all large and every effort is being made to answer those questions quickly.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, there is another matter to which I would like to draw your attention as well as the attention of the honourable members and that is with regard to the resolution given notice of by me in connection with the grant of help to literary figures of Bengal. In order to take that resolution out of its turn, 30 members of this House had signed a representation, as required under our rules. I understand the Hon'ble President had given his consent that it should be taken out of turn. I now learn that Government are very nervous about the discussion of that resolution in the House and even though 30 members have signed the representation, sanction of the Hon'ble Minister concerned has not yet been obtained. May I through you ask what are the great difficulties in the way of Government to allow this harmless and non-political resolution to be taken out of its turn and discussed on the floor of this House?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I am told that the Hon'ble Minister has refused his consent.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Yes, we know that, and that is why I am asking you what are the reasons for refusing consent to a non-political and harmless resolution like this. Are we to understand that when the rules were framed, they were meant to be arbitrarily exercised, that they should be exercised in a manner which is without any justification whatsoever? No question of policy is involved in the resolution. In fact, 30 members expressed their desire in favour of discussing that resolution out of turn and out of those 30 members, half belong to the Government party. Then what are the reasons that have led the Hon'ble Minister to refuse consent to this resolution?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The Hon'ble Minister concerned is not here to make any statement; but in this connection I may tell the honourable member that it is within the discretion of the Hon'ble Minister to refuse his consent.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, may I draw your attention to Rule 24 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules which provides that "the first hour of every meeting shall be available for the asking and answering of questions." Sir, there are outstanding questions and they can be placed before us, and at least one hour we can devote for the purpose of putting supplementary questions.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I think we have passed over that matter.

Motion for Adjournment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I have received from Mr. Nagendra Nath Mahalanobish notice of a motion for adjournment to the effect that this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the failure of the Government to supply sugar to the Jalpaiguri town and district during the last two months according to quota allotted, in spite of repeated requests and reminders by the local authorities, causing serious distress amongst the people of the said town and district.

Now, at the very outset, I would ask the honourable member to satisfy the House that it is an urgent matter of public importance, because this scarcity of sugar has occurred for the last two months.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, what I stated in my motion is that supplies did not come during the last two months with the result that at present there is absolutely no sugar available anywhere in the Jalpaiguri district and a situation of acute distress has arisen. It is the result of many months of inaction on the part of the Government. The persistent failure of the Government for the last two months in supplying sugar to the Jalpaiguri district and town in spite of repeated requests and demands has led to this situation. You cannot get a grain of sugar in the district. There is an acute distress which has resulted from this inaction on the part of the Government. This failure on the part of the Government to supply sugar to our district has been a continuing wrong. This distress is still continuing and will continue unless it is redressed by Government at once. Therefore, Sir, it is a matter which requires urgent consideration and it is of urgent public importance.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: There are other factors which also have got to be taken into account in this connection. It is known to one and all that the major portion of sugar comes from outside Bengal over which this Government has no control and also that this Government has nothing to do with the quota of sugar that is fixed for Bengal. This question again is linked up with the question of transport over which also this Government has no control. Therefore, I cannot understand how the Government of Bengal can be held responsible for this state of things in Jalpaiguri.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Now, Sir, with regard to that aspect of the matter, I would like to draw attention to the provisions with regard to the moving of adjournment motions. I must confess that I am a comparatively new member and am not fully acquainted with the conventions obtaining here. But so far as I have been able to ascertain, the rules regarding adjournment motions are to be found at page 7 of the Rules which I understand have got the force of law. Now, Sir, if you will kindly turn to rule 97, you will find that we have got the right of moving adjournment motions for discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance. The first point, therefore, is, that there is not the slightest doubt that if the facts are true,—and no doubt they are true because I have got personal knowledge of the matter, being a member of the District Executive Food Committee, and President of the Town Food Committee,—they are also definite matters of urgent public importance. Now, the question is: whether my adjournment motion is liable to be disallowed on any of the grounds mentioned in rules 98 and 99. I would like to refer to section 100 first. There, you will find that the last sentence in clause 1 of rule 100 says that after an adjournment motion has been put in his hands in time, the Secretary shall inform the member, as early as possible, whether the President has given his consent or not. Of course, I do not know—I have not had the privilege of having a communication from the Secretary—however I put in a notice but I think that is assumed—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: What rule you are referring to?

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: I am referring to rule 100(1), last sentence, to the effect that the Secretary shall inform the member as early as possible whether the President has given his consent or not.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Well, we are not concerned with that. My point has no bearing on that.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Certainly not. With your permission, I am only placing the position of a member who wants to move an adjournment motion—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will you not kindly allow us to show how this matter is a matter of urgent public importance?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. Before I give my ruling on this adjournment motion, may I know either from the Hon'ble the Leader of the House or from the Hon'ble the Chief Minister if it would be convenient on the part of the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department to make a statement which may throw some light on the circumstances connected with the failure of supply of sugar to the Jalpaiguri district?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Mr. Suhrawardy is expected to be back tomorrow and a statement explaining the whole position may be made by him tomorrow.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I have looked up the notes in the office of the Civil Supplies Department on this subject and can say that every step is being taken to relieve the situation: that much I can assure the honourable members of this House.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: After what has fallen from the Hon'ble the Chief Minister, perhaps the honourable member will have no objection to wait till tomorrow!

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: What about the question of urgency? Will it be waived?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: That will be waived if it is found otherwise in order.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: On the urgency of the question I want to say something: this matter may wait till tomorrow.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: What about the question of urgency: will that be waived?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I shall consider that point. If it is otherwise in order, I will waive urgency of the motion.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: In any case, the difficulty of my constituency has been brought before the Council.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, are we to understand that the question of urgency would be waived?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Yes, if I find the motion otherwise in order.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I intervene in this matter for a minute or two? The facts are before you and the rule is there—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: No discussion is necessary today, because the motion is postponed till tomorrow.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It will come up tomorrow but with regard to the question of urgency, will it be waived?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. The matter should not be prejudiced by further continuing it today.

Communication from the Government intimating action taken on Motion under rule 112.

SECRETARY (Dr. S. K. D. Gupta): Sir, the following communication has been received from the Government, intimating the action taken by them on the motion (copy enclosed), regarding release of Mahatma Gandhi and other Congress leaders, moved in and adopted by the Council on the 16th July, 1943, under rule 112 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules:—

The Hon'ble Chief Minister has requested the Governor to make the views of the Bengal Legislative Council known to the proper quarter.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The House will now resume further discussion of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944. Mr. Mukherjee.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of order, Sir. Regarding the communication read by the Secretary, the latter portion has not been read out. What is the communication to the Government of India?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: What is your query?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: The Chief Minister has requested the Governor to make the views known to the proper quarter; but the latter portion has not been read out. What is the request made by the Chief Minister?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order, it is not necessary. Yes, Mr. Mukherjee.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Mr. President, Sir, I was dealing with the second part of the amendment moved by Mr. Humayun Kabir when we rose yesterday. I may read again the second part which runs as follows: "and shall remain in force till the 31st day of March following". The idea is that the Act should be renewed every year: the Finance Minister every year would have to come before this House for the purpose of establishing the necessity of the tax and also the necessity for imposing it and including it in the schedule. These are the two important things which have got to be considered and the amendment has been worded in this way because the Finance Minister has brought the Agricultural Income-tax Bill as a permanent measure without making any provision in the Act itself so that certain portions of it might be renewed every year and brought before the House as is done in the case of the English Finance Act. Mr. Nur Ahmed raised objection to this procedure being followed; but I would show that his objection has no legs to stand upon, because looking to the Act as it is there is no other alternative for the honourable mover but to move the amendment in the way he did.

Now, Sir, if we look to the General Income-tax Act of 1918, we will find that the very first section makes provision for the rate at which the tax shall be charged. Then there are other provisions with regard to the claiming of allowances and they are to be renewed every year. If we look to the Finance Act of 1920 we will find that the rate has been prescribed for the year 1920. We will find that from section 14 onwards and there the rate and the allowances which are to be claimed with reference to the tax for that particular year are detailed. I need not dilate upon that point again. I take another Finance Act of 1936. There again you will find from section 14 onwards making different provisions suitable for that year for the purpose of the rate and also the allowances to be given. Coming to the last year, 1942, or year before the last, I believe I would like the honourable members to refer to one particular section so that the Hon'ble the Finance Minister might note what are the considerations which he has to bear in mind for the purpose of giving relief to the assesses whom he wants to tax. The relevant provisions will be found from section 21 onwards. If the Hon'ble Minister will look to section 26 of the Finance Act of 1942, he will find the provisions as follows: "If it is shown in the case of a person assessed to income-tax under Schedule E in respect of any office or employment not being a weekly wage-earner assessed in accordance with rule 2 of the rules applicable to cases I and II of Schedule D that his place of work or his residence has changed through circumstances connected with the present war and that in consequence he is obliged to incur out of the emoluments of the office or employment additional expenses in travelling between his residence and his work, the additional expense so incurred and defrayed shall be allowed as a deduction from emoluments in computing the amount of the assessment." These considerations are shown by the British taxing authorities to the assesses who are to be taxed under the British Finance Act.

Now, I think the Hon'ble the Finance Minister knows full well that due to war many villagers and cultivators and owners of lands have been asked to leave their villages, to leave their own hearths and homes, to go away elsewhere and therefore it is necessary that provision should be made to give them relief. These people will be affected by the Agricultural Income-tax Act and you will have to consider these provisions before you want to tax their income which they are supposed to have derived with respect to the properties during the last year. It would be a great hardship to them if you do not take all these facts into consideration. I submit that it is necessary that this matter should be considered every year and the Hon'ble the Finance Minister for the time being will have to place before the House and to face the House with regard to particular circumstances prevailing in every year when he will want to bring up a provision for taxing the agricultural population of Bengal. With these few words, Sir, I support the amendment of Mr. Kabir.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, the amendment consists of two parts. The first part deals with the commencement of the Act, and the second part prescribes its termination. With regard to the commencement of the Act, there is this thing to be said in favour of the amendment that people should get some breathing time in order to adjust their matters and be ready for an imposition as contemplated in this Bill. With regard to the termination of the Act, some amount of confusion of thought prevails in the House. A very experienced member of this House has stressed the fact that the amendment says nothing about renewal of the Bill. I think the condition of renewal is so inherent in the amendment that it does not require any explanation. According to the amendment, the Bill should expire automatically on the 31st of March, 1945, unless renewed. This would necessitate the Hon'ble Finance Minister to renew the life of the Act by a short amendment, namely, by substituting the figure 1946 for the figure 1945. I, therefore, think that this is so much implied and so clear that there can be no doubt about it.

Then, Sir, we have heard in this House that the time of the House is being wasted. I think here also there is some misunderstanding. I do not think the time of the House is being wasted. The "unusual" request made to the House by the Hon'ble Finance Minister to drop all amendments, has created some uneasiness among some serious members in the House. We should sympathise with the Hon'ble Minister, but the House has a duty to discharge. The request made by the Hon'ble Minister is nothing unusual. During the last seven years that this House is functioning, we have heard this request so many times, and the promise of an amending Bill has so frequently made and so often forgotten, that it has ceased to be of any interest to us. In fact, Bills after Bills have come before this House and holes after holes have been picked and very good amendments were on many occasions withdrawn or not moved by us at the request of the Hon'ble Ministers in charge on the so-called grounds of convenience.

Matters are going from bad to worse. The bad drafting of Bills is so much a by-word in this House that it has received strong condemnation from different sections of the House including the European Benches, who are not accustomed to talk too much; but even they were so much irritated that they also expressed their condemnation. Faulty drafting of Bills has become a chronic affair. The House therefore has to consider what it has to do. On the one hand there is the request of the Hon'ble Minister to give him a free passage this time for a promise that a better Bill would come. In fact, such promises have been made before and have been regularly broken. In the circumstances, there are great difficulties in accepting this suggestion. There is, on the other hand, a feeling in the House that however, reasonable the amendments might be and however convincing the arguments might be in their favour, they will not be accepted by the Government. The comfortable majority which the Government has at the present moment in the House, makes it incumbent on the part of independent members to explain their reasons fully. It is not that we are addressing this honourable House only, but we are also addressing a very large public outside and also, if I may be permitted to suggest, even posterity too. The fact that Bills are badly drafted will reflect no credit on this House; in fact this complaint has been repeated time after time and if we allow this Bill to be passed as it is it will create a very bad impression on the work that is being done in this House. In these circumstances, it is necessary, specially in the case of a badly drafted Bill like this, that members of this House should dissociate themselves from bad drafting and refuse to take responsibility for the rebukes that this bad drafting will evoke from the law courts and from the public. There are so many defects in the Bill, so many gross and careless mistakes and the rate at which the Legislative Department or persons in charge of the drafting of Government Bills proceeds, and the rate at which things are deteriorating, suggests that unless a definite stand is made by this House the disease will be aggravating. There are very highly paid officers in the Legislative Department and it is their business to draft Bills correctly.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur, these remarks may be made at the time of the third reading of the Bill. Therefore, please confine your observations only to the amendment before the House.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I am grateful to you, Sir, for this direction; but my only justification for making those remarks at this stage was the charge made that some members are rather disposed to waste the time of the House. That is a very serious charge. I was trying to justify a fuller treatment of amendments than would otherwise have been necessary. In fact, if there was a tendency on the side of the Government to consider the amendments with any sympathy and attention, and if they were in a position to consider them on their merits, then probably this feeling would not have arisen; and the situation that has arisen out of this attitude has not been made at all easier by the unusual outburst of my friend Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury yesterday. We are getting accustomed, in the serene atmosphere of this House, to the vulgarities of the fish market. I was thus compelled to make those remarks in justification of the fuller treatment of the amendments. I, however, bow down to your ruling that normally, at this stage of the Bill, we should confine ourselves to the merits of the amendment only. With these words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Mr. Deputy President, it was, of course, open to my honourable friend Professor Humayun Kabir to hang an essay on English constitutional history on the peg of his amendment. It was a learned discourse—that I felt instinctively; whether it was a very accurate recount of constitutional history—of that I have some doubts; but as to the irrelevancy of his remarks in connection with the amendment itself, I have not the slightest doubt.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: It is a reflection on the Chair.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, this amendment proposes that the Bill should come into force about two or three months before, and should expire on the 31st day of March, 1945. I may point out, Sir, that for the purpose of enacting such a Bill the Legislature of Bengal has already taken about 8 or 9 months. Is it the wish or the suggestion of my honourable and learned friend that each year we should spend 8 or 9 months in getting a new Agricultural Income-tax Bill passed? It is true that the practice of having the Finance Bill as a sequel to the Budget every year in the Central Legislature is a salutary practice. But I have to submit that a Finance Bill of that kind, having regard to the constitution under which we are working, is to a large extent impracticable in the Bengal Legislature. My honourable friend Mr. Kabir said that on one occasion I admitted that I had considered the question very seriously. But on that occasion I also mentioned that there were actual constitutional difficulties in introducing this procedure here. That, Sir, again is beside the point. What I wish to say is this: that, if he had been seriously desirous of attaining his object, he should have attacked some other part of the Bill. As it is, his amendment leads us to a reductio ad absurdum.

It was said by another honourable member that by means of this Bill we are seeking to tax incomes received during the year 1943—the year of the great famine. I would say that, while it is true that many people suffered great hardships last year, it is equally true that certain sections of the population earned much larger incomes than they could ever have expected to earn. After all, what are we taxing? We are only taxing net incomes of over Rs. 3,500; and such net incomes—that is, such assessable incomes—are to be computed after the very ample deductions provided in this Bill; so that we are really touching only those who have actually received net incomes of over Rs. 3,500. Naturally, they were not the people who were most hard hit by last year's distress. I know, Sir, that the honourable member wanted to be sentimental. But, Sir, he as a lawyer, a lawyer attached to many zemindari estates knows very well that the last year's zemindari collections were much higher than the annual collections of perhaps ten previous years. Therefore, there was surplus money somewhere.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a point of personal explanation, Sir. May I know from the Hon'ble Minister how much of this profit remains with the landlords after paying off their old debts?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I have myself suffered from debts and creditors; but assuredly that is not a reason why the Bengal Exchequer should not lay its hands on that part of the income which certainly is due to the State, for the amelioration of the condition of the people.

It has repeatedly been said that the Bill is objectionable because it is retrospective in character. According to leading authorities on Statute Law, a Bill should not be and cannot be properly regarded as "retrospective" if only certain stages in the passing of the Bill are posterior to the date on which it is deemed to take effect. This is an acknowledged principle; and further, Sir, it cannot be said that the public had no notice of the Bill. This Bill has been before the public since September, last year. So, there was ample notice to the people to adjust their domestic finances in view of the impending enactment of the Bill.

Sir, I think I have answered all the points that were at all relevant to the amendment and I hope that if the amendment is put to vote, the House will reject it.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that for sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following be substituted, namely:—

"It shall come into force on such date as may be notified in the Official Gazette, not being earlier than three months from the date of publication of the assent of His Excellency the Governor or the Governor-General as the case may be and shall remain in force till the 31st day of March following."

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. For the amendment—17; against the amendment—25. The amendment is, therefore, negatived.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move that in sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the words "be deemed to have" in line 1 be deleted and for the words "the 1st day of April, 1944" the words "the 1st day of April following the conclusion of the war" be substituted.

Sir, if this amendment is accepted, then sub-clause (3) of clause 1 would read thus: it shall come into force on the first day of April following the conclusion of the war. Sir, the time for this enactment is according to me most inopportune. The war is at the very gates of Bengal, and Bengal of all the provinces of India is suffering most from the effects of the war. Last year we had a famine in our midst and as a result many people died. Then, diseases followed after the famine which again carried away a large number of people. People of all status in society were hard hit. Of all the people who were the most hard hit, I can say without any fear of contradiction that rent-receivers and zamindars were the worst sufferers. (The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAYYED MU'AZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Certainly not) together with the agriculturists. I do not deny that as a result of the war some persons are profiting and that their income has increased. They generally are contractors and some of them are labourers also. But the other classes of people were very hard hit. The result was—and I say it is also the effect of the war—that the prices of all commodities and of all necessities of life rose so high that even persons who had an income of Rs. 700 a month four years back could not maintain their family with Rs. 3,500 a month last year or even this year. That was the result of high prices. Generally, in our society rent-receivers or zamindars have to maintain a large family consisting not merely of their sons and daughters and wives but also of their relations many of whom I know are poor. Along with this, one other thing should be considered. It is this: last year these people at the call of the Government of Bengal contributed to the Indian Red Cross Fund a sum of 40 lakhs of rupees. Similarly there were other calls and we know as a matter of fact that local authorities were not sitting idly over all these calls. These calls were mostly answered by the rich agriculturists and also by the rent-receivers and zamindars. They had to pay heavily and they paid without grudge. That is a fact which should not be overlooked. This year also there have been several calls already to help the war situation and I do say that the so-called rich agriculturists, and rent-receivers and zamindars will have to pay lavishly.

Sir, this year not 40 lakhs but 44 lakhs is to be contributed by the people of Bengal and I have no doubt that the rent-receivers and zamindars will have to pay heavily and I think the call will continue till the end of the war: 44 lakhs this year, possibly 50 lakhs next year and more afterwards and it will get up in this way till the war ends. I say that owing to the position in which the rent-receivers and zamindars are placed and owing to the high price of all necessities of life it is an undoubted fact that most of these people are heavily indebted. If, as the Hon'ble Finance Minister has said, their collections have been heavy, I am to say that their coffers are empty by this year and I think this will be their condition till the war ends. It is said and urged by the Hon'ble Finance Minister that the Government of India will watch what we do in respect of this Bill. I say that I am one of those who believe that the Government of India consist of a set of practical people and they have already granted 10 crores subvention and will do so in future if necessity arises. Our claim for subvention does not rest on this taxation measure alone. Our claim is based on account of the extraordinary charges in India due to war and the Government of India is solely responsible for meeting these charges. Famine is also one of the main grounds for subvention. These are factors which were taken into consideration by the Government of India and upon these factors the Government of India decided that we shall have subvention of 10 crores, no matter whether the Agricultural Income-tax Bill is passed or not.

The subvention we are bound to get and we will get more if necessity arises. When we think of Agricultural Income-tax Bill we should remember one other fact. This fact is that the Floud Commission in its report said that when a taxation measure like this is taken up it should be seen that the income derived from it is solely devoted for agricultural improvement or for projects connected with agriculture. This is the intention for which the agricultural income-tax is to be saddled upon the province of Bengal. Now, Sir, I ask in all seriousness if this purpose is to be carried out, it comes to this that the income that will accrue will have to be devoted for the improvement of agriculture. If the income cannot be diverted for any other purposes, how will it help the Government of India in any way whether we pass it now or it takes effect after the war? It would not affect at all the Government of India's decision about subvention. If it is passed into law without ear-marking of the income, whatever is derived will be misspent and will not be spent for the purpose for which it was originally intended. It was intended that it should be devoted for the improvement of agriculture. But if it is now passed into law and given effect to before the war concludes, there are so many calls for money now, that the money will not be spent for the purpose for which it was originally intended but will be diverted to wrong channels.

Now, one other fact in this connection should be remembered. In the course of couple of years the revenue of Bengal increased from Rs. 16 crores to Rs. 21½ crores. What benefit has been derived from this huge increase in income? I may then safely say that income derived from this agricultural income-tax will be also misspent. We have an increased revenue and far from reaping any benefit out of that increase we have famine and acute distress. Even now we are passing through acute distress. Therefore, my argument is that even if it is passed now, this tax should come into force from the 1st day of April following the conclusion of the war.

With these words, I move my amendment.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the words "be deemed to have" in line 1 be deleted and for the words "the 1st day of April, 1944" the words "the 1st day of April following the conclusion of the war" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, Government have made it abundantly clear that they want the law to come into force with effect from 1st April, 1944, and therefore it is my painful duty to oppose the amendment.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the words "be deemed to have" in line 1 be deleted and for the words "the 1st day of April, 1944" the words "the 1st day of April following the conclusion of the war" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

MR. AMULYA DHONE ROY: Mr. Deputy President, Sir, I beg to move: that in clause 1 of the Bill, for sub-clause (3) the following be substituted, namely:—

"(3) It shall come into force on the 1st day of April, 1945."

Sir, in the year 1923 when I was receiving my college education, I came to know a fine gentleman, then a candidate for election to the Indian Legislative Assembly and is now the Finance Minister of the province. Sir, in introducing measures for taxation after taxation his fine qualities have now been changed into an instrument of oppression, perhaps under circumstances over which he has no control. A Finance Minister unable to control and regulate the finances of the province has no right to come with a proposal for taxation with retrospective effect which is bad in principle and unfair to the assesseees. Sir, you must stop the expenditure incurred by the creation of unnecessary departments, you must prevent the loss of revenues on account of the corruption of the officials which has become a matter of frequent occurrence. Has the Hon'ble the Finance Minister ever enquired into the amount of damage suffered by the Government due to the purchase of paddy which were allowed to rot on the various railway platforms?

I was glad to know, Sir, just a few minutes back that the Hon'ble Finance Minister has exhausted all his arguments and he has no argument in favour of his proposal to give a retrospective effect to this Bill. His only argument is that the Bill was gazetted and the Bill was introduced before the 1st of April, 1944, and that is why he is in favour of retrospective effect. His argument is absurd and does not appeal to me. Sir, with these few words, I commend my amendment to the acceptance of the House.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved that in clause 1 of the Bill, for sub-clause (3) the following be substituted, namely:—

“(3) It shall come into force on the 1st day of April, 1945.”

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I would support the motion for amendment moved by my friend Mr. Amulya Dhone Roy, because another amendment which stands in my name is also practically to the same effect. Sir, if we compare the condition of things in Bengal during the last year with the condition of things that is prevailing now, it would be clear that but for the help afforded by the Central Government in supplying Calcutta and greater Calcutta with foodstuffs, it would have been impossible for the Bengal Government to provide the bare necessities of life, even rice, for 60 million inhabitants of Bengal. So far as the agricultural population who are going to be hit by the present Act is concerned, I submit, Sir, it will be admitted on all hands, that they have not been able to recover from the effects of the distress and famine that prevailed during the last year. It is clear that the Bengal Government has failed to reduce the price of rice to any appreciable extent. The price now ruling is in the region of Rs. 14 to Rs. 16 per maund, a price which was stated by the Government members when they were opposing the last Ministry as unheard of. If honourable members take the trouble of referring to the proceedings of the Assembly and the Council of the last year when the honourable members now supporting the Government were in the Opposition, it will be seen that they raised a hue and cry. I remember the speech of Mr. Hendry, the Leader of the European Group in the Lower House, which considered the price of rice then ruling, viz., Rs. 14 per maund to be very high, and mentioned that as the reason for opposing the last Ministry. It is only in some of the districts that rice is available at the controlled rate; in most of the districts rice is not available at the controlled rate. In Chittagong the situation is serious. We had it from a very high authority, namely, Mr. Badi Ahmed Chowdhury and Mrs. Nellie Sen Gupta, members of the Bengal Legislative Assembly, who represent the Chittagong district and who are personally aware of the things that are happening at Chittagong, that rice is not available at Chittagong even at Rs. 60 per maund and that people are dying there in the streets for want of foodstuffs. We have thus a repetition of the same state of things in Chittagong as we had in the whole of Bengal last year. It has commenced in Chittagong and if the situation is not tackled with care and sympathy, the distress may spread to other parts of Bengal gradually. I would request the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to consider whether or not he would shut his eyes to the distress of the people around him and enforce this Act at a time when people are hardly able to have a square meal. The provision that the Act shall come into force on the first day of April, 1944, i.e., that it will have a retrospective operation although it has not yet been considered and passed by the Bengal Legislature nor has it received the assent of His Excellency the Governor of Bengal, is something unique. To make a fiscal measure retrospective is a very serious thing and I would request the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to consider whether there is no way out except by making this Bill operative from the first day of April, 1944.

The Hon'ble Finance Minister has assigned three reasons why this Bill should be retrospective in its operation. The first reason that he has assigned is that the agriculturists have realised a large income last year owing to the phenomenal rise in the price of rice and the Government of Bengal therefore expect that they should get a share out of that in the shape of this taxation. Well, Sir, when I rose on a point of personal explanation, he gave away that ground quoting his own instance in particular. Then, the second reason which he assigned for making this Act retrospective was that the Bill was published in September, 1943, and that therefore the people have had enough opportunity to know what were the amounts which they were to pay as the tax. Had they known of the rate of tax which they were to pay, they would have laid by something so that they could pay the tax this year when the Bill was passed by both Houses of the Legislature and received the assent of the proper authorities. I submit that the proposition has only to be stated to be rejected as groundless. I submit that the Finance Minister has not been able to substantiate his reasons for making this fiscal measure retrospective. As a matter of fact, when a fiscal legislation is passed, people have got to know what are the amounts which they have got to pay and again I submit that the reasons which he assigned for making the Act retrospective have no substance which can be accepted by this House. I submit that it would be a dangerous thing. Let us now refer to other provisions in this Bill where provision is made as to the method of computation of the tax, for instance, to clause 6 of the Bill. We find there a provision that the tax is to be assessed in the current year with reference to the total agricultural income received in the previous year, i.e., for the year commencing from the 1st of April, 1943, to 31st March, 1944. The computation will have to be made on the basis of the income received in the year 1943-44. I have already stated what I had to say in this connection in moving another amendment and I am not going to repeat them now. I hope my honourable friends will remember that. It is clear that so far as the agricultural population is concerned, they have not yet been able to liquidate the debts, majority of which had been incurred for maintaining themselves during the last year's distress. I hope the Hon'ble Finance Minister is aware of the indebted condition of these people. The Finance Minister is also aware that in spite of the inflated income which a few of them received for the surplus crops which they could command, they have not yet been able to reach a position when they might regard themselves as beyond want. Government is also aware of the distress of the landlords, so far as Midnapore is concerned. As a representative of Midnapore I should bring these cases particularly to the notice of the Hon'ble Finance Minister for his consideration and I hope he will kindly listen to what I have to say in this matter. The landlords have not been able to pay the revenue and cess and their properties have been put up for sale. Even the big landlords like Mahisadal Raj Estate and Narajole Raj Estate and other landlords have had to apply to Government for exempting their estates from being sold for arrears of revenue.

The distress that is prevailing in some of the other districts is also equally acute. It may be that in some fortunate districts people may have just recovered themselves from the after-effects of the distress of last year. Even they, I submit, Sir, are entitled to have some respite in order to adjust themselves to the new situation that has been created by reason of the war. It is admitted that the prices of ordinary foodstuffs and all essential commodities, such as, cloth and other necessities have increased 300 per cent. and I would request the Hon'ble Finance Minister to consider whether or not he will allow some relief to the fortunate few who may have just recovered themselves from the after-effects of the distress. After all, it is a measure which is not going to meet the deficit in the budget to any very appreciable extent. We have been told that the Hon'ble Finance Minister expects to get at most a revenue to the extent of about 50 lakhs of rupees. I shall stand corrected if the Hon'ble Finance Minister wants to challenge my statement. The Central Government have granted a subvention of 10 crores to the Government of Bengal and we must thank His Excellency the Viceroy for that. We have been told that the subvention of 10 crores has been given subject to the condition that the Bengal Legislature should pass this taxation measure. But I submit that by postponing the provisions of the Act, after it is passed, till one year will not in any way affect the subvention that has been promised by the Central Government. I submit that if this tax is enforced from 1st April, 1944, it would be nothing but taking away a portion of the dal-bhat from the mouth of the people of Bengal which they require for their sustenance. I hope the Hon'ble Finance Minister will consider this matter seriously and agree to the postponing of the operation of the Act till a later date. Sir, the Government proposed some amendments so that there was no doubt that the Act would have to go back to the Lower House. But now I find that they are not going to move their amendments and these amendments may be moved by some other members of the House. I submit that the request of the Hon'ble Finance Minister that the Bill should be passed here in the shape in which it came out of the Lower House, is not a request which ought to have been made. There is one other point which I want to impress upon the Hon'ble Finance Minister. If by reason of discussion in this House honourable members are satisfied that there are some provisions which affect seriously the position of the assesses who are entitled to relief, is it not reasonable that the Bill should be amended and should go to the Lower House again; whether after being convinced that there are some provisions which ought to be changed and some amendments which ought to be accepted, they should not agree to the Bill being sent to the Lower House again? Simply because the Hon'ble Finance Minister says that he will have to go to the Lower House if changes are made, therefore they should not agree to this proposition. That should not be the attitude of the honourable members. There is one other fact so far as this matter is concerned. Either the Government have got a majority in the Lower House or they have not (the Hon'ble Mr. TULSHI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Certainly we have got majority). If they have got majority as the Hon'ble Finance Minister says, in the Lower House—if they have a comfortable majority, they should have no hesitation in accepting the amendments which are essential. Government themselves thought that there should be some change in the Bill and with that view they tabled amendments. If you can face the Lower House and if you have a majority there why not accept the amendments which are essential? If he has not got the majority in the Lower House, then I think it is the duty of the Government to resign. That is the point which I want to impress upon the Hon'ble the Finance Minister so far as this Bill is concerned. After all, Sir, the function of this House is to examine the provisions of the Bill and to revise them, if considered necessary. Sir, I hope the members of the Council will consider the responsibility which lie upon them in an important measure like this and will not consider these amendments as in any way censuring the Government. I emphasise upon this fact because it might possibly be the idea which is passing in the minds of the supporters of Government. When considering the provisions of a legislative enactment consideration should be given as to in what shape the Bill should emerge out of the Legislature. It is not a question of confidence or no confidence but it is the function of this House to see that the Bill emerges out of the Legislature in a perfect shape.

With these observations, Sir, I support the amendment.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, I would like to speak in support of the amendment, but before I do that I just want to have one information. There are amendments Nos. 11, 11A, 11B standing in my name and in others' names. Now, I want to know whether those amendments will come later on or whether the consideration of this amendment would automatically decide the fate of the other amendments.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The whole thing hinges upon the fate of this amendment.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: There is another information I want to know. On the 4th of July, I think Government said that they were not going to move any amendments proposed by them. I want to know which amendments they are going to move or which they are not going to move.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. Those things are irrelevant when considering this amendment.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: That is why I said in the beginning that I rose on a point of information. I do admit that these things are not relevant. I do not know in whose name those Government amendments are standing and whether Government would move any amendment at all.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. There is no knowing what amendments will be moved by Government. So, I would request you to confine your arguments to the amendment under consideration.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: All right. Sir, I wholeheartedly support the amendment. It seems to be a very reasonable amendment. It says that the Act shall come into force on the 1st day of April, 1945, that is, some time after or rather from the commencement of the next financial year after the passing of the Act. There is no unusual or unreasonable delay. It is well known that a taxing enactment should not be retrospective. Even ordinary enactments dealing with the rights of properties are not made retrospective simply because vested rights are affected. These are the general rules of legislation. I do not like to dilate upon that point which is perhaps known to every member of this House. The Hon'ble Finance Minister wanted to say that because this Bill had been published in September, 1943, and was before the public all these months, therefore there is justification for making this Bill retrospective. Let us examine that point. What does the publication of the Bill in the gazette mean? Does it at all entitle the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Finance who is sponsoring this Bill to put that Bill before the House or to move it for consideration—

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: The Bill was introduced in September last year.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: September last year means September, 1943, I think. That is what I am saying. Now, Sir, the publication of the Bill in the gazette does not ensure that the Hon'ble Finance Minister is entitled to put the Bill before the House or to move it for consideration—

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: The Bill was introduced in the Legislature in September last year.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: That is what I have been repeating—

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: You are talking of publication of the Bill in the Gazette. The Bill was published in the Calcutta Gazette in August last, and it was introduced in the Legislature in September, 1943.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: That makes no difference. It may have been introduced, but that does not, I submit, make any difference whatsoever, because this Bill was not circulated for eliciting public opinion thereon. This Bill has not passed through any Select Committee, nor has it passed through any Committee of the whole House so far as this House is concerned. Therefore, the mere introduction of this Bill is not sufficient. From the very beginning of the functioning of Legislatures in this world, Bills are being introduced, they are being considered and they are being passed. There is no reason why if a Bill is introduced in one year and passed in a subsequent year, that Bill should have retrospective operation. I do not understand the logic of it. I therefore submit, Sir, that that ground does not convince anybody as being a justification for making this Bill retrospective.

Now, another point that has been put forward is the subvention which we are supposed to be receiving. I do not know whether we are actually receiving it or we shall receive it in future from the Central Government. But unless we pass this Bill, according to the Hon'ble Finance Minister, we would not get that money. Granted. But what is the harm in making this Bill prospective instead of retrospective? If we have to get the money, we will get it; but it seems to be an absurd and unreasonable condition which suggests that unless this Bill is passed we should not get the money (the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Self-help). I quite understand the Central Government saying that unless you try to raise funds, we will not give you any money. But, if the Bill is made prospective having effect from the 1st of April, 1945, would that amount to saying that the Bengal Government or for the matter of that the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Finance has failed to do his duty? Would that justify the Central Government in going back upon their promise? I submit that this is an argument which cannot deceive even a child. But it is perhaps what I may call, in the absence of a better expression, zid on the part of the Ministers or of a particular Minister who wants to show his ability to carry through a Bill of this nature with retrospective effect in spite of opposition. But we have got a taste of that ability on the 4th of July here when he admitted that the Bill was defective in many material points which required amendment, but because the Assembly was not in session, therefore, they were not going to move the amendments which they themselves had tabled; and that he would bring in an amending Bill for the purpose of rectifying the mistakes that were found in the present Bill. Therefore, it is almost a confession that the Bill is not what it should be, that the Bill is not a Bill that any conscientious, intelligent Legislature should be asked to pass. Nevertheless, it is the ipse dixit of the Government. Whatever defects there may be in the Bill, we will still pass it, since by the counting of heads we are larger in number than the Opposition. We do not mind intelligence, we do not mind criticism: but because I say that I must pass it, therefore I must pass it. Whether Government will correct or amend the Bill later on or not, that is no business of mine at the moment, Sir. I do not care at all, because I know that these promises made today from the Treasury Bench are promises which are seldom fulfilled. For, it may be that the honourable gentleman who is now in charge of the Finance Department may not be in charge of that portfolio after a few months, so that these promises have got no value at all. They have not the binding force of a statute or of a resolution of this House. At the present moment I am considering the question as to whether the gentlemen now constituting Council would accept the ipse dixit of the Finance Minister or exercise their own commonsense or their brain and consider this question on its merits and then give their opinion on my contention that a tax enactment should not be retrospective, but that it should be prospective. Therefore, the earliest that the Bill can come into force is the 1st of April 1945. Well, Sir, I see that my friends on the other side are laughing. But I may say that we are not in the habit of laughing when my friends talk; it is neither courtesy nor good manners. When your opponents laugh—that certainly is not the etiquette of this Hon'ble House. However, I leave them to laugh as much as they like and let me go on with my argument. (Noise in the Government benches.) Mr. Deputy President, I am not wasting the time of the House but please see how the time of the House is being wasted by the other side.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Don't take notice of it. Please go on with your speech.

MR. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Now, Sir, the history of taxation on agricultural income in Bengal is perhaps commonly known. We have enjoyed this—

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. I would request the honourable member not to introduce any irrelevant points.

MR. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: I bow down to your ruling. But I submit that in order to explain that this delay of 9 or 10 months will not matter much, I was bringing in all those points.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I think you have already sufficiently discussed it.

MR. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: What I was submitting was that if the Government could do without this agricultural income-tax for the last two hundred years, whether they cannot wait for another 9 months. I think I am entitled to develop that point.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Yes.

MR. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Now, Sir, as you find from the history of the British administration in India, it is a history of promises from lips and not promises from the heart.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Are you speaking against the amendment or in favour of the amendment?

MR. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, I am developing my point to show that the delay of 8 or 9 months to enable the people to have time in order to pay this tax will not cause any harm and that it is not an unreasonable request that I am making. Government at that time introduced the Income-tax Act but deliberately omitted to tax income derived from the agricultural land. Then, Sir, there came the educational cess and other taxation measures affecting the land. There was no question of taxing the agricultural income. Now the question has arisen because Bengal is in need of agricultural tax for Bengal herself but necessity has arisen owing to certain peculiar circumstances under which Bengal finds herself today. No. 1 is war, No. 2 is proximity of war, Bengal and the consequential abnormal increase of the prices of necessities of life and No. 3 is the indiscriminate purchase by the military of food crops from Bengal which has had the effect of shooting up the prices of every article with the result that hundreds of thousands of people are dying.

necessitating the Government to spend an enormous amount of money in order to come to their relief. That is what I understand to be the burden of the song of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister—that a large amount of money had to be spent on that account and therefore although the Central Government are willing to help us, they would not help unless we impose this tax. Then, Sir, it is said that we must impose this tax with retrospective effect this year! I submit, Sir, that these facts and circumstances clearly indicate that this tax was forced upon Bengal. It was a tax which Bengal has been forced to adopt because of certain views held by the Central Government. And it cannot be argued by any reasonable and right-thinking man that that situation was brought about by mismanagement of the Bengal Government or this situation was certainly created by the agencies beyond the control of the Government of Bengal. In these circumstances, don't you think it is extremely reasonable for the Government of Bengal to say to the Central Government that this Bill should not be passed with retrospective effect but should be passed with prospective effect, that is, from the earliest available opportunity, or from the next financial year, namely, 1st April, 1945? May I not suggest to the Hon'ble the Finance Minister that he should very kindly take into consideration this aspect of the matter and then come to the decision finally whether the request involved in this amendment is not reasonable?

Now, Sir, you will find from the other provisions in the Bill that you are going to tax the people not on this year's income but on the income of the previous year. Sir, I am not wrong perhaps when I say that not even $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. of the people care to read the Calcutta Gazette or, read the proceedings of this House or the other House. But immediately with the passing of this Bill, machinery will be set up for the realisation of taxes and the people will be asked to produce accounts of the last year and and will also be asked to pay taxes. In these circumstances, how do you feel that the people would behave? Now, let us assume for the sake of argument that the salary that the Hon'ble the Finance Minister is drawing is being drawn from his own agricultural income. He cannot know that there would be a taxation enactment with retrospective effect and he must have in the ordinary course of things spent his income from lands.

Then, as regards keeping of accounts. Now, Sir, very big zemindars have got staff to keep accounts but at the same time there are a large number of people who have got income from agriculture but do not keep accounts. How they will be able to furnish accounts and pay taxes of the previous year? Every company or every business house keeps accounts ---

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: On a point of order, Sir. Are all these things relevant?

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Perhaps he is developing his arguments. However, Mr. Mahalanobish, please try to conclude as soon as possible.

MR. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, how can I speak when the honourable members are talking so much. I cannot speak when there is so much noise in the House, because that is not a proper atmosphere to speak on an important legislation of this kind. (Khan Sahib Fariduddin Ahmed: No body will be sorry for that.) That submission should be made to the Chair and not to me.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: You need not take any notice of those remarks.

MR. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: As I was saying, every business house or firm keeps account of the incomes and expenditure of the transactions. Now, we are passing through the month of July and if we are asked to pay taxes from April, 1944, then we shall have to take recourse to borrowing or selling some of the articles for the purpose of paying taxes. Money which they had has already been spent merrily, knowing full well that they had paid off their old debts and that there was no other debt. Now, by one stroke of the pen you are going to make the people liable to pay tax on the money which they had practically spent without having the slightest idea that they will have to disgorge it. It may be that the man who made that income that year has had to sell out his land last year, and the big profits that he might have made owing to the high price of food crops may not be with him now. In the circumstances, is it fair to ask him to pay tax on that income which he earned but which he has spent without knowing that a liability would come soon? I, therefore, submit, Sir, that considered from whatever point of view, you will find that there is not the slightest justification for making a taxing enactment like this retrospective in effect.

Now, Sir, if it is permissible for me to refer to the original Bill, I would just refer to clause 1, sub-clause (3), which says that "it shall come into force on such date as the Provincial Government may by notification in the official gazette appoint." You will, therefore, see, Sir, the publication of this Bill or its introduction in the Legislature would not give the people any notice that Government is going to have the Bill with retrospective effect so that the income that the people had earned in the year 1943 will have to be disgorged in the year 1944. Therefore, Sir, my submission, is that this amendment is not only a reasonable amendment having regard to the circumstances prevailing in Bengal at the present moment, but it is a reasonable amendment which is consistent with the invariable practice of the Legislatures in every part of the civilized world. I wonder whether Bengal has gone out of that pale.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, will you allow me to speak on this amendment, or you will allow me to move my amendment No. 11?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I think I have already given my decision on this point to the effect that if this amendment is negatived, you cannot move your amendment. You may speak on this amendment, if you like.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, the Hon'ble Finance Minister has not been able to show a single instance wherein a Finance Act was made retrospective. Generally, Acts are prospective but Finance Acts are never made retrospective. Indeed the present Government in introducing the Bill never intended that this Bill should be retrospective in its operation. The Bill according to the statement of the Finance Minister was introduced in September, 1943. It was introduced in September, 1943, to be passed that session. That shows indeed that the Government meant that it would be prospective and not retrospective. For the Bill was to come into effect on the 1st of April, 1944. Therefore, I submit that Government stand convicted out of their own mouths and they should not now want to make it retrospective. Having introduced the Bill in the Lower House in September, 1943, and not having proceeded with the Bill they allowed the Bill almost to lapse. In fact, 1943 is a record year; it was a year of the greatest distress. Bengal passed through a famine. Government took into consideration all these surrounding circumstances. They had not therefore the courage to pass the Bill in the September Session of 1943 and to push it through the Council because they knew that by doing so they would be the butt-end of ridicule of all and sundry. Therefore, they took counsel amongst themselves and kept silent. They waited to tide over this difficult period and had allowed matters so to drift that the public were led to believe that this Bill would not be at all proceeded with. This is what I construe their action to be; otherwise, if they found that additional income was necessary, absolutely necessary, there was no reason why they should not have pushed it then through the Legislature in hot haste. I, therefore, urge that when they introduced the Bill they had not really meant it to be retrospective. Having therefore lulled the public into a feeling of security that the Bill would not be proceeded with, how can the Hon'ble Finance Minister now take advantage of the fact that the Bill had already been before the public having been published in the Calcutta Gazette in August, 1943, and introduced in the other House in September, 1943? Can he really take advantage of that fact? I would say that this fact rather goes against the Government, for having introduced the Bill they did not proceed with it and thus they actually allowed the public to believe that the Bill would not be proceeded with. Now I beg to draw the attention of the House to clause 6 of the Bill which says inter alia:-

"Agricultural income-tax shall be payable by an assessee under the head 'Agricultural income from rent or revenue' in respect of all rent and revenue, including any local cess or education cess referred to in section 4 derived from land referred to in sub-clause (a) of clause (1) of section 2 included in his total agricultural income and received in the previous year, subject to the following allowances, namely——"

I lay emphasis upon the words "received in the previous year". If this Bill came into effect from the 1st of April, 1944, people would be called upon to pay the tax for their income derived from agricultural land in 1943. I say that the year 1943 was a year of great distress and famine; it may, however, be said: "but those people who are destitute will not have to pay anything". I say that 1943 was a year in which both rent-receivers and zemindars, big or small, rich or poor, suffered equally and had to incur a large amount of debt and had to extend charity not only to their own family but to the sons and daughters of their relations and to the public as well. It was a year of such great distress that the sympathy of the whole world was drawn to Bengal. Will it, therefore, be just or fair for the Finance Minister to insist that for that particular year of all years the people of Bengal especially the rent-receivers and zemindars should be called upon to pay this agricultural income-tax?

Now, Sir, this is the month of July, Government intended that it should be prospective and if the Bill is now passed and assented to by His Excellency the Governor, say, in the course of 3 months then to make it prospective Government would have to fix April, 1945, as the date for the commencement of the Act, as the intention was to make it prospective and not retrospective. With these words, I support the amendment of my friend Mr. Amulyadhone Roy.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Hon'ble Minister.

MR. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I want to speak a few words on this amendment.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: But I have already called upon the Hon'ble Minister to speak.

MR. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I was on my legs immediately after Mr. Das sat down. If you stifle the discussion in this way on such an important matter, the position of the Opposition members becomes very difficult. In a matter like this, it is necessary that different sides should be given an opportunity to speak and if you want to stifle our discussion in this way, we shall have——

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Professor Kabir that is far from my intention. I do not want to stifle the discussion in any way. There are other amendments and you will have sufficient opportunity to speak.

MR. HUMAYUN KABIR: But this amendment will not be discussed again. I have not followed your decision in this matter.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I have already called upon the Hon'ble Finance Minister to speak.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: With great regret, Sir, I must say that in a matter like this it is not the prerogative of the Chair to shut out the minority party in this way. Those who have spoken so far on this amendment have spoken from the landlord's point of view. From the point of view of the peasantry not a single speech has been made today.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Professor Kabir, let the Hon'ble Minister proceed with his speech. The rules do not preclude the Chair from allowing other members to speak after the Hon'ble Minister's speech and you will have opportunity after the Hon'ble Minister.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Thank you, Sir.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Mr. Deputy President, I shall be very brief. It has been said this afternoon that there is no precedent for retrospective legislation in respect of taxation. Well, Sir, first of all, I desire to inform the House that this Bill is not retrospective except, perhaps in the sense in which the word has been used by the Opposition members. With regard to this, I need only cite the instance of the Assam Agricultural Income-tax Act. (Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: We are not going to follow Assam.) But this is in answer to the question that there is no precedent for what you call retrospective legislation. The Assam Act received the assent of Government of Assam in August, 1939, and it was operative from the 1st of April, 1939. So we have one handy precedent at least. Now, Sir, as I have already pointed out that it is on account of some technical language that it is regarded that the Bill is being given effect to with retrospective effect. The Bill was introduced in the Bengal Legislature in September last. Now, supposing, by a different arrangement of the legislative business Government had made it possible for the Legislature to pass this Bill into law by the 31st of March, 1944, you would not have spoken of retrospective effect. Now, it is only a matter of a few months after the 31st March, 1944. In any case, if it had been passed into law on the 31st March, 1944, before officers could be appointed, before assessment could be started, some months would have elapsed. In any case some delay would have occurred. Owing to congestion of legislative business during the present session, we have a few months' delay. That does not make the Bill retrospective at all.

As regards the question of the income of 1943, the bad year, I think I have already said enough to justify my position that not only is it not inappropriate that assessment should commence on the basis of income of 1943, but from the point of view of economics it is a sound year—the year which saw larger collections of rent than in any of the 10 preceding years. I do not think that any economist will challenge the proposition which I have placed before the House. With these words, Sir, I close the debate.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Mr. Humayun Kabir.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, the time is up.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, I may mention that today this Bill has got much more time than was allotted to it because of the fact that there was no question and Government cannot grumble that there was less time for the discussion of the Bill. The Bill has its due share of discussion today.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I am entirely in your hands. If the discussion is continued, I may speak tomorrow.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. As regards sitting for longer hours, I leave it entirely to the House to decide. But as a result of discussion yesterday, I thought that the Hon'ble the Leader of the House and the other leaders would meet and discuss the matter and come to a decision. However, I would request the leaders of different groups to meet together and decide this point. I am not unconscious of the fact that it is the privilege of the Chair to decide whether the House should sit for a longer period or not, but as the permanent President is expected to come in a day or two, I do not propose to exercise that discretion today.

Now, before we depart, I would like to say a few words mainly meant for our esteemed friend Professor Humayun Kabir. It is far from my intention to stifle any individual member or any party from participating in the discussion on any matter which is before the House. I thought that sufficient discussion had been made on the question of the retrospective nature of the Bill, and so I asked the Hon'ble Minister to reply on behalf of Government. Then again, looking at the hands of the clock, I found that there was little time left and considering from that point of view I think I have done a service to Mr. Kabir by not asking him to speak at that time. Because, if I had asked him he would have very little time to speak. It would have been quite inadequate for him. However, before adjourning the House I would like to have the decision on the question of sitting for a longer period.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I am thankful to you for your remarks. I was under the impression that the debate would be closed after the Hon'ble Minister's reply, but as soon as you said that I would be given an opportunity to speak after the Hon'ble Minister's reply, I accepted it with thanks. I wanted to speak on this amendment because I thought that our point of view was not represented. However, I am thankful to you for the opportunity you have given me to speak on this amendment on the next day.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I think it is Government which fixes the hours of sitting. For the present we may not fix the hour of sitting. When the permanent President comes, the hour of sitting will be fixed.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The House stands adjourned till 3 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 3 p.m. on Friday, the 7th July, 1944.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 54.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Friday, the 7th July, 1944, at 3 p.m., being the fifty-fourth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to Section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. Deputy President (Khan Bahadur ABDUL HAMID CHOUDHURY, J.P.), was in the Chair.

Point of Information.

MR. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, may I rise on a point of information? I put a short-notice question regarding the ex-Mayor Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury and another person named Mr. Hariprasad Misra. I do not know, Sir, why that short-notice question has not come up for reply today.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. The Hon'ble President has admitted your question as a short-notice question, and it has been sent to the department concerned but nothing has been heard of it as yet.

MR. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I raised this question only because my friend Mr. Haridas Majumdar sent a similar question, and I see that with respect to the question regarding the ex-Mayor Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury the answer will be given today, but I do not understand why my question relating to another gentleman mentioned along with Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury should not be answered.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Will the Hon'ble the Leader of the House kindly enlighten the House on the point?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, evidently materials are being collected to answer the question.

MR. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I do not understand how further materials can be collected to answer my question which is the same question as this. Evidently, the Hon'ble the Leader of the House has no knowledge of the case at all.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: May be; it is not my department.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. Some questions down for answer today are to be answered by the Hon'ble Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy and there is one question which is to be answered by the Hon'ble Sir Nazimuddin. But none of them is present in the House.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, on behalf of the Hon'ble Chief Minister, I am ready to answer his question.

MR. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will he be in a position to answer supplementary questions?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, Sir. The file is with me and I shall be able to answer all supplementary questions.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: What about the questions relating to the Department of the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMAD: The Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy is expected to be here at any moment, Sir.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Has this power been delegated to the Leader of the House?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: No, that is not necessary. One Minister can answer for another.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I find that the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy has not yet come; what about those questions?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMAD: In that case those questions may stand over.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Arrest of Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury.

205. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if he is aware that ex-Mayor, Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury, has been put under arrest for holding a meeting at the Sradhananda Park to protest against the Secondary Education Bill, now on the anvil of the Bengal Legislature;
- (b) if it is a fact that in course of the debate on the adjournment motion, regarding the banning of the Lora Conference, he stated in unambiguous terms that he had allowed hundreds of meetings regarding the said Bill to be held all over the country, particularly in Calcutta, without any interference; and that under very special circumstances he had to ban the Lora Hindu Conference;
- (c) if it is a fact that he had publicly and inside the House stated on different occasions that the Regulation of 1940-41 for holding public meetings will not be made applicable in the Province; and
- (d) if so, whether Government propose to withdraw proceedings against the said ex-Mayor; if not, why not?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN (on behalf of the Minister in charge of the Home Department): (a) Yes.

(b) and (c) It was pointed out that there was no question of encroaching on civil liberty when the people were enjoying the freedom of holding public meetings in all parts of the Province except in one or two places.

(d) The proceedings have been withdrawn.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that the case was not merely against Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury but also against one Mr. Hari Prasad Misra, who is, I believe, Secretary to the Students' Federation?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: That question does not arise.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: How it does not arise?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: It does not arise because the original question is only about Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I am asking a supplementary question as to whether the case that was withdrawn—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Arising out of which part of the question?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Arising out of (a)—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: All right. What is your question?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether the case which has been withdrawn has been withdrawn only in the case of Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury and not in the case of another?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: As the question was asked in respect of Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury only, so I have given an answer only in respect of him. As no other question was asked, I have not studied it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Have the proceedings been fully withdrawn or only partially withdrawn?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I do say most definitely that the case against Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury has been fully withdrawn.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that the case has been fully withdrawn?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, the case against Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury has been fully withdrawn.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Has it been withdrawn already?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Has the case been fully withdrawn?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Against Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury the case has been fully withdrawn.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether the case was only against Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury or against anybody else?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I had no business to look to that.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I enquire from the Hon'ble Minister whether this case which has been withdrawn was only against Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury or against Mr. Roy Chowdhury and another gentleman?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I am not aware of any other gentleman.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if the file with regard to the case of Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury is with him now?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The file regarding this particular question is with me.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state from this file whether the case was against any other person besides Mr. Roy Chowdhury?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: There is no mention in the file that it is against any other person also.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Will the Hon'ble Minister let us know on what ground the case has been withdrawn?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I am not prepared to state that here.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Why not?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The reason need not be given here.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Do I then assume that there was no case against him?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Evidently it was not considered proper to go on with the case. I do not know whether the case was actually substantiated against him or not.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Why was it then allowed to be proceeded with?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The police starts the case first and it is not done with the permission of the Government and without any reference to the Minister in charge.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether the case was withdrawn because of a certain policy which is being followed by the Government in respect of civil liberty?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Government do not interfere at all. The case was started by the police and when the police themselves thought that the case need not be proceeded with, they withdrew it.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if Government consider the desirability of taking steps against the police concerned for starting a false case and harassing persons in this way?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: There is no question of taking steps against police here. In the Penal Code there is provision for taking steps against any officer who intentionally harasses anybody. In this case, this point does not arise.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to consider the desirability of enquiring into the matter and see if this case was started without reason?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Government do not think it proper. Hundreds of cases are started by the police and they are withdrawn afterwards for want of proper evidence. As a Magistrate for a long time, I know that such things happen in hundreds of cases.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether the suggestion proceeded from the Home Department to the police to withdraw this case?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: No.

Statement made by Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies on "Bhog" ration scheme.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, with regard to my adjournment motion on the question of bhog ration, I think the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies is prepared to make the statement today.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, the consideration of this matter has caused me a great deal of anxiety. On the one hand, there are not only religious susceptibilities but also positive religious duties and obligations to be considered; on the other, there is the necessity for curtailing wastage and duplication of supplies, and for general austerity in consumption. It is extremely difficult to arrive at an adjustment without treading on religious susceptibilities and sentiments. I may inform the House that in Bombay there does not seem to be any special provision for bhog and in Madras the only special provision is for the offering of bhogs to deities in public temples: but even then on no account to more than six such shrines per temple. No supplies are given to individuals or to endowments. These limitations appear to have been accepted by the Hindus of Bombay and Madras. In the consideration of this problem I have been severely handicapped by the very unhealthy atmosphere prevailing in the Province, when no credit will ever be given for honest endeavour and when anything that we may do will be criticised as a deliberate attempt to wound Hindu susceptibilities. In spite of this drawback, I have given my most earnest consideration to the problem and have endeavoured to meet as far as possible the various suggestions that have been placed before me by the very learned and esteemable gentlemen whom I had the honour to invite for a consultation. The plan which I am now adopting goes much farther than either Bombay or Madras and I hope that it will be accepted by the Hindu community of Bengal.

I propose to set up a Committee of Hindu gentlemen at once to whom matters relating to bhog within the ambit of the plan outlined by me will be referred for advice. The questions that will arise are of such a delicate nature that I cannot ask any permanent member of the Civil Service to take upon himself the responsibility of presiding over the Committee or assisting in its deliberations. I, therefore, am of opinion that the Minister himself should accept full responsibility for the decisions that Government must make and preside over it. I now propose to discuss the allotments themselves which, it should be borne in mind, will always be governed by our ability to supply.

To household deities installed in thakurghars, which are generally rooms in residential dwelling houses, I do not feel I would be justified in making a separate allotment. The somewhat generous allotment given to individuals at the present moment will be sufficient to provide for those individual cases where purohit gets the bhog or a portion thereof.

As regards household deities consecrated in temples, they may either be unendowed or endowed. If unendowed, they may be given an allotment as for a shrine; and if endowed, then in the same manner as for an endowed deity installed in a temple.

As a general proposition only such supplies will be given as are not appropriated by the members of the family but are given to priests, guests, sannyasis and beggars, regard being had, however, to the avoidance of duplication in the case of priests. The Committee which I have proposed will be requested to take into consideration applications on behalf of such deities.

There is another class of deities which have been designated as semi-public deities. Many of them are endowed and there are arrangements for feeding guests, sannyasis and beggars. A portion goes to the sebhais and the priest of the family. In so far as a certain amount is required for outsiders and is covered by the endowment, supplies can be made available for these semi-public deities.

Then, there are deities installed in temples: some are unendowed and some are endowed. Those without endowments will get a ration of one unit for each shrine per day, up to a maximum of six shrines per temple. As regards deities with endowments whose expenditure is fixed by deeds creating them, an allotment will be made to them having regard to the expenditure under the endowment, the amount actually spent and the supplies available. Then, there are several occasional pujas, ceremonies and festivals. As regards festivals, we feel that the present conditions require a considerable degree of austerity in consumption and the necessity for the elimination of all avoidable waste of foodstuffs. I regret that I am unable to make any general allotment for the festivals; only such allotments as are sanctioned by an endowment for purposes of puja or sanctioned by a scheme of a court of law will be taken into consideration.

I am not unmindful of the other requirements, particularly of śradhs when pindas have to be offered. Deaths, happily, are not too frequent in a family; and it is suggested that the small quantity of foodstuffs necessary to perform the strictly religious obligations can be met from the savings from the general rations of the family.

I would like to touch on a certain point which has been raised by some of the honourable members who have tendered me advice. It appears to have been generally assumed that the purohit must receive remuneration in kind and hence the entire remuneration must be in the form of bhog. I am informed, however, that whereas some offering in kind is essential, the purohitis themselves would be happy to receive remuneration in cash, in addition to a token payment of the sacred offering.

I have dared to encroach on this very delicate and controversial subject being led to do so by the supreme sense of duty to come to a decision on the problem which may as far as possible meet Hindu religious opinion. I hope that my difficulties will be appreciated. I trust that the Committee which I am setting up and which will be composed of learned priests, managers of temples and certain other gentleman who are in a position to offer well-informed advice, will be able to assist Government and their fellow members of the Hindu community in assessing the different requirements of the various institutions and in offering advice to Government from time to time how to reconcile reasoning with the imperative religious duties of the Hindu community.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I have heard the statement of the Hon'ble Minister. The labour of the last five months has produced the proverbial mouse, namely, the appointment of a Committee. I am not satisfied with this statement, and therefore I press my adjournment motion for discussion in the House.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, may I enquire through you of the Hon'ble Minister as to whether he has formed any Committee as yet?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, I said that I was prepared to form a Committee. I have invited a number of priests, managers of temples and certain other gentlemen who, everyone considers, are capable enough of offering advice to Government on this matter.

I did not, of course, ask Mr. Haridas Mazumdar on this Committee. Now, Sir, the gentlemen whom I invited have given me a list and a statement of their requirements. I propose, as an initial measure, to appoint all these gentlemen as members of the Committee. If I find that this House does not object in any measure to what I have stated, then I may appoint the Committee tomorrow; but if any objection is taken to the proposal, then it is no use my proceeding with the matter further.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: As regards the adjournment motion tabled by Mr. Haridas Mazumdar, it appears from the proceedings of the meeting held on the 19th February last that the very same question arose at the instance of Mr. Haridas Mazumdar when after a statement made by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Civil Supplies Mr. President was pleased to observe "Then, Mr. Mazumdar, I take it that you do not ask for premissaion to move the adjournment motion." The reply came from Mr. Mazumdar thus—"In view of the assurance of the Hon'ble Minister, I do not press the adjournment motion." So, in view of these facts, I think, Mr. Mazumdar, you are not entitled to move another adjournment motion on the same subject in the same session. Therefore, after the statement of the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy I hold that the purpose of your adjournment motion has been served. At any rate, I would ask Mr. Mazumdar to consider whether

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, that assurance was not implemented. It has taken the Hon'ble Minister more than five months to make a statement like that. And it is still in the region of planning: only a scheme has been made but the personnel has not yet been selected. In view of this fact, I think this matter should be discussed here in the best interest of the Hindu community.

(Members from the other side: Why not wait till tomorrow?)

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Very well, Sir, I am prepared to wait till tomorrow. If the appointment of the Committee satisfies the House, then I shall have no need to bother the very hard-working Minister in charge of Civil Supplies in this respect any longer. Not only are our sentiments and susceptibilities but our religious duties also are involved in the matter, and I hope they will be adequately considered. In this view of the matter, I would request you, Mr. Deputy President, to waive the question of urgency on the next occasion. Moreover, I may say that this adjournment motion was held up so long only because of the assurance given by the Hon'ble Minister in respect of that matter. I am prepared to wait till tomorrow and if I am not satisfied with the personnel of the Committee that is appointed, then I request that I may be allowed to bring up this adjournment motion again. I think I shall have your permission to do so.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. When the Chair is called upon to give a ruling on any motion it is not the incumbent duty of the Chair to take into account the fact as to whether the remarks made by a particular Minister are satisfactory to the House or not. I am to give my ruling only in consideration of whether the motion satisfies the conditions laid down in the rules. If according to rule I find it admissible, I must give my ruling in favour of the motion; otherwise it will be my painful duty to refuse. However, as regards the request of Mr. Mazumdar, I have no objection to wait till the House meets again on Monday next. Of course, on that day I shall not be in the Chair and the permanent President will give a ruling.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: May I enquire through you of the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Civil Supplies what are the names of the persons he intended to appoint on the Committee.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: That question does not arise.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANOBISH: Sir, may I mention about my motion for adjournment regarding—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Yes, I am coming to that. Are you prepared to wait till Monday next?

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANOBISH: I am afraid, Sir, in that case several objections may be raised against the motion by the other side. Besides, my motion may not be taken up for discussion before Friday and Friday is a non-official day.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Can you not wait till Monday, the next sitting day?

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANOBISH: All right Sir.

NON-OFFICIAL RESOLUTIONS.

Steps for improving the indigenous shoe-making industry of Bengal.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: On the last non-official day, the House rose when it was considering the resolution tabled by Mr. K. C. Roy Chowdhury which runs as follows:—

“That this Council is of opinion that steps be taken to improve the indigenous shoe-making industry of Bengal as carried on by the muchis by supply of leather purchased from big tanneries to Bengalee muchis at reasonable prices and providing facilities to Bengalee muchis for making and selling shoes in at least fifty shops in Calcutta and Howrah, the rent of which is to be borne by Government for the first six months.”

As many as three honourable members participated in the discussion of this resolution.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, in supporting this resolution I submit that the condition of these muchis is really deplorable. The attack on this indigenous industry by large foreign organisations has told very heavily upon their economic position. Though to a large extent this inroad is inevitable, still it is the duty of the Government and public bodies to help these poor people as much as possible. It is found from the Census Reports that their number is dwindling very rapidly and this means their numerical and economic extinction. Their poverty is a difficult problem. For want of funds they cannot go to the free market and have to buy their raw materials on credit at uneconomic prices from middlemen who fleece and exploit them as much as they like. Then, when they produce their goods, they do not get proper marketing facilities, and, as a result, a very useful industry is languishing and perishing. If some encouragement could be given to them, then probably this indigenous industry may improve. There is the Industries Department which spends lakhs of rupees on many impractical and unpractical projects. If this department can take up this matter, this dying industry may survive. After all, the prosperity of Bengal depends largely upon the prosperity of the poorer as well as on the richer section. Government should therefore take steps to help them.

First of all, money should be supplied to them. They should further be organised into co-operative purchasing and selling societies with Government money. These muchis should be supplied with raw materials and their products should also be brought to the markets. If Government takes the initiative, possibly these poor people may be saved. Although the resolution is confined to the muchis only, there are various other industries which are languishing for want of proper support; but perhaps it would be irrelevant to speak about them. Mr. K. C. Roy Chowdhury is a life-long champion of labour movement and these poor people are fortunate in having in him a very able and persistent champion. Whatever he moves for the welfare of the poor, should deserve careful consideration not only of this House but of the Government also. With these words, Sir, I wholeheartedly support the resolution.

The Hon'ble Mr. Khwaja SHAHABUDDIN: Mr. Deputy President, Sir, as far as this resolution is concerned, I may confess at the very outset that Government so far have not done very much to improve the condition of the muchis specially in and around Calcutta. Sometime ago an offer was made to train Bengalee muchi youths in the Government Tanning Institute; but it was found that the response from the muchis was very disappointing. One of the reasons was that they were very poor and found it difficult to come to the Institute for getting the training. Evidently, they thought that instead of doing so, they might utilise that time for making some additional income and thus contribute something to their family income. Sometime back it was also suggested that some stipends should be awarded to them. Unfortunately, that scheme is still under consideration. I can assure the House that the scheme will soon be considered and I hope in the near future it will be possible to sanction a number of stipends specially for the Bengalee muchi youths, so that they avail themselves of the stipends and come to the Tanning Institute for getting the training.

As for the opening of 50 shops, a similar scheme also is under consideration. The difficulty is that with the establishment of these shops it will be necessary to arrange for the supply of leather and other instruments at reasonable and cheap rates. And that is not all; it will also be necessary to make arrangements for the sale of finished goods turned out by them. Therefore, I would request the honourable member not to press this resolution, as a similar scheme which has been recommended by the Director of Industries is under the consideration of Government.

Sir, we have been trying to help these muchis as far as possible. Apart from what I have just now informed the House, it was also found that a certain class of muchis in the Raja Bazar area were very much persecuted by the money-lenders. Investigations were undertaken and it was recommended by the officer who undertook the investigation that it would be necessary to organise co-operative societies among them. Unfortunately, it was found that these people as a class were so suspicious of each other that they were not prepared to accept this suggestion of Government to organise co-operative societies. These are the difficulties under which Government are working. The muchis are a very backward and ignorant people and they are so poor that we have got to do a great deal to help them, especially in view of the recent distress in the Province.

Large sums of money are being spent for the rehabilitation scheme. Raw materials as well as instruments in connection with shoe-making are proposed to be supplied to the muchis as a sort of free gift in the case of those muchis who are unable to take them as loan; and wherever it is found that the muchis will be able to repay them, these things will be given to them in the form of loan. Such a scheme is already not only under the consideration of Government but action is also actually being taken. As a matter of fact, on the recommendation of the District Magistrates and the Subdivisional Officers such help is being given to these people. In short, as I have explained, Government have got full sympathy with the main principle underlying the resolution.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Then why are you not accepting the resolution?

The Hon'ble Mr. Khwaja SHAHABUDDIN: Sir, as I have said before, the resolution is in line with the policy of the Government and that there is no harm in allowing the resolution to be passed.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, I am very thankful to the Hon'ble Minister for giving us the assurance that a scheme prepared on the lines indicated in my resolution is at present under the consideration of the Government. It is certainly a news to me. In the report of the Industries Department I have found a paragraph in which they have talked about tanning. But I am not interested in tanning and the muchis are also not interested in tanning. Tanning is a different thing altogether.

The Hon'ble Mr. Khwaja SHAHABUDDIN: Sir, may I rise to say a few words just by way of personal explanation? In the Tanning Department of Government there is a department exclusively for shoe-making, and it is in this department that the muchis are being trained.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: I think I may give some facts and figures that will help the department to revise the scheme if they have already made some sort of a plan in regard to this matter. The facts are these: from the census figures I find that the number of muchis is dwindling. In 1911, they were 455,000 in number; in 1921 they were reduced by nearly four lakhs; and in 1931 there was a further reduction. The result of this is that these lakhs of poor people for want of materials, patronage and capital, are driven to the plight of landless labourers and many thousands died during the famine. These muchis are not only Hindus but Muslims also; it must not be forgotten that there is any number of Mussalmans among the muchis. Their source of living consists in making shoes and other leather goods in the villages and sundry other things. They have been facing during the last ten years a serious competition from the great corporation of the Batas. In fact, the Batas are mainly responsible for killing this important cottage industry which is their principal source of livelihood. Sir, all that this resolution requests is to direct the Industries Department to buy leather from the tanneries and sell it to the muchis at cost price. Certainly, we have got a very big Department of Industry which purchases and supplies for the military worth crores and crores of rupees. Why don't you ask the department to purchase Rs.10,000 worth of leather and advertise to the muchis so that they can come to the Industries Department and purchase it. We have a Commercial Museum also, and what is it doing? It is only advertising fancy goods and Bata's productions. If you enter the Museum, you will find yourself faced with these advertisements because the Batas give the museum good fees. Can anybody deny that our muchis are in want and that for want of support they are leaving their profession and joining the landless brigades? All the grandiose things are being done in the Industries Department without reference to the needs of the poorer section of our community. I would, therefore, request the Hon'ble Minister to go into this question with the Director of Industries and at once start a scheme for the purchase of leather and to announce through the Press, or through other notices that the muchis can buy leather from Government at cheap rates. Let me relate a story relating to myself. I went to order a pair of shoes with the local muchis. The muchi said that he had not the money to buy leather, but even if he had the money he would be charged 15 to 20 per cent. more for small quantities of leather than those who buy large quantities from the up-country merchants at Tangra and Colootolla who have monopolised the trade in leather. Our indigenous muchis, therefore, have not the ghost of a chance to buy leather economically. We know that hand-made shoes last longer and fit better than ready-made shoes and that hand-made shoes work up cheap in the long run and are besides beneficial from the point of view of the users of the shoes, provided good and cheap leather is available. Hand-made shoes are much better than machine-made shoes. I, therefore, request the Hon'ble Minister to do his utmost to procure leather and supply it to the muchis, and arrange to have the shoes thus made exhibited for sale at the Industrial Museum.

I am thankful to the Hon'ble Minister in charge who has given the assurance that a similar scheme is in his contemplation and on this assurance, I beg to withdraw my resolution.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, can he withdraw the resolution without the consent of the whole House?

The Hon'ble Mr. Khwaja SHAHABUDDIN: Sir, I want to make my position clear on this point. I am grateful to my friend Mr. Roy Chowdhury for accepting my suggestion—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, the Hon'ble Minister has accepted the principle underlying Mr. Roy Chowdhury's resolution and so no question of withdrawal arises—

The Hon'ble Mr. Khwaja SHAHABUDDIN: I have not accepted the resolution as it is, but I have signified my approval of the spirit underlying the resolution.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I object to the withdrawal of the resolution.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: After I have put it to the House, then it will be time for you to object.

Is it the pleasure of the House to allow Mr. K. C. Roy Chowdhury to withdraw his resolution?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I object.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: As the House is not unanimous in allowing him to withdraw, I now put it to vote.

The question before the House is: that this Council is of opinion that steps be taken to improve the indigenous shoe-making industry of Bengal as carried on by the muchis by supply of leather purchased from big tanneries to Bengalee muchis at reasonable prices and providing facilities to Bengalee muchis for making and selling shoes in at least fifty shops in Calcutta and Howrah, the rent of which is to be borne by Government for the first six months.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Formulation of a comprehensive scheme for development of indigenous drug industry.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Next resolution, Mr. Nur Ahmed.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I beg to move that this Council is of opinion that the Government of Bengal be urged upon to formulate and put into operation a comprehensive and well-planned scheme for the development of indigenous drug-industry in Bengal.

Sir, this is a very simple—

Mr. BIREN ROY: On a point of privilege, Sir. When we are going to discuss this resolution which is a very important subject, the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Forest and Excise Department which would play a very effective part in the development of this industry should have been present in the House, but we do not find him here. I think that very scant courtesy is being shown to the members of this House when we are deliberating such an important matter.

The Hon'ble Mr. Khwaja SHAHABUDDIN: Sir, this matter is in my charge, and I am present here. As far as the Excise Department is concerned, they are concerned with the drug control order, and as far as the manufacture of drugs is concerned, it is the Industries Department which is administering it, and therefore I am the proper person to attend to whatever Mr. Biren Roy has got to say about it.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Mr. Nur Ahmed.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, this simple resolution deals with a very vital question affecting human and other lives. This indigenous drug industry has fallen off evil days. It is in a stage of decay not only in Bengal but in other provinces too. It was not so during the Hindu period and also during the Moslem regime. Even during the Buddhist period it catered to the needs of the vast population of India. With the advent of foreign drugs, this industry has decayed, and we have felt it necessary to revive this industry during this great war. When the war broke out and continued for some time, there was scarcity of all kinds of foreign medicines to save human lives; I mean the medicines which used to be imported from foreign countries like Germany, etc. Owing to the shrinkage in the shipping space and hostilities with the principal source of supply, namely, Germany, the want of drugs was increasingly felt and the result was that people began to suffer and die for want of proper treatment. I want to give a very brief description of the state of things which obtained in the past, and to indicate what should be done to revive this industry. As regards the first point, we have got various books and literature of ancient times on the pharmacopœia of indigenous drugs, regarding the development of the ayurvedic drug and medicine. Coming later to the Moslem times, we find that the unani (what is also called tibbi) system of medicine was also developed along with the ayurvedic system in India and Nawabs, Emperors and other big personages encouraged this industry in all possible ways. All the big hakims, kavirajes received stipends and salaries for the development of the drug industry. It is also gathered that big hospitals were started with salaried doctors and salaried nurses who used to go about the countryside treating the sick free; institutions were also built where this industry was developed by expert hakims and kavirajes. From the book named the Urban Socialism published by Mr. Mumtaz in America, we find that there were big hospitals founded during the times of the Mussalman Emperors, throughout the world. In Alexandria, Bagdad and Samarkand, the industry was encouraged and developed by the staff which was engaged in research work. In this connection, I may mention about the unani and tibbi college of the late lamented Hakim Ajmal Khan. This college was established by him with laboratory and research departments where both unani and kaviraji system were taught. Researches were made on both unani and kaviraji systems of medicines and both pundits and graduates joined this college. I know, Sir, some kavirajes in Chittagong who came out of this college. Some of them also came to Calcutta and were researching in the unani system of medicine. We find from books that there are about 2,000 plants which can be very effectively used for preparation of drugs. Out of 11,000 plants which are used for preparation of medicines, about 2,000 have been specifically mentioned. We now find that in India raw materials are available for preparing three-fourths of the medicines and drugs manufactured by British and other manufacturers. The Research Laboratory of the School of Tropical Medicines has made up to this time experiments on 200 plants and from their report it is found that some of the plants are very suitable and effective for the treatment of the people of this country. Out of these 200 plants, the Tropical School has prepared some drugs and medicines which are of the standard of western drugs and of great value for use in India and other countries. We know that before the war India used to manufacture only 15 per cent. of the medicines required in India.

Sir, there is a proverb that "Necessity is the mother of invention" and bearing that in mind Indians have made great progress in the drug industry. Indians now produce about 64 per cent. of the medicines and drugs for consumption in India and even many of the medicines produced or manufactured by Indians are exported to other countries. So, in order to develop this industry it is necessary that more laboratories, research institutes, and big hospitals should be started. Hakims and karirajes should be helped to make researches on the various plants of which mention has been made in various books and also researches should be carried on in modern lines regarding the 2,000 plants mentioned in the books. It is regrettable that in Bengal there are very few dispensaries or research institutes which have discovered indigenous medicines. In the United Provinces and other provinces during the regime of the Congress Governments, I find that a number of these hospitals have been started where the patients are being treated according to ayurveda, tibbi and unani systems. These systems cater to about 80 per cent. of the population of Bengal and it is also an admitted fact that facilities for medical treatment is hopelessly inadequate in Bengal compared to what obtains in other parts of India. It has been ascertained that in Bengal there is one female doctor for more than 2 lakhs of women and one doctor for 40,000 men. From the recent report we find that India requires doctors seven times more than what it is at present; nurses 20 times and health visitors 27 times more.

There is another aspect of the matter. If these laboratories and research institutes are opened, then many unemployed people will be provided. It is admitted on all hands that we, Bengalees, lag behind in respect of starting such research institutions and European travellers who come to India have expressed surprise how an advanced province like Bengal can lag behind in this respect. There is no adequate number of nurses and doctors in Bengal hospitals to take care of the people of Bengal. Therefore, medicines and medical treatment should be developed in such a way that no one may die without proper treatment.

In 1943 a dismal picture was presented to this country when for want of medicine and medical treatment people died like flies, when children and young people who were the future hopes of this Province died like cats and dogs. It was then realised most strikingly that along with dearth of medicine there was also dearth of doctors. Therefore, this is the proper time to come forward with a proposal like this. Every Provincial Government along with the Central Government are now engaged in preparing schemes for post-war reconstruction. Sir, the purpose of my coming before this House with a resolution like this is to impress on the Hon'ble Minister in charge the need for a well-planned scheme for the development of indigenous drug industry in Bengal. Sir, I hope and trust that this resolution will be accepted and not only accepted but will be acted upon, so that there may not be a repetition of the scene like that of 1943, and so that medical relief may be brought within easy reach of every householder.

Sir, there may be a question as to what methods are to be adopted for achieving this object. My suggestion is that laboratories and research institutions should be established and more hospitals should be started. There is another method of encouraging the development of this industry and that is by subsidising hakims and karirajes. These hakims and karirajes should be made to practise their profession in the mufassil areas in order to popularize indigenous medicines among the masses. Sir, with the advent of the English or foreign system of medicine a very clever and intelligent section of the people induced the people to think that foreign medicine was more efficacious and more useful than the indigenous drugs. Therefore, Sir, it would be the duty of the Government to subsidise the hakims and kavirajes for popularising the indigenous drugs among the people there.

Again, if these hakims and kavirajes make themselves very popular in the mufassil areas and build up a good practice there, then the prejudice created by a very clever section of the people against this system of medicine will be dissipated.

We generally find that the most famous hakims and kavirajes choose to practise in the towns where however there are a sufficient number of doctors to look after the needs of the townspeople. It is in the rural areas that doctors, kavirajes and hakims are most needed. As far as I remember, in the United Provinces this system of subsidy has been introduced with good effect and is doing well. In the Punjab also, as far as I remember, a scheme was prepared and put into operation but how far it has succeeded I do not know. But I may say again that in the United Provinces this system of subsidy has proved very successful and the number of kavirajes and hakims has been increasing. There is however the question of money. Those who practise indigenous medicines belong to the poorer section and accordingly cannot afford to establish any laboratory or any research centre for discovering new medicines and for popularising the existing ones. So they are in great need of help. Of course, I do not support the idea that the beneficent sarkar will do everything and we shall do nothing. If only Government will be good enough to subsidise and encourage the establishment of dispensaries and institutions for this purpose, that will greatly help these people to revive the indigenous industry. Sir, in my resolution I have used the words "well-planned scheme". That scheme should include all aspects of the question and it should be prepared by experts on the subject. Whenever a demand is made for a scheme or a plan, it sometimes comes in dribblets and not in the shape of a well-thoughtout and comprehensive scheme. I am glad to find that the present Ministry is making such well-planned and comprehensive plans and is trying to put them into action. I hope therefore that our Hon'ble Minister who is doing so much for the encouragement of other industries will do his best to revive this most important industry which concerns the people of this Province so vitally. With these words, I commend my resolution to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Resolution moved: that this Council is of opinion that the Government of Bengal be urged upon to formulate and put into operation a comprehensive and well-planned scheme for the development of indigenous drug industry in Bengal.

Mr. BIREN ROY: Mr. Deputy President, for the adequate supply of essential drugs for the sick and the poor in this country, indigenous drugs industry will have to be developed on sound and rational lines. We understand that members of an Industrial Planning Mission have been touring around and are at work but they have not taken any effective measures for the growth of such industries and their approach and treatment towards these industrial concerns has neither been sympathetic nor helpful.

Sir, in pre-war days this country had a few chemical concerns and some essential indigenous drugs were produced. But as things stand at present, if properly encouraged even with all handicaps, they will enable the Indian manufacturers to supply 60 to 70 per cent. of the total requirements of drugs in India.

It may not be out of place to mention here that a country like Australia within the last two years of this war has been able to develop her drug industry with such speed and effectiveness that whereas before the war she used to import practically most of her medicinal requirements, she is now not only meeting the full quota of her internal consumption but is actually exporting various kinds of British Pharmacopœial preparations abroad including even this country. This has been made possible through effective help rendered by England and also by United States of America.

Real development of Indian drug industry will make it possible for India to be self-sufficient in the matter of essential drugs and this can be achieved only by rational organisation and a well-planned scientific development of this side of her industry with its ancillary fine and heavy chemical factories and pharmaceutical education as unanimously recommended by the Drugs Enquiry Committee, known as the Chopra Committee, as far back as 1930.

Although the Indian Drugs Act came into being in 1940, its implementing is long overdue. A drug control order came into force in 1943, on account of scarcity of essential and important drugs, but unfortunately the "natural channel" of distribution has not been adopted, i.e., hospitals, doctors, and patients. On the other hand, it is being made operative through executive channels in utter disregard of actualities. In this Control Order in Part II of Schedule A, such British Pharmacopoeial preparation as insulin, pituitrin, aspirin, etc., have been noted as proprietary drugs though they are not recognised as such by the Indian Drugs Act, 1940. The prices fixed for such articles in this Schedule not only vary widely but are rated at a much higher figure than similar substances enlisted in Part I of Schedule A, i.e., produced here from fine raw materials by local manufacturers even though these may be of the standard of purity as recognised by the British and U. S. Pharmacopœia.

To make the position more absurd, the fine chemical and other essential raw materials for the production of essential drugs as are included in Part III, have been rated in such a manner and so little of these materials are imported that these are either unavoidable to the essential drug manufacturers in this country or are available only at "black-market" rates, thereby making it impossible to place in the market such essential Indian preparations at rates noted in the Control Order. This position must have to be substantially altered. What should be done is that instead of allowing the importation of finished and well-packed British Pharmacopœial preparations taking a lot of shipping space, essential ingredients taking a very much smaller space should be imported in bulk in sufficient quantity to allow for increased production of drugs in India and then by effectively controlling its price and distribution these drugs should be made available at economic prices to India's millions.

In the meantime, a Central Drugs Laboratory and Provincial Drugs Laboratories as recommended by the Drugs Enquiry Committee of 1930 may be established to check the standards of purity of all indigenous drugs manufactured before these are put on the market for sale.

The Indian manufacturers are also faced with an insuperable problem not only as regards lack of suitable machineries but also of such essential stuff as fuel and spirit or absolute alcohol required as a base for essential spirituous extracts and tinctures. We find instead advertisements in most of the papers now-a-days of Indian made foreign liquors of various brands flooding the market thereby creating an impression that everything is set for the profiteers to effectively drug the people instead of helping them by providing spirit for cheap and large scale manufacture of useful and essential drugs to relieve their suffering. As I was saying before in this connection that the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Forest and Excise should have been present here to usefully add to the discussion and deliberation of this House so that we might have learnt from him how the manufacture and production of quinine and cinchona are going on in Kalimpong and in Darjeeling districts as well as the production and distribution of the quantity of alcohol for medicinal purposes as compared to the allowance of spirit and other things for the manufacture of Indian made foreign liquor. These figures are not available and perhaps it may not be available to us for a long time. This House should recommend that spirit and absolute alcohol should be made available to indigenous drug manufactures in larger quantities to provide for cheap and indigenous essential drugs and tinctures for the public and thus really help the growth of indigenous drug industry in this country.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I have great pleasure in supporting the resolution that has been moved by my honourable friend Mr. Nur Ahmed. The resolution seeks to bring before the Government a problem which is now very serious and urgent. Now, Sir, due to difficulties about imports we are not getting the medicines that used to come before and to which we were accustomed in spite of the fact that we had indigenous drugs under the Ayurveda and Unani systems which could have supplied all the requirements of Bengal, nay, of the whole of British India. We have left those medicines to be prepared by the kavirajes and hakims according to their own shastras and method but there is no means of examining whether those people are giving us genuine medicines or not. Therefore, I would request the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Department of Industries to consider whether he cannot immediately start a laboratory on the lines of the British Pharmacopœia for the purpose of providing suitable methods so that these indigenous drugs may be recognised by Government with specifications on lines similar to what takes place in the case of drugs prepared in the laboratories of the British Pharmacopœia under the guidance of the British Government.

As a matter of fact, I have discussed with many eminent doctors who are of the opinion that if this system is taken up by Government, then we can easily oust the foreign medicines and practically about 70 to 90 per cent. of medicines may be supplied with the help of indigenous drugs. As a matter of fact, that has also been pointed out by Mr. Nur Ahmed in moving the resolution. The only important thing with regard to this matter is that Government should take up this matter. I want Government to take up this subject in right earnest. Indeed, this is the most opportune time when it should be done. We know that during the last year's distress quinine was not available. Dr. B. C. Roy, an eminent physician, found out a substitute in the chatim plant which is available in Bengal in plenty. He prepared some pills out of this chatim plant which worked wonderfully well during the last distress and to a great extent the want of quinine was solved in some of the areas where these pills were used. I may also give another instance for the Hon'ble Minister's information. The Servant of India Society with headquarters possibly in Allahabad or Bombay was preparing many useful medicines with the herbs available in India which were also producing wonderful effect. As a matter of fact, during the last distress I got a supply of these medicines from the Servant of India Society. I distributed them to the various distressed areas and I found them working very successfully. The Servant of India Society have got medicines not only for fighting malaria but for other diseases, such as dysentery, influenza, etc.

With these words, I support the resolution moved by my friend Mr. Nur Ahmed.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I have great pleasure in supporting the resolution moved by my friend Mr. Nur Ahmed. In this connection, I should point out that we on this side of the House are always prepared to support resolutions even when moved by the Government Party, provided they are found to be conducive to the welfare of the country.

Sir, a resolution like this is long overdue and should have been moved, carried and given effect to long ago. The expenditure of the Government on heads Medical and Public Health in the last Budget was 9 lakhs 60 thousand and 1 lakh and 65 thousand, totalling 11 lakhs 25 thousand. Of this amount every rupee is spent on the Western system of medicine and a large sum is spent on imported medicines which constitute a drain from this poor country. I beg leave to point out that I am not opposed to the Western system of medicine as such but only to its monopolising our attention and purse. The revenue of the Government is collected from the common people and it is only mete and proper that in all measures taken by the Government their views and will should prevail. What do we find in practice? In this city kaviraj and allopathic practitioners are doing well side by side and the earnings of the best kaviraj are not less than those of the best allopath. Dr. Surendra Nath Das Gupta, lately Principal, Sanskrit College, said in a meeting that though many allopaths including some with British degrees could not earn anything, not a single kaviraj was unemployed. This is perfectly true.

The most backward among them will earn their livelihood by selling vaskar laban in this dyspepsia-ridden land. In Visuddhanand Charitable Dispensary, Amherst Street, Marwari Hindu Hospital at Harrison Road, Tularam Goenka Charitable Dispensary at Salkia, Howrah, medicines both allopathic and kaviraj are supplied free to the poor and both systems are equally patronised by people. It is a pleasant thing to see a large number of our Muhammadan brethren in the crowd at these kaviraj dispensaries. I understand from a friend of mine that our Chief Minister the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin is a patron of Ayurvedic medicine in his own household. Why should then Government dispensaries serve allopathic medicines only? If the Government run everywhere a kaviraj dispensary side by side with allopathic, a great benefit will be conferred upon the people and to do this the Government will have to help the indigenous drug industry. Dr. Bidhan Chandra Roy has said that two crores of people are affected with diseases. With the rainy season malaria will do havoc and double the number. The supply of western medicines is limited by war conditions and even if we cry ourselves hoarse we cannot get more than one-thousandth part of our requirements of western medicine. Should millions die in Bengal on that account? We can manufacture large quantities of ayurvedic medicines by financing *kaviraj*s in a central spot or in each district and distribute them through Government dispensaries to be started for the purpose with salaried *kaviraj*s. The cry of the hour is "Medicine, more medicine". Imports being limited there cannot be a more opportune moment for organising the indigenous drug industry than now. As regards the triumphs of the ayurved, the time at our disposal is much too small for a recital thereof in detail. The world-renowned German firm of E. Merck is manufacturing makaradhvaj. In treatment of leprosy Sir Leonard Rogers had recourse to chalmagra and his discovery of the saline treatment of cholera is attributed by many to similar treatment prevalent among indigenous practitioners in the district of Midnapore, the difference being that the latter cut slightly the palms of the patient in parallel straight lines and applied salt. Sir R. N. Chopra's treatment of amoebic dysentery with "Lurchi" has been accepted by the western world. If the State serve the ayurvedic system with half the zeal that they have devoted for nearly two centuries to the western system, millions of deaths will be effectively prevented every year and the results thus obtained will revolutionise the method of medical treatment of the whole world. There is a Bengalee practitioner with no medical degree who has made money by curing European ladies in an East Indian Railway colony suffering from diarrhoea after childbirth simply by prescribing soup of "gandhal" and he has got such a reputation that European ladies of other railway colonies call him.

What I have said regarding help to ayurved applies equally to the hakimi system. Only Government money should be spent in the proportion of patients coming to kaviraj and hakimi dispensaries, the doors of which will necessarily be thrown open to all without distinction of race and religion. If we cannot do all this but simply go on copying the programme of our British guardians which has benefited their mother country financially for two centuries, all our vaunted talk of provincial autonomy, elected legislature and responsible ministry will be meaningless. Encouragement and all possible facilities should also be given to firms like the Bengal Chemical.

Bengal Immunity, etc., so that they may manufacture more indigenous western medicine in this country. All financial assistance within the provisions of the State-Aid to Industries Act should be given to firms manufacturing medicines. While taking every precaution that not a single rupee of the public is lost, earnest efforts should be made so that the said Act does not remain a dead letter as till now but turns out to be a beneficent measure conferring immense benefits upon the people.

With these words, I whole-heartedly support the resolution before the House.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Sir, I am afraid there is some confusion of idea about the resolution moved by Mr. Nur Ahmed. That confusion is particularly emphasised by the speech of Mr. Biren Roy who spoke on a subject entirely different from the subject-matter of the resolution. As far as I can understand from the speech of Mr. Nur Ahmed, he wants that the indigenous system of medicines and drugs should be developed and encouraged. In speaking on the resolution, he referred to the ayurvedic and unani systems of medicines. What he intended was that in addition to Allopathic and other systems of western medicines which are used in this country, we should encourage indigenous medicines which exist in India: they should be rehabilitated. Everybody will support the spirit of such a resolution. But I would point out the difficulties in giving a practical effect to the resolution. Many people know that before allopathic and homeopathic systems came into India the original system of medicine that was in vogue here was either kaviraj or tibbi. There were many instances of serious cases being cured by these systems of treatment. As a matter of fact, we have heard that *kaviraj*s and hakims were so efficient at that time that in case of pardanashin ladies who did not appear before a doctor they used to tie a string on the wrist of the ladies and from outside they could tell what the disease was, simply by touching the other end of the string. Of course, this may be an exaggerated story. But the fact is that there were efficient *kaviraj*s and hakims at that time. The difficulty is that on account of lack of encouragement since the administration of this country was taken over by the British, these medicines gradually decayed. Owing to the efficiency of the organisation of the Allopathic system, we see in operation today the doctrine of the survival of the fittest. The encouragement and development of science and the education which has been received may now enable the development of the indigenous system of medicines to be undertaken with a fair chance of success against the competition of the western systems of treatment. And no Minister or Government will say "no" to what Mr. Nur Ahmed wants; but what I feel is that the main difficulty in the way of Government will be to fix a standard of pharmacopœia of these systems. For instance, we know about the preparation of well-known indigenous medicines such as chagaladhya ghrita and chabhanaprass or similar things. It is very difficult to fix a standard of pharmacopœia for these medicines. One kaviraj uses greater portion of one ingredient and another may use greater portion of another ingredient. So the effect will not be the same; and there is no check about it. Similarly, in the case of unani medicines and other medicines, we do not know which is real and which is not, because there is no established pharmacopœia according to which those medicines are prepared. We can know the strength of tincture and other things. We cannot know whether bhaskar labana, which is very favourite with Mr. Haridas Mazumdar, is prepared by a particular kaviraj according to the shastras. Therefore the first thing Government should do is to establish the Faculty of Ayurveda and Unani. But in spite of Government's best intention, they found very great difficulties to establish these things in the proper way. Moreover, it is very difficult to ascertain who is a quack and who is a real hakim. There are only two colleges, one at Delhi and other at Lucknow, which give diplomas and there are others who are learning these things as hereditary tradition or by reading translation of original books. These people who thus learn from private sources will oppose any systematic establishment of Tibbi or Ayurvedic Colleges.

Then comes the question of patronage, not patronage from Government alone but patronage from the people themselves. Now, if there is a dispensary of allopathic medicines and side by side there is a kaviraji dispensary, you will see that people will go to the allopathic dispensary, specially if a person suffers from malaria, and 90 per cent. of the patients suffer from malaria. The reason is that he knows that quinine is the only remedy to cure malaria. Seeing this mentality many clever kavirajes give baris (pills) inside which there is quinine. So, Government in spite of their best intention cannot give effect to this sort of vague resolution, although I am sure that the Hon'ble Ministers will put their heads together and evolve a system by which they will be able to solve the problem, perhaps not in a day or in month but in the near future.

As regards the production of quinine and other things here, there can be no difference of opinion that Government so far have not done as much as they could have done. Perhaps they did not feel the necessity on account of the fact that quinine used to be imported from other countries. Unfortunately, this supply has been stopped and now Government have turned their attention to increase the production of quinine here. It is not a question of one day. The plants must grow. (Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: What about the substitute of quinine?) Well, as regards that you must require quinine to mix that up with chhatim and even so there is considerable difference of opinion as regards the efficacy of this mixture. Of course, I am not an expert and I cannot say whether that mixture is a good substitute or not.

With these words, I certainly support the resolution of Mr. Nur Ahmed, though I understand that there are difficulties in the way of its execution.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. I adjourn the House till 3 p.m. on Monday, the 10th July, 1944

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 55.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Monday, the 10th July, 1944, at 3 p.m., being the fifty-fifth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

Point of Information.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I rise on a point of information? May I draw your attention to Rule 24 of the Council Procedure Rules which provides that "the first hour of every meeting shall be available for the asking and answering of question"? Now, Sir, it would appear from the statement circulated to us today that as many as 110 questions, including 58 of the current session yet remain to be answered. Now, Sir, when there are so many questions to be answered, I do not understand why we are not getting the first hour for this purpose and why Rule 24 should be violated?

Mr. PRESIDENT: But there is no accumulation in the Council Department.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May be there is no accumulation in the Council Department. But can there be no remedy?

Mr. PRESIDENT: We have repeatedly drawn the attention of the Treasury Bench to this matter during the current session not once, twice or thrice but probably four times. I have found myself absolutely helpless, and I must leave it to the good sense of the Hon'ble Ministers.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will you allow me, Sir, to move an adjournment motion on the subject of the indifference of Government to answer questions?

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is not for me to make any suggestion on that point.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, may I put forward an alternative suggestion in this matter? The suggestion is that you adjourn the House. You can adjourn the House for non-compliance by Government with your directions in the matter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Chair is not prepared to non-co-operate with the Government. I am here to conduct the business of the House; all that I can do, therefore, is to appeal to the Ministers so that they might try to expedite replies to the outstanding questions.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, you are also the custodian of the rights and privileges of this House; it is entirely in your hands to keep our prestige and privilege intact.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, when so many things are going on between the Chair and ourselves, the members of the Treasury Bench here are listening to all these but are not uttering a single word as to what they intend to do in respect of answering these questions.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I hear the Hon'ble the Leader of the House on this point?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I think, Sir, that it is nothing unusual to have only 58 questions outstanding in such a long session. Twenty-five of these questions are in respect of the Civil Supplies Department and only 12 in respect of the Home Department. There are very few such questions in respect of the other departments; if all these 58 questions are excluded, then only 52 questions remain pending, I do not think that it is a very unusual figure. If the old records are examined, the same thing will be found.

Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHOWDHURY: Not to the same extent, I am sure.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Government are deliberately trying not to answer these questions.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I do not admit that. The largest number of questions that are outstanding are in respect of the Civil Supplies Department which, as the House knows very well, is a very heavy department, and in respect of the Home Department only 12 questions are outstanding. Then, again, at no time in the parliamentary era were so many questions asked in respect of these departments; so you must realise that we have our difficulties and our staff too has not been strengthened for preparing answers to questions. Therefore, we have to do as best as we can to answer the questions. I may repeat that in regard to the other departments only a few questions are outstanding this session, namely, five in the Education Department, four in the Finance Department, one in the Revenue Department, one in the Communications and Works Department, etc., while it is only in respect of the Civil Supplies and Home Departments that a somewhat large number of questions are pending. This is due to the very large number of questions that are being asked relating to matters concerning them.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It seems that the Treasury Bench is not even repentant at all. I think our rules contemplate that questions of one session should be all answered in the course of the same session, and so the Treasury Bench should not take refuge under the plea that this has been done also previously. This sort of attitude we do not approve of. And an explanation is given which is not worth having; not even a promise that they will try to expedite the answers, and not even a word of repentance. That is exactly why they are losing their popularity and their supporters are dwindling. This is the manner in which they are carrying on the administration of the country.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: What is the good of making a promise which cannot be fulfilled? I do not like to make any promise which I cannot fulfil. Firstly, I must say that a very large number of questions are being put in respect of the two departments. Every one knows how hard-pressed the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies is now-a-days and in respect of his department only, 64 questions are outstanding from the year 1942 which I submit is not at all unusual, because in abnormal times abnormal things must occur.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, the Leader of the House has drawn attention only to the Ministry of Civil Supplies as if no other departments are at fault. The Home Department is responsible for as many as 12 outstanding questions—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, 12 outstanding questions in such a long session do not appear to be abnormal.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: In your view it may not be unusual, Sir, but at least some sort of explanation ought to be forthcoming from the Ministers concerned as to why answers to these questions have been delayed. Then, again, if you leave out the questions outstanding for the present session, why should questions from the year 1942 to 1943, numbering 52, still remain pending? I may state that for the Home Department alone as many as 10 questions were pending up to 1943 and for the year 1943, 51 questions relating to all the departments are pending still—not to speak of the present year. No explanation has been given by the Ministers in charge of these departments. An explanation has been given by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Agriculture because he has one question unanswered.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, it arises in this way. It is certainly one of the privileges of the members of this House to get answers to questions. The questions relate to matters of public interest and it is in order to get from the Government information which could not otherwise be secured and sometimes also to draw the attention of the Government to a wrong which can be remedied through local agencies and in cases where drastic and quick steps are necessary that notices of questions are given, because under our rules questions are to be answered in 15 days. The statement of the Leader of the House which, after all leaves out two of the most important departments of the Government, seems to be very very strange indeed! If you leave the Europeans and supporters of Government, how many votes the Ministers will command? The arguments of the Hon'ble Leader of the House seem to be on similar lines. If the two important departments are left out, the number of questions left over by the other departments will certainly be very small. Why should we leave out two of the most important departments? So far as the statement made by the Leader of the House regarding the hard-working Minister in charge of Civil Supplies is concerned, every one is over-worked in his job. But if a person is not equal to his job, his work should be split up or he may give up his job and make room for better men. If the Hon'ble Minister concerned cannot cope with the job he is entrusted with, let him say so and let the Leader of the House say that the Minister of Civil Supplies is not able to cope with the work. If that is so, he should give up the job, especially when today he has some of the very best men of the Bengal Civil Service to help his department and he has got more officials higher in the list than any other department of the Government. It is as a part of his duty that he is doing other duties; but this is just as important as his other tasks to which he should devote his attention. Now, if he cannot answer the questions and cannot do these things in time, let the department be split up. Asking of questions is an important privilege of the House and it is no less important work of the Hon'ble Minister to answer them than his other work. You will remember that you yourself adjourned the House for a short period in order to force the Minister's entry into the House to answer questions—you have done so and your predecessor had also done so. You have said, Sir, that you yourself are helpless in the matter since you have requested the Government many times to expedite answers to questions. But Government have not yet responded to your benign advice. Would you now, Sir, kindly advise us in what way we can take up the matter and assert our privileges, so that there may not be any recurrence of such a state of things?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir you are an experienced parliamentarian: you know what you should do in the matter. But all I propose is that I want to take up the matter once more with the Hon'ble Ministers and I hope to come to a satisfactory solution.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: All right, Sir, we shall then wait and after you have tried if the position remains as now, we must find some means to force the unwilling Ministers to give answers to questions.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am assured by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Civil Supplies that most of the questions in his department will be answered in the course of the next week. I think that is hopeful. ("Yes" from several members.) Let us now proceed with the questions which were passed over on the 5th July last owing to the absence of the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Soft coke.

196 Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if he is aware that the price of soft coke, an indispensable commodity for cooking food of poor and middle classes, specially in Calcutta and industrial areas, owing to the paucity of the supply of the wood fuel here, has been fixed by the Central Government at Rs. 17 per ton f.o.r. colliery siding;
- (b) if he is aware that the corresponding pre-war price was Rs. 3 to Rs. 4;
- (c) if he is aware that the cost of production of soft coke at the colliery at present does not exceed Rs. 6 per ton;
- (d) if he is aware that the present exorbitant rate of Rs. 17 per ton has been offered as a weightage to soft coke producing collieries which do not get a sufficient number of wagons to keep them going and practically at the expense of the consumer;
- (e) if he is aware that colliery owners prefer the supply of a sufficient number of wagons to an extraordinary rate in price; and
- (f) if the Government of Bengal propose to make representations to the Central Government to put an end to this state of affairs in the best interests of the small colliery owners and the consumers alike?

MINISTER in charge of the CIVIL SUPPLIES DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY): (a) The present price of soft coke fixed by the Central Government is Rs. 19 per ton f.o.r. colliery siding.

(b) The corresponding pre-war price was between Rs. 3-8 and Rs. 5-8.

(c) to (e) I am not aware.

(f) No. So far as I am aware the increase in rate is due to the high cost of coal raisings which is the result of increased labour and other production costs. I understand that the matter is constantly under examination and review by the Government of India.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: With regard to (c) to (e), since the Hon'ble Minister says that he is not aware of these facts, would he please enquire and reply to all these questions?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Is that a question?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, your allegation is that cost of production has increased, etc. He says that he is not aware of the fact and he refutes your allegation.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Did the Hon'ble Minister enquire?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: As regards the question of cost of raising and cost of production, etc., it is a matter for the Government of India, and they are enquiring into the matter constantly; the Provincial Government has nothing to do except to carry on the orders of the Government of India. Therefore, in this regard I do not feel called upon to make an enquiry.

Stock of foodgrains rendered unfit for human consumption.

197. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if he is aware of the fact that a huge stock of foodgrains supplied by the Government of India for the feeding of Calcutta and the industrial areas has been spoiled and rendered unhygienic by the recent heavy showers in Calcutta;
- (b) if the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, whether the Government propose to distribute the said stuff so rendered unfit for human consumption to the various ration shops here or districts outside Calcutta; and
- (c) if not, (i) what will become of the said damaged stuff, and (ii) who will be responsible for the damage of such a valuable stock?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) It is not correct to say that a huge stock of foodgrains supplied by the Government of India for Calcutta and the industrial areas has been spoiled and rendered unhygienic by heavy showers in Calcutta; as a matter of fact the damage caused has been negligible.

(b) Does not arise. In any case Government do not propose at any time to distribute rice or other foodgrains unfit for human consumption to ration shops in Calcutta or to districts in Bengal.

(c) Does not arise.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Arising out of (a), will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what is, in his estimate, the extent of the damage caused?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Somewhere in the region of 1 per cent.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Without giving the percentage of the damage, will the Hon'ble Minister please state the damage in terms of maunds or in terms of money?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I am afraid, I cannot answer that as I have not got sufficient data for that.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: What is the amount of damaged foodstuffs supplied by the Government of India?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I have no information of the total amount of foodstuffs supplied by the Government of India; but as regards the amount of foodstuffs supplied by the Government of India for the feeding of Calcutta, well, with regard to that I am almost certain that nothing has been damaged except what came in a damaged condition.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Arising out of the answer just now given, is it not a fact that before the foodstuffs are sent to Bengal there is a machinery of the Government of Bengal in the Government of India to inspect the quality of foodstuffs that are being sent?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I submit this question does not arise.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I think, Sir, you are to decide which supplementary does arise and which does not arise out of a question and it is not for the Hon'ble Minister to say which question does not arise. I think, Sir, it is for you to decide.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, we received damaged foodgrains of poor quality and it is not possible for the Government of Bengal that must receive foodgrains to refuse foodgrains. We have set up a machinery wherever possible to inspect quality of foodgrains, but there must be some amount of tolerance and allowance.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Is there no officer on behalf of Government to inspect the foodstuffs that come from the Central Government before they are accepted?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: There is no question of foodgrains being accepted. They are sent here, and it is not open to the Government of Bengal to refuse or send back the foodgrains. The Railways will not take them back.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is it not a fact that the Government of India have said that they did not send rotten foodstuffs to Bengal and that the Government of Bengal can inspect these foodstuffs at the source?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: The Government of India may say what they like. The whole matter is extremely complicated. The question of inspection of foodstuffs is subject to tolerance and allowance. There is a considerable amount of correspondence and circulars on the matter, and it cannot be answered in an off-hand manner.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether it is a fact that a huge stock of foodgrains were kept in the Botanical Garden without any cover whatsoever and that they were damaged during the rains?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: This question, I submit, does not arise out of this question. Still I shall answer it. In the first place, it is not a fact that foodgrains were kept in the Botanical Garden without cover. They were kept under cover and they were very well covered by tarpaulin in the best military manner. In the second place, they were not foodgrains for the feeding of Calcutta but they were foodgrains which came much earlier and which were kept in our godowns here. In order to receive the foodgrains for the feeding of Calcutta we had to empty these foodgrains by putting them into the Botanical Garden.

Insufficiency of the ration for manual labourers and children.

198. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if he is aware that the ration of rice and atta sanctioned for manual labourers, including those employed in the private households, is quite insufficient;
- (b) if he is aware that the ration of rice and atta sanctioned for growing boys and girls up to the age of 12 is also insufficient;
- (c) if the answers to part (a) and (b) be in the affirmative, whether the Government consider the desirability of increasing the said ration in consultation with the Public Health Department; and
- (d) if so, when the final decision on the subject is expected?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) and (b) The present ration of rice and atta allowed to manual labourers and children up to the age of 12 years is not insufficient, as it can be supplemented by other non-rationed foodstuffs.

(c) and (d) Do not arise.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Questions over.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, with regard to my adjournment motion about bhog ration the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies has already made a statement and has also announced the personnel of the Committee that he is going to appoint in this connection. Now, regard to this aspect of the matter I want to make one or two—

Mr. PRESIDENT: There is no adjournment motion on the agenda today.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: But it was said the other day that till tomorrow he will announce the personnel of the Committee. There was a distinct understanding that one of the members of the Hindu Mahasabha would be included in the Committee, and as regards occasional pujas like—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, I believe the personnel has already been announced, and I remember to have seen it in the papers. Now, if you have any suggestions to make, the best course for you would be to send them in writing to the Hon'ble Minister. Don't you think, Mr. Suhrawardy, that it will be the best course for him to do?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Yes.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If you send your suggestions to the Hon'ble Minister, Mr. Mazumdar, I am sure he will consider them.

Adjournment Motion.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Mr. President, Sir, I had an adjournment motion on the question of sugar shortage in Jalpaiguri on the 6th last, in regard to which the Deputy President was pleased to observe that the Civil Supplies Minister would make a statement today and it would be open to me to move my adjournment motion after the statement was made.

Mr. PRESIDENT: About the supply of sugar? Will Mr. Suhrawardy make the statement now?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Yes, Sir, I have the figures ready with me.

The complaint is that sugar has not been supplied to the Jalpaiguri town and district during the last two months according to the quota allotted in spite of the repeated requests and reminders of the local authorities, thereby causing serious distress. I do not know why they should be distressed because sugar has not been despatched. But I do wish to make it known to the House that so far as despatching of sugar is concerned, it is done not by the Government of Bengal but by various mills to which the sugar quota has been allotted. The Sugar Controller allots quotas to various mills in Bihar and the United Provinces as well as to the few mills in Bengal; then certain areas are allotted to the mills and these mills are expected to despatch sugar to those areas. If they fail to do so, the Bengal Government can do nothing in the matter. Often enough, recently, the failure has been due, so far as we have been able to ascertain, to the difficulty which the railways have found in placing the requisite number of wagons at the disposal of the sugar factories. So far as Jalpaiguri itself is concerned, the total annual quota for the district from December, 1943, to November, 1944, which is known as the "sugar year," is 15,076 bags. Out of this, orders have been placed at the instance of the Sugar Controller for India (which again is not a concern of the Government of Bengal), for 12,268 bags and the quota which has been despatched by the factories in 7 months is 7,690 bags. It will be seen that in relation to the quota which has been allotted, the number of bags which has been sent by the sugar factories within 7 months is well in proportion to the allotments in 12 months of 12,268 bags. Instead of 1,020 bags a month, in 7 months we have sent 7,690 bags which may be considered to be really in excess of the allotments which have been made. Consequently, there should not be any such grave shortage or distress because within the last two months allotments have not been sent. It appears, Sir, that in the February-March quota of sugar out of 2,935 bags allotted, 2,460 bags were sent, and the last despatch was made on the 24th of May, 1944. Then there was the April-May quota of 2,200 bags. But unfortunately, it appears that the factory or factories concerned were not able to send their sugar. Hence this month we have allotted 1,900 bags of sugar more than the usual allotment, and we are sending it from the Gopalpur Sugar Factory in Rajshahi. We are also sending some amount of sugar from Calcutta—540 bags to Jalpaiguri and 360 bags to Alipore Duars. These are, however, exceptional movements and we are taking the risk of doing so, although this allotment has not been authorised by the Sugar Controller.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, with regard to the statement which has just been made by the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies, I beg to submit that it is not very satisfactory. The plea that because certain sugar mills are outside Bengal—in Bihar and in the United Provinces—and they failed to supply sugar, that is not the fault of the Government of Bengal; because the railway wagons are not available, that it is not the fault of the Government of Bengal,—this plea is not satisfactory. My point is this: sugar is now controlled and the Government of India makes allotments to different provinces. As such, the Government of Bengal certainly has its quota to supply it to the districts of Bengal—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Do you propose to move your adjournment motion?

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Yes.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Now?

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Yes, Sir.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, I do not think this is a matter of very urgent public importance. Jalpaiguri district has, as a matter of fact, received more than its allotted quota for seven months. Consequently, the statement made by the honourable member that it has not received its quota is not correct.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mahalanobish, may I make a suggestion? I would waive the question of urgency if you wait till tomorrow about this matter. I would like to go into the statement of Mr. Suhrawardy before I allow you to move the motion. Tomorrow if you bring up the matter, I shall state my views whether I shall give my consent to it or not. Will you kindly wait till tomorrow?

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: All right, Sir.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, I may point out that the question of movement from factory to districts is a matter for the Government of India and not for the Government of Bengal. Allotment is our business—how much is to be sent to the districts from the total quota allotted to Bengal—that is a matter for the Government of Bengal.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I enquire that according to the statement of the Hon'ble Minister it appears that the Jalpaiguri allotment of 15,000 bags—

Mr. PRESIDENT: There should be no more debate on this question at this stage.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Was any attempt made by the Government of Bengal to request the Sugar Controller to send 3,000 more bags for Jalpaiguri?

Mr. PRESIDENT: All these points may be considered tomorrow.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, do I understand then that I shall get an opportunity of bringing all these points tomorrow?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

The House will now take up the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Mr. President, Sir, I do not propose to take much time of the House today. The object which I have in mind has already been made clear. I hope that honourable members on the other side of the House will also see that this point is considered before the Bill is actually put on the Statute Book. Now, Sir, the amendment of my honourable friend Mr. Amulyadhane Roy wants that the Bill should come into force on the 1st April, 1945, and not on the 1st April, 1944. If it comes into operation from the 1st April, 1944, then obviously the Bill will be of a retrospective character. In this House, we have often held discussions about the desirability or otherwise of retrospective Bills. I would address a few remarks specially to my friends on the left. The Leader of the European Party, Mr. H. C. A. Hunter, on the 19th January, 1940, in the course of discussion on a Bill in this House said, "But there are still, I think, one or two provisions the wisdom of which may be doubted. The chief among these is, to my mind, retroactivity. Having ascertained that the amendment in the name of my Party regarding retrospective effect had no hope whatever of being carried, I decided not to waste the time of this House——" Obviously, when Mr. Hunter spoke as Leader of the European Party, he represented the point of view of his Party. Since then, the European Party has discovered new virtues in the retrospective character of Bills. In January, 1940, that Party were definitely committed to the principle that they did not want retrospective Bills. This was in respect of a Bill where Government and the Opposition were united in demanding that the Bill should be put into effect as quickly as possible. It was intended to relieve the burden of indebtedness of a very large section of the people of Bengal. I refer to the Bengal Money-lenders Bill. At that time, we on this side of the House and the then Government agreed that that Bill should be put on the Statute Book as early as possible, even though that Bill was of a retrospective character, because by that Bill we wanted to relieve the indebtedness of the poor people of Bengal. With regard to that Bill there was no question of any difference of opinion between the Government and the Opposition; but my honourable friends on my left felt as a Party that they could not support the retrospective character of the Bill. "Retroactivity", said Mr. Hunter, "was a dangerous principle". He said, "Having ascertained that the amendment in the name of my Party regarding retrospective effect had no hope whatever of being carried, I decided not to waste the time of this House by moving it". He knew that he would not be able to carry that amendment as both the Government and the Opposition were united on that point. But he still held that the retrospective character was undesirable. He said, "But not only is retroactivity a dangerous principle but its adoption in this Bill is a most dangerous precedent." This was said on 19th January, 1940. Since then there have been so many changes in the political landscape and the European Party in their new wisdom have thought fit to support that very retroactivity. I hope I may be pardoned if I refer to a suggestion which was made in another place that this metamorphosis, this new dawning of wisdom is the result of clause 49 of this Bill. This clause regarding the agricultural income-tax on the tea plantation was suggested by the Select Committee and later on at the instance of the members of the European Party was dropped. In any case, the attitude of the European Party towards the question of retrospective nature of money Bills has altogether changed. They are today prepared even to pass a taxation measure with retrospective effect. I, for one, welcome this change of attitude on the part of the European Party. In future, there may be new taxation measures with regard to the profits which have been earned in this country as a result of trade transactions. I hope, Sir, that my honourable friends on my left will then also hold to their present opinion and will not change again. I hope they will then admit that a retrospective Bill in taxation measures will not be undesirable. Mr. Hunter went on to quote from legal authorities. I will not take more time of the House. I have given the date on which that speech was made by Mr. Hunter and honourable members who are interested in the matter may look up the reports. I would only ask the European Party to explain, if they have any explanation to offer, what is the factor which has made them change their attitude in this respect. I hold the European Party have also a duty to this House. Once they were committed to a particular position as a party. Today, as a Party, they have chosen to resile from their own position and they have done so without any reason for such resilience. I think if there is any misunderstanding of their action, the European Party will have to thank themselves for such misunderstanding.

The Hon'ble Finance Minister in his statement on the last occasion stated that the Bill is really not retrospective. He argued that the Bill had been published in the gazette in August, 1943, and was introduced in the Assembly in September, 1943. Now, Sir, the question is quite simple. This Bill proposes to tax the people from the 1st of April, 1944. At the time the Government first published the Bill in the gazette, there was no knowing whether the Government would proceed with the Bill or not. Even if they had carried it through the first House of the Legislature, there was no guarantee that the Government would proceed with the Bill. You know, Sir, what the Government did with regard to another Bill which went through one House but has since been dropped for reasons best known to the Government themselves. On the last occasion, when the question of the Bill dealing with repatriation of destitutes came up, the Government stated that even though that Bill had been passed by this House, they did not propose to proceed with the Bill in another place. Therefore, the fact that Government had issued a notice in the gazette or that Government had introduced the Bill in another place cannot by itself convince the public that the Bill would become law. Again, Sir, there are always changes made in a Bill. The shape in which a Bill is introduced in the Legislature, the shape in which it emerges out of the Select Committee and the shape in which it is finally put on the Statute Book are almost never the same. All kinds of changes take place. Therefore, the public cannot make their own disposition on the basis of a declaration or declaration of intention on the part of the Government.

As I said last time, I would refer particularly to the case of the poorer persons who will come within the purview of this Bill. So far as the landlords are concerned, so far as the limited companies who have landed interests are concerned, they have their own books of accounts. They have their own accountants. So far as the tenants are concerned, I think, all honourable members will bear me out, most of the tenants do not have any regular book of accounts. Most of them do not have any account of the type which would be required for the assessment of the tax which might be imposed on them. Now, Sir, this Bill was passed in the Lower House and is now in the Upper House. The public are now convinced that the Government really mean business, and want it to be put on the Statute Book this very year. Till now, there was no certainty that the Government would proceed with the Bill. Therefore, Sir, the poorer assesses are not prepared to meet the assessment which might be imposed on them.

Again, Sir, in politics, as my honourable friends know very well, there are many uncertainties. Because a particular Government introduces a Bill, it does not follow that the Bill will become an Act. There is a good deal of difference between the introduction of a Bill by a Government, and especially a Government which was fast losing its majority, and an Act which has actually been put on the Statute Book. In these circumstances, I think the Hon'ble Finance Minister will consider the advisability of accepting this amendment, so that the persons who are taxed and who come under this assessment may know what exactly is going to be a charge on them, what is going to be their liability.

One other point has been mentioned by the Hon'ble Finance Minister. He says that the Government of India made a certain grant on the condition that Bengal would help herself. Sir, it is not necessary for that purpose that this meagre sum of 30 or 40 lakhs should be raised this very year. I do not remember the figure stated by the Finance Minister, but whatever the figure may be, these few lakhs of rupees are surely not going to change the deficit into a surplus. If this taxation measure is passed and put on the Statute Book and comes into operation on the 1st of April, 1945, the Government of India will no doubt be satisfied that the Government of Bengal have done their best to help themselves by taxing the resources of the province. Once that condition is satisfied, there is no reason that it must be realised from a particular date. I do not think that the Hon'ble Finance Minister will suggest that the Government of India will be so unreasonable as to make a fetish of the 1st April, 1944, and to hold that the whole thing will become wrong if in place of the year 1944 the year 1945 is suggested. Therefore, on these grounds, namely, that the public, and especially that type of the public who are affected by the Bill, namely, those who do not keep their accounts like the big landlords and limited companies dealing with landed interests, have not had sufficient notice, the operation of the Bill should be postponed. Their interests will also have to be safeguarded by the Government. Surely, it is not the intention of Government to penalise them simply because they are somewhat well-to-do. In view of these considerations, in view of the fact that the normal conditions have not been restored, that the condition of Bengal requires very careful and sympathetic treatment—in view of all these—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will you please cut short your speech, Mr. Kabir?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I am summing up and I have almost finished. In view of these facts the date may be postponed. Such postponement by itself will not induce the Government of India to withdraw any subvention that they have granted; in view of all these considerations, I would suggest that the Hon'ble Finance Minister will be pleased to see his way to accept this amendment.

(Mr. Kamini Kumar Datta rose to speak.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Dutta, you want to speak on this particular amendment?

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Yes, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The other amendments, viz., Nos. 6 and 7 are practically the same, only the figures are different. So there should be one discussion on the other three amendments. May I know if Mr. Lalit Chandra Das will move his amendment?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I have spoken on amendment No. 11, which is on the same lines as amendment No. 5 which is now under discussion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is it?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I say that I have already spoken on amendment No. 5.

Mr. PRESIDENT: We are now discussing amendment No. 5; next come amendments Nos. 6 and 7 which are practically the same, with this difference that while No. 5 wants the Bill to come into force on the 1st day of April, 1945, the latter two amendments want the Bill to come into force on the 1st day of April, 1947. That is the only difference. You don't want to move that amendment, Mr. Das?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Everything will depend on the result of the voting on this amendment No. 5.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, let there be one discussion, but I will put all the three amendments to vote separately; no separate principle is involved in all these three amendments; only a difference in the year.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Yes, Sir, there is a difference in principle—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order, Mr. Mazumdar. Only the figures are different but the principle underlying the amendments is exactly the same. Therefore, Mr. Das, if you want to move your amendment, kindly do so now.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I have already spoken on amendment No. 5.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Then I take it that you do not want to move this amendment.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: As I have already said, Sir, I have already spoken on No. 5 and until that is disposed of I do not see how I can move No. 6 which refers to a later date.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, you either move the amendment or you do not. What do you intend to do?

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, let us have first of all a decision on the present amendment.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It is for three years.

Mr. PRESIDENT: There is no different principle, Mr. Das. If you want to move it, you may do so. If you do not want to move it, don't move it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I do not want to move it now.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Then I take it that you won't move it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Yes, Sir, I shall move it later.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Then please move it now.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: He will move it after No. 5. Mr. Das, don't move it now.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Sahib, you need not give him directions. He is sufficiently experienced in parliamentary procedure.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: It touches everybody on this side of the House.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, if I am compelled to move it now—

Mr. PRESIDENT: There is no question of compulsion. There being no different principle so far as these two amendments are concerned, I think it is only fair that there should be one discussion on these amendments and there should be separate voting after discussion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I should like to move it after No. 5 is finished.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is your objection? If you move it now you will have right of separate voting.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I do not understand how there will be separate voting. I have already spoken on amendment No. 5 and the position would be embarrassing if I want to speak again.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not see any difficulty. There is no new principle. Thousands of amendments have been moved on this principle in this House. If there is no new principle and there is only some kind of verbal difference in different amendments, then the practice is to take all the amendments together and have only one discussion but to have separate voting on each.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I submit, Sir, that there is different principle involved in amendment No. 6. The idea of first amendment No. 5 is to make it prospective immediately on the 1st April, 1945, but in the second No. 6 it is 1st April, 1947, that is after the war.

Mr. PRESIDENT: There is no difference in principle.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I submit, Sir, that in my opinion there is difference.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, it is quite true that if there are several amendments involving almost the same principle, they may be taken together there being one discussion and that it would have been better if amendments of similar nature had been taken together. But, Sir, on amendment No. 5 there has already been a good deal of discussion, and some of those who have already spoken on amendment No. 5 might speak on amendment No. 6. So I think it would be better if after finishing amendment No. 5, you take up other amendments of similar nature together and have one discussion, otherwise, as I have said, if some of the members who have spoken on amendment No. 5 want to speak on No. 6, there may be confusion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think there is any insuperable difficulty if at this stage No. 6 is taken up. But if that would satisfy Mr. Das and you I have no objection to your suggestion. Out of deference to your wishes I agree to your suggestion. Mr. Dutta will you speak on it?

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Sir, I rise in support of the amendment which proposes that the Bill shall come into force on the 1st day of April, 1945. Some general principle is always accepted in the matter of legislation. One of these is that so far as procedural legislation is concerned, it is generally made retrospective in its operation; but in respect of substantive laws the general principle accepted is that it is not usually made retrospective. Not only it is not made retrospective, rather it is condemned; and it is laid down that it should be avoided as far as possible. Particularly in the case of finance Bills which impose a liability on the people, it is a universally accepted principle that it should not be retrospective in its operation. Is there any special reason in respect of this Agricultural Income-tax Bill why it should transgress this generally accepted principle? If this Bill is made retrospective, then various complexities will arise. For example, in respect of the agricultural income-tax, can it be expected that the cultivators or agriculturists would be in a position at all to give any account of their expenses? No doubt in clause 7 of the Bill, certain percentage has been fixed for allowance to be made for the expenses; but it would appear from the various amendments that that percentage has not been regarded as sufficient. Indeed, it is very doubtful whether 50 per cent. would really cover the expenses. In justification of the proposal to make the Bill retrospective in its operation, it is being argued that it was published in the Calcutta Gazette, as if it is quite a sufficient notice to the people that such an enactment is going to be made. It is an established principle everywhere that substantive enactments should not be made retrospective in character. Because some time has elapsed since the publication of the text of this Bill in the Gazette, that should not be considered to be a good reason for coming to the conclusion that this Bill should have retrospective effect.

Then there is another reason. It has been said that Government of India would grant the subvention only if they find that this Bill has been passed. Now, Sir, I think that the passing of this taxation measure will be a sufficient proof of the bona fides of this Government that we have done something in the matter of taxing our people. It is not necessary that this Bill should first be passed and then the subvention would be granted. There are many other factors which would be taken into consideration by the Government of India before they grant the subvention. I do not think that the question of granting subvention rests on a frail ground like this, the passing of this Bill. Therefore, it is only fair and equitable,—unless of course it is a zid on the part of the present Ministry that this Bill should be made operative from April, 1944,—that the Bill should come into force from 1st April, 1945.

With these few words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN:

Sir, on behalf of the Hon'ble Minister in charge I should like to give reply to one or two points raised by Mr. Humayun Kabir and my honourable friend Mr. Dutta. Sir, this amendment seeks to defer the realisation of agricultural income-tax by six or eight months. Mr. Humayun Kabir said that the poor agriculturists would be hard hit if they were to pay the tax and if retrospective effect were given to this Act. As a matter of fact, Sir, the Bill does not contemplate retrospective effect. Of course, it is technically retrospective because the Bill has not yet been passed into an Act. But, Sir, it has already been made clear that the Bill was introduced in the Legislature in September, 1943, and in ordinary course it ought to have passed through both the Legislatures before the 31st of March. So, in effect it is not really retrospective. Who are likely to be affected by the passage of a taxation Bill like this? We are told by Mr. Kabir that the poorer class will be affected. But, Sir, the provisions of the Bill are such that the poor agriculturists will not be at all touched. In the Schedule of this Bill it has been definitely laid down under 2(b)(ii) that any agriculturist possessing less than 100 standard bighas of land will be automatically exempted from the payment of this tax. Sir, how many of our agriculturists hold more than 100 bighas of land? In this respect, statistics were collected for the Bengal Land Revenue Commission and it was found that in Bengal 90 per cent. of our agriculturists hold less than 10 acres of land which means 30 bighas and that 8·4 per cent. of our agriculturists hold more than 10 acres. As a matter of fact, agriculturists holding more than 100 standard bighas of land in Bengal will not be more than one per cent. and it is they who are the wealthiest among the agriculturists. It is said that these people will be hard hit and they will be done for if they are to pay the tax for the preceding year in which they had made fabulous income which they had never before seen in Bengal. The paddy which was selling at Rs. 2 per maund was sold by these people at Rs. 20 and some times even at Rs. 25 per maund. It will be for this period of income which they earned up to 31st of March, 1944, that they will have to pay the tax if retrospective effect is given. Those members of the Legislature who profess to have sympathy for these people,—I cry them down as having no sympathy for the masses,—are really the supporters of the capitalists and wealthy people. They stand exposed, they stand unmasked before the people when they support an amendment of this kind in order to show sympathy for those capitalists and wealthy people who were rolling in wealth when the masses were dying of starvation.

It has been made clear that the landlords have got at least 50 per cent. better collections last year, on account of the fact that the agriculturists were able to get better prices for their products and were able to pay up their rent and also arrears of rent. I may repeat that the landlords got more than 50 per cent. of their annual collections and it is these people who are going to be taxed under this Bill. And still it is complained that they are hard hit or will be hard hit if the Bill is given retrospective effect only in the technical sense. I think this merely shows that the real sympathy of the Opposition is towards the capitalists and wealthy classes of this province, although they profess to be supporters of the poor and the oppressed. As regards the initial amount of the income that is liable to be taxed, even the Flood Commission had suggested that the minimum taxation limit should be only Rs. 1,000 and even the zamindars themselves, I mean the zamindar members of the Flood Commission, in their Minority Report suggested Rs. 2,000 as the initial taxable income; but we have made it Rs. 3,500. In spite of this, with what face can anybody say that the poor or the middle class people will be hard hit by this tax or by the retrospective nature of the tax which, by the way, is only technically retrospective and will not affect the poorer people at all? I am surprised that of all people my young friend Professor Humayun Kabir whom I know to be always a supporter of the weak and the oppressed and a supporter of the masses of Bengal, should be supporting an amendment of this nature which would only help the capitalists and the wealthy agriculturists who have made a fabulous profit during last year. I was surprised indeed that he of all people should have supported an amendment of this nature. With these words, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 1 of the Bill, for sub-clause (3) the following be substituted, namely:—

“(3) It shall come into force on the 1st day of April, 1945.”

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The Ayes being 16, and the Noes being 30, the amendment is negatived.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I beg to move: that in sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following be added, at the end, namely:—
“and shall expire on 31st March, 1945.”

Sir, I spoke at length in connection with another amendment, amendment No. 4, which was somewhat analogous to the present one—

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: On a point of order, Sir. Mr. Kabir's present amendment is the same as amendment No. 4 except the date, namely, here he wants "and shall expire on 31st March, 1945."

Mr. PRESIDENT: But the date is different!

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, March following is the same as 31st March, 1945.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No. Mr. Kabir's previous amendment was that "It shall come into force on such date as may be notified in the Official Gazette, not being earlier than three months from the date of publication of the assent of His Excellency the Governor or the Governor-General as the case may be and shall remain in force till the 31st day of March following". There is no mention of the year. Therefore, I hold that the amendment is in order.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Thank you, Sir. I have already stated at the outset that I shall not make a long speech. Most of the points which I had to state in this connection have already been placed before the House at the time I moved the previous amendment. I was glad to find that beyond making a cavalier remark that my statement of history was not very accurate, the Hon'ble the Finance Minister could not rebut any of the arguments which I put before the House. He could not go beyond what I said, neither could he put forward any firmer ground. He said my narration of the constitutional development in England was not very accurate, but I say, Sir, that not only was my statement correct in major outlines but it was correct also in regard to the steps through which constitutional rights had been acquired by the people of England. As a student of history, the Hon'ble Finance Minister could not very well refute my arguments and having yet some historical conscience left, he had to content himself with a statement that my arguments were not very accurate. Sir, the statement of the Hon'ble Finance Minister has proved that what I said on the other occasion was correct. The argument which I advanced described the way in which the British Parliament gradually acquired for itself the right of financial control. The British Parliament had realised that there was no other way in which the Executive could be made responsible to public opinion. They had struggled to make the Executive responsive to the opinion of the Legislature. The Hon'ble Finance Minister by his very silence admitted the force of my argument.

He had only one argument to advance. He said that if my amendment were carried, it would require re-enactment of this Bill every year. If the enactment of this Bill this year has taken seven or eight months, could the Legislature be expected to give seven or eight months every year for an enactment of this type? I must confess, Sir, that I was astonished at this argument of the Hon'ble Finance Minister. I thought he had a little more political intelligence than to take his stand on a flimsy ground like this. To extend the life of this Bill requires the bringing forth of a very simple provision. It is not in the least necessary that the whole Bill should be re-enacted. All that is necessary is to bring before the House a one-clause Bill, viz., that the life of the Bill be extended for a further period of one year. I find, Sir, that the Hon'ble Finance Minister has been suffering from some sort of restriction, or shall I say, constipation of the intellect. I am surprised that he could not think of any other device beyond the devices which have already been used in the British Parliament or the Central Legislature.

One honourable member opposite got up and said that in the Supply Bill of the Central Legislature, rates vary according to the variation in the Schedule. I confess, Sir, that the argument was astonishing and yet it came from my honourable friend Mr. Nur Ahmed. It makes us wonder whether he was conscious of what he was saying. No question of Schedule can arise in this Bill here. In the Finance Act, the question of variation in the Schedule can arise because the Finance Bill is a consolidated Act in which rates of taxation are mentioned in the Schedule. Therefore, in the Finance Act or in the Supply Bill, variations are only in the Schedule. But, here this is a particular Act and an isolated measure. Here all that is necessary is to extend the life of the Bill from year to year by introducing a one-clause Bill. The only argument that the Hon'ble Minister could offer to his supporters to throw out my amendment was that it would involve a lot of time. That argument is quite wrong and it is absolutely unjustifiable. We know in this House that a one-clause Bill can be carried through in the course of a few days. If the Government so desire, the timetable of the Budget can be so arranged that at the time when the Budget is introduced, a notice of the Bill is given. By the time the Budget is accepted, the Bill can also be made into an Act. The Finance Minister can, therefore, offer no arguments for opposing this amendment. He can only appeal to his supporters not to throw the Ministry to the wolves. He and his colleagues are afraid of the Legislative Assembly. He knew that his majority was gone; he knew that if the Lower House were summoned again, then the House of Cards, which is the present Ministry, would totter and tumble down. Therefore, he must somehow or other carry the Bill through this House without any change whatsoever, for any change would require the reference of the Bill back to the Assembly. He has not advanced any argument. He can at most appeal to the pity and compassion of his supporters. His speech is a pathetic appeal to his supporters. In effect, he says, "We are helpless, we have no majority, we have no following in the country, we are not prepared to go to the electorate; therefore, since you have so long supported us, please keep us here a little longer and be so kind as to pass the Bill without any change, for if any change is made in the Bill, then we are undone." Therefore, he has nothing beyond this appeal which is only a matter of the emotions and not a question of argument. If the Hon'ble Finance Minister had advanced any real argument, we on this side would be quite prepared to consider it and try to meet it. As it is only an appeal to sentiments, these sentimental appeals will not have much effect on us. I do not know what the result will be on his own supporters; he is a better judge of that than myself. I do not know if it is a case of unalloyed sentiment or sentiments alloyed by considerations of diverse nature of which the Hon'ble Finance Minister may be the best manipulator. With these words, I commend my amendment to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following be added at the end, namely:—

"and shall expire on the 31st March, 1945".

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Mr. President, Sir, possibly it would not be very parliamentary to say that my friend who has moved this amendment was not serious; but I may say that there was no restriction on my feeling, as he has said. I may repeat that Mr. Kabir was not quite serious when he moved this particular amendment. I have nothing more to say, Sir, and I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question—

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I wanted to say only one word on this amendment—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order, before calling on the Hon'ble Minister to reply, I waited but none rose to speak. You should have got up before I called on the Hon'ble Minister to reply.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The difficulty was that two of us rose at one and the same time and I hesitated—

Mr. PRESIDENT: By this hesitation you have lost your chance, Khan Bahadur. He who hesitates loses.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: It sometimes happens that non-official members are permitted to speak after the reply of the Government member.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That sometimes happens, but we should not follow that procedure, as far as practicable.

The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following be added at the end, namely:—

“and shall expire on the 31st March, 1945”.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move that in sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following be added at the end, namely:—

“and shall remain in force for three years from that date”.

Sir, if this amendment is accepted, it would read like this: shall be deemed to have come into force on the 1st day of April, 1944, and shall remain in force for three years from that date. Sir, much has been said on the subject that Finance Bills should be an annual matter. So far as the principle of that saying is concerned, we have it that the Government of India do follow that practice. A Finance Bill is presented every year and the supplies are voted upon; they are voted upon either favourably or adversely. In my amendment I have given a span of three years from the date it comes into force. From the opening speech of the Hon'ble Finance Minister we got it that he was under the impression that some of the amendments tabled were reasonable and that they are such that it would receive consideration later on even though the Bill is now passed without any change of even a comma. That is an impression which was conveyed to us when he spoke at the time the Bill was taken into consideration. If he were sincere in that declaration, he can very well take up the consideration of the Bill after a period of three years, as suggested in my amendment. It would be time for him then to revise the Bill and to present an amending Bill or extending Bill. After all, the result of the operation of this Act may reveal certain defects which may lead the Hon'ble Finance Minister to bring in an amending Bill. There may be various other considerations which may weigh with the Hon'ble Finance Minister to see that the Bill is revised. If the argument that the Finance Bill should be renewable every year is supported by precedents, I think my submission that this Bill should be renewed and revised at the end of three years is one to which no exception should be taken by the Hon'ble Finance Minister. From the operation of the Bill for three years, he would be able to see how the income has been spent and then he will be in a position to judge whether the rates are to be changed or not. These are the arguments which I place before the House in pressing my amendment—it shall remain in force for 3 years. I do not urge that the income derived from the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax should be foregone—that is not my argument. I do not object to this tax being imposed but what I do urge is that the period should be for the present for three years. Three years is a sufficiently long period to consider whether the Bill is worked successfully or not and whether any change is required. With these words, I commend my amendment to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following be added, at the end:—

“and shall remain in force for three years from that date”.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support the amendment of my friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. I object to the remarks of Mr. Humayun Kabir about the Government not allowing their supporters to act freely. I believe that the Government has a substantial majority in the Assembly. Their decision is due to a desire to shorten the discussion in this House, but the effect of that request, under the circumstances prevailing here, has been just the opposite. In fact, the decision not to move amendments and not to allow any amendments to be carried, however reasonable and proper they might be, has reacted on the Opposition. They have accepted the situation with some amount of glee and are working with considerable energy. I believe that the position taken up by the Government only encourages the Opposition to indulge in big talks like these—

Mr. NUR AHMAD: On a point of order. Is it all relevant, Sir?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: He is developing his arguments.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I shall be strictly relevant in a moment. (Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: Then you were irrelevant, you admit?) Sir, the hon'ble member should realise that I was just showing a little courtesy to the hon'ble member who was interrupting me. However that may be, Sir, I find this amendment is more charitable towards the Bill than the Hon'ble Minister himself. The Hon'ble Minister himself made it clear that as soon as practicable he would bring in an amending Bill to cure the defects which have been brought out and which would be disclosed in the debates as we progress with the clauses of the Bill. Therefore, the life of the Bill, as it now stands, will be extremely short, much shorter than Mr. Lalit Chandra Das's amendment would make it, namely, three years. I do not know whether there is any secret arrangement between Mr. Lalit Chandra Das and the Hon'ble Minister for which Mr. Das lends his support to the Government. At any rate, I believe three years' life is a long life and by that time much water will pass under the Howrah Bridge and no one knows what will happen within that time. Perhaps by that time the House will be in a better mood to extend the life of this ill-drafted Bill. (Interruption.) I have one more remark to make as to the relevancy of my remarks which has been challenged in the House. I may point out an example of irrelevancy and inconsistency on the part of my esteemed friends who have thought it necessary to interrupt me. I find Mr. Nur Ahmed has tabled an amendment, amendment No. 55, by which he wants to make the operation of the Act annual. He would propose that instead of the Schedule, which is the life and soul of the Bill, the words "annual Bengal Finance Acts" be substituted. The effect of that amendment would be to make it an annual Act. The quarrel between Mr. Nur Ahmed and Mr. Humayun Kabir is rather on a question of drafting. Mr. Nur Ahmed has said that Mr. Kabir's amendment does not, on the face of it, make the Bill an annual Act but as a matter of fact its effect is the same as that of Mr. Nur Ahmed. Mr. Nur Ahmed has, by tabling this amendment, accepted the underlying principle of Mr. Kabir's amendment and it is more applicable to Mr. Lalit Chandra Das's amendment, which is a more charitable one. I, therefore, think that at least this amendment should be accepted. The systematic refusal to accept good amendments is only encouraging Mr. Humayun Kabir and others of his way of thinking to indulge in some insinuations and allegations which, I believe, have no real foundation.

With these words, Sir, I support the amendment.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Mr. President, Sir, I rise to support the amendment of Mr. Lalit Chandra Das and may say, at the very outset that this is a very inoffensive amendment and the Hon'ble Minister should have absolutely no hesitation in accepting it, because it neither affects the tax nor the revenues derived from this tax. He will go on having his tax merrily for three years, and if at that time Government is of opinion that the life of this enactment ought to be extended, well, it would be very easy for the Government to bring in an amendment saying that the words "three years" be deleted. That will serve the purpose of making this a permanent Act. Now, the contention of the mover of this amendment is that this is the first time that we are having an agricultural income-tax in Bengal. This is a new Act modelled or rather copied very badly from similar Acts passed by other provinces without any experience and the Bill bristles with mistakes, inconsistencies and other defects which would be obvious to the honourable members of this House as we proceed with the consideration of the clauses of the Bill more and more. Therefore, it is all the more necessary that we should start by limiting the life of the Bill so that we can see its working, find out the difficulties and then remedy them, if necessary, on the expiry of the first three years. On the 4th of July last, the Hon'ble Finance Minister assured the House that he would bring in an amending Bill. I submit, in that case he may consider the question of the amendment of this portion of the Bill also. Therefore, I submit that there cannot be any ground for objection to the acceptance of this amendment.

There is another thing. The other day the Hon'ble Finance Minister and my friend Mr. Nur Ahmed referred to Mr. Humayun Kabir's amendment and said that it would be very difficult if the Bills are reviewed every year and that a lot of time and expenditure will be involved in considering Bills of this nature every year. But I would just like to remind them of what is being done in this House every year with regard to another Bill, viz., the Non-agricultural Tenancy (Temporary Provisions) Bill. That Bill was enacted five years ago with perhaps one or two years' life, and since then the Government have been extending it by one year every year and it has been extended only recently for another year. If the Government could do that, I do not see what difficulty there can be in doing the same with respect to this Bill. That is why this Bill should not be given a life for more than three years as proposed by Mr. Das.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, this agricultural income-tax has been overdue in this country. It is nothing new. The Government of India and even the British Parliament felt that this tax ought to have been imposed long ago. Everybody in this world who earns a certain income has to pay some sort of tax. Professional men, traders and everybody have got to pay income-tax. Therefore, why the agricultural income should go unassessed? This is the policy underlying the Government of India Act. In its Schedule it is definitely put down as a provincial subject, and even the Floud Commission considered this matter and they definitely recommended that the agricultural income-tax should be imposed in this Province—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of information, Sir. The Hon'ble Minister has been speaking that agricultural income-tax should be imposed and such other things as British Parliament and British agricultural income-tax, but he is not speaking anything on the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think you ought to allow the Hon'ble Minister some latitude.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, my real point was that the British Parliament thought that the agricultural income-tax should be a permanent item of the provincial revenue. The Floud Commission also recommended that it should not be for one or two years but that it should be a permanent item of taxation for this province and that it should remain as a taxation measure until and unless the Permanent Settlement was abolished and zemindari rights were acquired. Then, it has been said that an amending Bill will be brought forward by the Hon'ble Finance Minister shortly in order to correct some of the mistakes that have crept in the Bill. Therefore, there should not be any objection to making the Bill temporary now, so that along with these corrections, other changes might also be made. I may say definitely, Sir, that in an amending Bill that may come hereafter, proposals will be made only for correcting the defects that have crept in and not for altering any main provision of the Bill. That has been quite definitely settled. Only mistakes of a grammatical and formal nature will be corrected through that amending Bill. We are quite definite that the Bill will remain permanently on the Statute Book as long as we have got to meet the increasing demands that are made from year to year for the agricultural and industrial improvement of the country. With these few words, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. Humayun Kabir rose.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. After the Hon'ble Minister has replied on behalf of Government, it is not the practice for fresh speeches to be made.

Mr. AMULYADHON ROY: We did not know, Sir, that the Hon'ble Agriculture Minister was replying to the amendment finally. He should in that case have made it clear.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I did so in the beginning that I would reply to some of the amendments on behalf of the Finance Minister.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following be added at the end, namely:—

“and shall remain in force for three years from that date”.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The next three amendments are practically identical. What I suggest is that Mr. Haridas Mazumdar should move his amendment and then Mr. Lalit Chandra Das will move his amendment by way of amendment to Mr. Mazumdar's amendment, viz., only the words “after the cessation of the war”, which occur towards the end of his amendment.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I beg to move: that after sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

“(4) That the income derived from it shall be applied solely for the improvement of agriculture or for projects connected with agricultural improvement”.

Sir, I had no intention to take part in the debates on the consideration of the clauses of this Bill for two reasons. Firstly, the ill-advised statement of the Hon'ble Minister in charge by which all the Government amendments were withdrawn, was a clear warning at the point of the bayonet of the majority, of course, that no amendments from any quarters would be accepted. I may say that when the Bill is not going to be changed even in respect of glaring inconsistencies and grammatical mistakes, the entire deliberations on this Bill have been practically reduced to a farce. So long as the majority is there behind the Treasury Benches, the amendments moved by the Opposition will be of no use at all. In spite of this, for practical purposes we are trying to move amendment after amendment and the amendment which I am moving is the cream of all the amendments, because in the Flood Commission report the following remarks occur—“We are strongly of opinion that if agricultural income-tax is imposed, it should be applied solely for the improvement of agriculture, or for projects connected with agricultural improvement”.

The Finance Minister says that the ear-marking of any income for expenditure on a specific purpose is bad finance. But this provides the only safeguard in a bad system of administration, where the tendency to spend more money on an increasing number of Ministers and Parliamentary Secretaries and on the Legislature grows as every day passes. We know that with a corrupt Ministry and an incompetent Executive even ear-marking does not go far enough. Heavy sums spent by the Agriculture Department last year on the "Grow-more-food" campaign have produced no effect. Distribution of seeds does not benefit the needy but only helps in securing votes in favour of such members of the legislature as support the Ministry. If the prices of rice, vegetables and fish be not the same as in pre-war times, Bengal will be depopulated. At the risk of being vain-glorious, I may say that every word of what I said about the impending famine on the 15th March, 1943, as reported in the next day's Hindusthan Standard came true—

MR. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, may I suggest that you confine yourself to the amendment which you have moved.

MR. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I was going to point out that instead of improvement of agriculture, which is the real object of this taxation measure, it would merely result in waste of money.

MR. PRESIDENT: Confine yourself to those points only.

MR. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Every word of what I said regarding impending epidemics in a press statement published in several Calcutta newspapers in the first week of May last came true only a few months later. I was born in a village, I grew up in a village and desire to die in my village. I know rural Bengal, I mean real Bengal. I say here and now with all the emphasis at my command that even if the present or slightly less price of rice continue for any length of time, if the pre-war price of Rs. 4 per maund in villages and Rs. 5 in towns do not come back soon, the poor bhadrals, landless labourers and village artisans will die in larger number than during last year's famine. What Dr. Bidhan Chandra Ray says about two crores of people being affected with epidemics only proves that malnutrition on a large scale is taking place, to be followed by diseases.

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMED: Are these relevant, Sir?

MR. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Perfectly relevant. I am showing that unless you improve the buying power of the people it would not be possible for them to live. The need of the hour is not doctors and nurses but able, efficient, honest administrators who will not allow the hoarders and profiteers any rest and bring down prices and make the "grow-more-food" campaign a real success. For this, ear-marking the proceeds of the agricultural income-tax for agricultural improvement is essential and will prove a Godsend in this hour of peril. Let us somehow live with the bad finance of Sir Francis Floud and then we shall have ample time to establish principles of good finance as taught by our Finance Minister who, not yet an old man, has changed chameleon-like in a short space of time from the fire-brand member of the External Capital Committee to the malleable Minister of a European-propped-up Ministry. This amendment is so innocuous that any Ministry other than the one determined to ruin Bengal will willingly accept it. If good counsels prevail and the amendment be accepted, I would appeal to the Agriculture Minister, who like myself is an old man to administer his department honestly and efficiently, so that when he is before his Maker he may give a good account of himself. The blood-soiled murderer is an angel when compared with Ministers who by their deeds and inefficient, partisan, dishonest administration are bringing about the death of millions.

I should like to revert to the subject of the Finance Minister calling ear-marking bad finance. These two words he has uttered here and elsewhere ad infinitum and ad nauseum, too. I have just a suspicion that these have been dinned into his ears by a British member of the Indian Civil Service. But I would like to remind him of the famous song of Dwijendra Lal Roy, namely, "বিলাত দেশের মর্নি" which again was an echo of a poem of John Keats of whom Dwijendra Lal was a great admirer. Britain is not the only country in the world and everything British is not sacrosanct. There is another country in Europe called France. The French people are mainly agricultural as we Bengalees are. In France, before the war taxes collected from agricultural interests were ear-marked for the improvement of agriculture. Thus, this system of ear-marking is not half so wicked as the Finance Minister thinks it to be ---

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, did you say anything like "blood-soiled murderer is an angel when compared with the Ministers"?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Oh, Sir, that is nothing.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think you should not have said that.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I bow to your ruling.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No question of bowing to my ruling. Will you please withdraw that expression?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: All right, Sir, I withdraw the expression.

Therefore, Sir, I would suggest that the agricultural income should be ear-marked for the improvement of the soil and the agriculturists and this tax should be added to the clause as I have already indicated.

With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I will now call upon Mr. Lalit Chandra Das to move his amendment.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move: that after sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following sub-clause be added, namely:—

"(4) That the income derived from it shall be applied solely for the improvement of agriculture or for projects connected with agricultural improvement after the cessation of war."

Sir, in speaking against my—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das should reserve his speech for tomorrow. The House stands adjourned till 3 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 56.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Tuesday, the 11th July, 1944, at 3 p.m., being the fifty-sixth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.), was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Communal disturbances.

206. Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state what districts were actually and in fact affected by the communal disturbances in the last week of May, 1944?

(b) Has there been any clash between the Hindus and the Muslims? If so, how many and in which places?

(c) How many have been killed and how many wounded and of the latter how many cases are serious? Have those clashes been mostly between the Muslims and the Scheduled Caste Hindus?

(d) Were those cases of agrarian troubles? What were those cases due to?

MINISTER in charge of the HOME DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) Khulna and Jessore. Although no incidents took place in Bakarganj and Faridpur, the tension spread to the bordering villages of those districts.

(b) Several clashes took place in the Bagerhat subdivision of Khulna, notably at Atjuri and Barabaria. A feature of these disturbances was that they were confined very largely to attacks on the homesteads of the two communities and extended over a wide area. Over 500 huts were burnt and destroyed. In the Jessore district, clashes took place at Sekra and Bashpur in police-station Sailkupa and at Pahahati, police-station Jhenidah. These clashes and rumours of the disturbances in Mollahat led to serious communal tension at Bhatoihat and Dudsar, police-station Sailkupa in Jhenidah, at Nooparahat, police-station Abhoynagar in Narail and in the Sripur police-station of the Magura subdivision.

(c) Five Muslims and one Namasudra were killed in the Mollahat disturbances in Khulna. I have no information of the number injured. In the Jessore district, one Muslim was killed and three Namasudras were injured. All the clashes were between Muslims and Namasudras.

(d) The disputes were agrarian in origin but quickly assumed a communal complexion. The Mollahat area is notoriously liable to communal outbreaks. I can give no reason for this.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Arising out of (a), will the Hon'ble Minister please state why no mention has been made of Dacca?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Because I doubt if there was any communal disturbance in the last week of May in Dacca.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Is it not a fact that communal disturbances took place in Dacca in the 3rd week of May and continued for about a month at regular intervals?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: So far as I am aware, at the time when these disturbances took place there was less tension in Dacca than at the time when the communal disturbances broke out in Dacca.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Is not Dacca notorious for such clashes between members of the two communities?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I think the honourable member is aware of the fact much better than I do, as he has just come from Dacca.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Does it follow then, Sir, that the Hon'ble Minister does not keep up-to-date information with regard to incidents that took place at Dacca during the last four years?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Not only during the last four years but since 1926.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Arising out of (c), the Hon'ble Minister has said that he has no information about the number of injured. He has only given the number of persons killed. Will he say why it is not possible to give the number of injured persons?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Because, I do not think there was any large number of people injured—perhaps there were very few cases of injured—so they were not mentioned in the reports and representations made to me at the time when the incidents took place.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Did the Hon'ble Minister make any enquiry as to the number of persons killed and injured from the local officers?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The information supplied to the House is based on the information given by the local officers.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: What is the basis of the information of the Hon'ble Minister that five Muslims and one Namasudra were killed at Mollahat?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: That is the report of the local officers.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Did not the local officers supply information with regard to persons injured?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if it is a fact that the District Magistrate and the Superintendent of Police did not help the Namasudras while their houses were plundered by the goondas?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Not only it is not a fact but it is a base calumny that is being spread by a certain class of people.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Arising out of (b), has there been any such clashes before or is it novel in the present case?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I believe it has happened more or less in the past.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Arising out of (d), will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what steps the Government has taken so far and what other steps Government propose to take in future in order to deal with similar situations, as the Mollahat area, according to him, is notorious for communal trouble?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I am trying to improve the relationship of the two communities. But no special steps have been taken for preventing clashes.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether these communal feelings are estranged as a result of communal propaganda on both sides?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As far as I know from non-official sources, it has been due to certain activities of the Hindu Mahasabha in that area.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Are we to understand that only one of the two organisations is responsible for the communal propaganda in this area? (No answer.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Did the Hon'ble Minister try to ascertain why Mollahat area is notorious for communal outbreak?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No, Sir.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is it not a fact that the League mollas are working in that area spreading all sorts of rumours that they have—the Muslims have—got Pakistan and that they have got Pakistan Government at their head?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The incidents took place long before the Pakistan proposal was mooted.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is it or is it not a fact that the League mollas spread the rumours that they have got Pakistan?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: League mollas have got nothing to do with this propaganda.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Is it not a fact that fanatic mollas have been appointed by the Muslim League to spread fanaticism in this part of the district?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I do not think there is any truth in that statement.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister please give a particular instance which came to his knowledge that the communal disturbance was due to the activity of the Hindu Mahasabha in that area?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As I have already said that a report came to me from a non-official source that due to the establishment of certain offices of the Hindu Mahasabha in that area the trouble arose.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: What is the name of the gentleman from whom that particular report came?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have already told the honourable member that this report came from a gentleman belonging to that locality where the disturbance took place.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Arising out of this statement of the Hon'ble Minister, was it due to the activities of the officers that the disturbance took place?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No, not due to any officer.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state what is the name of the District Magistrate of Khulna and the name of the Superintendent of Police, Khulna?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I would refer the honourable member to the Civil List.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that the supply of Civil List to the honourable members of the Legislative Council has been stopped?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: A copy of the Civil List may be found in the library.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware of the name of the District Magistrate of Khulna?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I know as much as the honourable members opposite know.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is the Hon'ble Minister prepared to tell the names of the District Magistrate and the Superintendent of Police, Khulna?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I do not see any reason why I should supply the information which the honourable members already know.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister please enquire who were the local officers in Khulna at the time of the disturbances at Mollahat?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: If the honourable member so desires, I shall certainly make an enquiry.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Having regard to the fact that the Hon'ble Minister cannot give any definite idea of the number of times that the disturbances took place, how does he come to the conclusion that Mollahat is a notorious place for communal disturbances?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: There were successive disturbances in that place.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: In spite of my persistent demand the Hon'ble Minister does not give me the name of the District Magistrate—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Das, the names of officers should not usually be asked for unless you have special justification for asking for names. According to the rules, you are not entitled to ask for the names of the officers unless it is necessary to make the question intelligible.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I am not aware of any such rules that names of officers must not be asked. I just now learn it from you, but from the circumstances of the present question does it not show that the situation is unusual, namely, that there has been serious communal disturbance and many people have been killed and many others injured in that disturbance? Under these circumstances, is it not necessary to know the names of the officers of Khulna who were responsible for keeping the peace of the district and also to know whether the District Magistrate has been transferred or is still there?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, unless you make yourself responsible for the allegation that the District Magistrate or the District Superintendent of Police or whoever he might be had something to do with the riot, I do not think you are entitled to ask for his name.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I desire to say that it is not a matter of allegation. It is about the inefficiency of the officer there. The inefficiency is apparent, and so I think I am entitled to ask questions about the officer in order to ascertain whether he is still there or he has been transferred. I am not aware of any rule which debars me from making an enquiry about the name of the officer who is really responsible for the peace and tranquillity of the district—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, if I were you I would put the question in this way. "Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether the District Magistrate during whose term of office the occurrence took place is still there or not?"

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It only shows the difference between your way of putting things and my way of putting things. I pursued the question for the simple reason that I wanted to ascertain whether he is still there.

Mr. MD. HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state the names of the political organisations or the political leaders who are trying to make capital out of these riots?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I don't think that question arises.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to tell us whether the District Magistrate who is in charge of the district and during whose time this riot has taken place has been transferred from that district?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I am very glad that Mr. Haridas Mazumdar has given me this opportunity to make a statement about this officer. It was decided to transfer this officer at least six months ago. As a matter of fact, the Chief Secretary has been most anxious to have him in the Secretariat here because of his efficiency. But at his request he was retained there because for private reasons he asked that he should not be moved before July. Since his appointment this officer has for the first time got an opportunity to come to Calcutta, and therefore in spite of the fact that it may appear at the present time as if this transfer is taking place in view of the incident at Mollahat, the actual facts are just the reverse. The Divisional Commissioner had been there after the incident and had met various deputations from all sides and since then he has sent in a report asking me to issue a communiqué exonerating the officer. But I held back the communiqué because a deputation of some of the M.L.A's., and the Ministers belonging to the Scheduled Castes saw me in this connection and I promised them that the Deputy Inspector-General of Police would go to the place of occurrence personally and hold an enquiry. As a matter of fact, the Deputy Inspector-General is waiting in my room just now. He has come to see me before he leaves for the place. As soon as his report is received, Government will issue a communiqué on the result of the enquiry held by the Commissioner of the Division first and the Deputy Inspector-General of Police, afterwards.

Point of Privilege.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Sir, may I rise on a point of privilege of this House? In connection with the discussion on the amendments to the Agricultural Income-tax Bill yesterday, some members of this House wanted to speak after the Hon'ble Minister had replied on behalf of Government and the Chair, though not definitely yet in so many words, did not allow the member to speak. We think that this matter should be settled once and for all, namely, whether in the case of amendments to a Bill the speech of the Hon'ble Minister on behalf of Government should be the last word or whether members of the House had a right to speak even after the Hon'ble Minister had made his reply on the subject. In this respect so far as the rules of this House are concerned, there is no specific or particular rule, but it appears that this matter did arise once in the Central Assembly and there it was held by the Hon'ble President of the Central Assembly that the speech of an honourable member on behalf of the Government was not the last word on the debate on the amendments, and that even after he had spoken any other member of the House had a right to speak. May I refer to the Central Assembly Debate of 1927, pages 2655-56? The President of the Central Legislative Assembly on that occasion ruled: "The honourable member should have known that the proper time for him to rise was when the Hon'ble the Commerce Member was called and not after he began his speech." Let me state clearly what happened. Mr. T. Prakasam wanted to raise that point while Sir Charles Innes, the Commerce Member, was in the midst of a speech and then he was told that he ought to have raised the point either before the Hon'ble Member began his speech or when he had concluded. After this, the President proceeded "it is not proper to interrupt a member in that way when he is making a speech. Either the honourable member should have risen to the point of order at the time when I called upon the Hon'ble Commerce Member or should rise now when he has concluded his speech. The point of order which the honourable member raises is whether the speech of the Hon'ble the Commerce Member concludes the debate on the amendments. The honourable member knows as well as I do that the Government reply is not the last word on the debate on amendments to a Bill and therefore the debate does not conclude with the speech of the Hon'ble Commerce Member". This will be found in the ruling of the President of the Central Assembly at page 2656, of their proceedings of the year 1927; I can hand over the book to you. Sir, if you like. (A voice: That is not the practice here.) Sir, I hear a faint voice that it is not the procedure of this House. As this House has not laid down a particular procedure for this purpose and the rules do not say that no non-official member can speak after the reply on behalf of Government is made, so the general principle of the rule of bar cannot be invoked unless it is specifically enacted. In this view the right of a member to speak after the speech of a Government Member cannot be taken away unless there is a specific bar. The President of the Central Legislative Assembly has allowed this practice and moreover there is nothing against it in our own rules of procedure which make it inapplicable to the proceedings in our House. It is a matter of the rights and privileges of members of this House and they cannot be curtailed by implication, as the ruling referred to above denotes. Although there is no such rule, it is a matter of practice and convention that on previous occasions members were allowed to speak even after the speeches of the members of Government.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Dutta, as far as I remember you are perfectly right that there is no hard and fast rule in this respect; but the convention in the Bengal Legislature has been that Government have practically the last say in a debate in respect of amendments to a Bill. And you will no doubt agree with me, that in order to have a finality in a debate, it is always convenient for the Minister in charge of a Bill to speak last so that he can reply to points raised by different non-official members in course of the debate. That has been the practice and that has been the convention of the Bengal Legislature.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: If the Hon'ble Minister raises any new points in his reply?

Mr. PRESIDENT: There is no hard and fast rule. If the Hon'ble Minister raises a new point altogether and it is found necessary on that ground to allow some honourable members to speak, it may be done. But the existing convention is a salutary one, and should be adhered to as far as possible.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: May I submit, Sir, that the convention has been that even after the Hon'ble Minister in charge has spoken, members have been allowed to speak. But the Hon'ble Minister in charge has a right of final reply—right of a second reply after which there is no further discussion. You will remember, Sir, that both your predecessor and you yourself on occasions have permitted members to speak after the Hon'ble Minister had spoken and therefore the Hon'ble Minister have a second right of reply. In this connection, I would also refer to section 42 of our Council rules where, though it does not deal with amendments,—

Mr. PRESIDENT: It deals with substantive motion: in the case of a substantive motion there is a second right of reply but it does not apply to amendments—an amendment is not a substantive motion.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: What I was going to submit was that that convention has been extended to amendments also.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But my experience is just the other way. The Minister in charge is allowed to wind up the debate and to have the last say.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: What I am suggesting is that after the Hon'ble Minister has spoken, members who want to speak may speak and thereafter the Minister has a second right of reply after which no further discussion can take place.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But, Mr. Kabir, that is with regard to a substantive motion. You now want to introduce this procedure in the case of amendments also; but amendments are not substantive motions: that is the distinction to which I would draw your attention.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I submit that the rules are there; but the convention has actually been followed in this House of allowing members to speak after the Hon'ble Minister's speech in case of amendments also. If you will look up the old proceedings of the House, you will find, Sir, that the late President and you yourself in the past allowed members to speak after the Minister and then allowed the Minister to give a final reply. Both the late President, and you, after assuming charge have permitted a second right of reply to the Minister, although there is no definite provision. Therefore, I suggest that the procedure laid down in the case of a substantive motion has been, by convention, extended in the case of amendments also.

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right. I shall look up the matter.

Adjournment Motion.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, may I mention about my adjournment motion regarding the sugar position in Jalpaiguri?

Mr. PRESIDENT: About your adjournment motion, I find from the statement of the Hon'ble Minister yesterday that he has sent some quantity of sugar from Calcutta: 540 bags to Jalpaiguri and 360 bags to the Alipore Duars. These are exceptional movements and he has taken the risk although the movement has not been authorised by the Sugar Controller. Has it been actually despatched?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Yes, Sir, the orders have been given to the department to do so as soon as possible. But I am not in a position to say whether they have been able to find wagons. Instructions have been given to despatch the bags as soon as the wagons are available. It is for the railway to give us wagons for which we have asked—it is for them to sapction wagons. We can't do anything in the matter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The difficulty about your adjournment motion, Mr. Mahalanobish, is that you want to censure the Government for failure to supply sugar. Now, the supply of sugar does not lie with the Government of Bengal. The adjournment motion can be moved if there is failure with regard to a particular duty for which the Provincial Government is responsible. Supply of sugar is not primarily a responsibility of the Provincial Government. There are three stages. First of all, the provincial quota. Provincial quota is fixed by the Central Government with reference to the total all-India production and total all-India consumption. Then, the district allotments are made by the Provincial Government out of the provincial quota. Thereafter, the Government of India come in again for distribution of the supply. The Government of India Control transport. Therefore, distribution lies with the Central Government. The supply is actually controlled not by the Provincial Government but by the Central Government and I wanted to find out from Mr. Suhrawardy whether he actually had made arrangements for distribution though that is not the responsibility of the Provincial Government. If he has done so, then that takes away much from the urgency of the matter and the weakness of your motion lies there. I hope you appreciate the point.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: I regret, I cannot appreciate the observation that has fallen from the Chair; but I still beg to submit that the question of supply to Bengal depends upon the measures that are taken or should be taken by the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies. The Government of India allots certain quota to Bengal and leaves that quota entirely at the disposal of the Government of Bengal in the Department of Civil Supplies and then, as to how, when and what quantity would be supplied to each district these things are to be settled by the Civil Supplies Department of the Government of Bengal. The question of despatch and the question of the selection of the mills.—they are all dependent upon the order or direction or request of the Civil Supplies Department. It is not the Government of India who sends sugar to Jalpaiguri or elsewhere. (Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: Yes.) Do not interrupt me. I say it is not the Government of India—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid it is not. I very carefully went through the statement of the Hon'ble Minister and from it I came to the conclusion that the Government of India allot the provincial quota and out of the provincial quota the Bengal Government allot the district quota and the district quota is distributed by the Central Government because they control transport; supply, therefore, in effect lies with the Central Government and not with the Provincial Government.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, may I correct the honourable member's impression? The Central Government allot the mills. They also allot the quantity that should be sent from each mill. We have nothing to do with this.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Then, Sir, am I to understand that the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies has nothing to do in the matter? (Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: Absolutely nothing to do.) I may just remind the honourable members on the other side that they should not interrupt me in this way. The Hon'ble Minister is fully competent to defend himself or to make a statement. Sir, what is done ordinarily? You will please take into account the ordinary procedure that is followed. Unless the Hon'ble Minister moves, the Government of India does not move in the matter of supply. The Government of India leaves the quota for the province in the hands of the Bengal Government to be dealt with by the Civil Supplies Department. The Hon'ble Minister after making arrangements refers them to the Government of India and the Centre does not interfere with the arrangements—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mahalanobish, you must convince me on one point before I give my consent, namely, that the distribution is the function of the local Government. You cannot move your adjournment motion unless you can prove that distribution is primarily a concern of the local Government.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: What is the function of a Minister then, if he cannot move in the matter?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I cannot tell you that. You study the Government of India Act and find it out. Here is the statement made by the Hon'ble Minister yesterday and I take it that the statement is correct. If there is any mistake in the statement, you better point it out.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I point out one thing, Sir? The Government of India allot the quota for Bengal and the Bengal Government allot the quota for different districts. This is admitted. But, since the Government of Bengal have taken upon themselves the responsibility of allotting the quotas for different districts, they should also take upon themselves the responsibility of moving in the matter and seeing that these quotas reach the districts even if transport is a Central subject. Now, since the Government of Bengal have taken upon themselves the responsibility of distributing the quotas to the districts, they incidentally take upon themselves the responsibility of moving the proper quarters and getting the transport and sending the supplies to the districts and so long as proper action is not taken by the Bengal Government, they stand the risk of being censured.

There is another thing, Sir. The quota that is allotted for Jalpaiguri is 15,000 bags but the Sugar Controller allotted only 12,000 bags and no explanation has been given as to whether this Government or the Minister for Civil Supplies actually moved the Sugar Controller to see that the total quantity of 15,000 bags is actually allotted to Jalpaiguri. The Bengal Government cannot evade their responsibility of seeing that the allotted quota actually reaches the place, otherwise the business of the Bengal Government is practically that of a mere clerk.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I cannot agree to this. Since it is the duty of the Central Government to supply and distribute sugar, I cannot give my consent to the adjournment motion.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, there is one matter in which the Government of Bengal has been responsible and that is to see that the monthly quotas are properly sent by the Central Government. When one quota has been sent the Government of India should be moved in time for the next instalment to be sent in time. If the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies can tell us that he has—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, the motion is not that. You just read the motion first. I have already given my ruling in the matter and I cannot allow any discussion of my ruling.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, there is a way out of it—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Sahib, I have given my ruling already.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: All right, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The next item is the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill. Mr. Das.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, yesterday, I moved the amendment which stands in my name and it runs as follows: that after sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following sub-clause be added, namely:—

“(4) That the income derived from it shall be applied solely for the improvement of agriculture or for projects connected with agricultural improvement after the cessation of war”.

Sir, a very wrong lead was given by the Hon'ble Finance Minister to the members of the Government Party. In his opening speech he led the members of the Government Party and also us to believe that the subvention of 10 crores was very much dependent upon the passing of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill. That is what he said and he urged upon the House that the Bill should be passed expeditiously without the change of even a comma. In fact, he directed that the Government amendments should not be moved. I think this was a very wrong lead. Today the broadcast speech of His Excellency the Governor of Bengal has appeared in the papers and you will find therefrom that the subvention of 10 crores is an accomplished fact; it has absolutely nothing to do with the passing of the Agricultural Income-tax Bill. All that His Excellency mentioned—

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, is the honourable member satisfied with ten crores only?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: You are raising an altogether wrong issue. Whether we shall be satisfied with 10 crores or more is an altogether different question. The thing is that the Finance Minister told us in his opening speech that the subvention of 10 crores from the Government of India was very much dependent upon the way in which we dealt with the Agricultural Income-tax Bill now being debated on the floor of the House. In fact, he was citing this Bill as one of the principal factors in our getting the subvention. He urged upon the members of the Government Party not to change a comma of the Bill and not to move even the very reasonable amendments that they had given notice of. The Finance Minister further added that however reasonable be the amendments of the Opposition, it would not be possible for him to accept any of them, as that would entail the Bill being referred to the Lower House. If you read the speech of His Excellency the Governor that has appeared in today's papers, you will find that all that the Governor says is that for the purpose of adding to the provincial revenues we should pass the Agricultural Income-tax Bill. That is the utmost that he says; nowhere in his speech is there any indication that the Bill should be passed swiftly and that amendments however reasonable they may be should go. As a matter of fact, the fatwa given by the Finance Minister is very much like what is implied in the adage “বকো আর বকো, আমি কানে দিবেছি তুলো, যারো আর বরো, আমি পিঠে বেঁধেছি কুলো” That is the position of the members of the Government Party. However reasonable our amendments may be, they will go to the Government lobby and vote against and come back. That is their position, Sir. And I protest against the way in which we are being treated directly or indirectly by the Government having a majority on their side.

With the above preliminary remarks, I desire to say that agriculture is the crux, the pivot on which the whole financial and economic position of Bengal depends. The rigours of another famine should be averted in future and whether Bengal is to live in plenty and sufficiency very much depends upon the improvement of agriculture. There cannot be two opinions on this point. The Agriculture Department is therefore one of the most important departments for which special provision should be made. While opposing amendment No. 12, the Hon'ble the Leader of the House swore by the Floud Commission; he was a member of that Commission and he swore by it. And swearing by the Floud Commission he said that it must be a permanent measure and all sorts of things. Will he remember his own performance? That is what I desire to know. As a signatory to the majority report of the Floud Commission, he was a party to the recommendations made therein endorsing what we are proposing in this amendment, but he is now opposing the same proposition. The Floud Commission recommended that when the Agricultural Income-tax Bill is to be enacted, it must be seen that the income derived from it is utilised solely for the improvement of agriculture and for projects connected with agricultural improvement. That is, Sir, what the Floud Commission reported. If the zemindary system is not to be abolished, if only tinkering measures are to be adopted according to the suggestions of the Floud Commission, it is no use swearing by the name of Floud Commission. The Floud Commission recommended that the income derived should be utilised for agricultural purposes. It is evaded by the argument advanced by the Hon'ble Finance Minister that it is bad finance to ear-mark the proceeds derived from a particular source for a particular purpose. Sir, I fail to understand the logic of it. I fail to understand how such an important body as the Floud Commission could recommend in the way it did unless it was convinced that would be for the good of the agriculturists. Ear-marking means that the income is to be spent for the improvement of agriculture. I desire to point out that there is also precedent with respect to this. I would refer the members of the House to the Railway Board of the Government of India. The Railway Board has its own income. It has got its own railway budget quite separate from the general budget of the Central Government. The Railway Board is responsible for all improvements of railways. There are surpluses and sometimes these surpluses are given to meet deficit in the general budget of the Central Government. So it adds to the revenues of the Government of India also. It has been said that you cannot have a separate budget so far as the agricultural income is concerned, as in Bengal we have one budget and so on. We may have one budget and to this we can have no objection. Even if there is one budget there cannot be any difficulty in the way of ear-marking a particular amount of money for the improvement of agriculture. You may say that the Government did enough for the improvement of agriculture and that the Government have advanced as much as two crores and that they intend to do more. But I do say that two crores of rupees is not sufficient for the purpose of improvement of agriculture. At least there should be 4 or 5 crores of rupees allotted for the purpose. If in addition to two crores, for agriculture the income derived from the agricultural income-tax is added, that would be a fair amount with which the Agricultural Board can work. I have my own idea of Agricultural Board. The Hon'ble Finance Minister may say they have already got an Agricultural Board. But that is not the Board we have in contemplation.

There must be a Board which will remain responsible to the Legislature for all its actions. It must be a Board not merely consisting of experts which will merely give advice about agriculture but it must consist also of representatives of both the Houses and must be made responsible for each of its actions to the Legislature. That is my idea of an Agricultural Board. For the purpose of getting an all-round improvement of agriculture we must have a plan, say a five-year plan, and an elaborate machinery to execute that plan. Therefore, I say that the agricultural income-tax receipts should be ear-marked and should be added to the fund already supplied by Government from general resources. If the Board is left at the mercy of the whims and caprices of the present Government, then no agricultural improvement can be made. The Hon'ble Minister says that ear-marking is bad finance. But what about the jute tax? A promise was held out that the income derived from jute would be devoted for the improvement of the jute-growers. But such promises are hardly made good. With regard to this Bill also, we have received sympathetic reply that more funds would be set apart for the improvement of agriculture. But that will not do. There must be something like a legislative enactment and, therefore, I urge that this should be ear-marked now by a provision made in this Bill effect to this being given "after the cessation of the war". This only differentiates my amendment from that of Mr. Haridas Mazumdar. I have said "after the war", because the Government might say that our resources are not enough to meet various demands and therefore we want more money for the duration of the war. This income may be devoted for the purpose of the improvement of agriculture and for projects connected with agriculture after the war.

With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that after sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

"(4) That the income derived from it shall be applied solely for the improvement of agriculture or for projects connected with agricultural improvement." Since then an amendment has been made by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das that after the word "improvement" the words "after the cessation of war", be added.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to support the amendment that has been moved by my honourable friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. It has been said, Sir, that it is bad finance to ear-mark a tax for a definite purpose. We had this from no less a person than the Hon'ble the Finance Minister himself. I would request him to consider this matter more seriously and look to the history of the various statutes imposing additional burden upon the tax-payers with the object of improving the nation-building departments. Sir, before the present Government of India Act was enacted, under the old Diarchy, when there were transferred subjects administered by Ministers and reserved subjects administered by Members of the Executive Council, we know that the Hon'ble Ministers were hampered for want of funds for the nation-building departments. The Court-fees Act was amended and the court-fees were increased, the Stamp Act was amended and the rate of stamps payable under the Stamp Act was also increased with the sole object of providing funds for the nation-building departments. I would request the Hon'ble the Finance Minister and the members of this House to look up to the various statutes enacted by the Bengal Legislature, since the introduction of the Morley-Minto Reforms. I hope, Sir, they will find that although repeatedly promises were held out that funds available from the increased income derived from these sources would be utilised solely for the nation-building departments, the income was not so utilised but merged into the general funds of the province and to our great disappointment we find the nation-building departments starved in the same way as before without any hope of being supplied with sufficient funds for improvement and development of the same. That is our experience so far as the past is concerned. I would now refer the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to the signatories to the Floud Commission Report. I find there experienced men like Sir F. A. Sachse who had vast experience of the people of this country, who had vast experience of the finance of the province and held many responsible posts. I find, Sir, among the signatories Dr. Radha Kumud Mukherjee who was then a member of this House. I find the Leader of this House a member of the Floud Commission and a signatory to the Floud Commission Report. I find my honourable and esteemed friend Khan Bahadur M. A. Momin a signatory to this report. I would request the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to consider whether these gentlemen were not speaking seriously when they stated in their report that the income derived from the tax should be used solely for the purpose for which I am moving my amendment. I hope, Sir, the Hon'ble the Finance Minister will give these responsible gentlemen the credit that they were speaking seriously when they spoke about the tax being used solely for the purposes as stated herein. I submit, Sir, that this is a matter which ought not to be treated lightly and I would request the honourable members supporting the Government to consider it seriously. I would also request the honourable members of this House to consider the words very carefully, the words used in the Flood Commission Report are "income shall be applied solely for the improvement of agriculture or projects connected therewith." It has been suggested by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister that the budget of the present year has made a provision for the agricultural improvement which would far increase the income that will accrue from the present tax. I hope the Hon'ble the Finance Minister was not serious when he made this statement on the floor of this House. I would request him to look up his own budget a little more carefully and see whether the claim which he makes that there is provision in the budget for agricultural improvement and projects can be substantiated or not. I would ask the honourable members and the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to remember the word "project" very carefully and I would request them to mark the dictionary meaning of the word "project". The word "project", I find, means "a design or a scheme or a plan; something which is designed, intended or devised; it is something of a practical nature thrown out for consideration as to its being done, a thing designed becomes project when it is matured and settled as a thing to be accomplished." Now, Sir, having ascertained the dictionary meaning of the word "project" and what it imports and what the authors of the Flood Commission intended, I would now request the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to consider whether in the budget there is any provision, as he claims, for the purposes indicated above. Looking to the budget of the Government of Bengal for the year 1944-45, I am referring in the first instance to the Red Book at page 1 under the head "Receipts", we find that for the years 1944-45 the estimate which the Hon'ble the Finance Minister makes of the possible receipts comes to 68 lakhs and 16 thousands rupees.

We find that for the year 1944-45 the estimate which the Hon'ble the Finance Minister makes of the possible receipts comes to Rs. 68,16,000. Looking now to page 5 on the expenditure side, we find the Hon'ble Finance Minister has estimated the probable expenditure to be Rs. 1,30,60,000. At page 66 of the same book one will find the detail of the expenses and I would draw attention of the honourable members of this House to consider very carefully the provisions made therein. In the remarks column at page 66, one finds the following note: "The revised estimate is higher than the budget by Rs. 59,34,000; out of this Rs. 54,84,000 is due to high expenditure on the 'Grow-more-food' schemes" mainly as a result of supplying seeds in the current year for the grow-more-food campaign of the year 1944-45. Now if we consider the expenses as noted at page 66, we would find that besides the amount necessary for purchasing seeds, a substantial portion of it is recovered back again from the sale proceeds, the rest of the provision is eaten up by the salaries and travelling allowances of the officers concerned, appointed for the purpose. One would have to knock his head a good deal to find anywhere in the budget any scheme, any design or any project for agricultural improvement. I would request the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to consider that he should give some intelligence to the members of the Flood Commission who signed the report that they did not mean that the tax from the agricultural income would be devoted in maintaining a highly paid staff of officers without making any provision for projects connected with the improvement of agriculture. As a matter of fact, there are various matters which are pending in this connection for the consideration of the Government for a long time. One of the most important matters in this connection is the question of the manufacture of ammonium sulphate, and other chemical manures on a large scale for supply to the agriculturists as scientific manure. I would refer the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to what has been done by the Government of Bihar which is now being governed under section 93 of the Government of India Act. Mr. Dhar, the Development Commissioner of the Bihar Government, at a press conference stated the other day that they have various plans and projects for the improvement of the agricultural resources of the province. I would ask the Hon'ble the Finance Minister and the Hon'ble the Agriculture Minister, and the Leader of the Upper House, to study those plans and projects and also to ear-mark a sum of money at least for this purpose. Mr. Dhar also stated that they had got matured a project for the manufacture of ammonium sulphate which is a very important chemical fertiliser. If they invited British experts to come to the province of Bihar to set up plants for the manufacture of ammonium sulphate, the scheme, it was stated by Mr. Dhar, would require financing to the extent of Rs. 2 crores. I may mention for the information of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister and also for the edification of the Hon'ble the Minister for Agriculture that by applying scientific manure like ammonium sulphate and other manures the yield of crops, specially rice, can be increased to twice its present quantity if not more. Bengal at present is said to be a deficit province so far as rice is concerned. We have seen the disastrous result when there was a failure of crop for a single year. As a matter of fact, in some districts or other, for want of proper rainfall in September, I mean in the districts in Western Bengal, rice plants are dried up and we get very little yield of rice during such years of drought. If, as I have proposed, the entire income from the agricultural income-tax is ear-marked for subvention of a project to manufacture ammonium sulphate and for distribution of the same to the cultivators, it would not only be a boon to the cultivators but would solve one of the most intricate problems of the province of Bengal relating to the supply of foodstuffs. I cannot help in this connection referring to the observations recently made by the Leader of the House at a press conference held at the Writers' Buildings on the 24th May. The Hon'ble the Agriculture Minister stated that the normal yield of rice in the province is about 88 lakhs of tons annually, according to some only 80 lakhs of tons. He further said that the annual requirement of the province at the rate of half a seer per head per day is 100 lakh tons. He, however, himself admitted that.....I hope the Hon'ble Minister for Agriculture will hear what I say and not discuss with some other member when I am specially drawing his attention to a very important point. As I was saying he himself admitted that half a seer is the barest minimum and he stated that the standard should be 10 chittacks per head per day. At that rate the annual requirements would be 125 lakh tons. I would join issue with the Agriculture Minister here when he says that 10 chittacks should be the standard rate. I hope that the Hon'ble the Agriculture Minister knows it full well that the labourers and cultivators consume at least one seer of rice a day and that during the planting and harvesting seasons they consume more. Now, on the basis of one seer of rice for the cultivating population and 10 chittacks for other population will strike an average of 13 chittacks per head which would require about 170 lakh tons. It is, therefore, clear that unless we can increase the yield to more than twice its present quantity, we cannot hope to make Bengal self-sufficient in rice even. The Hon'ble the Agriculture Minister proposes that the waste lands in Bengal, about 37½ lakhs of acres, should be cultivated under the "grow-more-food" campaign. I am afraid, however, that if it is intended to utilise all the reclaimed waste lands and forests for rice cultivation, the scheme would be a failure. I will remind the Hon'ble Minister that Bengal has suffered most on account of the denudation of forest areas and converting the lands into cultivated lands. Not only do we not get sufficient crops from the majority of the lands so reclaimed but deforestation brings in disaster to the province in the shape of high floods and erosion of lands. I hope I have said enough to induce the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to accept the amendment before the House. With these words, I support the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support the amendment of my friend Mr. Das. It is well known that the Flood Commission has recommended that the agricultural income-tax receipts should be spent exclusively for the purpose of the improvement of agriculture; but there is no such provision in the Bill. The presence of the war has created so much dislocation and so much void in the financial circle, that there is some justification for the inclusion of such an amendment as this. Yesterday His Excellency the Governor in a radio talk disclosed that the Government of India had granted 10 crores of rupees to Bengal. So the immediate void that might have been created by the war has gone. There is no further urgency about the passage of this Bill. In the circumstances, there is no further justification for opposing this necessary amendment. In his amendment Mr. Lalit Chandra Das desires that the operation of this Bill should begin after the termination of the war. By that time our position would be much better. So there is no valid reason as to why this amendment should not be accepted. We are taxing agriculture and, in taxing agriculture, we are certainly taxing the patience of the people. The decision to spend the proceeds of the tax for improvement of agriculture would give the people some psychological compensation for the tax and make it less unbearable.

This is a new imposition and the people would likely take it as a julum on the part of Government. So, if you give the people something by way of sentimental consolation that will go a great way to relieve the dissatisfaction of the people. Then there is another aspect of the matter. If you spend the whole of this income for the improvement of agriculture, the agricultural income of the people would expand giving a larger tax yield. This tax would further improve agriculture which will again give you better yield in tax. Thus, by action and reaction the agricultural income of the people will increase and make them progressively prosperous. A great difficulty of the province is the dearth of food and if this amendment is adopted, I think it would considerably solve the food problem of the province. In the circumstances, I find no difficulty in the Hon'ble Minister's accepting the amendment and I would ask him to reconsider his decision and accept this amendment. The allocation of Rs. 10 crores by the Government of India has taken away all the urgency about the Bill. The great vacuum in the provincial finance is gone, and the grant of the subvention is no longer dependent on the passing of this badly drafted Bill. It should no doubt be passed but in a proper form. We can afford to wait for some time. Necessary amendments should therefore be accepted. The aloofness of the Minister in charge or his turning a deaf ear to all reasonable requests for improvement is no longer justified. The announcement has completely changed the situation. In these circumstances, may I ask the Hon'ble Minister to reconsider his decision because the urgency is gone, the gap is well filled up and now there is only the question of a normal passage of the Bill. Moreover, this Bill consists of serious errors and bad mistakes and therefore it is quite proper that it should be passed with necessary amendments. There is no hurry. After amendments accepted in this House the Bill will go to the other House. In this view of things there should be no fetters upon the supporters of Government and a fresh direction may be given to them accordingly. Now, Sir, he is unnecessarily gagging his supporters. Their talents and intelligence are simply being choked. In fact, their talents are practically being frozen as the United States Government some time ago froze the credit of the Japanese Government. A vast amount of talent is lying waste. The supporters of Government are simply reduced and confined to the task of interrupting the members of the Opposition. I hope the Hon'ble Minister will kindly come to the rescue of his supporters and give them some scope for discussion and debate. (Mr. M.D. HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: What are you there for?) An esteemed member asks why I am here. I am in the independent bench as independence is the cry of the day. Independence is our goal. The honourable member is welcome here. I have declared independence and have secured freedom of speech.

With these few words, I support the amendment.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Sir, the House will remember that at the time of the consideration of this Bill a lot of discussion took place round this very point and I explained to the House the reasons why in my opinion the ear-marking should not be done. I find that all those arguments have fallen on deaf ears; and the entire discussion today has centered round the Floud Commission Report on this point. I think it will be my duty to explain to the House what the Commission had in their minds when they made this recommendation—

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: The trouble is that what you say, you do not follow in action. You preach one thing but at the time of voting you go over there to vote.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: At that time, we all saw that agriculture was being starved and Government did not spend enough money on agriculture. We also were not very much in favour of the agricultural income-tax as an intermediate stage between the abolition of the Permanent Settlement and the present state of things. We wanted the abolition of the Permanent Settlement altogether, so that there might be no intermediary between the actual tillers of the soil and the State. For several reasons, that recommendation was accepted but it was felt that it would perhaps be very difficult to carry that recommendation immediately. So as an ad interim measure it was decided to give some income to the Government by the imposition of the agricultural income-tax; but this was not a measure which we favoured and as such when we made this recommendation it was suggested that the income should be entirely devoted to agricultural improvement. The conditions which existed then do not exist now. As I said before, this agricultural income-tax will not bring us perhaps more than 50 lakhs of rupees which is nothing compared to the amount we require for all-round agricultural improvement. Besides the subvention we are getting from the Government of India on which very much stress has been laid, the Government of Bengal is making large and liberal grants from their own budget for the improvement of agriculture. Only on the irrigation side, a sum of nearly 1 crore of rupees has been allotted. Therefore, except merely for argument's sake I don't think the question of ear-marking a certain income will be of any importance at all. The members on the other side are strongly supporting this amendment. I do not know whether they are doing it only to embarrass the general revenues of Bengal or for the purpose of giving some relief to the agriculturists. If the latter is their intention, I think they have misjudged their recommendation. If you say that a particular income from the agricultural income-tax should be ear-marked for agriculture, naturally by implication the tendency should be to see that the Government get much from this source. Now, since the Floud Commission had finished its labours, Government is making large grants because they have realised that the prosperity of the whole country depends on the improvement of agriculture. I do not think you will be really doing any tangible good to agriculture by ear-marking the income from this tax. Mr. Das has suggested that this ear-marking should not be done now but after the war is over. We do not know in what position we shall be then after the war—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, by way of personal explanation I would like to point out that I did not say that ear-marking should be made after the war. What I said was that it should find a place in the Statute Book now but the operation of it, so far as that amount is concerned, will be given effect to after the war.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Whatever it is, you do not know what will be the financial condition of the country after the termination of the war. As a matter of fact, at that time this Agricultural Income-tax Act may not exist and may quite probably have been discontinued. The whole revenue system will probably be in the melting pot and a new system will have to be evolved if Bengal has got to advance and make progress. Therefore, this small matter will not affect either the income or the prospects of agriculture after the termination of the war. I think this insistence on the part of the Opposition on this particular point is quite out of place and unnecessary. You will not be doing any good by saying that this money must go over to the agriculturists thereby by implication taking away some sympathy from the general financial assistance of Government. As I have said, this Income-tax Act must, of necessity, be a temporary measure. Mr. Humayun Kabir will probably insist when the opportunity comes to him to speak that all this should be brushed aside and a revenue system should be proposed which would abolish the zemindary system altogether. I am entirely in agreement with him in this. The Floud Commission has recommended the abolition of the zemindary system and so has the Government. But to ear-mark any particular income at this very moment or even four years after is wrong finance, and will not do any good. In this respect reference to the Floud Commission is not quite apposite, because the Floud Commission made this recommendation only to make us agree to the scheme of taxation, for otherwise we would not have agreed to it. But those conditions do not exist at the present moment, nor will they exist after the war, and therefore the question of ear-marking is merely an eyewash and in this view the amendment should not be supported.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, may I ask the honourable gentleman who has just sat down as to whether this recommendation about the ear-marking of the proceeds of this tax for agricultural improvement was not intended to be carried out and that the members signed the report knowing full well that the recommendation was merely an eyewash?

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: No, it was intended to be carried out, if it were given effect to at the time when the recommendation was made. Now it is unnecessary.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I confess that the arguments which my honourable friend the Leader of the Coalition Party has advanced are not convincing. He has tried to state the reasons which have made him change his own opinion about the application of the income derived from the agricultural income-tax. He admits that he was a signatory to the report which clearly laid down that any income derived from the agricultural income-tax should be devoted to the improvement of agriculture. He has told us that there were two considerations which persuaded him to agree to that recommendation. According to him neither of those considerations exist today. I want first to point out to him that the two considerations that he has suggested are incompatible and cancel each other. His first suggestion shows that the recommendation of the Floud Commission to devote the proceeds of the tax to the improvement of agriculture and allied projects was governed by one consideration, namely, that the agricultural budget was small and therefore the proceeds derived from the agricultural income-tax should be devoted entirely to that purpose. The second consideration that he mentioned was that if such a recommendation had not been made, they would never have agreed to the scheme of a tax at all. Now, Sir, he has not made clear what is the connection between these two considerations. If he was against the agricultural income-tax, he should state his reasons. What is the reason? Was it because he wanted immediate abolition of the Permanent Settlement? Or was it that he did not want an agricultural income-tax? Till that point is made clear by him, I do not think that the second argument is of very great relevancy for this House.

With regard to his other point, Sir, at first sight it looks plausible. He argues, "Formerly the agricultural budget was small. When the Floud Commission's report was prepared and when they recommended that the entire proceeds of the agricultural income-tax should be devoted to the improvement of agriculture this was meant to remedy this deficiency. Now that the agricultural budget has been increased, it is not necessary to devote the whole amount of the tax to agricultural improvement." This seems to be a more plausible argument than those of the Hon'ble Finance Minister. I would point out that though it looks plausible, it is after all specious. It is "plausible"—the very term "plausible" suggests it is not sound, but has the appearance of a "sound" argument. It is quite true that the size of the agricultural budget has been increased. It does not follow that the whole money of the agricultural budget has been devoted to the improvement of agriculture or to projects connected with agricultural improvement. As was pointed out by my honourable friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherji, a good deal of the recent increase in the agricultural budget is due to the salaries and allowances of certain highly paid officers. There has been no well-planned project prepared by the present Government for the improvement of agriculture.

The point which I now want to impress upon the members opposite is this. Because the budget grant is larger today, that is no argument for refraining from ear-marking a larger amount for the development of agriculture. Nobody will disagree that a very large sum is required to meet the ravages of the famine of last year, a famine of a type which Bengal has never experienced before, and which has shaken the complacency of even this very complacent Government. For their equanimity and as part of self-laudation, they say that the proceeds of the agricultural income-tax will be much too small an amount to be devoted to agricultural projects and that they have allotted a much larger sum for this purpose. This increase in the agricultural budget is due to the pressure of the Legislature. Unless the Legislature forced this upon the Executive, they would not have moved. My honourable friends opposite know that whatever increase has been made in the size of the agricultural budget is due to the continued pressure of the Legislature and the public outside. In the past agricultural budget was very small. It is on account of the agitation in the Legislature and outside that the grant has now been increased.

Now, Sir, if this amount from the agricultural income-tax is devoted solely to the projects connected with agricultural improvement, that will go a long way, however small the amount may be. My honoured friend Khan Bahadur Momin said that if this money is devoted solely for the purpose of agricultural improvement, there will be a tendency not to allot any other money from the general budget for agriculture. I do not understand the logic of this argument. How it can be possible that if this money derived from agricultural income-tax is devoted to the improvement of agriculture, no other grants will be made for that purpose? What is the position of agriculturists so far as their contribution to the general revenues are concerned? The agriculturists in Bengal pay taxes in many ways. They pay rates, they pay cess—but these moneys are not ear-marked for their benefit. Then, they have to pay in other ways. I would refer to the police and the village chowkidar. The police and the chowkidar perform analogous duties, the chowkidar is after all the village police but the agriculturist has to pay special rates for having a village police. The citizens of Calcutta do not pay any special rate for the benefit of the police in Calcutta. For the smaller towns in the mofussil they have got the Bengal Police. The agriculturist on the other hand has to pay a special tax for the luxury, a doubtful luxury at that, of a village police which is often conspicuous by its absence in times of need. Now, my friends opposite will perhaps admit that these rents and rates are a part of the general revenues.

What is asked here is that the money derived from agricultural income should be devoted solely to the improvement of agriculture. There is no question of refusing grants from the general revenues. Then, again, there are, Sir, the proceeds which Bengal gets from the jute export tax. The agriculturist can legitimately claim that a share of this should be solely devoted to the improvement of agriculture. That also has not been done.

My honourable friend says that the agricultural income-tax receipts will come to Rs. 30 lakhs or Rs. 40 lakhs. Whatever it might be, if we set apart this amount solely for the purpose of agricultural improvement, would that be a ground to deprive the agriculturists from getting their portion from the general revenues that they used to get? I think this would be entirely wrong. I do not know whether it is his personal view or he is speaking here as the spokesman of Government. He is the leader of the Party which supports Government. I do not know whether it is the attitude of Government that if this income is ear-marked for improvement of agriculture, then no further sum from the general revenues of the province would be allotted for the improvement of agriculture. If that is also the attitude of Government, then the sooner such Government goes out of office, the better for the country.

The ear-marking of this income would only be an act of belated justice to the cause of agriculture which has been suffering from want of funds for such a long time. Therefore, the one argument which the honourable Leader of the Coalition Party has placed, namely, that ear-marking of this income will prevent a further allocation of funds, is not tenable for a moment. If he calmly considers what he has said, and I have very great confidence in his judgment and sobriety, he will find that this is an untenable ground. We on this side of the House have often benefited by his advice, but the regret is, as has been said by my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad, the Government is deliberately not allowing the talent and the ability of its supporters to make themselves felt for effecting improvement of this Bill. Many very valuable suggestions have been made by Mr. Nur Ahmed, who is just now going out of the House. He has tabled certain amendments which are of a very desirable character. There are one or two amendments of his, which if carried, would definitely improve the Bill; but simply out of red or perhaps simply out of fear, the present Government are opposed to them. If one amendment is carried, the Government will have to face a place too hot for them. Simply out of that fear, they will not allow any amendment to be carried. I am constrained, Sir, to make this remark because of the attitude of Government. In view of the new development to which attention has been drawn by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad, namely, the broadcast of His Excellency about the subvention of Rs. 10 crores, the question of urgency or hurrying with this Bill no longer remains. The Bill ought to emerge from the Legislature in a satisfactory manner. If that decision is taken, nobody will be able to contribute more to the improvement of this Bill than my honourable and esteemed friend on the other side, the Leader of the Coalition Party, if, of course, he is allowed to apply his unfettered judgment. Our regret is that is not a free agent here and when the legislators of a country are not free agents, it is a bad day for the country.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Sir, I rise to support the amendment. I do not know what is the source of information of Khan Bahadur M. A. Momin that the Bill will be a temporary one and that the income derived by taxation on agriculture will be in the neighbourhood of Rs. 50 lakhs. As you will perhaps remember, Sir, that during the last budget discussion, we failed to elicit from the Hon'ble the Finance Minister any information with regard to the actual amount that this tax is likely to fetch. We are in the dark as to how much will be available by taxing agricultural income and whether or not Government would be disposed to devote the entire amount to the improvement of agriculture or to projects connected with agriculture. Sir, we—(Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHOWDHURY: The income will be spent on red-tapism.) No, on the distribution of patronage to the supporters of the Ministry. Sir, we all know that when the Indian Income-tax Act was passed or when it was under discussion in the Central Legislature, we were given to understand that it was a famine measure, a temporary measure, and that after the lapse of a certain number of years it would be repealed. But what we actually find today? It has been placed permanently on the Statute Book. I have very little faith in promises. Therefore, it is very necessary that some provision should be made in the Bill which will compel Government to spend the amount for agricultural improvement. Sir, it is well-known that the Department of Agriculture has not been functioning properly. We have a laboratory at Dacca with a number of highly paid experts who have been carrying on experiments for years, but what is the result? What tangible benefit has been derived from all this costly paraphernalia? There has been no improvement of agriculture in this province. We find that experts are making experiments within the four corners of the laboratory but the results of their research seldom reach the actual cultivators. Experiments are being made regarding manure, agricultural implements, tractors and all sorts of things; but the problem is of such magnitude that it is very difficult to effect any radical improvement in agriculture overnight. In a country where the land is divided by so many aisles or ridges, tractors cannot at all be used. If there had been a farming system in this country on a wide scale, then the use of tractors might be possible.

Now, Sir, on many a previous occasion we had to discuss the great injustice that had been done to the Province of Bengal by the Meston Award. Although the Meston Award has since been modified and a slight improvement has been effected by the substitution of the Niemeyer Award, yet much remains to be done in the direction of giving financial relief to the province. It was argued at that time that Bengal's share of the jute export duty which the Central Government had been pleased to give us was not being spent for the improvement of agriculture as had been expected and who knows that the money that may be available by taxing agricultural income will be devoted entirely to agricultural improvement? That is why my friend Mr. Mazumdar wants it to be incorporated in the body of the Bill itself in order to ensure that the money may be spent for the purpose for which it is intended. I would in this connection invite a reference to the Floud Commission's report. Sir, the Government will have no justification in spending the money on projects other than agriculture. If it is the intention of the Government to spend this amount only on maintaining some highly paid officers, on the expansion of the Civil Supplies Department and on other departments that may hereafter be established and on the distribution of patronage among the adherents and supporters of Government, I don't think we on this side of the House will be justified in giving our support to the Bill. Sir, we want to make it perfectly clear that the amount obtained by taxing agricultural income should be spent for the improvement of agriculture. With these words, I support the amendment.

Alhadj Khan Bahadur SHAIKH MUHAMMAD JAN: Mr. President, I support the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Haridas Mazumdar and also by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. It is true that the income derived from this will be not more than 40 or 50 lakhs of rupees, as was stated by Khan Bahadur Abdul Momim and that Government is devoting more money at present to the Department of Agriculture. But I want to support the amendments on principle and the principle is that the agriculturists must be convinced that the taxes that are being imposed upon them at this time will be spent for them and for them alone. It is something like giving with one hand what you are taking with the other. It is true that all taxes are of that nature, and involve the principle of taking with one hand and giving it away with another; but if this income is ear-marked for the benefit of agriculturists and the improvement of agriculture, then that will be more convincing and may directly help the agriculturists. I therefore want that the income which is derived from the tax should be ear-marked specifically for the betterment of the agriculturists and not for any other purpose and should not go to general administration. Now, it is true that Government is at present spending much more money for the improvement of agriculture than it used to do because there is this shortage of food and rice and for the encouragement of the grow-more-food campaign; but it may be that when these objects are attained they will slacken off. Therefore, I think that if this amendment is accepted, then it will go a long way to help the agriculturists permanently; moreover, they will see that they are not paying to the Government in vain for whatever they are paying as tax is returned to them in an indirect manner.

Mr. KRISHNA CHANDRA ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, I will not waste much time of the House, but I shall finish my remarks in a few sentences. I will supplement what Mr. Kabir has said with regard to the principle of ear-marking a particular tax for a particular purpose. The Hon'ble Finance Minister is no doubt aware that the tax raised by the import duty on radio sets is all ear-marked and spent on development of broadcasting business. So there you are. That is a specific instance which shows that a specific tax may be raised for a specific purpose. Secondly, it is true that the Government of India is giving maximum financial help to help the Bengal agriculturists; but why not ear-mark a portion of the tax that you are going to levy on the small and big landlords and the tea garden companies to enable them to start small agricultural model farms for the benefit of their tenants? Why not similarly ear-mark a small portion of this tax for the tea planters, say, the Tea Planters' Association and Jalpaiguri and other Planters' Association? They are making experiments for making or turning out tea seeds, tea bricks for their business. Why not give some money to these Associations for conducting their researches and experiments on this line out of the tax that will be imposed upon them? Good tea seeds are essential for tea industry and good seeds for paddy and other crops are equally important. Therefore, I would suggest that the money raised from this tax may very well be spent for subsidising the small scale agricultural schemes of small landlords and jotedars in the villages. It is very difficult for Government agricultural farms to reach the villages. Government have central farms at Chinsurah and Dacca and elsewhere; but they cannot start small farms in groups of villages themselves. So small subsidies may be given from the income of this tax to reliable landlords and jotedars for the improvement of agriculture, for distribution of seeds to their tenants. Similarly, a portion of this money may be given to the tea planters for the benefit of tea industry—for the improvement of tea seeds, and for experiment to improve the quality of seeds—the experiments are now being made in and other parts of the province.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Mr. President, at an earlier stage in the discussion of this Bill, I spoke at some length on the question before the House today. I think it will be better if I confine myself to one or two new points which were raised in the course of the discussion this afternoon.

Reference has been made to His Excellency the Governor's broadcast talk last night in which he repeated what I had announced to the House a week ago and which had been announced in the Press some time ago, namely, that the Government of India had agreed to give us an overall subvention of Rs. 10 crores. It was argued on the other side of the House, on the basis of this announcement, that there was no more cause for hurrying this Bill through the Legislature. I would respectfully draw the attention of the honourable members to a short sentence in His Excellency's broadcast talk which almost immediately followed the announcement about the subvention of 10 crores of rupees. With his precision of language His Excellency pointed out very cogently the necessity of passing the Agricultural Income-tax Bill by the Legislature. I hope honourable members realise the significance of that remark in the context in which it appears. I was rebuked for having interrupted my honourable friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das and for having asked him, "Are you satisfied with 10 crores"? I certainly am not, Sir.

And it is abundantly clear from His Excellency's broadcast talk that he too is not entirely satisfied. He pointed out quite rightly that even with this subvention Bengal would not be as well off as most of the other provinces in India. That again is a significant remark.

As regards expenditure on agriculture, my honourable friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee referred to certain figures in the Red Book relating to the current year's budget. I would ask him to read the book more carefully. As I want to economise time, I would like to say only this, that even in the Red Book he will find expenditure on irrigation which must be regarded as ancilliary to agriculture. I may also tell you that during the current year we are going to spend a crore of rupees over and above the amounts mentioned in my budget in connection with only one aspect of rehabilitation; and that aspect concerns agriculture and irrigation connected with agriculture. Tank irrigation alone will cost us over Rs. 10 lakhs and other small the irrigation projects will cost us over Rs. 26 lakhs. And so on. I had intended, Sir, to bring with me a fuller statement of the amounts that are going to be spent in the course of this year on projects connected with the development of agriculture, including, of course, irrigation; but I did not find the time to collect all the figures. I may say that most of the projects have matured and some have been actively taken in hand. I hope in the not distant future to be able to furnish honourable members with a statement showing how many crores of rupees we propose to spend in connection with projects calculated to improve agriculture in this province. Sir, it may be said that this year's expenditure is abnormally liberal, that we have embarked on what economists would call an "expansionist policy," as distinguished from a "contractionist policy". But the fact is that we have already decided to spend a large amount of money on agriculture and on projects connected with agriculture; and therefore there is no point in earmarking the proceeds of the agricultural income-tax to be spent on the improvement of agriculture. Sir, I explained last time why I consider earmarking as "bad finance." I need not repeat myself. An honourable member on the other side of the House mentioned the case of the money that is realised from licences of radios as a precedent which I might profitably copy. I will just point out that the radio business is a commercial concern. The scheme of the development of the radio is on a commercial basis and therefore this analogy does not apply to the present case. Agricultural development is one of the nation-building activities of Government and I am certain that even this year we shall repair the liabilities of neglect of past years, and I hope by the time we lay down our office we shall leave to our successors a happier and more prosperous Bengal.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise on a point of information. From the statement which the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has just made it appears that there is a provision for irrigation which is connected with agriculture. Now, may I ask him whether or not it is a fact that all expenditure regarding irrigation which would go to supply water to the agriculturists are being recouped in the shape of rates to be realised from the agriculturists?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, it is beside the point. The position exactly is whether you have remunerative irrigation or not, and the expenditure has got to be incurred in the first instance for irrigation projects. The particular projects which I have in mind are projects which will not be remunerative in themselves and which will be recouped thus.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Haridas Mazumdar has moved an amendment which runs as follows: that after sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

"(4) That the income derived from it shall be applied solely for the improvement of agriculture or for projects connected with agricultural improvement."

Since which an amendment has been moved by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das, namely, that after the word "improvement" in the last line the words "after the cessation of war" be added.

The question before the House is, that the amendment be made.

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 57.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Wednesday, the 12th July, 1944, at 3 p.m., being the fifty-seventh day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I draw your attention to the fact that we have not any questions before us today?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMAD: Simply because there are no questions to be answered today.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Notwithstanding the fact that there are several questions still to be answered?

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is nothing unusual, Mr. Das, to have no questions on a particular day.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Yesterday, too, we had no questions so to say, there being only one.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yesterday I did not put the original amendment of Mr. Haridas Majumdar but put only the amendment thereto moved by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. I will put the original amendment to vote now.

The question before the House is that after sub-clause (3) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

“(4) That the income derived from it shall be applied solely for the improvement of agriculture or for projects connected with agricultural improvement.”

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 1 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. For the motion—29; against the motion—13.

The motion is, therefore, carried.

Mr. PRESIDENT: A point of privilege was raised by Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta yesterday as to whether any non-official member can be allowed to speak after the Hon'ble Minister in charge of a Bill has wound up the debate on an amendment. I have looked up that point. The amendment is not a substantive motion and each member can speak only once. There is no right of reply either for a Government member or for a non-official member. The only rule is that the mover of the amendment should speak first and that has been the invariable practice. As a matter of convenience, the Minister in charge has always been allowed to speak last on two grounds; first of all, that there must be a finality to the debate and secondly, that the Government should be in a position to reply to the various points that might be raised by members of the Opposition. That practice has worked quite satisfactorily up till now. But this is merely a convention and not an inflexible rule. Under special circumstances the Chair can relax that rule, but I think that the practice which is old and a salutary one should be adhered to as far as possible.

Clause 2.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 2 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move the amendment that stands in my name, namely, that in sub-clause (1)—

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise on a point of order and it is with regard to how the amendment should be worded. The word used here is "deleted", but I think the better expression would be "omitted". I have looked into the authorities on this subject. Although my amendment may have created some amusement to some of the honourable members, still I believe that my suggestion is much better from the point of view of uniformity. So far as the Central Acts are concerned, that is not the word used—

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is your point of order?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: My point of order is: that the word "deleted" should be replaced by the word "omitted" in order to be uniform with other Acts.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is not a point of order. It merely concerns the wording of the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: That is a mistake of the Council Office.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think so. Office simply quoted the language used by the honourable member.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: In many cases the original words have been departed from in the office, and it seems a new practice has been started there in this matter. The word "deleted" is not a proper expression at all; it is generally used in proof corrections.

Mr. PRESIDENT: How does it arise? Mr. Mukherjee sent his amendment in that form and it has been printed in that form. It is not a point of order. You may go on, Mr. Mukherjee.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of order, Sir. The word used here is rent "or revenue". But revenue is not agricultural income. So it is illegal, for revenue cannot be taxed. I say that our right to impose a tax on agricultural income is given to us by item 41 of the Seventh Schedule to the Government of India Act, 1935, Part II. Again, revenue is not income. We can tax agricultural income, we can tax land and that which is directly obtained from land by selling crops and getting prices for them, and all that sort of thing. But that which is revenue cannot be taxed, for it is not agricultural income. Therefore, the use of the word "revenue" in this connection is illegal and should not find a place in our Bill. It is ultra vires of the legislature, I should say. That is my point of order, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think it is a point of order, because the Bill has already been admitted. You cannot raise such points of order on separate portions of the Bill. Go on with your speech, Mr. Mukherjee.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I want a ruling from you, Sir, on my point of order as to whether we have a right to tax "revenue"; whether the Bengal Legislature has a right to legislate imposing a tax on revenue. That is what I am trying to drive at, Sir. In terms of item No. 41 of the Seventh Schedule to the Government of India Act, 1935, we have got the right to impose an agricultural income-tax or to charge the income derived from land or even the income derived directly from land, but surely, not revenue. We have not got the right to legislate on that matter. That is my point of order, and I want your ruling on this point of order.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, with regard to the point raised by you, I would refer you to the definition of the term "Income" in the Central Income-tax Act. There, in the Explanations it is laid down in (1)(a) "agricultural income" means any rent or revenue derived from land which is used for agricultural purposes; and exactly that is what is inserted here.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is it your ruling that the word "revenue" can be used?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move that in sub-clause (1) of clause 2 of the Bill in paragraph (a), the words "or revenue" in line 1 be deleted.

Sir, it appears that the framers of the Bill looked to the definition as is given in the Indian Income-tax Act and have practically tried to copy it out from that provision. Now, we are not concerned with that Act for our present purposes. What I am submitting for the consideration of the honourable members of this House is this: the word "revenue" has a special meaning in relation to the land-revenue system of Bengal. We know that the Permanent Settlement is not prevalent in all the provinces of India. Therefore, the definition as given in the Indian Income-tax Act—

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: On a point of order, Sir. After the ruling from the Chair can there be any discussion on this point? That would practically be discussing your ruling.

Mr. PRESIDENT: He is developing his argument in support of his amendment.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I am using this argument in support of my amendment and I do not think the honourable member who interrupted me has quite appreciated what I said, and without trying to understand what I really meant he raised the point of order. I am sorry, Sir, that members supporting the Government are not in a mood to hear any argument in support of any amendment from this side of the House, whether good, bad or indifferent. So far as the word "revenue" is concerned, what I submit for the consideration of the honourable members of the House is that it has a particular meaning so far as the land revenue system in Bengal is concerned. The word "revenue", the honourable members will find, has been used in various places in the Bill. For instance, in clause 2, sub-clause (1)(c) the word "revenue" occurs and in various other clauses this word has been repeated. I may also remind the honourable members of the definition of the word "revenue" in Act VII of 1868. In section 1 there, the honourable members will find that the word "revenue" has been defined to mean the revenue which is payable to the State by the landlords with whom Permanent Settlement has been made—either zemindar or talukdar. That is the definition in section 1 of Act VII of 1868. Now, if we look to the proviso of clause 3 of the Bill we find the following provision:—"Provided that agricultural income-tax shall not be charged on the agricultural income of the Central Government or any Provincial Government or any local authority". If that provision stands, then I will submit that revenue which is derived from agricultural lands is excluded altogether, according to the definition of the word "revenue" and according to the meaning of the word "revenue". As I have stated, in the land revenue system of Bengal it means the amount which is paid by the landlords to the State. According to sub-clause (1) of clause 2, agricultural income means any rent or revenue. I submit, Sir, this would introduce a word in the legislative provision which would make it inconsistent with the provision contained in the proviso to clause 3. I submit that the word "revenue" really means the revenue which the State is entitled to from the holders of land with whom the Permanent Settlement has been made. If that is so, then if we look to the list in the Seventh Schedule to the Government of India Act which provides or which empowers the Provincial Legislature to levy income-tax, it really does not come within the—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, in this connection, I would draw your attention to section 141 of the Government of India Act.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Yes, Sir, I am going to refer to that section. I have got that in mind. Now, if we look to section 141 as has been pointed by you, Sir, it says—

"No Bill or amendment which imposes or varies any tax or duty in which Provinces are interested, or which varies the meaning of the expression 'agricultural income' as defined for the purposes of the enactments relating to Indian income-tax, or which affects the principles on which under any of the foregoing provisions of this chapter moneys are or may be distributable to Provinces or States, or which imposes any such Federal surcharge as is mentioned in the foregoing provisions of this chapter, shall be introduced or moved in either Chamber of the Federal Legislature except with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in his discretion."

This is the only section which is relevant so far as this matter is concerned. Now if we look, Sir, to the Indian Income-tax Act which is referred to under section 141 of the Government of India Act, we find that so far as agricultural income is concerned, the definition is "agricultural income", which means—

"any rent or revenue derived from land which is used for agricultural purposes, and is either assessed to land-revenue in British India or subject to a local rate assessed and collected by officers of the Crown as such."

Now, Sir, I began by saying that the Indian Income-tax Act applies to all the provinces in India. It is not meant for Bengal alone and therefore the word "revenue" is an appropriate word but—

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, the honourable member is wasting the time of the House.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: No, Sir, I am not wasting the time of the House. The Hon'ble President was busy talking to the Hon'ble the Chief Minister and was not listening to my speech. Therefore, I stopped my speech for the time being, because it relates to a very important point.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am listening to you very carefully, Mr. Mukherjee.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: No, Sir, you were talking to the Chief Minister.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You do not stop your arguments in the High Court even when you feel that the Hon'ble Judges are not listening to your arguments.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: But, here it is a different thing altogether. In such cases, we repeat our argument and I will do the same here.

Now, Sir, referring to section 141 of the Government of India Act, we find the following provision:—

"No Bill or amendment which imposes or varies any tax or duty in which Provinces are interested, or which varies the meaning of the expression "agricultural income" as defined for the purposes of the enactments relating to Indian income-tax, or which affects the principles on which under any of the foregoing provisions of this chapter moneys are or may be distributable to Provinces or States, or which imposes any such Federal surcharge as is mentioned in the foregoing provisions of this chapter, shall be introduced or moved in either Chamber of the Federal Legislature except with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in his discretion."

I submit that does not really affect the question which I am now placing for the consideration of the House. The word "agricultural income" has been defined in the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, section 2(1) and there we find the definition of agricultural income to be "any rent or revenue derived from land which is used for agricultural purposes, and is either assessed to land revenue in British India or subject to a local rate assessed and collected by officers of the Crown as such". The definition as given in the Indian Income-tax Act does not seem to take any notice of the implications which are contained in section 141 of the Government of India Act. The amendment which I am proposing does not in any way affect the provisions of section 141 of the Government of India Act. What I propose therein is that the words "or revenue" should be deleted; because according to the system of land revenue as I have stated before and as is prevalent in Bengal, the word "revenue" has acquired a special meaning. It means the amount paid by a person holding land directly under the Provincial Government or the person who pays revenue out of rent collected by him. Now, if neither the Central Government nor the Provincial Government are to be charged with regard to revenue which they derive from the zemindars and talukdars as they are called, I submit that the word "or revenue" which occurs in sub-clause (1) of clause 2, should not at all find a place because that would mean that you are going to assess this income-tax on revenue which is paid to the Provincial Government by the owners of land. I particularly use the word "owners of land" because I do not think that anywhere in the Act the framers of the Bill have assessed any tax on the revenue which the Provincial Government derive from the owners of land. As a matter of fact, it is expressly excluded from the proviso to section 3. Therefore, my submission is that as the word "revenue" occurs in various places in the Bill and in order that the Bill may come out in a perfect form, the word should not be introduced in the definition of the word "agricultural income" in the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill. It is not in any way affecting the provisions of section 141 and therefore I submit that there is nothing wrong in the amendment that I have moved. As a matter of fact, the amendment seeks only to make the Bill perfect and I am sorry that the Legislative Department of the Bengal Government—I lay stress on the word "Bengal Government"—did not notice this fact. As I have already said, if the definition of the word "revenue" is looked to in Act VII of 1868 and in the various Regulations from No. 1 of 1793 onwards, honourable members will find that the word "revenue" is invariably used for the purpose of denoting the amount which owners of land have to pay to Government. With these words, I move my amendment and commend it to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (1) of clause 2 of the Bill in paragraph (a), the words "or revenue" in line 1 be deleted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support this amendment. It is well known that so far as the Province of Bengal is concerned, the word "revenue" always means revenue payable by the subject of the State, but so far as other parts of India is concerned that is not so. The reason is very well known. It is embedded in the revenue history of this province: Originally it was the law that the tenant paid rent directly to the State. There was no distinction between rent and revenue at that time. Then, during the Moghul period the zemindari system was created and at the time of the Permanent Settlement there was the provision that the tenant should pay rent to the landlord and the landlord paid revenue to the State—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur, I think that is irrelevant. You had better come back to the amendment. You need not go to the history of the Permanent Settlement.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, it was a momentary contact with the past and I was coming forward to the present time. The point that I was going to make out was that there was no distinction between "rent" and "revenue" prevalent in any other part of India. The word "revenue" was first used in the famous Amini Report in 1778—long before the Regulation of 1793. Now in Bengal and Bihar where the Permanent Settlement is in force, the word "revenue" has a special meaning, namely, what is paid to the Government. So it is impossible to retain the words "or revenue" in the Bill. Mr. Mukherjee has attempted to explain that revenue is received by the Government. It is unmeaning on the part of the Legislature to provide that the Finance Department should tax the Revenue Department for the receipt of land revenue: that is unthinkable. Probably the Revenue Department felt the difficulty that there was the definition in the Indian Income-tax Act. In fact, the definition in this Bill is a mere verbatim copy of the definition of the Indian Income-tax Act. But, as I have said, so far as Bengal is concerned, our history has given only one meaning to the word "revenue" and that revenue cannot be taxed. The question is: whether we will be justified in copying the Indian Income-tax Act without trying to adapt it to the conditions of Bengal. I have definite authority that such adaptation will not be against the law. I have the decision of the highest court of the land, namely, the Federal Court, on this point. In the Bihar Act, they omitted the word "revenue".

The House would be pleased to take into consideration the definition of agricultural income as given in the Bihar Act. There, the word "revenue" was omitted and this matter then went up to the Federal Court. This case is reported in 1942 Federal Court Report at page 1. In that case, the question arose as to whether by the omission of the word "revenue" from the definition of the Indian Income-tax Act, which is supposed to be sacrosanct, the enactment became illegal. The Federal Court held that the omission of the word "revenue" was a mere adaptation of the language in the Indian Income-tax Act to the needs and conditions of Bihar and we all know that the revenue history of Bihar and Bengal is the same. So, there is no point in merely copying the definition without looking into the circumstances which prevail in Bengal. Now, an anomaly of the worst type would be avoided if we omit the expression. Nothing would be lost and the Bill will be legal, as has been held by the Federal Court. Sir, may I hand over the Report to you? I have the ruling of the Federal Court with me.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is not necessary; you better go on.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Therefore, I submit that if this word is expunged, it would make things logical; it would make the Act symmetrical and identical with the ideas prevailing here. As to the connotation of the definition, there is a book by Dr. Sachin Sen according to which the word "revenue" in Bengal always means revenue paid by the subject to the State. And you cannot tax this revenue. I, therefore, submit on question of logic as well as on authority that the best thing we can do is to accept the amendment.

With these few words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, by this amendment the honourable member wants to change the definition of the term "agricultural income". The definition is given in section 311 of the Government of India Act, 1935, read with section 2 of the Indian Income-tax Act and is protected by section 141 of the Government of India Act, 1935. This definition is binding on the Provincial Legislature. We had considered this point very carefully. The Advocate-General expressed the opinion that to attempt to alter the definition would be "dangerous and illegal". Those were the very words used by the Advocate-General. We have, therefore, copied that definition verbatim in this Bill. I would like to point out that "revenue" in the particular Act of 1868 has a special meaning with reference to that Act alone. I have noticed on past occasions my honourable friend, Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee, quoting from his dictionary. I hope he uses a good dictionary; and if he looks up a good dictionary, he will find that "revenue" means "income". And here we are trying to tax income which is neither rent nor an income assessable under the Central Income-tax Act.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a point of personal explanation, Sir. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister was referring to the dictionary meaning of the word "revenue", but the Hon'ble Minister raised that in connection with the definition of the word which is an accepted interpretation in the legislation of the Province. That definition should be accepted and not the dictionary meaning of the word.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, as I have already said, that definition applies to the subject-matter of that particular legislation, namely, land revenue, and has no reference to other legislative measures. That point is perfectly clear.

One might even suspect that by this amendment an attempt is being made to exclude certain incomes derived from land from the purview either of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Act or of the Indian Income-tax Act. For instance, salamis, which are not rent. Perhaps also an income from forests. I would further point out that Bihar nearly got into trouble by trying to change the definition of agricultural income as given in section 2 of the Indian Income-tax Act. The Bihar Act speaks of "any rent or income" and the Bihar Government got into trouble over that. They went to the Federal Court and the Federal Court saved the Bihar Act by interpreting that "income" there meant "revenue". I have got the report of the Bihar case with me here, but I need not waste the time of the House by reading out the judgment. I submit that it is not only safe and prudent for us to adopt the definition given in the Indian Income-tax Act but that there is no escape from it. Therefore, I oppose the amendment not in pursuance of a policy of defeating every amendment of the Opposition—but with a clear judicial and legal conscience.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I rise on a point of information, Sir. As I have no right of reply, that is the only way by which I can obtain some amount of information from the Hon'ble Minister. May I ask the Hon'ble Finance Minister if the word "revenue" is intended to convey the idea of an income that is sufficient to cover any income derived from such land? If it is so, then would not the word "revenue" in that section be superfluous? The other point of information is: that in Bihar they deleted the word "revenue" and they nearly got into trouble and went up to the Federal Court which saved them. I have got the judgment in that case with me also. In the circumstances, would not the opinion of the Advocate-General and the Law Officer of the Crown be re-considered? I hope the Hon'ble Minister will explain the difficulties which I feel.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I do not propose to lay up store for future trouble. Therefore, I propose to adopt the safer and more prudent and, in my opinion, the inescapable course of adopting the definition, verbatim, as given in section 2 of the Indian Income-tax Act.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, may I rise on a point of information?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid I cannot allow you to rise on a point of information, one after another.

Order, order. The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 2 of the Bill in paragraph (a), the words "or revenue" in line 1 be deleted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (1) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (a), after the word "land" in line 1, the words "in Bengal" be inserted.

The reason that I have in my mind in proposing this amendment is that the definition is rather too wide. It includes income from lands throughout the world, but obviously land in Bengal is meant. In these circumstances, by the introduction of these two words "in Bengal" the needlessly wide character of the definition would be circumscribed. This is an adaptation to the needs and requirements of Bengal and I do not think it would make the Bill illegal. If this amendment is accepted, it will narrow down the definition to the needs of the case. With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (1) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (a), after the word "land" in line 1, the words "in Bengal" be inserted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (a) of sub-clause (1), for the words "officers of Crown" in line 5, the words "Provincial Government" be substituted.

Sir, the expression "officers of the Crown" is very ambiguous. In fact, there has been some amount of difficulty in interpreting this expression. This expression appears in some of the Ordinances and the question has arisen as a practical proposition as to whether police officers, civic guards, A.R.P. men are officers of the Crown within the meaning of the Essential Service (Maintenance) Ordinance, 1941. The argument advanced against this view is that officers of the Crown are mentioned in an appropriate part of the Government of India Act. It includes persons and officers who are appointed by the Secretary of State. The expression servant of the Crown has created some amount of difficulty and the matter has been referred to the Government for opinion. The point is causing some amount of anxiety. The question is: whether, after provincial autonomy, any officer who is not a member of the Indian Civil Service or any officer not appointed by the Secretary of State is an officer of the Crown or of the Provincial Government. The question of provincial autonomy enters largely into this question, for provincial autonomy would be a farce if officers of the Crown are to include officers of the Provincial Government. In these circumstances, I submit that it would be safer—as the Hon'ble the Finance Minister likes to be safer—it would be safer to use the expression "Provincial Government". That would be easy of acceptance by the House and in that case there would be no trouble at all. Therefore, this amendment is calculated to improve the Bill and will also remedy some of the doubts and difficulties in the Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (a) of sub-clause (1), for the words "officers of the Crown" in line 5, the words "Provincial Government" be substituted.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: I rise to support the amendment. The Khan Bahadur has rightly said that the words "officers of the Crown" may lead to difficulty in the actual operation of the Act. We are concerned with the Provincial Government. Officers of the Crown may be officers of the Government of India; but as we are concerned only with the Provincial Government and not with the Central Government, I do not think there can be any reasonable objection to the substitution of the words "Provincial Government" for the words "officers of the Crown" and I hope the Hon'ble Finance Minister will readily accept the amendment.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. The amendment seeks not only to improve the provisions of the Bill, but I submit the amendment seeks to remove a defect which is patent in the wording as incorporated in the Bill itself. Agricultural income means any rent or revenue derived from land which is used for agricultural purposes and collected by officers of the Crown. I leave out the other portions which are not relevant for my present purpose. As the honourable member moving the amendment pointed out, the "officers of the Crown" may even include a police officer. Now, Sir, it means that a police officer can realise the amount of tax and apparently for that purpose that is included in the definition. I submit that it is an absurd proposition which ought to be looked into very carefully. The word "Crown" has been used in the Government of India Act in various places. If we look to section 2 of the Government of India Act, 1935, we find it stated: "provided any powers connected with the exercise of the functions of the Crown". There the word "Crown" has been used in a particular sense. Now, Sir, I submit that it is not the intention of the Agricultural Income-tax Act to levy the tax on anything that is collected by any and every officer of the Crown, except the income which is really derived by assesses under the Agricultural Income-tax Act from land. The officers of the Crown collect local rates and cesses and I doubt very much whether that is intended to be taxed here again. I may refer the honourable members in this connection to the proviso to clause 3 where from the operation of the Agricultural Income-tax Act any income derived by any local rate is excluded. Therefore, I submit that the amendment of the Khan Bahadur should be accepted without any hesitation. Here I may remind the Hon'ble Finance Minister that it will not in any way violate any of the provisions of the Government of India Act. With these words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Mr. President, I do not think there will be any difficulty on account of the words "officers of the Crown". The original Indian Income-tax Act had "officers of the Government", but to make it uniform with the Government of India Act, it was changed into "officers of the Crown". So there will be no difficulty about it and there is absolutely no danger of the "home guards" being employed for realising agricultural income-tax. There is no danger of that, and as I have said earlier this afternoon, that I must stubbornly oppose this amendment.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: On a point of order, Sir. Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad never used the words "home guards". He said, Civic Guards.

MR. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is: that in clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (a) of sub-clause (1), for the words "officers of the Crown" in line 5, the words "Provincial Government" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move: That in paragraph (i) of sub-clause (1)(b) of clause 2 of the Bill, after the word "agriculture" the word "horticulture" be inserted.

Sir, I do not think any speech is necessary. I do say that the income derived from horticulture should not be exempted and this word should be added.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: On a point of order, Sir. Mr. Das wants the word "horticulture" to be added after the word "agriculture". That would be meaningless. Because in the Bill there is "agriculture, or". Therefore, the word "horticulture" should be inserted after the words "agriculture, or". Otherwise, it would mean agriculture-horticulture.

MR. PRESIDENT: I do not think that is a point of order. The Hon'ble Minister will reply to that.

Amendment moved: That in paragraph (i) of sub-clause (1)(b) of clause 2 of the Bill, after the word "agriculture" the word "horticulture" be inserted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I do not propose to change the definition of the word.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Would horticulture be liable to income-tax?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Yes.

MR. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in paragraph (i) of sub-clause (1)(b) of clause 2 of the Bill, after the word "agriculture" the word "horticulture" be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: That in clause 2 of the Bill, in sub-clause (I), in paragraph (b)(ii), for the word "rent-in-kind" where it occurs, the words "rent in kind" be substituted.

You will see, Sir, that here three words are connected by two hyphens to form one word. I have attempted to substitute those three distinct words unconnected by hyphens. You would be pleased to consider the import of this amendment. The expression "rent in kind" is so well known in our tenancy legislations that it does not require much elaboration.

So far as Bengal is concerned, the expression with hyphens is absolutely unknown in our literature on tenancy legislations. It is distinguished from "rent in cash". In a large number of judgments in the High Court and the Privy Council you will find that the expression "rent in kind" is used without hyphens and it is never used with hyphens. I submit that the law is already perplexing. The diversity created by recent legislations is sufficiently large and we should not perplex the readers by any more diversities. It must, however, be admitted, in favour of the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Bill, that this expression is used in a hyphenated form in the Central Act, but, as I have submitted, there is no reason for slavishly copying the definition of the Central Act. There is a story of a copying clerk whose duty was to make exact copies from originals. He was told that the copy must be an exact replica of the original and that there should be no deviation. He found a dead fly sticking to the original, and he was at a loss to find out how to copy it exactly. He then ran about and caught a live fly, killed it and pasted it on the copy and it was now a very good copy of the original. I want to lay stress on the fact that it is no good slavishly copying a thing without local adaptation. I have also considered this from a grammarian's point of view which would be extremely appealing to the Hon'ble Minister who is an authority on English literature. With due respect to the framers of the Central Act, I should say that in these days of provincial autonomy, Bengal should have her own way. The expression, as it is used in the Bill, is a qualifying expression. The exact expression is "receiver of rent-in-kind". It performs the function of a modifier to the word receiver and the recognised rule of usage in the English language is that when a compound word of this type is used as a mere modifier, that is, when it is used adverbially or is used to perform the function of an adjective, then, if these words are used before the word to be modified, they should be used in a hyphenated form; but if these words are used after the word modified, as in this case, then they are not to be used in the hyphenated form. The House will be pleased to consider some examples. One example is "short-term credit". "Short-term" must be hyphenated as it is a modifier to the word "credit" and is used before it. Other expressions are "up-to-date information" and "20th-century-ideas", where hyphen must be used. I have a book in my hand named "Good English. How To Speak and Write It" which purports to teach good English to Indian students and as it is written by an Englishman, there would be no difficulty in following it. The Illustrated Weekly and the Statesman advertised this book for the Home Library and it was sold at Rs. 4-8. Here in this book the proposition has been laid down at page 211 that if you use a compound word like this to qualify or modify a noun, then it should be hyphenated if it is used before it; but if they are used after it, they should not be hyphenated. There are other examples in the book which is written by a well-known Englishman and the heading of the chapter is "Hints for Indian Students"—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I don't think that is relevant, Khan Bahadur Sahib.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I have simply followed it religiously and as it appeals to Indian students it would be particularly acceptable to men of our type.

Mr. PRESIDENT: These digressions are very interesting no doubt, but please come to the point, Khan Bahadur.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: All right, Sir. My esteemed friends of the European group should be bound to follow this. Although the Europeans have their own ideas and their own authority, I have no doubt that the opinion of the author would be treated with respect even by Englishmen. (A VOICE: To use correct English?) Well, no one is ever bound to use good and accurate English but we of the poorer lot think it necessary to stand on a lower level and feel bound to use good English or grammatically good English, as my friend Rai Bahadur Keshab Chandra Banerjee suggests. In these circumstances, considerations of grammar as well as of good sense and correct usage ought to induce the Hon'ble Finance Minister to accept this amendment. I would also like my friends of the European group to give us their opinion as to whether they accept the advice given in this book.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I take it, Khan Bahadur, you have finished your argument?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Almost, Sir: only one word more. Having bought the book at some cost and as the book has been advertised as a model for English grammar and usage, I think it would be proper even for my European friends to stick to the instructions given there. With these words, I move my amendment and hope that it will be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 2 of the Bill, in sub-clause (I), in paragraph (b)(ii), for the word "rent-in-kind" where it occurs, the words "rent in kind" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I must say at the outset that I have considerable sympathy with the amendment. I myself have in the last twenty years tried to practise economy in the use of hyphens and punctuations and think I have gone on with this economy very well. But as we have profited by the more substantial portions of the drafting of the definitions given by the Central authorities, in deference to those authorities I think we might suffer the retention of the word "rent-in-kind" with two hyphens.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 2 of the Bill, in sub-clause (I), in paragraph (b)(ii) for the word "rent-in-kind" where it occurs, the words "rent in kind" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment No. 24 is on all fours with the previous amendment upon which the House has just now given its verdict. I take it, Khan Bahadur, that you do not propose to move it?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: That was the verdict of the House in one case and the House may feel penitent in another case.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I take it that you do not want to move it in any case.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: In deference to the wishes expressed by the Chair and probably——

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, the Chair has no wishes in the matter but it only made a suggestion.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The suggestion is valuable and I do not move this amendment, Sir.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I beg to move in clause 2 of the Bill, paragraph (c) of sub-clause (I), be deleted.

Sir, the amendment seeks to exempt buildings situated on or in the immediate vicinity of land falling within the scope of the Agricultural

Income-tax Bill. This is a very modest proposal and should be accepted by the Government. The dwelling houses and store-houses of agriculturists and katchari bars of zemindars are going to be taxed. I only wish that the Ministry faced the public with such a proposal. The slogan raised against it will be: "they have not left untouched the field or the farm-house" কেউ বাগানের কিছু বাকী রাখেনি। Mr. Haji Badi Ahmed Chowdhury of the Lower House has recently contributed an article to the Panchajanya পঞ্চাঙ্গ, a comparatively small journal of the district town of Chittagong stating therein that he tried his level best to have the new cloth, necessary for covering the dead bodies of Muhammadans, exempted from the sale tax but the Ministry would not budge an inch. That article has been reproduced in many leading journals of Bengal and has been greedily devoured by all and sundry. The attempt to tax the dwelling houses and store-houses of the poor will provide a very expressive slogan and every serious student of world history knows that slogans subverted thrones, monarchies and dynasties. The great French Revolution took place as a sequel to the merciless exploitation of the poor and in that fateful period a tannery was actually started to manufacture shoes out of human leather made of the skin of men of the exploiting classes and such shoes sold at fancy prices. I only wish that the Ministers who in their anxiety to save their skin against the wrath of the Finance Member of the Government of India come before us with this sort of all-pervasive taxation, will not forget that a day of reckoning will come sooner or later and they will have to face the multitude.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: On a point of order, Sir. We have specifically excluded tax on buildings—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Then why the definition is there?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: The definition is there, because it is the correct definition of the Agricultural Income-tax. As a matter of fact, we have made it abundantly clear that we are not taxing buildings. The honourable member's attention is drawn to clause 5 of the Bill. Mr. Haridas Mazumdar is delivering a homily saying that we are taxing this and that. But as a matter of fact, we are not taxing buildings: we have left it out—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of order, Sir. Is the Hon'ble Minister replying to the honourable member?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I wanted to stop the homily and abuse of the honourable member (interruptions from the Opposition benches).

Mr. PRESIDENT: You go on, Mr. Mazumdar.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: As I was saying, Sir, a day of reckoning will come sooner or later and they will have to face the multitude.

With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 2 of the Bill, paragraph (c) of sub-clause (I), be deleted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I am astonished at the interruption of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister when my honourable friend Mr. Haridas Mazumdar was moving his amendment. He interrupted by saying "We have not taxed the agricultural buildings". I was going to ask the Hon'ble Minister to have patience to listen to the Opposition point of view but you interrupted me. Sir, I would refer to the Bill as published in the Calcutta Gazette where the honourable members will find that the Bill as reported by the Select Committee, I am not referring to the Bill as published in the Gazette with the report of the Select Committee, there is a provision "Save as otherwise provided by this Act, the following heads of agricultural income shall be chargeable to agricultural income-tax, etc." and in clause 2(c) "any income derived from any building owned and occupied by the receiver of the rent or revenue of any such land, or occupied by the cultivator, etc." (The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, he is misrepresenting.) I hear the Hon'ble Minister saying that I am misrepresenting. He must withdraw the word immediately. I think he has no right to say that. I was speaking of the original Bill which was reported by the Select Committee of the Lower House. Now, Sir, in trying to refer to the history of a legislation it sometimes becomes necessary to refer to the fact as to how the Bill was first introduced, how it had been passed by the Lower House and all that—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But what is the point at issue? The point at issue is whether buildings are going to be taxed. The Hon'ble Minister says that he was going to tax the agricultural buildings. I was just going to tell you refer to the Bill as reported by the Select Committee. But that is strictly not relevant here. Let us consider the Bill as it is before us.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, as I have already said, in moving an amendment we have to refer to the various stages of the Bill in order to support the amendment which we are moving. Now, I was going to submit for the information of the Hon'ble Minister by what clauses he was going to tax the agricultural buildings. I was just going to tell him that if he does not want to tax the agricultural buildings, then what was the good of keeping the definition in the Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Then you consider it redundant?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Not only redundant but I say it is mischievous. By a specific amendment moved in the Lower House, buildings were excluded from the operation of the Act.

Now, Sir, I am going to refer to a more serious objection, and I think the Hon'ble the Finance Minister will try to appreciate it. If we look to the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, you will find that under section 9 of that Act "the tax shall be payable by an assessee under the head 'Property' in respect of the bona fide annual value of property consisting of any buildings or lands appurtenant thereto of which he is the owner, other than such portions of such property as he may occupy for the purposes of his business, subject to the following allowances.....". Sir, therefore, I find that so far as the Indian income-tax is concerned, buildings occupied by the owners of the land are to be taxed under the Indian Income-tax Act. Now, let us refer to the provision of the Government of India Act. Section 141 of the Government of India Act is, I think, of more use here. Now, what is the provision of section 141? It is that "No Bill or amendment which imposes or varies any tax or duty in which provinces are interested, or which varies the meaning of the expression 'agricultural income' as defined for the purposes of the enactments relating to Indian income-tax." Now this is the sentence to which I would draw the attention of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister particularly, "or which affects the principles on which under any of the foregoing provisions of this chapter moneys are or may be distributable to Provinces or States, or which imposes any such Federal surcharge as is mentioned in the foregoing provisions of this chapter, shall be introduced or moved in either Chamber of the Federal Legislature except with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in his discretion".

I would now refer to sub-clause (3) of section 141 which says that "in this section the expression 'tax or duty in which Provinces are interested' means—

- (a) a tax or duty the whole or part of the net proceeds whereof are assigned to any Province;

- (b) a tax or duty by reference to the net proceeds whereof sums are for the time being payable out of the revenues of the Federation to any Provinces”.

Section 141 therefore provides that you cannot tax any income which is liable to be taxed under the Indian Income-tax Act.

Now let us refer to section 311 of the Government of India Act. In this section 311, sub-section (2) we find the following provision:—

“In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, the following expressions have the meanings hereby respectively assigned to them, that is to say:—

‘agricultural income’ means agricultural income as defined for the purposes of the enactments relating to Indian income-tax.”

If we now look to the definition of agricultural income as given in the Indian Income-tax Act, to which reference was made on an earlier occasion, you will find that agricultural income means “any rent or revenue derived from land which is used for agricultural purposes, and is either assessed to land revenue in British India or subject to a local rate assessed and collected by officers of the Crown as such”. Clause (c) deals with the buildings referred to in the present Bill. If no tax is to be levied on these buildings, why incorporate this “term” in the definitions clause, as it will confuse the assessing authorities and they may attempt to include the income on some plea or other. I, therefore, submit that the amendment which we are moving only seeks to remove a very serious difficulty in the Agricultural Income-tax Bill and I submit that the Hon’ble Finance Minister before he rises to oppose this amendment should seriously consider the situation and, if necessary, take the opinion of the Advocate-General. With these words, I move the amendment.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, I, too, have got a similar motion and beg to move that in clause 2 of the Bill, paragraph (c) of sub-clause (1), be deleted.

Sir, clause 5 does not mention anything about sub-clause (c) of clause 1, section 2; but at the same time it is perfectly noticeable that in order to describe agricultural income the Bill says that the income derived from any building owned and occupied by the receiver of the rent or revenue of any such land, or occupied by the cultivator, or the receiver of rent-in-kind of any land with respect to which, or the produce of which, any operation mentioned in items (ii) and (iii) of sub-clause (b) is carried on; with a proviso. It is perfectly clear that this income was sought to be included within the definition of agricultural income. Clause (a) deals with agricultural income and clause (c) also with agricultural income, and we find besides a proviso added to it. To be very careful, the draftsman says that under certain circumstances certain buildings or income from certain buildings should not be taxed. Then proceeding further we find that the taxing section mentions only sub-clause (a), clause 1 section 2, and sub-clause (b) of clause 1, section 2, but there it stops short. Now what is the implication of this? Perhaps it would be admitted without contradiction that the legislature is never supposed to introduce irrelevant or redundant words in a statute, and in construing such expressions the courts would always assume that sub-clause (c) of clause 1, section 2, was necessary and was introduced with some purpose. According to the observations of the Finance Minister however this sub-clause (c) seems to be absolutely useless and unnecessary, because he says that this income derived from any building owned and occupied by the receiver of the rent or revenue of any such land and so forth—they are not going to be charged. If that be so, then what is the object of putting in this sub-clause (c) at all? We shall be very glad to hear the Finance Minister on this point as to why sub-clause (c) has been at all inserted in the definition of agricultural income.

How is the revenue going to be affected adversely by the omission of clause? If this clause is not meant for taxation or for increasing the revenue from this source, why is this clause there at all? I do not know where there is any sinister motive behind it and whether there is any implication which you do not want to express directly. Suppose, there is a plot of land on which there is a building, say of a cultivator. Now, you say that are not going to tax the building but the land is there and you may say that the building on the land yields certain amount of income; consequently the land has a share in that income, so it should be taxed. You have made it clear here whether you are going to include land or exclude it. What is the motive of this clause (c)? The taxation enactments are to be expressed clearly so that the subjects who are going to be taxed see clearly and without any doubt or ambiguity his position whether he is going to be taxed or not. The assurance of the Hon'ble Finance Minister will not give the tax-payer any immunity—

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: It is not an assurance but a statement of fact which I pointed out in the course of my speech.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, I am sorry the Hon'ble Finance Minister has taken it to be a statement of fact. But we are discussing here law, pure law and nothing but law. We are considering the question of the effect of this clause (c). What is the question of fact? The fact is that the Hon'ble Finance Minister states on the floor of the House that he is not going to tax building—

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Look at the provisions of the Bill. There is no mention save and except—

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: It is well-known, that in a court of law or tribunal we are not entitled to refer to speeches made by any Hon'ble Minister or honourable member in charge of a particular Bill or statement or any assurance, to substantiate our case. There always depends on interpretation and we find here that according to the interpretation put on this clause (c) along with clause 5, the meaning is otherwise. In the view of the Hon'ble Finance Minister certain buildings are not going to be taxed. But is that clear from the clause itself? Will any judge who will have no assistance from the Hon'ble Minister when he would be interpreting this clause, accept it? If we refer to the statement of the Hon'ble Finance Minister and try to establish my case will he allow me to do so? He will not. I do not think that the Hon'ble Finance Minister's statement is correct and reasonable and I think no reasonable lawyer will argue in this way. The Hon'ble Finance Minister is arguing that there is no mention about it in clause 5; so this will be excluded. That is so, if that is the idea, why not delete this clause? For what purpose you include this clause and for what purpose you are insisting on retaining this clause?

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Hon'ble Minister.
(Several honourable members rose to speak.)

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, when there are so many honourable members anxious to speak, may I submit that you should not call upon the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to reply.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, that amendment stands in my name also and I have not moved it yet. Shall I move it?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move: That in clause of the Bill, paragraph (c) of sub-clause (I), be deleted.

Sir, the Hon'ble Minister has said that income from building will not be taxed. In this connection I will read clause 5 of the Bill. It says "Save as otherwise provided by this Act, the following heads of agricultural income shall be chargeable to agricultural income-tax, namely:—

- (i) agricultural income as defined in sub-clause (a) of clause (1) of section 2 (hereinafter referred to as 'agricultural income from rent or revenue');
- (ii) agricultural income as defined in sub-clause (b) of clause (1) of section 2 (hereinafter referred to as 'agricultural income from agriculture'); in the manner hereinafter appearing."

So, these two heads of agricultural income will be taxed; but the Hon'ble Minister says that he is not going to tax it. I do not understand why (c) should be included in the definition of "agricultural income". I think this should be excluded altogether.

With these few words, I move my amendment.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, the whole Bill is a mass of undigested material and I doubt very much whether the Hon'ble the Finance Minister himself has been able to understand the implications of the Bill on agricultural income. Sir, as a layman I confess I have not been able to follow the provisions of the Bill thoroughly. I am a dyspeptic myself; I cannot digest anything, so it is very difficult for me to digest a difficult matter like this. The Hon'ble Minister asked Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee to refer to clause 5, but we are discussing clause 2 and not clause 5. We should be very careful in disposing of every clause so that it may not be necessary for the Government subsequently to bring in an amending Bill—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Rai Bahadur, up till now you have not uttered a single syllable regarding the amendment we have been discussing.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: I am coming to my point, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Please do.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: It has been stated in sub-clause (c) "any income derived from any building owned and occupied by the receiver of the rent or revenue of any such land, or occupied by the cultivator, or the receiver of rent-in-kind of any land with respect to which, or the produce of which, any operation mentioned in items (ii) and (iii) of sub-clause (b) is carried on:

Provided that the building is on or in the immediate vicinity of the land, and is a building which the receiver of the rent or revenue or the cultivator or the receiver of the rent-in-kind by reason of his connection with the land, requires as dwelling house, or as a store-house or other out-building".

Then it comes to this that if it is a dwelling house, if the building has been used for residential purposes or as a store house or as an out-house, it should be taxed. If a building is used as a dwelling house, then how can any income be derived from it unless it is let out on a rental basis? Will the Hon'ble Minister, therefore, kindly explain the meaning of this?

With these words, I support the amendment.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I have two difficulties in regard to this particular clause. If the Hon'ble the Finance Minister can explain what exactly he has in his mind, so far as I am concerned, I shall have no objection to the clause. One point to which a passing reference has been made by my honourable friend who has just sat down is how can any income be derived from the building which is in the occupation of the receiver of rent or occupied by the cultivator if it is used as a dwelling house or as a store-house or an out-building. If it is used for other purposes, then the income will not for the purposes of this Act be regarded as agricultural income. Sub-clause (c) and the proviso read together makes it quite clear that in this sub-clause the framers of the Bill had in mind only this kind of income derived from the building, provided one of two conditions were satisfied. One was what this building was adjacent to the land and the other was that it was in the immediate vicinity of the land, but there is no reference of which land. Obviously every building would be on land. When it is stated that the building is in the immediate vicinity of the land, what is the land to which reference is made? There is no reference here to any income derived from the land that is occupied by the building itself. In sub-clause (c), reference is only to the land which is occupied by the cultivator. Thereafter, it is provided that the building is on or in the immediate vicinity of the land, but we do not understand which land it is.

My second difficulty is this. We know that the agricultural income-tax is going to affect a class of persons who have plenty of money and who have also a good deal of legal advice at their command. Therefore, if there is anything in the Bill which in any way contravenes the powers of this legislature and which in any way raises any doubt of its legality, the landlords and the landed interests are bound to go to court over it. If this sub-clause (c) has no meaning, I think it will give rise to proceedings in the High Court and elsewhere. I know that the Hon'ble the Finance Minister is very anxious that this Bill should be quickly passed into law. We have told him that so far as the principle of the Bill is concerned, we are not opposed; therefore, Sir, I have taken no part in the discussion of many of the amendments. But if this clause remains, the only result will be that the matter will be delayed by litigation. We have now been told by the Hon'ble Finance Minister that clause 5, to which we have not yet come, lays it down quite clearly that this sub-clause (c) will have no bearing on tax on agricultural income.

If that be the case, what is the point in having this sub-clause (c)? I would submit that there should be nothing which is redundant and superfluous in an act of legislation. Every word of a clause will be considered and scrutinised by astute lawyers. If they do not find any obvious meaning, they are bound to read a meaning into it and that will lead to all kinds of difficulties.

There is one final point. There is at times a tendency on the part of the Hon'ble Ministers and some of their supporters to hurry the discussion of a clause or clauses. That is very undesirable. I take it that the precise difficulty that we are considering today has arisen because of a similar process of hurry that was actually exhibited in another place in connection with the consideration of clause 2. Sufficient attention was not paid to this matter there. Later on, when clause 5 was being considered, it was discovered that sub-clause (c) of clause 2, paragraph (b) had no meaning, or if it had any meaning, then it had the meaning that the income derived from any building owned and occupied, etc., came within the purview of the Bill. Therefore, in clause 5, all reference to this aspect of the matter was omitted. The result is a great anomaly. In one part of the Bill, we find no reference to a particular feature to which, however, there is reference in another very important section of the Bill. When this Bill is going to be passed into law, we find section (2) which defines the particular words and expression which are used here, and which in a way determines the limits and the scope of the Bill, contains references to particular items which however do not occur in other parts of the Bill.

These are the three points about which I have difficulties. It may be found that the Bill refers to income on house property and then it would be outside the purview of the Bill and ought not to come within the Bill itself. If it refers to rent, then also there is scope for infinite difficulty. Later on attempts may be made to tax income derived from rent itself. There may be also other contingencies. There may be a distinction drawn between the income derived from a building and the income derived from the land on which the building is situated. Let us, for example, take the case of a municipal area like Calcutta. In Calcutta, we know that not only buildings on a land have an income therefrom, but in many cases the land on which the building is situated has a large income, a large premium has to be paid in order to build on it. So far as the rural areas are concerned, today that contingency may not exist, but it may be that apart from the actual rent or income derived from a building, the land itself may come to have income or premium attached to it. With changes in the economic condition the situation is sure to alter. Even today we have in certain rural areas——

Mr. PRESIDENT: How long will you take, Mr. Kabir, to finish?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Not long, but a few more minutes only.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Then you may continue your speech tomorrow. The Council now stands adjourned till 3 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 58.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Thursday, the 13th July, 1944, at 3 p.m., being the fifty-eighth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. Deputy President (Khan Bahadur ABDUL HAMID CHOWDHURY, J.P.) was in the Chair.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The House will now resume further consideration of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, as there are no questions today. Mr. Humayun Kabir.

MR. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I was placing before the House yesterday the difficulty which would arise if the amendment which we have under consideration is not passed. I refer to the provision of sub-clause (c) of clause 2 of this Bill. The Hon'ble Finance Minister referred to clause 5. In clause 5 which is the operative clause of the Bill, there is no reference to any taxation except under the heads (a) and (b). The Finance Minister suggested that the existence of sub-clause (c) would, therefore, cause no difficulty. I suggest that it is probably due to the fact that he is no more a practising lawyer than myself that he said so. If he were a practising lawyer like some of the honourable members here, he would not have said this. There is nothing in clause 5 which excludes sub-clause (c) of clause 2. Nothing has been said with regard to things other than those covered by (a) and (b) of clause 2. Silence in regard to a topic does not, however, exclude it. The existence of a different class of income which has been defined as agricultural income under sub-clause (c) of clause 2 would suggest that this income would also be taxed. Its existence in the definition clause, which is an important clause in the Act, would, in the absence of its explicit exclusion in clause 5, naturally lead to the position that if any tax is levied under sub-clause (c), then there is no remedy at all. The Hon'ble Finance Minister will no doubt say that since it is not explicitly mentioned, such situation cannot arise. But where is the guarantee that it will not arise when it is not clearly excluded anywhere? Clause 5 as it stands excludes nothing. Nowhere in clause 5 is it stated that incomes other than those mentioned in it shall be excluded. The explicit mention of certain classes of income in it will, therefore, be taken as illustrative and not exhaustive.

The definition which has been put in clause 2 obviously has some purpose. In clause 5 explicit reference has been made to the agricultural income that shall be taxed. No exclusion has been made of taxes on building. There is no definite provision that income in sub-clause (c) of clause 2 of the Bill will not be taxed. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister has no doubt given assurances that any income derived from buildings shall not be taxed. This assurance of the Hon'ble Minister in the Legislature will not be valid in a court of law. Besides, there is another difficulty. If an administrator who is asked to administer this Act proceeds to levy tax under sub-clause (c) of clause 2, what would be the remedy of the person taxed? If Government want to tax buildings, let them say so. We will consider whether we shall support the proposal or not. But Government is not clear on that point. They do not definitely state their position. In one clause, they say they would tax such income. In another, they say that they would not. By merely saying here that they do not want to tax the buildings, the Hon'ble Minister cannot prevent the buildings being taxed. If that is not their intention, I do not understand why in one part of the Act, in clause 5, the Government pretend to leave such income out of consideration, and in another part, clause 2, which is a substantive clause and an important clause, they leave the matter open. The only alternative now open is to issue an executive order that no administrator of the Act will tax anybody under sub-clause (c) of clause 2 of the Act. Such executive order has very little force in the eye of law. Besides, if everything has got to be done by executive orders, what is the purpose of bringing in this Bill before the Legislature and having long discussions in the Assembly and the Council in order to improve the Bill? Let the Hon'ble Minister satisfy us on the point whether the non-mention of sub-clause (c) of clause 2 in clause 5 definitely excludes it from the operation of the Act. It is an anomalous position and is bound to give rise to all kinds of difficulties. If Government want to tax the buildings, we will have no objection. We might support or oppose it on the merits of the question. Either clause 5 should be amended with an excluding phrase or clause 2 (c) should be omitted. The present position is bound to lead to litigation and to other difficulties. What is worse, it might defeat the very purpose for which the Government want to carry this Bill through so hurriedly in this House.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support this amendment. I submit, Sir, that it raises an important question. The question is this that paragraph (c), which this amendment seeks to omit, is now absolutely superfluous on the case made out by the Hon'ble Minister. It is, therefore, at best a mere surplusage, but a more critical examination will show that it is something worse than a surplusage. In interpreting Acts, admissions made in this House will never be taken into account. Mr. Humayun Kabir did not go far enough. He said that a court of law will not look at it as not being worth the paper on which it is printed. I should say that it is not even permissible to look at it. Courts will simply refuse to look into the proceedings of the Legislature.

Then, Sir, there is another rule of interpretation which is well established in courts of law and that is that no word, no phrase, no sentence and no clause should be so interpreted as to make it inoperative or insignificant or impotent. This kind of interpretation is forbidden. It is assumed that every clause, every word and every part of a section which is deliberately introduced into a Bill and which is passed by the Legislature, has a meaning and a purpose.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I rise on a point of order. As far as I remember, the Khan Bahadur Sahib spoke supporting this amendment yesterday. So he cannot speak again on the same amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Did you participate in the discussion on this amendment, Khan Bahadur Sahib?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: No, Sir. My honourable friend evidently claims a better memory as to what I did than I do myself.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: All right. Then you may go on.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, with regard to this clause, I was emphasising the well-known rule of interpretation that you cannot do away with a clause of an enactment by merely ignoring it. The inevitable presumption in a court of law would be that paragraph (c), which has been deliberately put in and passed by both the Houses of the Legislature and assented to by His Excellency the Governor, has some definite meaning and purpose and a definite function, and Mr. Humayun Kabir has pointed out that the operation of that paragraph has not been very successfully prevented. The sheet-anchor of the Hon'ble Minister's argument is that clause 5 does not mention paragraph (c) of clause 2; it mentions only paragraphs (a) and (b). He has argued, on the strength of the absence of any reference in clause 5 to paragraph (c), that the activities of paragraph (c), have, by dint of that omission, been paralysed and rendered inoperative and innocuous and that its retention is a mere superfluity. What I submit is that clause 5 is not in a peremptory or exclusive form. It merely permits the tax to be levied under paragraphs (a) and (b). As Mr. Humayun Kabir has pointed out, there is here no prohibition to impose any tax under paragraph (c). Clause 5, I submit, does not, therefore, exclude the operation of paragraph (c). In the circumstances, we shall have to move on from the permissive clause 5 to the operative clauses 6 and 7. I submit that paragraph (c) would be within clause 6. Clause 6 runs like this: "Agricultural income-tax shall be payable by an assessee under the head 'agricultural income from rent or revenue'." Supposing there is a building which is let out on rent for agricultural purposes, that rent from that building would come within the mischief of clause 6 of the Bill in spite of the fact that this is not specifically mentioned in clause 5. Then, there is a mention of paragraph (a) of clause 2 in clause 5, but it would appear that this is in another connection. Now, even if the Hon'ble Minister gives us a solemn guarantee, that would not be binding on his successors in office. Governments may come and Governments may go; and, as we have seen in Bengal, things are in a very unsettled state; and the average life of a Ministry is about a year and a half years. Nobody knows what will happen in the near future, and so it would be better if the paragraph was excluded. That would make the operation of the clause absolutely independent of any Ministry. Suppose, an over-zealous officer taxed a man with agricultural income for rents received from a building let out for agricultural purposes, then I submit that all these assurances of the Minister will go for nothing. The argument in favour of the levy would be furnished by paragraph (c) and clause 6. The paragraph must, therefore, be definitely excluded. If it is omitted, the Hon'ble Minister has warned us, the sanctity of the definitions in the Central Act would be violated and we should be putting ourselves into a dangerous position. I submit, however, that deletion of paragraph (c), as proposed in the amendment now before the House, in spite of the sacrosanct character of the definitions in the Central Act and in spite of the dangers with which we are threatened, will not at all affect the validity of the Bill; and here I am on very solid ground. The argument of "sacrosanctness" is based on a misconception. Under section 311 of the Government of India Act, the definition of agricultural income-tax is like this: that agricultural income shall be income as defined in the Indian Income-tax Act.

It is argued that in defining the term "agricultural income" for the provinces, the British Parliament has accepted in toto the definition given in the Indian Income-tax Act. The Government of India Act having accepted the definition of the Central Act—so runs the argument—has made the definition so sacrosanct that no profane hand shall be allowed to touch it, or even to look at it for a microscopic examination of it. But, as I was submitting before, I have definite authority for the exclusion of this paragraph (c) from clause 2. The House will be pleased to remember that in the Bihar Agricultural Income-tax Act this paragraph (c) was entirely omitted. My authority for saying this is the ruling that I cited yesterday and the ruling which the Hon'ble Finance Minister was speaking of yesterday. It is regarding the case of Kulu Sing and others versus the Province of Bihar. The decision of the Federal Court is at page 5 of the report, 1942, Federal Court Report. The entire argument has been clearly explained there. The question which arose there was as to whether the omission of paragraph (c) made the Bihar Act illegal.

The argument was somewhat like this: "The definition is made sacrosanct by its adoption in section 311 of the Government of India Act and so we must not touch, take away from or add to it. We must not in any way interfere with it." But Their Lordships of the Federal Court rejected the argument. Their Lordships pointed out that by the elimination of paragraph (c), the Bihar Government merely declined to tax the people for agricultural income on buildings, and that the Bihar Act was a valid piece of legislation in spite of the omission of paragraph (c). After this ruling of the highest court in the land, specially constituted to interpret the Constitution, I do not think there is any difficulty in the matter. The opinion of the learned Advocate-General was given probably without reference to this ruling of the Federal Court. But after this ruling, there is no question that the course proposed would be perfectly valid. Paragraph (c), which is aimless, purposeless, and needless, and therefore meaningless, must not be allowed to disfigure the Bill and must be banished altogether. With these words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Mr. Deputy President, I am surprised, or should I say I am not surprised, at the objection to sub-clause (c) of clause 2 of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill. Sir, I would point out, first of all, that it was necessary to have a complete and comprehensive definition of the term "agricultural income" in the Bill. For that purpose, you have to appropriate the entire field of taxation in this respect. I know that in the Bihar Act sub-clause (c) has been omitted from the definition. I have also with me the decision of the Federal Court which was referred to by my honourable friend, Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. But, Sir, there is a very good purpose in keeping sub-clause (c) in our Bill. If province after province were to cede—I use the word "cede" deliberately—if province after province were to cede to the Central Government this right by neglect or omission, then the Central Government, which is probably more needy than our Provincial Government, might pounce upon this category of income by an amendment of the Indian Income-tax Act.

After all, it is the policy of this Government to exclude notional income from buildings. It may be necessary for a future Government with the consent of the Legislature to take advantage of paragraph (c) of clause 2 in order to raise more money by taxation. Why should we give it up in favour of the Central Government? As it is, the Niemeyer Award has placed the province in a very difficult position. We have been fighting the Government of India about this limitation of our provincial field of taxation. I submit that the definition would be incomplete—

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: On a point of order, Sir. What I have just now heard from the Hon'ble the Finance Minister and what I have heard from different other speakers it appears that paragraph (c) of clause 2 is excluded by clause 5. So this paragraph (c) cannot find a place in the Bill. I want your ruling on this point.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. Let the Finance Minister continue his speech.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: If the honourable member will bear with me for a few minutes, I shall explain at length why I deem it necessary to adopt the definition of agricultural income in its entirety. We want to remain in possession of the whole field of taxation of all agricultural incomes and not give up our right to a particular category of agricultural income. This is not a charging clause but merely a definition clause. Therefore, I submit that although as a matter of policy we do not wish to tax notional incomes, there is absolutely no reason why we should give it up and make it possible for others to usurp it. By non-usage and acquiescence the Central Government might feel tempted to encroach on this area. And what would happen in that case? Supposing, this category of income comes under the Indian Income-tax Act, then the actual taxation will be much heavier: whereas here if the Bengal Government are in need of more money they can take advantage of this category and with the consent of the Provincial Legislature raise taxation. That is the sole justification for our keeping the definition intact so that, at the risk of repetition I say, we may be in possession and continue to be in possession of the entire field of taxation that is legitimately the province's.

Sir, an honourable member yesterday referred to the historical background of this Bill. I would like in a very few words to say what this historical background is. Last year when we found ourselves in need of more money, we found a Bill ready to impose agricultural income-tax. That was the Bill of 1941. We found it was to be introduced as the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill of 1943 which was an exact replica, word for word, comma for comma and semicolon for semicolon, of the Bill of 1941. But I made it perfectly clear in another place that it was our intention that the Bill should be examined very carefully in a Select Committee of the Assembly. As a matter of fact, the Select Committee took three months to prepare their report and at the beginning of the sitting of the Select Committee Government made it clear that notional income, that is, income from buildings would not be taxed. But I again repeat, Sir, what is the point in not keeping the definition intact so that a future Government when it needs more money can approach the Legislature for an amendment of this Act and derive some revenue? Otherwise the Government of India might with some device lay their hands on this area of taxation, and I would ask the honourable members to consider this point very carefully. There will be no difficulty in the courts of law. The courts of law in a taxation measure scrutinise the provisions of an Act very carefully, even more carefully than in the case of other enactments, and so long as the operative provisions do not contain anything that would make buildings liable to taxation, the taxpayer is completely safe or immune. I see no difficulty at all.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: May I ask through you, Sir, what is the difficulty of having the clause as it is inserted not at the present time but when the future Government would like to impose a tax? If a future Government wants to impose a tax, they will impose it under clause 5. Secondly, I want to know from the Hon'ble Finance Minister whether any insertion in the Bengal Act can affect the Central Act or affect the realisation of the tax which the Central Government are doing—

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: The Central Government already admitted that this category of tax belongs to a province by their definition of "agricultural income" in the Income-tax Act and this was in conformity with the provision of the Constitution Act. I would not like to encourage the Government of India to find a new device to get hold of this area of taxation. That is the whole point.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is: that clause 2 of the Bill, paragraph (c) of sub-clause (I), be deleted.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided for the amendment—15, against the amendment—29; the amendment is, therefore, negatived.

In view of the fate of amendment No. 23, I think amendments Nos. 28, 29 and 30 are not admissible.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I wish to move No. 28 on an entirely different ground.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: But it is almost similar to amendment No. 23 which has been rejected by the House.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I wish to give reasons which are absolutely on a different context—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: But it is exactly the same amendment which was rejected by the House.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: The words may be the same in the amendment, but it may be moved on a different ground altogether. Sir, simply because the same form of words has been rejected in another place, would it necessarily follow that the same form of words in another context would also be out of order?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur, do you seriously consider that this amendment would convey a separate meaning altogether?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The question is one of technicality and I submit that this amendment does not violate the res judicata rule.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: On the face of it, it does seem that the amendments are of a similar nature; but as you say that you would be able to advance new points, I allow you to move the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: that in sub-clause (7) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (c), for the word "rent-in-kind" in line 4, the words "rent in kind" be substituted.

Sir, everybody knows that my honourable friend Khan Bahadur M. A. Momin makes statement, perhaps on behalf of Government, with inside knowledge and authority and he says that this Bill would bring an income of about Rs. 50 lakhs to Government per annum. (Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Rs. 30 lakhs.) If it is Rs. 30 lakhs, then it makes the Government's case worse and strengthens my position! Some amount will be spent on the realisation of the tax and the net receipts would be much less. The Government having further already received a grant of Rs. 10 crores, the immediate need is fully satisfied. After all these, is it still necessary that this Bill should be hurried through without even the necessary amendments for the small sum of Rs. 30 lakhs minus the cost of realisation? In view of all these new facts and circumstances, I am asking the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to reconsider his decision as to whether necessary and legitimate amendments should not be accepted by him. I have tabled a large number of amendments and I intend to move those only which are calculated to improve the Bill.

With these few words, I submit my amendment to the House.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (c), for the word "rent-in-kind" in line 4, the words "rent in kind" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (c), for the word "rent-in-kind" in line 4, the words "rent in kind" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move: that at the end of sub-clause (1) of clause 2 of the Bill, the following Explanation be added, namely:—

"Explanation.—The word 'cultivator' includes a person who does not cultivate his lands himself but carries on agricultural operations with the aid of hired labourers."

Sir, there are several persons in Bengal who instead of cultivating their lands themselves cultivate their lands through the help of hired labourers. They should not escape from this tax. They should be brought within the clutches of the law and so this explanation is necessary in order to bring them within the operation of this Bill. In fact, there is a large body of persons in Bengal who hold a large quantity of lands; but instead of cultivating these lands themselves, they actually carry on agricultural operations with the help of hired labourers and even hired ploughs and their income is indeed very big which I think, Sir, will be actually taxable. Therefore, in order to make things clear and beyond any shadow of doubt I think this Explanation should be added, namely, that "the word 'cultivator' includes a person who does not cultivate his lands himself but carries on agricultural operations with the aid of hired labourers."

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that at the end of sub-clause (1) of clause 2 of the Bill, the following Explanation be added, namely:—

"Explanation.—The word 'cultivator' includes a person who does not cultivate his lands himself but carries on agricultural operations with the aid of hired labourers."

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I think the bona fide cultivator has been sufficiently protected by the lower limit of taxation, namely, the income of Rs. 3,500 and by many other exemptions. Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is: that at the end of sub-clause (1) of clause 2 of the Bill, the following Explanation be added, namely:—

"Explanation.—The word 'cultivator' includes a person who does not cultivate his lands himself but carries on agricultural operations with the aid of hired labourers."

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I want to move the next amendment that stands in the name of Mr. Nur Ahmed as a short-notice amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Which amendment you want to move?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Amendment No. 32. Sir, in the case of a short-notice amendment, it is necessary that enough copies should be available to the members. We have got the list of amendments already tabled before us and the House will, therefore, not be taken by surprise. It is a most important amendment. It will fill up a gap. Sir, I think great weight and respect attaches to the amendments tabled by Mr. Nur Ahmed who is indefatigable in the matter of correct drafting. Sir, I await your ruling on this point.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, in addition to what the Khan Bahadur has said, there is one other argument.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: (After some pause) Yes, Mr. Kabir, what did you want to say in this connection?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I was drawing your attention to the fact that the Hon'ble President the other day stated that since the Government as a matter of policy would not move any of their amendments and no Government supporter also would move any of his amendments (Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: No, no. This was not said of any of Government's supporters) the Hon'ble President would allow such amendments to be moved on the floor of the House by the Opposition members. (Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: There was no question about the amendments of the supporters of Government.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Yes, Mr. Nur Ahmed.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I have not finished yet, Sir. In this respect, I am depending entirely upon my recollection and I cannot vouch for the accuracy of the words I have used.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: What the Chair said is on record and may be compared.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, my submission is that an amendment standing in the name of one member cannot be moved by another member; there is no rule in our Procedure Rules authorising any member to do so. In this connection, I may quote from a ruling of the President of the Central Assembly when this question was raised in connection with the Indian Mines Amendment Bill, and Col. J. D. Crawford—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: What are you reading from?

Mr. NUR AHMED: From the decisions of the Chair, Central Assembly, published—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I fully appreciate your point, but the Opposition do not want to move the amendment on anybody's behalf; they want to move it at short notice.

Mr. NUR AHMED: In that case, even if it is admitted it cannot be moved on that day. I may read the rule for your reference, Sir. It is rule 64—provided that the question to which such amendment relates shall not be taken into consideration on the day on which the amendment is admitted, unless the President directs otherwise.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Yes, that is it—unless the President directs otherwise.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I would submit for your consideration—

Mr. NUR AHMED: I have not yet finished. There is a direct ruling on this point. And it is this: that copies of the amendment must be supplied to all the members before the amendment can be taken up; but in any case it cannot be taken up on the very day.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I would like to submit for your consideration the following facts: the other day when the Hon'ble Finance Minister stated that Government amendments would not be moved and appealed to his party that they too should not move their amendments, the Opposition raised the point and the Chair was pleased to observe that he would permit those motions to be moved on the floor of the House. Now, an objection may be raised as to how the Chair can say so if there is nothing in the rules and that is the objection which has just now been raised by Mr. Nur Ahmed. First of all, I doubt if the ruling of the Chair can be questioned; but I am not raising that point just now. Even if the ruling is questioned, there are certain provisions in the rules which entitle the Chair to say what he actually said that evening.

As was pointed out a moment ago there is such a thing as short-notice amendment and in case of a short-notice amendment the conditions are that it should be moved on the floor of the House and copies of such amendment should be made available to the members. Whether it will be admitted or not depends on the discretion of the Chair. In this case, Sir, the Chair said that he would permit the members of the Opposition to move the Government amendments and amendments of members supporting the Government and they would be treated as short-notice amendments. So the question of somebody moving somebody else's amendment does not arise. You will find from the records that the Hon'ble President said that he would permit members of the Opposition to move these amendments as short-notice amendments in their own way. That was the ruling of the President the other day. (The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, the President said that in the case of Government amendments he would permit but not in the case of amendments of Government supporters.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, when the Bill was going to be taken up, clause by clause, after the Hon'ble the Finance Minister had spoken the question arose whether he would give time to file further amendments in view of the fact that it had been decided that the members supporting the Government would not move any of their own amendments. Then, Sir, the President gave his ruling, distinct and clear and it is on record, that he would allow any member of the Opposition to move any amendments of the Government.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, the ruling of the Chair was in respect of the Government amendments and not in respect of amendments of the supporters of Government. Amendments of Government Party members cannot be said to be Government amendments at all.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Admitting, Sir, what the Hon'ble Leader of the House has said, it was ruled that the Government amendments could be moved by the Opposition members. It is to be decided whether you will permit the members of the Opposition to move these amendments as short-notice amendments, whether they gave notice of them or not. If honourable members supporting the Government now decide that they will not move any of their amendments, by virtue of your power you can certainly permit the members of the Opposition to move these amendments. Sir, I am depending on the power invested in you.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, the distinction between the moving of the amendment of one member by another and the moving of short-notice amendment is this. It is done with the consent and on his behalf, if the honourable member does not care to remain in the House or is indifferent to the business of the House. The honourable member who is present in the House but refuses to move his amendment means that there is no motion before the House. The amendment is simply not there. The question may, therefore, arise as to whether any member can move that amendment on short-notice. The requisite conditions about short-notice amendment are satisfied in this case. In the circumstances, the matter entirely depends upon your discretion. The original amendment of Mr. Nur Ahmed on account of his refusal to move it is effaced from the record of the House. In fact, there will be no trace of it in the proceedings of the House. There will be some trace in the list of amendments. But by refusal to move it the whole thing is gone. There is a new proposal and the question may be considered on its merits as to whether you will allow it or not at short notice.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I still maintain that the ruling was only with regard to Government amendments. Whether notices are required to move the amendment or not is a question which it is for you to decide. It will be creating a new precedent, because it is the privilege of every member to move an amendment; and if any member does not move it, no other member is to be permitted to move it. If it is allowed, then I think it will go on ad infinitum. It was only in respect of Government amendments that the Hon'ble President held that as that was a peculiar case, he would allow members of the Opposition to move those amendments. Nothing was said in respect of private members' amendments.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: I think the matter is a very simple one and the question is not that one member is moving an amendment on behalf of another member. He is simply moving it himself and moving it at short-notice. Now, the question is for the Chair to decide whether in the circumstances it ought to be allowed as a short-notice amendment. It has already been ruled that Government amendments should be allowed to be moved by members of the Opposition as short-notice amendments and here a distinction has been tried to be drawn between Government amendments and amendments of which notice has been given by other members which has been styled as private members' amendments. I do not know what is meant by private members' amendments. In the Legislature there is party system prevailing and every member has to say whether he belongs to this party or that party and if any member says that he belongs to no party he is Independent. (The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: What about a private member's Bill?) That is wholly irrelevant to the present circumstances. Now, here is the amendment belonging to a member who belongs to the Government Party, owes his allegiance to that party, and gives notice of an amendment which is approved of by that party. So, to all intents and purposes, it is a Government amendment though technically it may not be so. So, in these circumstances if any amendment appears in the name of a member of the Government Party who still owes his allegiance to that party, that should be considered as an amendment of the Government, because it has been tabled at the instance of the Government Party. But if there is objection, then it should be allowed to be moved as a short-notice amendment. Because, all the conditions of a short-notice amendment are fulfilled.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, as you will perhaps remember, on many a previous occasion when amendments were moved by Mr. Nur Ahmed, the Government invariably accepted them as Government amendments. Indeed, amendments moved by Mr. Mesbahuddin Ahmed, Chief Whip of the Government, were treated as Government amendments. Similarly, as Mr. Nur Ahmed belongs to the Government Party, we take it that any amendment moved by him is a Government amendment and we also have been led to believe that the amendments which stood in the name of Mr. Nur Ahmed were really Government amendments. Sir, on that point you might satisfy yourself by looking up the proceedings of the meeting at which the Hon'ble President gave that ruling. Apart from that, I think Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad stands in a different footing, because as an independent member he has given oral notice of this amendment and the conditions governing short-notice amendments have been satisfied. Therefore, I think, Sir, that the Khan Bahadur is quite in order to move the amendment as a short-notice amendment.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Sir, the argument advanced by the Hon'ble the Leader of the House is absolutely irrelevant. He said that you will be creating a very bad precedent—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: He did not say bad precedent. What he said was new precedent.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: I submit, Sir, that it is absolutely wrong. The matter is very simple. Mr. Nur Ahmed did not move his amendment and since he did not move his amendment it is no longer his amendment. The only question which arises is: whether you can allow this amendment to be moved as a short-notice amendment. It is entirely in your power and there is none in this House who can take away that power from you. Now, Sir, I hope you will exercise your power in the interest of this House. Then, Sir, there is another point to be taken into consideration. When the Hon'ble the Finance Minister took up an attitude the other day which is unprecedented in the history of legislation in any country, the Hon'ble President gave his ruling and practically entered into a Gentlemen's Agreement with the Opposition, and I think, Sir, that the Chair should not go back upon that agreement. Apart from that, Sir, it is for you to consider whether the amendment should be moved or not, and I think no extraneous circumstance should be taken into consideration.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I would like to say a few words on the point which would be something new.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Any new point, Mr. Mukherjee?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Yes, Sir, I want to say a few words for the consideration of both the Hon'ble the Leader of the House and the Hon'ble the Finance Minister. Sir, as a matter of fact, I think you have already heard that when this Bill was taken up for consideration, clause by clause, the Hon'ble Finance Minister made a statement that Government amendments were not going to be moved. Of course, he did not make it clear whether he meant only Government amendments or amendments given notice of by members of the Government Party.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I rise, Sir, on a point of personal explanation. What I said clearly were "amendments of which notices had been given on behalf of the Government." I quote the exact words that I used.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I also accept the position, Sir, that the amendments of Mr. Nur Ahmed were amendments put in on behalf of the Government. I think that would make the position clear. If that be so (cries of "No, no" from the Coalition Party benches, "the Coalition Party did not sit down as a whole to table these amendments"), I do not know whether you have got the proceedings of that day's meeting with you. (Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Yes, I have them with me here.) Then, a question was raised, I believe by Mr. Kabir, that some of these amendments were very important and that the Opposition wanted to move them if they were not moved by the Government Party. As a matter of fact, you will find that there was a subsequent list of amendments which were allowed to be tabled and that was a late list. You know, Sir, that the consideration of the Bill was postponed in order to decide the question whether the Rulers of Indian States could be taxed. The Opposition took this opportunity to send in certain additional amendments and they were admitted. If the Hon'ble Minister had indicated his mind sufficiently earlier, then the Opposition could have sent in such notices saying that they wanted to move all or some of the amendments that stood in the names of the members of the Government Party, so that they might be moved by them at the appropriate moment. That was the position, Sir, when the matter came up finally for consideration on the 4th July. On that day, the Hon'ble President stated that any amendment standing in the name of the Government Party would be allowed to be moved by members of the Opposition and it was not necessary for the Opposition even to send in notices for that purpose. As a matter of fact, we wanted to know whether we should send in our names stating that such and such members wanted to move the amendments standing in the names of members of the Government Party, whereupon the Chair observed that it was not necessary and that it would be enough for us to stand up on the floor of the House and to move them. That was perhaps the language used by the Chair, if I remember aright. Therefore, this request of the Opposition which has been characterised by the Leader of the House as unprecedented seems to be answered by the unprecedented attitude taken by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister in directing that Government amendments will not be moved. I therefore submit, Sir, that you will allow this amendment to be moved by any member of this House.

Mr. NUR AHMED: I find that a good deal of confusion has taken place over this question.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, can Mr. Nur Ahmed speak twice? He has already spoken once.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: It is not actually in course of a debate on any amendment but on a point of order and he is further clearing up his position.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I did not want to move the amendment following upon the pronouncement of the Chair the other day, but I wanted to move it at short-notice.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Kindly let me say a few words, Sir. Some honourable members are of the opinion that amendments standing in the name of other members can be moved by any other member. I submit that that is not so, and I have already quoted from a ruling of the President of the Central Assembly when the question was raised and the President had disallowed it, saying that that procedure was not justified by the rules and standing orders. So I beg to submit that an amendment cannot be moved by any member on behalf of another member. As regards short-notice amendments, the rule is very strict on the point. If any member wants to put a short-notice amendment, the condition precedent is that he must give a copy of the amendment to all the members of the House and unless he does so, he cannot move; that is the distinct ruling of the President. As you know, Sir, from your experience when a Bill comes up for consideration before the House, all the members in their private capacity send notices of amendments. There are various precedents and it will be found from the proceedings of the House that many amendments are moved from the Government side but all of them are not moved. Members table their amendments and Government select and accept or reject them.

(At this stage the Hon'ble Mr. President occupied the Chair.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is your point, Mr. Kabir?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: The point was that amendment No. 32 standing in the name of Mr. Nur Ahmed was attempted to be moved by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad as a short-notice amendment in virtue of the assurance which the other day you gave in this House to the effect that so far as the amendments not moved by the Government or supporters of Government are concerned, we could move them as short-notice amendments—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, I think you are adding the word "supporters". I distinctly remember to have said "Government amendment".

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: There also I have my submission—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Just a minute: let me find out what I said. Yes, that is exactly what I said. I said "I was going to suggest also that if any particular member attaches very great importance to a particular Government amendment, he might be allowed to move it as his own." That makes it very clear. What I felt when Government decided not to move their amendments of which they had given notice of was that if the Government had not given notice of the amendments some of these amendments might have been given notice of by other members and so I agreed that those amendments might be moved by the members who would wish to move them.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Amendment No. 32 was accepted by the Hon'ble Finance Minister.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Certainly not. He has no right to accept it. The right lies with the House.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I was instrumental in bringing so much trouble to the House. May I remove the difficulty. (Interruptions from the Government benches.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Khan Bahadur, what is your point?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: My point is that Mr. Nur Ahmad gave notice of amendment No. 32. But he was not going to move it. Then I asked the permission of the Chair to move it as a short-notice amendment. Mr. Nur Ahmed contended that no member can be permitted to move an amendment standing in the name of another member and that there is a rule to that effect. But I say that that is a different case altogether, namely, that if a member gives notice of an amendment, remains absent and asks somebody else to move it, then he shows scant courtesy to the House because he attends to some personal affair of his which he considers to be more important than the legislative business. So, when a person refuses to move his motion, it is no longer his motion and any member can move that motion as a short-notice amendment. The condition of a short-notice amendment is that sufficient number of copies should be made available to the honourable members, so that the House may not be taken by surprise. That condition has been satisfied and the most important ground on which I base my argument is on the question of merit. This amendment is a very important one; it is a constructive amendment and any person asking leave to move this amendment will be doing a great service.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Sahib, you may attach great importance to this amendment but the condition of a short-notice amendment is that if the President permits, on oral notice a short-notice amendment can be moved. But the Chair must exercise that discretion not in ordinary circumstances but in special circumstances. Now, as regards the amendment, what is it? "Agricultural Income-tax" means "the tax payable under this Act." It is purely a drafting amendment. That is all. It does not make any change in the substance. I do not think this amendment is of that character which should be accepted at short-notice. This privilege should be reserved for special circumstances.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, there may be a lacuna—

Mr. PRESIDENT: We all appreciate your ingenuity. This amendment, however, is not going to improve the Bill and I think the matter should not be pursued further.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, may I move the amendment standing in the names of Mr. Biren Roy and Mr. Mesbahuddin Ahmed?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: Sir, Mr. Humayun Kabir gave notice that he would move the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Any one can move it. Yes, Mr. Moholanabish.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANISH: Sir, I beg to move: that in clause 2 of the Bill, in sub-clause (4), for the word "an" in line 2, the words "a Bengal" be substituted.

Now, Sir, this amendment will appear to be necessary having regard to the fact that in clause 21 of the Bill the Agricultural Income-tax authorities have been enumerated. And they are:—(a) the Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax, Bengal, (b) the Assistant Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax, Bengal, and (c) Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officers. Now, the term Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officers has not been defined anywhere in the Bill. If you refer to the definition clause, you will find there only the Agricultural Income-tax Officer has been defined. Therefore, how would we know what is meant by Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officers. That seems to be an obvious mistake in drafting. However much the Finance Minister may boast of his draftsman, I pity him because he has got such a beautiful draftsman who does not care to read the definitions which occur in the other substantive clauses of the Bill. The object of the definition is simply to see whether a man can easily read the Act consistent with the definitions. Coming to clause 21 of the Bill, a man searches in vain the whole of the Bill for the definition of "Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officers." Therefore, I believe the Hon'ble Finance Minister will have no hesitation in accepting this amendment as a Government amendment. He has rightly found out the mistake. He had rightly instructed the then Parliamentary Secretary to put in an amendment, and I do not see any justification why that amendment should not be moved. Therefore, Sir, without wasting any more time of the House I should say that this is an amendment which ought to be accepted without further argument.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved: that in clause 2 of the Bill in sub-clause (2), for the word "an" in line 2, the words "a Bengal" be substituted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support this amendment. I do not think any speech is necessary to strengthen the argument already advanced. (Khan Sahib Fariduddin Ahmad: Then why do you speak?) "Why do I speak" is an unintelligent question. The amendment is a very good amendment. It has been prepared by the Legislative Department, passed by the Finance Department, approved by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Bill and again approved by his Party and then submitted to the House on behalf of the Government. Normally, it should have required no argument at all. But the trouble is: that the author now disowns the amendment. It is not to convince them, but to place on record how things are proceeding, that I have to speak. The amendment has been carefully considered by the Legislative Department and as I presume by other departments concerned and the Hon'ble Minister has given it his blessing. In the circumstances, if there is any further argument that is needed, I think, the Hon'ble Minister will give it. I invite him to give us all the arguments that lie behind this simple-looking amendment of Mr. Mesbahuddin Ahmed. With these words, I support the amendment.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, in supporting the amendment which has been moved by my friend Mr. Moholanabish and supported by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad, I would like to point out certain difficulties which the mover of the amendment—

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I just interrupt you, Mr. Mukherjee? Government themselves probably realised the necessity of an amendment like this. That is why they asked the Parliamentary Secretary to put in this amendment. Therefore, is any further speech necessary?

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: What I was going to point why the amendment was moved and why it was accepted by the Government. Therefore, I think, I am entitled to speak on this amendment. Besides, there are European members who are independent members and who may after hearing me change their opinion and as independent members may come with us in the lobby. As a matter of fact, it should not be taken that all the members willingly support the view of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister that a defective Bill like this should come out of this House. And I think the Hon'ble Minister accepts that position and you also, Sir, clarified that position by saying that it is for the members of the House to place their amendments for the consideration of the House. Therefore, I say that the fact that they were Government amendments does not take away the objection. As a matter of fact, the Opposition would have supported this amendment if Government had moved it. We want that the tax which shall be imposed in terms of the Act should be realisable and enforceable when the Bill comes into force as an Act. If there were insuperable difficulties in the way of its realisation after the tax is assessed by a person who must be authorised by the Act, as I shall show presently, I submit there is no reason why the Finance Minister should hurry this Bill through in this way. That is the reason why I am pointing out that insuperable difficulties would be found in enforcing the Act when assessed. What is the purpose of a definition? A definition is to denote the meaning of the officer who is to act under the provisions of this Act. Now, the definition is in these terms: in sub-clause (2) of clause 2, "an Agricultural Income-tax Officer" means "a person appointed to be an Agricultural Income-tax Officer under section 21." Let us now look at section 21 for the definition of this Agricultural Income-tax Officer. In section 21 we do not find any officer appointed as an Agricultural Income-tax Officer. Clauses 21 and 22 deal with agricultural income-tax authorities and an Appellate Tribunal: this means the authorities who are authorised to assess the agricultural income-tax and the Appellate Tribunal whose duty will be to hear appeals against the rate assessed by the officers. Section 21 says: "There shall be the following classes of agricultural income-tax authorities for the purposes of this Act, namely:—

- (a) the Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax, Bengal;
- (b) the Assistant Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax, Bengal;
- (c) Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officers.

Now by this clause Government want to change the definition by suggesting that the Agricultural Income-tax Officers means "Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officers" and that would bring the definition into consonance with the authority that is given in section 21 to a Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officer to assess the tax and to enforce the payment of the tax. If we look to sub-clause (5) of clause 21, there again we shall find the following words "The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officers shall in respect of such areas as the Provincial Government may by notification determine, exercise the powers conferred and perform the duties imposed on them by this Act and by such rules as may be prescribed".

Here in this sub-clause, also, we find mention of the expression "Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officers", but we have got no definition in the definition clause of the "Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officers". Nowhere has this expression been defined and that is why we do not find any officers of the designation of Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officers, as is mentioned in section 21. An objection may, therefore, very well be raised that there being no Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officers as defined in the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, notices and assessment orders passed by such officers are illegal and cannot be enforced. The whole basis of the assessment is taken away and I therefore submit that the amendment really seeks not only to remove a formal defect in the Bill or to improve the drafting of the Bill but it cuts at the root of the whole matter, at the root of assessment, and the whole machinery under this Act for the collection of tax would be jeopardised if the Bill is allowed to be passed in the shape in which it now stands. With these few words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Mr. President, I agree that this purely drafting amendment would secure the verbal consonance of this clause with clause 21. But, Sir, I am satisfied that even without this amendment there will be no difficulty in the administration of this Act. In the circumstances, I have no other alternative but to oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 2 of the Bill in sub-clause (2), for the word "an" in line 2, the words "a Bengal" be substituted.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided: The Ayes being 17 and the Noes being 27, the amendment is negatived.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Sir, may I move the amendment standing in the name of Mr. Biren Roy and Mr. Mesbahuddin Ahmed?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Sir, I would not have moved this amendment in the ordinary circumstances; but my object in moving it is to show that Government oppose their own amendments. This amendment was evidently given notice of by the Parliamentary Secretaries on behalf of Government in order to improve the drafting. There are many glaring defects in the drafting. Sir, we know that inscrutable are the ways of God! So are also the ways of the present Ministry. It is very difficult to understand why the Government should think it fit to oppose an amendment of which notice was given on their behalf by their Parliamentary Secretaries:

Sir, the amendment which I beg to move runs as follows:—

That in clause 2 of the Bill, in sub-clause (4), for the words "the person appointed as Assistant Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax" in lines 1 and 3, the words "a person appointed to be an Assistant Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax, Bengal" be substituted.

Sir, this is a very desirable amendment. It removes a great defect and it is also calculated to improve the drafting. The arguments which have been advanced in connection with amendments Nos. 33, 34 hold good in this case also. I do not think many words are needed to explain the desirability of getting this amendment passed. With these few words, I commend this amendment to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved: that in clause 2 of the Bill, in sub-clause (f), for the words "the person appointed as Assistant Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax" in lines 1 and 3, the words, "a person appointed to be an Assistant Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax, Bengal" be substituted.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I want to say a few words. Under section 21(f) we read as follows:—

"The Assistant Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax, Bengal, shall exercise in respect of the whole of Bengal all the powers provided under section 34 and such powers of the Commissioner under this Act or the rules made thereunder, except the powers provided under section 37, as may be delegated to him by the Commissioner with the approval of the Provincial Government."

Here the Assistant Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax, Bengal, shall exercise all the powers in respect of the whole of Bengal. But in the definition the word "Bengal" is absent after the words "Assistant Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax". So, to be precise, I think the word "Bengal" should be added after the words "Assistant Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax". With these words, I support the amendment moved by my honourable friend Rai Bahadur Keshab Chandra Banerjee.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I also support the amendment and my argument will be just this that this amendment is a child of the Government. It was conceived in the Legislative Department and was made over to the custody of two stalwart members of the House, Mr. Biren Roy and Mr. Mesbahuddin Ahmed. Now, these custodians say "we do not desire to take care of the child any more." The father says "I do not want the child" and when a member picks up the abandoned child, and asks the permission of the Chair to take care of the child and give it a home in the bosom of the Bill, the father says "if we discard the child, there will be no harm." I believe, Sir, that this was the only child that has been discarded. In the circumstances, I do not wish to advance any further argument. The Hon'ble Finance Minister will strengthen the argument that could be advanced on behalf of the amendment. With these words I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I tried to provide some adornment for the child, but I think that it can do without such adornment for the present moment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 2 of the Bill, in sub-clause (f) for the words "the person appointed as Assistant Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax" in lines 1 and 3, the words "a person appointed to be an Assistant Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax, Bengal" be substituted.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 59.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Friday, the 14th July, 1944, at 3 p.m., being the fifty-ninth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Removal of paddy from the Tippera State to the British India.

208. Mr. NUR AHMED (on behalf of Maulvi Mahammad Habibullah Choudhury): Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

- (a) whether he has received any representation from any British subject or subjects of the Feni subdivision, stating that they are prevented by the State officials of the Maharaja of Tippera from cutting their paddy in the Maharaja's State bordering British India and carrying that home in the British possession without permit which is issued only after payment of exorbitant extra tax and up-to-date rent;
- (b) whether the Government have taken any, if so what, action for the removal of the grievances of these tenants; and
- (c) if not, why not?

MINISTER in charge of the HOME DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) Yes, in November last.

(b) Yes, representations were made to the Resident, Eastern States Agency, and the grievance has since been removed.

(c) Does not arise.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: The question is not very clear or rather the language is not very happy. So, I cannot follow what is actually meant. Will the Hon'ble Minister kindly explain the position? What happened and what steps have been taken by the Government?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have answered the question. If the honourable member wants detailed information, he should refer to the questioner.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: The answer is all right but the question is not intelligible. So I request the Hon'ble Minister to kindly explain the position as to what actually happened regarding the cutting of paddy.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, it is a very novel request that I should explain the question. I am answerable for the answer: not for the question.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Neither the question nor the answer is intelligible, that is the difficulty. Therefore, I request the Hon'ble Minister to explain the position so that we may follow the answer.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The difficulty is this that the questioner is responsible for the question and the Hon'ble Minister for the reply. So, if the question is not clear, I do not think the Hon'ble Minister can improve upon it.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: Arising out of (b), will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what was the nature of the representation?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: It was about the grievances of the tenants who are subjects of British India but who have lands in the Tripura State just over the border.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether as a result of the representation the tenants have now got to pay any tax for the removal of paddy from the Tripura State to British India?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As far as I remember, there was an embargo upon the removal of paddy and rice from the Tripura State although the owner belonged to British India and there was I believe an exorbitant tax put on them. We made representation to the Tripura State and an amicable arrangement was arrived at and all the cultivators are now enabled either to bring their paddy to their own homes or sell it at reasonable price in the Tripura State.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is any tax paid for it?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I believe the Tripura State was realising some tax. I do not know it exactly. But very likely the tenants have had to pay some tax.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to enquire and let the House know later on whether the tenants have got to pay any tax?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: It is likely they have to pay some tax. There is no law under which you can stop it so long as it is not an unreasonable tax.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether as a matter of principle any permit is necessary now for removal of paddy grown in Tripura to British India?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I think permit is necessary. But there is no obstruction put on the tenants when they are satisfied that it is the paddy which has been cultivated by the man on his land in the Tripura State.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: The Hon'ble Minister has just stated with regard to the imposition of a tax "provided it is reasonable". Do I understand that the tax levied by the Tripura State is reasonable in connection with the removal of paddy?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I do not know the details of the settlement but the report is that the matter has been amicably settled and the local people have no grievance to make at the present moment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Questions over.

NON-OFFICIAL BILLS.The Advocates Robes Bill, 1944.

The House will now take up Non-official Bills. The first item on the agenda is the Advocates' Robes Bill, 1944, (as passed by the Assembly).

With regard to this Bill, I have just received a communication from the Private Secretary to His Excellency the Governor which runs as follows: "I am desired by His Excellency the Governor to refer to the Bengal Advocates' Robes Bill, 1944, which has been passed by the Bengal Legislative Assembly and sent to the Bengal Legislative Council, with a message asking the concurrence of the Council thereto, and to say that a question has arisen whether the principle of the Bill requires previous sanction of the Governor in his discretion. The question is being considered by His Excellency the Governor, whose decision will be communicated to you in due course. I am, therefore, to request that pending further consideration of the matter by His Excellency, action may be taken as contemplated under rule 6(4) of the Bengal Legislative Council Governor's Rules". So this matter cannot be considered today.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, this matter has been hanging fire since the beginning of the current session of the Council. So far as this House is concerned, this question arose sometime in February last.

Mr. PRESIDENT: This is a separate Bill, Rai Bahadur.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: The Governor's sanction had not been received at the time and the Bill could not be considered.

Mr. PRESIDENT: As I have already stated, it is not that Bill but an altogether separate Bill, as passed by the Assembly.

The Usurious Loans (Bengal Amendment) Bill, 1940.

Mr. NUR AHMED: I beg to move that the Usurious Loans (Bengal Amendment) Bill, 1940, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of—

- (1) The Honourable Nawab Musharruff Hossain, Khan Bahadur, Minister in charge of the Judicial and Legislative Departments,
- (2) Mr. T. B. Nimmo,
- (3) Mr. Birendra Kishore Roy Chowdhury,
- (4) Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta,
- (5) Mr. Haridas Mazumdar,
- (6) Mr. Humayun Kabir,
- (7) Khan Bahadur Abdul Hamid Chowdhury,
- (8) Khan Bahadur M. Abdul Momin, C.I.E.,
- (9) Mr. Yakub H. S. Sattar,
- (10) Khan Sahib Fariduddin Ahmad, and
- (11) the mover,

with instructions to submit their report by the 30th November, 1944, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a quorum shall be four.

Sir, this is a very simple amending Bill which seeks to amend the Usurious Loans Act, 1918. The main provisions of this amending Bill are as follows:—That in section 3 of the said Act, in sub-section (1), for the words beginning with "has reason to believe" and ending with "any of the following powers, namely, may" the following words shall be substituted, namely,—“has reason to believe that the transaction was, as between the parties thereto substantially unfair, the court shall exercise one or more of the following powers, namely:—"; that the explanation to the same sub-section shall be re-numbered as Explanation II and the following shall be inserted as Explanation I, namely:—

"Explanation I.—If the interest is excessive the court shall presume that the transaction was substantially unfair, but such presumption may be rebutted by proof of the special circumstances justifying the rate of interest."

Sir, in the original Act there are conditions precedent on fulfilment of which powers can only be exercised. Even in that case the court is not bound to exercise that power given in section 3. This amending seeks to make it obligatory on the court. If one of these conditions exist, the court is bound to exercise the powers enumerated in the main section. Since the enactment of this Act two acts have been put on the statute book,—one the Bengal Money Lenders' Act, 1933, and the other Bengal Money Lenders' Act, 1940. In both these Acts there are certain exceptions and it may be questioned what is the necessity of an amendment of the Usurious Loans Act, after the enactment of those two Bengal Acts. There are exceptions in these two Acts. In the Act of 1940, certain class of loan transactions have been omitted from the scope of that Act and transactions within the city of Calcutta and some other places have been excluded from the scope of the Act of 1933. So there is necessity for amending the Usurious Loans Act which is an All-India legislation. This Bill was circulated for eliciting public opinion and we have received 74 opinions, mostly from District Judges,—those very persons who have administered this Act and have sufficient experience about the working of this Act. Also District Magistrates and other high personages have supported the provisions of this Bill. For the information of the House, with your permission I want to refer briefly to some of the opinions. The Additional District Magistrate of Bakarganj says, "I have no objection or suggestion to make". The District Magistrate of Birbhum says, "I have the honour to state that in order to give wider power to court to give relief in desirable cases the proposed amendments are necessary". The District Magistrate of Noakhali says, "I have the honour to say that I am in favour of the Bill". The Collector of Dacca says, "the proposed amendments appear reasonable and that we would exclude the words 'in case of loans to agriculturists' occurring in the proviso to section 2(iii) of the Bill". He wants to exclude that, other provisions being approved.

Then the District Judge of Bankura says, "I have the honour to state that the proposed amendments will be of immense benefit to the hard-pressed debtors. The courts, I believe, will welcome such measure." District Magistrate, Bankura, says, "The provisions will be useful". District Judge of Birbhum says, "I am in general agreement with the provisions of the Bill." Additional District Magistrate of Howrah says, "The provisions of the Bill are salutary." Additional District Magistrate of Burdwan says, "I see no objection to the proposed amendments." Additional Collector, 24-Parganas, says, "The amendments proposed seem to be desirable." District Judge of Howrah says, "I am in favour of the proposed amendments." District Magistrate of Khulna says, "The Bill as proposed may be adopted." Chittagong Merchants' Association says, "The Committee of this Association approves the provisions of the said Bill." The District Judge of Nadia says, "As the proposed amendment seeks to bring uniformity in the law relating to interest prevailing in the province, I have no objection." Collector of Dinajpur says, "The amendments proposed appear to be desirable so as to keep it in conformity with the Bengal Money-lenders Act and to give more relief as well in appropriate cases." District Magistrate, Faridpur, says, "The amendment is desirable." District Judge of Mymensingh says, "I have the honour to say that I am in general agreement with the provisions of the Bill except that the proposed proviso at the end of the Bill is too vague" that is with regard to agriculturists' loans Secretary, Bar Association, Midnapore, writes "Both the above amendments are matters of procedure and are meant to relieve the debtor in the matter of onus of proof. In our opinion there is no objection to the proposed amendments." District Judge, Midnapore, says, "I have no objection to the proposed amendment." District Judge of Noakhali says, "I have the honour to state that the proposed amendment will certainly give wider powers to the courts in cutting down interest whenever they think the transaction in question to be unfair. The provisions of the Bill are free from any objection and are considered necessary." District Judge, Murshidabad, says, "The purpose of the Bill is obvious. The proposed amendments are to act more favourably to the debtor and specially the agriculturist debtor than before. There should be no objection to such proposal." District Judge, Rangpur, says, "The Bill aims at granting wider powers to courts to give relief in desirable cases appear to me quite reasonable and I have nothing to say against it." Secretary, Pleaders' Bar Association, Jalpaiguri, writes, "My Association has no objection to the Bill to be passed into Act." Secretary, Indian Merchants' Association, Chittagong, also approves of the provisions of the Bill. District and Sessions Judge, Mymensingh, says, "I have the honour to report that the Subordinate Judges at this station are in agreement that the proposed amendment would give courts greater latitude in coming to the relief of debtors suffering under the burden of inequitable loans."

Sir, I have quoted these opinions in extenso, because there is a motion for circulation. Sir, this Bill was circulated at length to all District Judges and all associations and all persons concerned and their opinions have been received. So I appeal to the Hon'ble Minister in charge to accept this motion; it is a very simple Bill and after amendment of the Money-lenders Act, 1940, it has become necessary to amend this Act also. With these few words, I move my motion.

MR. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Motion moved that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of—

- (1) The Hon'ble Nawab Musharruff Hossain, Khan Bahadur, Minister in charge of the Judicial and Legislative Departments,
- (2) Mr. T. B. Nimmo,
- (3) Mr. Birendra Kishore Roy Chowdhury,
- (4) Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta,
- (5) Mr. Haridas Mazumdar,
- (6) Mr. Humayun Kabir,
- (7) Khan Bahadur Abdul Hamid Chowdhury,
- (8) Khan Bahadur M. Abdul Momin, C.I.E.,
- (9) Mr. Yakub H. S. Sattar,
- (10) Khan Sahib Fariduddin Ahmad, and
- (11) the mover,

with instructions to submit their report by the 30th November, 1944, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a quorum shall be four.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I believe that there is an amendment to this motion tabled by the Government. It would be convenient if that amendment is moved and then the amendment and the original proposition may be discussed together.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, that amendment will not be moved.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: In that case, Sir, I would rise to support—

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Sir, may I request the honourable mover to substitute the name of Mr. Bankim Chandra Datta in my place as a member of the proposed select committee?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will some member propose it?

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: I propose the name of Mr. Bankim Chandra Datta to be substituted in the place of Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta as a member on the proposed Select Committee.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I take it that there is no objection to the name of Mr. Bankim Chandra Datta being substituted in place of Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support the motion. The honourable the mover of this Bill is an indefatigable worker in this respect, and he has spent more time in the cause of theoretical legislation than all of us put together. I have taken part in some controversial legislation, but Mr. Nur Ahmad does not like spectacular display and he is a silent, constructive worker. The reasons put forward by him in support of his motion are convincing. By the passing of the Bengal Money-lenders' Act of which the whole Province should be proud, certain well-known and humane principles have been adopted but, as is well-known, numerous exceptions have found place in the Bill somehow or other. The humane provisions of the Bengal Money-lenders Act do not apply to many loan transactions in these exceptional cases. The debtors have to fall back upon the older Acts, and one of the Acts is attempted to be amended by Mr. Nur Ahmed to bring it as far as possible into line with the Bengal Money-lenders Act. The Bengal Money-lenders Act excepts the Scheduled Banks from its operation which it is needless to discuss in detail. I know of no principle by which these bodies should be excepted. I remember to have moved for the inclusion of Scheduled Banks in the Money-lenders Bill so as to make it applicable to them. There was practically a unanimity in the House for including Scheduled Banks but, for certain party reasons, I had to withdraw the amendment much to my own regret, and much to the regret of my friends as well as of many esteemed opponents. As a matter of fact, Scheduled Banks are in theory entitled to charge any rate, more than the legal rate. For instance, they can charge 30, 40 or even 50 per cent. or more. There is nothing to stop them. There are also others who get through other loopholes. A money-lender, as we understand it according to the English as well as to the Indian ideas, is a professional money-lender. So, all creditors do not come within the Bengal Money-lenders Act. Through this and other loopholes, many unconscionable usurious transactions take place and the courts are helpless in the matter, and cannot give any relief. So this Bill is a very timely measure and there is no point in the Government's amendment regarding its re-circulation. Mr. Nur Ahmed has told us that the Bill has already been circulated and the opinions received are mostly in favour of the Bill. This shows that the principle underlying this amending Bill should be acceptable to the House. In fact, all classes of debtors in Bengal deserve to be treated on the same basis. Although Mr. Nur Ahmed has described the Bill with great modesty as a very simple measure, I think it is a very simple measure only in the sense that that it is small in size but it is of tremendous importance and the motion for Select Committee should be accepted by all sections of the House. With these few words, I support the motion.

The Hon'ble Nawab MUSHARRUFF HOSSAIN, Khan Bahadur: Sir, I was waiting for honourable members opposite to tell us whether they have any objection to the motion. If they have no objection, of course the Bill may then go to the Select Committee and be thrashed out there. I for my own part have no objection to accepting the motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that the Usurious Loans (Bengal Amendment) Bill, 1940, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of—

- (1) The Hon'ble Nawab Musharruff Hossain, Khan Bahadur, Minister in charge of the Judicial and Legislative Departments,
- (2) Mr. T. B. Nimmo,
- (3) Mr. Birendra Kishore Roy Choudhury,
- (4) Mr. Bankim Chandra Datta,
- (5) Mr. Haridas Mazumdar,
- (6) Mr. Humayun Kabir,
- (7) Khan Bahadur Abdul Hamid Chowdhury,
- (8) Khan Bahadur M. Abdul Monin, C.I.E.,
- (9) Khan Sahib Fariduddin Ahmad,
- (10) Mr. Yakub H. S. Sattar, and
- (11) the mover,

with instructions to submit their report by the 30th November, 1944, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a quorum shall be four.

(The motion was agreed to.)

(The motion was agreed to.)

SECRETARY (Mr. S. K. D. Gupta): The Indian Fisheries (Bengal Amendment) Bill, 1944.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Bill is introduced.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, may I have your permission to mention a matter with regard to clause 5 of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill? I have sent in notice of a short-notice amendment (Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: It does not arise). Yes, it arises on account of the position taken by the Hon'ble Minister. My friend does not know.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But today is a non-official day.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I am simply mentioning it so that permission may be given to circulate it for consideration of the merits and the matter may be considered later.

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right, it will be done.

The House stands adjourned till 3 p.m. on Monday next.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 60.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Monday, the 17th July, 1944, at 3 p.m., being the sixtieth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Agricultural income-tax.

207. Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Finance Department be pleased to state whether there are any companies or firms which are deriving agricultural income as contemplated in the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, from land within Bengal but which are operating from—

- (i) any of the 10 British Indian Provinces other than Bengal, individually or collectively;
- (ii) any of the 300 and odd Indian States, individually or collectively;
- (iii) the United Kingdom; and
- (iv) any of His Majesty's Dominions such as Canada, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand and Eire, individually or collectively?

(b) Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state, separately for each area as above, so far as practicable, or collectively, the number of such companies or firms, the amounts of their capital, the estimated amounts of their annual agricultural income and the estimated amounts of their agricultural income-tax leviable under the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944, if enacted?

(c) Are there any companies or firms which are operated from any place in Bengal but which derive any income, in the different areas referred to in part (a) and are liable to pay in those areas any tax corresponding to the proposed tax leviable under the said Bill?

(d) If the answer to part (c) is wholly or in part in the affirmative, will he be pleased to state their number, the amounts of their share capital, the estimated amounts of their income which would correspond to the income which would be taxable under the said Bill, if such income had accrued or had been derived in Bengal?

(e) Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state, as far as practicable, the rates of taxes prevalent in the Provinces, States, the United Kingdom and the Dominions, corresponding to the tax leviable in Bengal under the said Bill?

(f) Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state the estimated amount of the proposed annual reciprocal relief, which would be claimable under clause 49 of the Bill—

- (i) against the Province of Bengal by companies and firms operating from the Provinces, States, the United Kingdom and the Dominions referred to in part (a); and
- (ii) against the said areas outside Bengal under the tax laws, if any, in force in those areas by companies and firms operating from within Bengal?

(g) Is the Bill intended to secure parity between (i) and (ii) in part (f) and is it expected that parity or quantitative reciprocity would be achieved between the relief granted by the Province of Bengal and the relief secured by companies and firms operating from Bengal and working outside the Province?

MINISTER in charge of the FINANCE DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI): (a)(i), (ii), (iv), (b) and (c) Not known.

(a) (iii) Yes.

(d) Does not arise.

(e) A statement showing the rates of taxation in Assam (current year), Bihar (current year) and the United Kingdom (1941-42) is placed in the Library.

There is no agricultural income-tax in any other British Indian Provinces. The rates of taxation in other places mentioned in the question are not known.

(f) No amount of reciprocal relief is claimable under clause 49 of the Bill which does not make any positive provision in this respect, but simply authorises the Provincial Government to make such provision as they may consider necessary as and when required.

(g) No.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Arising out of (f), has any estimate of the reciprocal relief been made?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: No estimate of reciprocal relief has been made, because we do not expect that in the near future there would arise any question of such relief so far as the Bengal Treasury is concerned.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Arising out of (e), rates of taxes in the United Kingdom for the year 1941-42 have been given but is not any later figure available?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I would have liked to give the latest figure, but unfortunately that is not available.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Possibly the later figures are much higher than these figures for 1941-42?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I expect so.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Will the Hon'ble Minister kindly enquire into the matter, because this figure is a matter of importance?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Yes, Sir, I shall be very glad to enquire as, if the rates are much higher, then the reciprocal relief will recede farther.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: With regard to the rates of tax in the United Kingdom, are the figures supplied with reference to the general income-tax or any special type of tax?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: General income-tax under the British Finance Act.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Is there any special agricultural income-tax in the United Kingdom?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: As far as I am aware, there is none.

Mr. W. B. G. LAIDLAW: Is there any tax called Schedule A which relates to tax on agriculture and rents generally?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Schedule A to what?

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: The Income-tax law is divided into several schedules, namely, A, B, C, D, E and F; and Schedule A relates to income from rents.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Yes, Sir, that is correct.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Is there any special tax? Schedule A may relate to agricultural income or some other kind of income; but the question is whether there is any special income-tax known as agricultural income-tax in the United Kingdom?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I don't think so.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if there is any difference in the rates of taxation with regard to income derived from agriculture or otherwise so far as the United Kingdom is concerned?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: As far as I know, no Sir.

Cost of supplying foodstuffs to Government employees at reduced rate.

209. Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Finance Department be pleased to state—

- (a) what is the amount of actual or estimated average loss per month incurred by the Government in supplying foodstuffs to their employees at a reduced rate, including all incidental charges in connection therewith; and
- (b) if the Government propose to consider the advisability of avoiding such loss by discontinuing the present system and helping such employees by—
 - (i) fixing the maximum prices of essential foodstuffs at reasonable figures within the means of such employees, and
 - (ii) granting dearness allowances in cash to all such employees, who are getting rations from the Government?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: (a) In the budget estimates I have taken the loss during 1943-44 on the sale of foodstuffs to Government servants at concession rates as rupees one crore seventy-five lakhs.

The average loss per month including all incidental charges may be taken as Rs. 15 lakhs

(b) No.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether ration at controlled rates are supplied to the Civic Guards?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I don't think that question arises.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether Civic Guards are regarded as Government employees?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: No, Sir.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether pecuniary help in the shape of paying dearness allowance will be more economical from the point of Government than supplying foodstuffs?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, we have as far as possible avoided paying pecuniary dearness allowance with a view to avoiding the effects of inflation.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Does not the Hon'ble Minister think that there is a considerable amount of loss and wastage due to this system of supplying ration?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: No, Sir.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Is it not a fact that the Civic Guards in Calcutta are salaried men?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I don't think that question arises.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if the figure of one crore seventy-five lakhs which is the estimated loss on account of sale of foodstuffs to Government servants during 1943-44 includes the loss incurred on account of supplying foodstuffs to Civic Guards?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I don't think so. I require notice for a more specific answer.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Is it not a fact that some of the Civic Guards are paid Rs. 30 per month per head and kept in barracks like police constables?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I don't think my estimate relates to any loss due to supply of foodstuffs to Civic Guards, as far as I remember.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state what are the reasons for holding that the grant of any pecuniary dearness allowance to Government servants will lead to inflation, whereas purchases by Government themselves will not lead to any such inflationary effect?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Because such purchases are made according to certain fixed rules and they are also part of the general procurement scheme of Government. I therefore think that the inflationary effect is very much less if we give dearness allowance in kind rather than in cash.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister state whether the menial staff, I mean orderlies, chaprassis, peons, etc., attached to the Bengal Secretariat and to the Legislative Council and Assembly Departments are getting any rations at controlled rates?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I want notice.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Are they paid any dearness allowance?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Dearness allowance is paid to different categories of Government servants; but without notice and off hand I am afraid I cannot give a precise answer.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state what is the cost of the establishment charges and the cost of supplying foodstuffs separately?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: As I have stated, taking all expenses into account our loss comes to rupees 15 lakhs a month.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: I wanted the accounts separately.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I am afraid, I am not in a position to oblige my honourable friend.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state if the budget provides for the ration of the Home Guards?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think that question arises.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The next question on today's list is to be answered by the Hon'ble the Home Minister. He is absent; therefore, all his questions should stand over today.

Cost of aerial visits of Ministers.

211. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Finance Department be pleased to state

- (a) if it is a fact that the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Public Health and Local Self-Government Department visited Chittagong by air in the last week of October, 1943, for a few hours;
- (b) if the said visit by the Hon'ble Minister was in his official capacity; if so, what was the object and the total cost of the visit, including his travelling allowance; and
- (c) the total expenditure incurred on account of different aerial visits by the Hon'ble Ministers of the Cabinet to different parts of India on official business with their names and the object for which these visits were undertaken during the period from April, 1943, to January, 1944?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: (a) Yes.

(b) The Hon'ble Minister visited Chittagong in his official capacity. The object of the visit was to see for himself what arrangements had been made, and how many emergency hospitals had been opened for giving medical relief to sick destitutes. The Hon'ble Minister also visited the bombed areas.

The cost to Provincial revenue on account of the transit by air was nothing. The travelling allowance drawn by the Hon'ble Minister on account of road mileage was Rs. 20.

(c) A statement is attached.

Statement referred to in reply to Question No. 211.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, with reference to the answer in (b) to the effect that the cost to the Provincial revenue was nothing, will the Hon'ble Minister please refer to his statement given below? From this it would appear that a sum of Rs. 712-8—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, your question is not very clear. I tried to follow your question but could not. Will you please try to put it clearly?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Arising out of (b), where it is said that the cost to the Provincial revenue on account of the transit by air was nothing, I would like to draw the attention of the Finance Minister to the statement given below that, namely, that the Hon'ble Sir Nazimuddin's tour to Karachi cost Rs. 712-8?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: My answer refers to the question itself, namely, cost of aerial visits of the Hon'ble Ministers. Rs. 712-8 probably includes railway fares and allowances. As regards aerial tours, the cost to the Provincial revenues is nil.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Arising out of (c), will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether the Hon'ble Sir Nazimuddin visited Karachi in his official capacity?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Yes.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: What was the official business?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: In connection with the Provincial Ministers' Conference.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Questions over.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, before you take up the adjournment motions, I would draw your attention to one matter of inconvenience from which all members of this House are suffering. We find that in the bathrooms attached to this place there is no proper arrangement, and towels and soaps very often are not there when we come. They are placed at the option of the authority in charge, whoever that great authority may be I do not know, and they are sometimes taken away within a minute or two after the Council meeting is over. This is very inconvenient and may I request you to kindly take steps in the matter?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, I will look into the matter.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: I would add to what has already been stated by Mr. Humayun Kabir that it is an encroachment of the privilege of the members that soaps and towels and other things which are in the bathrooms are taken away—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have already told you that I shall look into the matter.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Towels and soaps are kept there all right when the Assembly is in session but when the Council is in session we do not find them.

Adjournment Motions.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, there is an adjournment motion standing in my name.

Mr. PRESIDENT: With regard to your adjournment motion, Mr. Mazumdar, I have carefully considered the matter. I find that multiplicity of issues involved in one motion. The motion also requires reference to the proceedings of the other House. So on these grounds, I cannot give my consent to it.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, with regard to my adjournment motion of which I have given notice—

Mr. PRESIDENT: With regard to your motion, Mr. Humayun Kabir, you propose to discuss the "failure of the Government in taking necessary action for the passage of the Bengal Alienation of Agricultural Land (Temporary Provisions) Bill, 1944, by the Bengal Legislative Assembly in time after it had been passed by the Bengal Legislative Council in order to... Now, this Ordinance I believe expired within six weeks from the first meeting of the Legislature. The Legislature met on the 7th February, 1944. So by the 21st March, 1944, the Ordinance expired. But you did not come up with your adjournment motion---

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, before you give your ruling, may I submit one thing?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am not giving my ruling now. I am only stating my views. I think you are very late. The subject-matter of an adjournment motion must be of recent occurrence.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: What you point out is right, but this Bill was passed in this House on the 23rd March and thereafter the Assembly was in session. It could not be an Act till it had been passed by both House and assented to by the Governor. We were under the impression that Government would proceed with the Bill. So long as the Assembly was in Session, there would thus be no occasion for an adjournment motion.

After the session of the Assembly came to an end, we were not sure what would be the attitude of Government. They might hold that there was no further necessity for such legislation or Ordinance. But on Friday last, an official notification was issued by the Government. It stated that in view of the fact that this Bill had not been passed, it has been found necessary to issue an Ordinance in order to keep alive the provisions of the Bill. In other words, Government definitely stated that there was necessity for keeping alive the provisions of this Bill and that it was a necessary thing and they still had not moved it in the Assembly. They also admitted that it was a continuing necessity. While issuing the notification, they pleaded the urgency and importance of the Ordinance. The fact, therefore, is that they have not taken steps to pass this Bill. They have not done so in spite of the fact that the Bill was and is necessary. And these facts came to our knowledge only after the notification was published in the newspapers. It actually came to our notice at about 1 p.m. on that day. I took the earliest opportunity for giving notice of my adjournment motion regarding this.

There is one more point, Sir. It is a matter of urgent and public importance, as has been pointed out by the Hon'ble Minister in his statement---

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is the urgency? The urgency if at all was when the Ordinance had expired or at least when the other House was prorogued. You took no action either when the Ordinance expired or when the other House was prorogued and waited till Government issued a communique.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: We could not move any adjournment motion when the Ordinance expired, because at that time the two Houses of the Legislature were in session and it was within the competence of Government to carry this Bill through if that was their intention---

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is not the point. You cannot deny that there is a hiatus. The Ordinance came to an end by the 21st of March and the other House was prorogued I think on the 23rd June and today is the 17th of July. So, I cannot agree with you---

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, before you give ruling on this point, may I submit to you that only the other day an adjournment motion regarding the destitutes came up and Government got up and said that they did not want to proceed with the Bill---

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, there is no analogy to the present case.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Even now Government admit that this is a matter of urgent public importance.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have given my ruling.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I have an adjournment motion standing in my name.

Mr. PRESIDENT: About this, I would like to hear Government.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, this matter concerns the Chief Minister, but unfortunately he is not present. I have not got the necessary papers with me and so I am not in a position to make any statement.

Mr. PRESIDENT: In that case, I shall allow the honourable member to bring up this matter when the Hon'ble the Chief Minister returns.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Should we wait for the Chief Minister?

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is not a new thing. However, Mr. Das, will you wait till the Chief Minister comes? I shall waive the question of urgency.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: All right, Sir.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, I beg to move my adjournment motion which runs thus—

Mr. PRESIDENT: You need not read it out. Will you kindly state what are your points in support of the motion? The motion is before me.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: The motion stands on certain facts. It has very recently come to our notice that the Government in its Agriculture Department under the signature of the Secretary to the Department has issued a circular to all the District Officers in the Province to the effect that "the Government feels embarrassed by the publication of the price of rice in the Supplement to the Calcutta Gazette and District Officers are informed that where the prices are higher than the controlled price, instead of actual price being given, District Officers should show the controlled price, but add that rice cannot be had at the controlled price". Though the circular is dated the 19th of June, it must have reached the District Officers a week or two later and it has come to the notice of the public quite recently, I say, towards the end of the last week. I don't think it will be contradicted that this circular has been issued. Now, we know that the price of paddy and rice is being published in the Calcutta Gazette for the last 30 or 40 years, i.e., since the introduction of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Now, it is necessary not only for the ordinary administration and for ordinary trade or commerce purpose, but it is also necessary for a very important purpose that is mentioned in the Bengal Tenancy Act. It is a legal obligation on the part of the Government to publish correct prices in the different districts, different subdivisions, towns and villages. We are expected to know the correct prices—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think that will do. May I know the Government point of view, now?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, this circular was issued when it was found out that some of the prices current were higher than the controlled price which was the only legal price. The Government felt that the prices which were not legal were the black market prices. Now the difficulty was whether these prices could be published. If they were published, Government would be recognising the black market prices. It was also felt that although Government was bound to publish current prices according to the Bengal Tenancy Act, they could not publish the prices which were current, because they were illegal prices. Therefore, in order to avoid these difficulties Government thought that a note should be added to the effect that rice cannot be had at the controlled price. If black market prices were mentioned, Government would be recognising those prices although they have fixed certain maximum prices. In order to steer clear of all these difficulties, Government issued instructions that a note should be made saying that rice cannot be had in the open market at the controlled price. That was the idea. The idea was not to place Government in a false position in which Government would certainly be put had they published prices which were higher than the controlled price and which were not legal, and in that view of the case the Government issued the circular. But we are seriously considering the matter, and we shall take the opinion of the Legal Remembrancer and also of the Advocate-General probably. Then, if necessary, we will withdraw the circular.

MR. PRESIDENT: Can the Leader of the House say that Government are really going to withdraw the circular?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: We are taking legal opinion and I am prepared to say that if we are so advised, we will certainly do so. The advice will be taken with reference to the question as to whether we can publish in the Calcutta Gazette a rate for rice which is not the real rate.

MR. HUMAYUN KABIR: If Government have any intention to withdraw the circular, then we need not press for this adjournment motion, provided of course that the Government are serious in this matter.

MR. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: And immediately.

MR. PRESIDENT: I may say that I am inclined to give my consent to the moving of the motion. Are the Government really going to withdraw the circular or not?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I have already made my position clear. There are difficulties in the matter and I have stated those difficulties. But we are prepared to take legal opinion and if we are advised to withdraw the circular, then we are prepared to do so. We do not like to suppress the actual facts; they will always be published.

MR. HUMAYUN KABIR: In that case, the matter may stand over today.

MR. PRESIDENT: I take it that Mr. Moholanabish will not press the motion today.

MR. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Yes, Sir, I do.

MR. PRESIDENT: All right, let me now read the adjournment motion. The motion runs thus: That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the attempt that is being made by Government to deliberately suppress the publication of correct information in the Calcutta Gazette of the current and prevailing market prices of rice in the various places of the different districts in Bengal and to secure untrue and incorrect reports regarding the same by issuing a circular on or about the 19th June, 1944, to all Districts Officers under the signature of the Secretary to the Government of Bengal in the Agricultural Department to the following effect:—

“The Government feels embarrassed by the publication of the price of rice in the Supplement to the Calcutta Gazette and District Officers are informed that where the prices are higher than the controlled prices, instead of actual price being given, District Officers should show the controlled price, but add that ‘rice cannot be had at the controlled price,’ which is causing or likely to cause alarm and panic in the country and demoralise the District Officers”.

Now, is there any objection to it?

(There was no objection.)

I take it, therefore, that this motion is admitted. I will now fix a date—

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, so far as the date is concerned, may I make a submission? It is more or less a technical matter in which the legal position has to be reviewed, because the entire publication of this price-list is by virtue of a provision in the Bengal Tenancy Amendment Act requiring the publication of the prices of foodstuffs in the province in the Gazette—

Mr. PRESIDENT: When can the Government expect that legal opinion?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: There is no question of policy underlying this matter, and therefore the legal opinion can be obtained in 24 hours time.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: I submit, Sir, that the question of policy is indeed involved in this matter. The question now in dispute is as to whether a price that is illegal can be published in the Calcutta Gazette for the purpose of the Bengal Tenancy Amendment Act which requires the prices to be made known and whether the prices offered are legal prices or not. In this view I submit that discussion of this matter may be adjourned to a date which will give the Government sufficient time to get legal opinion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, but when do the Government think that they can expect this legal opinion?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MU'AZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: By Friday week.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, Friday will be too late. It has never been the practice to put off adjournment motions indefinitely. Today is Monday; I suggest that Government try to get legal opinion by next Thursday so that it may be taken up on Friday next.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, it is a non-official day and we object to take up any other business on a non-official day.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, it is a more urgent business than non-official business and there are precedents that when there are more urgent business, it is taken up on a non-official day. I suggest, therefore, that it may be taken up on Friday.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, you have admitted the adjournment motion and the difficulty is about the date. It is for you to decide the date of the discussion of the adjournment motion. All these discussions are therefore out of order.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The date should be so fixed that Government may get legal opinion and I tried to obtain an idea from the Leader of the House.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, it may be taken tomorrow. The opinion can be had in 24 hours—

Mr. PRESIDENT: There are heaps of precedents when adjournment motions were taken up after an interval of two or three days. So it does not matter if discussion takes place tomorrow or on Thursday or on Friday.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Thursday is a holiday.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: There are precedents when adjournment motions were taken up long after they were admitted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is your objection? Why can't you take the legal opinion within 48 hours? I should like to hear Government on this point.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, Friday will suit us: Thursday is a holiday.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: We object to Friday, because it is a non-official day. The motion has been admitted—it is a matter of urgent public importance and if the Government want to get legal opinion they can obtain it within a day.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Then, Sir, it may be taken up on Saturday.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House does not sit on Saturday.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: It may meet on Saturday specially for this question.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Can't you get the legal opinion by Wednesday?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: It would be too early.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If they can't get the opinion by Wednesday, there is no other alternative but to postpone it till Monday next.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, before you declare the date, I submit that it would be extremely difficult for us to have the discussion on Monday—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think it is such a matter that it cannot be postponed till Monday.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: But it would be very inconvenient for us on this side of the House if it is postponed till next week. It is quite possible to get the opinion by Wednesday.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You cannot have it both ways. I fix it for discussion on Monday next.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: If we meet on Thursday, then it may be taken up on Thursday; otherwise on Monday.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have fixed Monday already.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, we find from the Order Paper that there will be meeting on the 20th July, Thursday, but there will be solar eclipse on that day so it will be very difficult for the Hindu members of this House to attend the Council. Therefore may I request that Thursday be declared a holiday? The High Court will not sit on that day.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That question may be considered tomorrow. We shall now take up the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: That in clause 2 of the Bill, sub-clause (8) be omitted.

This sub-clause has created considerable amount of anxiety on the part of some honourable members. The sub-clause defines "Hindu undivided family" to mean a "Hindu undivided family governed by Mitakshara law". In Bengal the majority of permanent Hindu residents or original Hindu residents are not governed by Mitakshara law. On account of this definition, the provisions relating to Hindu undivided families would be inapplicable to the real Hindu residents of Bengal for the purpose of this Bill. Certain very good provisions have been made in the Schedule for Hindu undivided families, but they are inapplicable to Hindu undivided families governed by Dayabhaga system. These considerations are also applicable to Muhammadan families who, as a matter of fact, live in joint mess. There are certain advantages of joint families, but all the advantages reserved to the Hindu undivided family are, by force of this definition, taken away. It seems that if this definition is omitted, the effect would be that the Bill would be applicable to all Hindu joint families, and I have tabled this amendment only to make the provisions applicable to all joint Hindu families. If this amendment is not accepted, the effect would be that separate families would be more advantageous and the result would be that a large number of separations would take place in joint families both in Muhammadan and in Hindu families. So the integrity of joint families in Bengal, which exist from generations, would be disrupted and broken up by virtue of this definition. Thus, this definition would cause the greatest mischief to our society. I do not think of Hindus only but of Muhammadan joint families also. According to the Bill, it would be more advantageous to partition the joint family properties. I submit that this definition should be omitted. By the omission of this definition the position should be the same for all joint families. With these few words, I commend my amendment to the acceptance of the House.

MR. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved that in clause 2 of the Bill, sub-clause (8) be omitted.

MR. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, I beg to support this amendment on the simple ground that this idea of taxing the Hindu undivided family is most objectionable, most inequitable, hard and unjust. In this country, amongst the Hindus there are really two main systems of law by which the Hindus are governed, viz., the Mitakshara and the Dayabhaga. Under the Income-tax Act of the Central Government, this Hindu undivided family is taxed as a unit, and in that Act really no distinction is made between the Mitakshara and the Dayabhaga families. In Mitakshara, until there is partition between several members of the family, you cannot know as to what is the exact share of a particular member of the family, and therefore there may be some justification for treating the family as a unit. But so far as the Dayabhaga family is concerned, you know definitely what share a particular member of the family has. Though he may be living together and enjoying his share of profit together under the management of a karta of the family, he has a right to know what is being done with his money, and he can at once say that he is entitled to so much. But whatever may be the position with regard to the difference in the Mitakshara and the Dayabhaga families, there is absolutely no justification why a Hindu family, whether Mitakshara or Dayabhaga, should pay more tax than any other subject in the land. You will agree with me, Sir, that if we calculate the tax that is paid by a Hindu undivided family under the same rule, we will find that it is much more than what is paid by other members individually in this country. I am not going to refer to the rules obtaining in other countries where a man is allowed deductions on account of his wife, children and other members; but here we have got no such deduction. Apart from that, what is the justification for treating the family as a unit? When you know that you are treating the three brothers of a family together, you divide the tax amongst them separately and you have your share of the tax. There is no precedent in the world, there is no justification for this, and therefore, Sir, I would submit that in the definition you should not bring in a Hindu undivided family as a unit for taxation. It can be easily said and easily demonstrated that the State cannot lose by virtue of the fact that they are living together, and as they are not actually separating so they cannot tax them separately.

You can always find out their actual relationship. If it is a case of agricultural income-tax and if you find that it is a holding, then it must be an estate registered with the Collectorate and from the sherista of the collectorate you can easily find out what the share of the brother is. Similarly, if it is a holding registered with the zemindar, you can easily ascertain as to what is the share of his brother and tax him accordingly. Now, this question of taxation and this sort of taxation will have the effect of disrupting the Hindu family, and brothers will be forced to draw up deeds of partition or to go through all the ceremony of partition in the civil courts with a view to avoid this tax. You are thus forcing the Hindu undivided family to disintegrate. The most objectionable feature of this sort of taxation is the taking of the undivided family as a unit. I should say that there should not be any taxation under the social custom, and the usage which has been going on from time immemorial, and under which the Hindus generally prefer to live in common mess with their brothers that should not be touched; you can secure this tax without taxing undivided families. I, therefore, support this amendment and submit that undivided Hindu families should not be brought within the taxation scheme.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, it is the indeterminability of the individual's share in an undivided family governed by the Mitakshara law that makes it necessary for us to have this definition. In a way it works harshly on the Mitakshara families. I admit that; but there was no escape from it. In the Hindu families every share-holder is to pay his own share of the agricultural income-tax. First of all, I do not see how this arrangement would tend to disintegrate the Hindu undivided families. Speaking not on behalf of Government but giving my own personal opinion in the matter, I may say that I shall never willingly do anything to prevent the disruption of the Hindu joint family. It is no longer a good thing; it is an anachronism and a myth. But, as I said, in this I am not speaking on behalf of Government; I am only answering a remark of Mr. Moholanabish. On the question before the House I may repeat that it is because of the difficulty of determining the share of the individual in Mitakshara families that we have had this definition.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, may I ask a question of the Hon'ble Minister in order to have a certain point elucidated? The Hon'ble Minister has just now stated that ordinary members of the Dagabhaga joint family would be taxed as individuals, but in the Schedule, in paragraph (A) there is provision for individuals and in paragraph (B) there is a provision again for an association of individuals. I want to know the purpose of the two. I should like to know, first of all, the Hon'ble Minister's view-point as to whether it is his intention to tax Hindu families as an association of individuals or purely as individual persons? That is the point I want to be cleared up.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, it is our intention to tax individual members of the Hindu families governed by the Dagabhaga law as individuals.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Should they not be taxed as associations of persons?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: No, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 2 of the Bill, sub-clause (8) be omitted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, will you permit me to move amendment No. 41?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move that in clause 2 of the Bill, for sub-clause (9), the following sub-clause be substituted, namely:—

“(9) ‘person’ includes any company or association or body of individuals, whether incorporated or not, and includes also a Hindu undivided family and the Ruler of an Indian State”.

Sir, this amendment stands in the name of Mr. Biren Roy and Mr. Mesbahuddin Ahmed, that is to say it was a Government amendment, which now I have the privilege to move. If it is accepted, it will remove a great misconception. The definition, as it stands, is defective. The definition given in sub-clause (9) of clause 2, says, “person” includes a Hindu undivided family, a firm, a company and the Ruler of an Indian State. In this amendment Government wanted that this should be changed. The word “firm” has been omitted and the words “association or body of individuals” have been added. In the definition there is no such expression as “association or body of individuals”. I desire to draw the attention of the Hon’ble Finance Minister to (b) of the Schedule in the last page of the Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

In the case of every company, firm or other association of individuals, they will be taxed. In the Schedule we find that every company, firm or other association of individuals will be taxed but in the definition we do not find the use of the word “association of individuals”. So it is absolutely necessary that this definition should be corrected and the word “association” should find a place in the definition. Suppose, a body of individuals takes up a big land in the Sunderbans and makes very good profit out of it but because there is no mention of the association or body of individuals in the definition clause, this body will be exempted even though it makes an income of Rs. 3,500 or more.

With these words, I move my amendment

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 2 of the Bill, for sub-clause (9), the following sub-clause be substituted, namely:

“(9) ‘person’ includes any company or association or body of individuals, whether incorporated or not, and includes also a Hindu undivided family and the Ruler of an Indian State.”

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I rise to support this amendment. The Government themselves felt compelled to give notice of this amendment and have at the last moment seen fit not to move it only because they consider discretion to be the better part of valour. I would draw the attention of the Hon’ble the Finance Minister to one kind of situation which not only may arise in future but has arisen on many occasions in the past and may arise again. There is no reference whatsoever to a partnership in the definition in clause 2. There is no mention of partnership in the Bill as passed by the Assembly. There is no mention either of the fact how the income of individuals who compose a partnership will be taxed. Obviously, it will mean differential rates. If three persons constitute an association and if each person has an income of Rs. 1,500, then the rate for the total income would be quite different from what it would be if the incomes are considered separately. The definition in the Bill-clause is obviously defective. It leaves out of consideration the case of partnership. Take again the case of individuals who in a body undertake agriculture of a big plot of land. I know of a body of people who are cultivating jointly the whole paddy land of a village in the Nadia district and they are making a fairly good profit. Now, under the Agricultural Bill as passed by the Assembly, their income would not be liable to be taxed because they are neither a company nor a firm nor a Hindu undivided family as there are both Hindus and Muhammedans in the Group,—nor they are Rulers of Indian States. Government cannot tax their income even though the income is more than Rs. 3,500 Government recognised these defects as soon as this Bill came out of the Legislative anvil in another place. That is why they gave notice of this amendment but they are not prepared to come forward with this amendment. However much my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad may say that Government are not afraid of public opinion nor are they afraid of facing the Legislature, the Government know better. Government themselves know and every honourable member of this House knows what is preventing Government from moving this amendment. It is their mortal terror of facing the Bengal Legislature and nothing else.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support this amendment. The definition in the Bill-clause is defective. It does not include "association or body of individuals whether incorporated or not". The House will be pleased to note that this fuller expression finds a place in the Schedule but in the body of the Bill only the word "person" is mentioned. If in the definition the word "person" is not made to include "association or body of individuals whether incorporated or not", then it would be extremely doubtful as to whether the provision in the body of the Bill would really apply to them. Thus, the Schedule contains certain classes of persons on the expectation that they will be taxed but the body of the Bill omits it. But the amendment is also a creature of the Government. It is really a child of the Hon'ble Minister. It was conceived in the Legislative Department and it found the light of day in the printed amendment. Now, Sir, this new child is not much better than its predecessor: the one in the Bill-clause. In the Bill-clause there is the expression "firm" which is omitted in the amendment. Now, the amendment has certain defects and advantages. The original Bill has certain defects and advantages. The Bill-clause mentions "firm" which the amendment omits. The amendment contains "association or body of individuals" and omits "firms". Both these are Government drafts, and while trying to support this amendment, I do so with this reservation that there is nothing much to choose between the two.

Then, there is another aspect of the matter. The word "person" has been defined in the Bengal General Clauses Act. It is defined in section 3(32) of that Act. The application of that definition, however, is dependent upon there being nothing repugnant in the subject or context. This will lead to difficulties and uncertainties. In that section of the Bengal General Clauses Act, "person" includes "any company or association or body of individuals whether incorporated or not". This definition excludes the expression "firm" to be found in the Bill-clause, and then we find the expression in the Bill-clause and the expression as defined in the Bengal General Clauses Act and there is an incomplete definition in the amendment proposed by the Government. None of these definitions would be quite satisfactory but, on the whole, I should think that the amendment is slightly better. With this reservation, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I agree that the amendment would make the definition of "person" fuller and more expressive and it would make it more extensive by bringing in other categories mentioned in the General Clauses Act. But I point out that the operative provision is in clause 3 which refers expressly to association or body of individuals, and I do not think that this amendment is absolutely necessary. Therefore, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that in clause 2 of the Bill, for sub-clause (g), the following sub-clause be substituted, namely:—

“(g) ‘person’ includes any company or association or body of individuals, whether incorporated or not, and includes also a Hindu undivided family and the Ruler of an Indian State.”

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. For the amendment—12, against the amendment—25. The amendment is, therefore, negatived.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: May I, with your permission Sir, move amendment No. 43 standing in the name of Mr. Nur Ahmed—a short-notice amendment?

Mr. PRESIDENT: 43 is already disposed of and you cannot move it.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The wordings of the amendment will greatly improve the Bill. So, I would ask your permission to move the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But I am afraid it has been disposed of and I cannot allow you to move it.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, the wordings are so good that I want to keep them on record.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But you cannot do it. Many good things we have to forego in life and this is one of them. You may move your amendment No. 44.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: That in sub-clause (12) of clause 2 of the Bill, for the words "any other association" in line 2, the words "any association" be substituted.

Sir, the Bill-clause stands as follows: "principal officer" used with reference to an Indian State, a company or any other association means", etc. In using the words "any other association" it implies that in the context there is provision for other associations from which this is being distinguished. Neither an Indian State nor a company is an "association". There is therefore no force in the word "other". It is redundant, absolutely inartistic and meaningless. So, this word should be banished from the definition; it is inoperative and impotent. In fact, there is a rule of interpretation of Statutes that every word must be given some meaning. Judge might think that, as the Act has been approved by the Bengal Legislatures the word must have some meaning; and they might be forced to give some meaning to it. In the circumstances, I think the word "other" should be omitted. It would mean economy of expression. On this occasion, I hope, this would evoke some amount of intellectual sympathy from the Hon'ble the Finance Minister.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (12) of clause 2 of the Bill, for the words "any other association" in line 2, the words "any association" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, for the sake of economy of words, I shall only say that with reference to this amendment the word "other" is necessary. I would like the Khan Bahadur to re-read it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in sub-clause (12) of clause 2 of the Bill, for the words "any other Association" in line 2, the words "any association" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: That in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, for the word "include" in line 3, the words "also apply to" be substituted.

Sir, this is a drafting amendment—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Sahib, is any long speech necessary to move this amendment?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, whether long or short, the speech will have the same effect. If it is short, it will suffer from inexplicitness; and if it is long, it will show in some greater detail the merit of the amendment; but as to the result, it is ফলঃ বড়কঃ (the result would be death in any case). The purpose of these speeches is to show and keep on record the work that is done in the House, that is, that bad draftsmanship is being objected to by at least a section of the House. That is the purpose of these amendments. It is not necessary to influence votes.

I submit, Sir, that the words "also apply to", in the amendment, are more accurate from the point of view of English usage. The difficulty with the word "include" is that its nominative "received" is a verb, and it is supposed to include "receipts"—a noun. That is in effect the wording of this sub-clause—the word "received" includes "receipts". This is the anomaly which we have come to—a verb including a noun. In the circumstances, if we change the word "include" and substitute "also apply to", the effect would be that the word "received" shall apply to "receipt by an agent" and so forth and in paragraph (2) "receipts by other persons." It will maintain some symmetry from the grammatical point of view. There are authorities on English usage in this House, namely, Mr. Humayun Kabir and the Hon'ble Minister himself and others on the European Benches. They would be pleased to consider this matter and remove the grammatical anomaly. With these words, I propose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved that in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, for the word "include" in line 3, the words "also apply to" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: The amendment proposed is a drafting amendment and the drafting experts of Government consider that our present draft is satisfactory and in fact it is the correct one. Therefore, I oppose the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I wanted the Hon'ble Minister's own opinion as a great authority on English usage and not a mere repetition of official version.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House that in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, for the word "include" in line 3, the words "also apply to" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: As an alternative to the last amendment, I have the next amendment in the hope that this would evoke greater sympathy from the Hon'ble Minister, namely, his personal sympathy and not the departmental sympathy.

Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, for the word "include" in line 3, the words "be deemed to apply to" be substituted.

This, I think, would be better than the last amendment. This is another version of the last amendment. I hope it would be slightly better received. I really want the Hon'ble Minister's personal opinion for which I have great regard.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, for the word "include" in line 3, the words "be deemed to apply to" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, in the opinion of the Government experts including myself, our words in the Bill are more correct. Therefore, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House that in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, for the word "include" in line 3, the words "be deemed to apply to" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (I) for the words "an agent" in line 1, the words "his agent" be substituted.

Sir, the House will please consider the text of the Bill-clause. In the main part of this sub-clause, namely, item 14, there is a reference to the word "person". The words are "received" used with reference to the receipt of the agricultural income by a person shall include", etc. Then in paragraph (1) "receipt by an agent" is mentioned. I think that when the principal is mentioned earlier in the Bill, the words "his agent" would be more appropriate. If you used the words "an agent", then it would have no reference to the word "person" with which it should be clearly related. After the amendment, the passage will read as follows: "'received' used with reference to the receipt of agricultural income by a person shall include receipt by his agent." That is really what is intended; there is no harm in saying what you obviously mean. With these words; I commend the amendment to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (I) for the words "an agent" in line 1 the words "his agent" be substituted.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Mr. President, Sir, I regret that I have to oppose this amendment of my honourable friend, for in this particular case at any rate, I think that if he had read to the end of the sub-clause; he would have seen that "an" is definitely better drafting. The words "receipt by an agent or servant on behalf of a principal or master respectively" refer to the principal, and the arguments advanced by the Khan Bahadur with regard to the person in the main clause 14, which governs sub-clauses 1 and 2, I think is redundant. Therefore, in this particular case at least I do not complain against the Government's draft.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: On a point of personal explanation, Sir. The position taken by Mr. Humayun Kabir is absolutely clear no doubt; but with regard to the next portion upon which he relied there is an amendment also.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Sahib, this is not a personal explanation; but you are speaking again in support of your amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The reason why I have proposed this amendment—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid that is not a personal explanation.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The reason is this: I have not overlooked the position referred to by my friend, Mr. Humayun Kabir. If he had been careful enough to look to my other amendment, then he would have found that this amendment is absolutely clear.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: May I congratulate my friend Mr. Kabir on his consequential support of Khan Bahadur Naziruddin's amendment?

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: With regard to this amendment I submit that the drafting is really bad and the Khan Bahadur's amendment read with the other additional amendment, I think, would be better, namely, "received" used with reference to the receipt of the agricultural income by a person shall include receipt by an agent or servant on his behalf" and the rest may be omitted. Then it would make a correct sense, at least more correct than what is proposed in the Bill.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I would rather prefer to follow the draftsmanship of my friend Mr. Humayun Kabir to that of Mr. Moholanabish: So I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (1) for the words "an agent" in line 1, the words "his agent" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (1), the words "on behalf of a principal and master respectively" in lines 1 and 2, the words "on his behalf" be substituted.

Sir, this portion which I want to change by my amendment was relied upon by a great authority in this matter, Mr. Humayun Kabir, whom the Hon'ble Finance Minister has also described as such. What I would ask of Mr. Humayun Kabir is to consider the amendment which was lost in the light of this amendment. The amendment which has been lost just now is on the same line and is calculated to serve the same purpose as this. I am grateful to Mr. Nagendra Nath Moholanabish for looking at my amendment from a practical point of view and explaining the real object of the amendment. I would ask Mr. Humayun Kabir to look at this amendment, as I value his opinion, as that of the Hon'ble Finance Minister in a matter like this, and say whether it is necessary or not, and whether it is on the same line with the amendment which has just now been lost. If that amendment had been accepted, it would have made some sense. Half the improvement has been lost, and if this amendment is accepted, it would be the better half, though the worse half is lost. With these words, I beg to propose my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (1) for the words "on behalf of a principal and master respectively" in lines 1 and 2, the words "on his behalf" be substituted.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, I support the amendment. I think this amendment will make the sense clear and better.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I oppose the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, it is very discouraging.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (1), for the words "on behalf of a principal and master respectively" in lines 1 and 2, the words "on his behalf" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (2), for the words "receipts by other persons" in line 1, the words "receipt by any other person" be substituted.

Sir, the House will be pleased to consider the text. It is a mistake on the opposite direction. In one case the word "other" was unnecessarily used and in this case the word "other" has been used. If the honourable members will look at the text of the Bill, they will find that "any other person" would be a more precise and more consonant with the drift of the text. With these words, I propose my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (2), for the words "receipts of other persons" in line 1, the words "receipt by any other person" be substituted.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I think it is definitely a better draft and I have much pleasure in supporting the amendment. Whatever the Hon'ble Finance Minister says about expert advice, he will agree, or if he does not agree openly he knows in his heart of hearts, that it is a better drafting.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, I support this amendment, because without the word "any" before the word "other", it would create a lot of trouble at the time of interpretation.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I admire Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad's perseverance but I am afraid I cannot accept the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (2) for the words "receipts by other persons" in line 1, the words "receipt by any other person" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: That in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (2), for the words "which are deemed to be his receipts under the provisions of this Act" in lines 1 and 2, the words and commas "which, under the provisions of this Act, shall be deemed to have been received by him" be substituted.

Sir, this is also a drafting amendment. The words have been re-arranged to strengthen the context. The words in the Bill look like a school boy's translation of a Bengali passage; but there is a sequence of ideas in Bengali, and there is another kind of sequence when you render it into English. I submit this re-arrangement would look much better and I hope that a Bill from the Council should emerge in the best possible form. In the circumstances, I submit that honourable members, if they calmly consider the matter, would agree with me. I venture to submit that it is an improvement on the wording of the Bill. The present perfect tense is more applicable here. In the circumstances, I would ask the Hon'ble Minister to reply to this amendment. I am a learner and a student and the Hon'ble Minister is a great master. Instead of saying "In the view of the office it is good" or "I do not think it is bad" or "I do not think the amendment is better" and so on, he should reply to my arguments. I have a great respect for his personal opinion and I hope he would deal with the points and if he can give any good reasons, that would be convincing.

With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (2), for the words "which are deemed to be his receipts under the provisions of this Act" in lines 1 and 2, the words and commas "which, under the provisions of this Act, shall be deemed to have been received by him" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I have not read the book my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad was quoting the other day "English: how to read and speak" or something like that. It is my misfortune. I think our drafting is good enough for our purpose and I am not certain that Khan Bahadur's amendment will be better. (Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The reply is not very encouraging.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (2), for the words "which are deemed to be his receipts under the provisions of this Act" in lines 1 and 2, the words and commas "which, under the provisions of this Act, shall be deemed to have been received by him" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (14) of clause (2) of the Bill, in paragraph (2), for the words "receipts of agricultural income by way of adjustment of accounts with any other person" in lines 3 to 5, the following words be substituted, namely:—

"any sums received by him by way of adjustment of accounts with any other persons."

Sir, in effect it is nothing more than re-arrangement of the words which are proposed to be substituted by this amendment. I submit that this is more natural in the sequence of ideas and the re-arrangement of words. With these few words, I propose my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved that in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (2), for the words "receipts of agricultural income by way of adjustment of accounts with any other person" in lines 3 to 5, the following words be substituted, namely:—

"any sums received by him by way of adjustment of accounts with any other persons."

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I do not find any improvement in the suggested amendment. Our drafting is good enough. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that in sub-clause (14) of clause 2 of the Bill, in paragraph (2), for the words "receipts of agricultural income by way of adjustment of accounts with any other person" in lines 3 to 5, the following words be substituted, namely:—

"any sums received by him by way of adjustment of accounts with any other persons."

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 2 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 3.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 3 stand part of the Bill.

Kham Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in Chapter I, above clause 3 of the Bill, the following heading of the chapter be inserted, namely, "Charge of Agricultural Income-tax".

All the other chapters in this Bill have independent headings. This is the only headless chapter in the Bill. The expression which I want to insert here is a heading which has already found place in the marginal note. In the marginal note there is the expression "Charge of Agricultural Income-tax". But, as is well-known, a marginal note can never be referred to for purposes of interpretation of an Act. It is only a help to find out in a cursory manner the contents of the section. With regard to the heading of a chapter, it occupies a more important position. It has a constitutional function to discharge. The heading of a chapter is something like an introduction to the sections of the chapter. It exercises the function of a preamble to an Act. As the preamble governs the whole Act, so the heading of a chapter governs the whole chapter to which it acts as a legislative preface. In case of any doubt as to the meaning of a section in a chapter, the heading of the chapter is a legitimate guide to interpretation. The expression used in the heading can be legitimately referred to for purposes of clearing up any doubt in the sections. The expression "Charge of Agricultural Income-tax" as the heading of the chapter appears in the corresponding section of the Indian Income-tax Act, and the Hon'ble Minister and honourable members will find that this identical heading appears above section 3 of that Act. I doubt not that it is an inadvertent omission and that it is appropriate that the chapter should have a heading. This is absolutely undeniable; there is no other example of a similar omission in any other chapter or in any Act. In these circumstances, this heading is proper and should therefore be inserted.

Now, probably the Hon'ble Minister might say that this headless chapter is serviceable; but I think it cannot be denied that this is clearly an omission on the part of the Government draftsman. The Hon'ble Minister on behalf of Government will perhaps say "I do not think that our draft is defective etc.". This course encourages me to a great extent because it concedes that the amendment is a good one, but for reasons of urgency and not for reasons advanced by Mr. Humayun Kabir, Government cannot accept this amendment. The sympathy with which the Hon'ble Minister has lately been treating our amendments, is really very encouraging. My honourable friend the Finance Minister, whose friendship I enjoy and which I very much value, might say that this headless chapter will be quite serviceable; he might even say—কাঠের বাড়ি হোক, উদ্‌র ধরতে পারলেই হোক, that is to say, a wooden cat will be useful enough if it can catch rats. He will perhaps say that a headless chapter will be quite effective if it can serve our purpose. That may be the line of the Hon'ble Minister's reply. But I hope that he will not, with all the great authority which he exercises and the great authority which attaches to his unique position in this House and the inimitable way he has of dealing with things, he will not try to brush aside this item. I would ask him to kindly make a distinction between the amendments which could be dispensed with and this amendment that cannot be dispensed with except on grounds of extreme State urgency, which I have submitted does not really exist. I think this headless chapter might give some amount of thought to the compiler of Crossword Puzzles in the Illustrated Weekly of India. He will give a clue to a puzzle as "a headless chapter of an Act" and our friends of this House will point to this chapter. This amendment is an amendment of substance and not merely a drafting one and will cure a lacuna in the Bill and I submit it should be accepted as such.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in chapter I, above clause 3 of the Bill, the following heading of the chapter be inserted, namely, "Charge of Agricultural Income-tax."

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, if consistency is a virtue, then I think the Hon'ble Minister will do well to adopt this suggestion contained in the amendment. For, if we look to Chapter II, we shall find a heading there, namely, Computation of agricultural income-tax and allowances. If we look to Chapter III, we will find a similar heading, namely, Liability to assessment in special cases. If we look to Chapter IV, there again we will find a heading, namely, Income-tax authorities and Appellate Tribunal. In the case of Chapter V also, there is a heading, and so on and so forth.

In this view, I do not know why Chapter I should not have a heading.

It should have a heading and that heading is clear, namely "Charge of Agricultural Income-tax". Then again, in the Indian Income-tax Act which they have copied, all the chapters have headings. All these I think will convince the Hon'ble Minister and persuade him to accept the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, if Chapter I lacks a heading it has a very good purpose to serve. A heading would have been artistic; but since we have marginal notes, I do not think that any inconvenience would be caused either to the assesses or to the assessors. I am grateful to my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad for having recognised the matter of great urgency (Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: and not political expediency) yes, and not political expediency that has compelled me to speed up the progress of the Bill through the Legislature. In view of my declaration made at an earlier stage, I would ask my honourable friend not to press this amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: May I ask one question to the Hon'ble Minister? Is it permissible to refer to the marginal notes? Our impression is that it is not at all necessary to have marginal notes. Marginal notes or remarks are absolutely detested by judges in interpreting a section. These notes are meant probably to find out the contents of a section in a rough and ready manner—

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: But the headings are not for legal or altruistic purpose.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I submit, Sir, the heading has a legal purpose.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I would not allow members to argue in this way. Yes, Mr. Moholanabish, you want to say anything?

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: I do not think I need add anything in the circumstances. But it is a settled law that you cannot refer to marginal notes in interpreting a section and it is also a settled fact that sometimes you are bound to refer to headings in order to interpret that chapter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is. That in Chapter I, above clause 3 of the Bill, the following heading of the Chapter be inserted, namely:—

"Charge of Agricultural Income-tax".

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 61.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Tuesday, the 18th July, 1944, at 3 p.m., being the sixty-first day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mr. PRESIDENT: As most of the questions are to be answered by the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy, I would like to know whether he will be able to attend the House today.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Mr. Suhrawardy arrived only at noon today, the train having arrived very late. So he will not be able to be present today. I would, therefore, suggest that the questions do stand over today.

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right. They will be taken up tomorrow.

Prosecution of Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury and Mr. Hari Prasanna Misra.

210. Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

- (a) whether he repeated the assurance while the motion for adjournment, regarding the banning of the Lora Hindu Conference, was being debated upon in the Bengal Legislative Council in this House on the 13th June, 1944, that the people were free to hold meetings anywhere in Bengal;
- (b) whether he can reconcile that statement and generally his statement on civil liberties with the prosecution of Mr. Sanat Kumar Roy Chowdhury, ex-Mayor of Calcutta, and Mr. Hari Prasanna Misra, Secretary, Hindu Students' Federation, for holding public meeting at the Sraddhananda Park in Calcutta, on the 22nd April, 1944, to protest against the Secondary Education Bill, 1944; and
- (c) whether consistent with his statements aforementioned Government propose to instruct the Public Prosecutor to withdraw the prosecution of which the date of hearing is fixed for the 28th June, 1944, in the Court of the Chief Presidency Magistrate; if not, why not?

MINISTER in charge of the HOME DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) Yes.

(b) The prosecution which was instituted against Messrs. S. K. Roy Chowdhury and Hari Prasanna Misra for holding a public meeting on the 22nd April, 1944, at the Sraddhananda Park, has been dropped.

(c) Does not arise.

Mr. LALIT Chandra Das: Was it dropped at the instance of Government?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Yes.

Shooting in the Dacca Jail.

215. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if he is aware that the ex-Chief Minister, Mr. Fazlul Huq, promised to enquire into the shooting in the Dacca Jail;
- (b) if it is a fact that the said enquiry never took place in spite of repeated demand from the Bengal Legislature and the Press;
- (c) if the Government propose to hold an enquiry into the serious affair, regarding the shooting in the Dacca Jail in the interests of public confidence and future security; and
- (d) if not, why not?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have already made it clear that I do not consider myself bound to implement any promises made by my honourable predecessor in office. Nor am I prepared to re-open the matter after such a lapse of time.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please say if the same Government continues in Bengal?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I do not think so.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Am I to understand that the same Government does not continue?

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Hon'ble Minister says so.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please tell us what is the policy of the present Government with regard to enquiring into any incidents of this nature?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The policy of the present Government is to take immediate steps to make an enquiry and satisfy themselves whether there has been any wrong done by any officers of Government; and if they are satisfied that any officers have been in the wrong, action is taken against them.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is purely a hypothetical question, Sir Nazimuddin, and you need not have answered it.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The honourable member has asked me for a statement of our present policy and therefore I did so.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: A policy is involved in this question also, because the Hon'ble Minister says that he is not bound by it—

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is a hypothetical question, and—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Not a hypothetical question in the truest sense of the term, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is so.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state if the assurance was given by Mr. Fazlul Huq in his personal capacity or as the Chief Minister of the province at the time?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I think the records are there and the honourable member can draw his own conclusions therefrom.

Mr. MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state how long Mr. Fazlul Huq was in office after he gave the assurance for an enquiry into the matter?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: So far as I remember, perhaps, just 5 or 6 months.

Mr. MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: During these 5 months what did he do in the matter?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what was the policy of the party which he then represented with regard to the enquiry?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I would again refer the honourable member to my speeches which appeared at the time in the papers.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if it is not a fact that his party demanded this enquiry?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Very strongly and held very strong opinion on the subject.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Since the Hon'ble Minister as Leader of the Opposition at that time demanded—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, this House has nothing to do with any policy of a party. You should put your question to Sir Nazimuddin as a Minister and he too should answer it in his capacity as a Minister.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: The question arises in this way, Sir. The Hon'ble Chief Minister was then Leader of the Opposition and he and the party of which he was a leader vehemently criticised the Government and were anxious to have an enquiry. Today he is head of the Government with the same party. Therefore, the question of party attitude comes in. I would ask him if the statement made by him in the capacity as the Leader of the Opposition still holds good.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid, rules do not contemplate that the statement made by a particular member as leader of a party can form subject-matter of a question.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: All right, Sir.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: In his printed answer the Hon'ble Chief Minister said "Nor am I prepared to reopen the matter after such a lapse of time". What is the date of tabling this question?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have referred to the lapse of time after the incident.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Did not the Hon'ble Minister think that it was his duty to carry out what that party wanted to do about the Dacca shooting when he came and formed the Government?

Mr. PRESIDENT: You can ask him questions only in his capacity as Minister.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether as the Chief Minister he does not think it proper to carry out the view he held as the leader of his own party—now the Government party?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think strictly that is permissible. However, I will allow the Chief Minister to answer it if he so wishes.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I think I have made my position very clear on the subject. I hold the view that the Government in office then was the Government responsible for redressing the wrongs. The Government that comes afterwards cannot rake up all the wrongs that took place at the time of the previous Government and rectify them. So I hold that I am responsible for incidents that take place during my time. The Dacca incident took place before my time.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if it is not the duty of the Government to redress any grievous wrong done in the time of previous Government, immediately after he assumed office?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: When the thing had already been dealt with, I do not think it is right to reopen it.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Was the Hon'ble Minister satisfied that the things were dealt with properly when he assumed office?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Whether it was properly done or improperly done does not arise. If it was improperly done, it was for the Legislature to take action against the then Ministers. This Ministry cannot do anything to set right the wrong done by the previous Government. The Ministry that has come into power cannot be expected to right a wrong done by the previous one.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The Hon'ble the Home Minister has stated that the present Government cannot be held responsible for what has been done in the past in the matter of redressing a wrong. Our question is: why the information asked for has not been given, or in other words why enquiries have not been held?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have got nothing further to add. I have already stated that the then Ministry did not hold any enquiry.

Adjournment motion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, may I mention my adjournment motion regarding the filling up of civilian posts by military personnel in large numbers by this Government? It was decided the other day that this adjournment motion would be brought up when Sir Nazimuddin comes so that he could make a statement.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I shall be very glad to make a statement tomorrow.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I object to his making a statement tomorrow. Under rule 97 of our Procedure Rules you, Sir, can give your consent to an adjournment motion if you think the motion is in order.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, the question of admissibility will have to be considered after I have heard the statement of the Hon'ble Minister. I cannot come to a decision without listening to the Hon'ble Minister.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But, Sir, rule 97 does not make any such provision that after hearing the other party you will come to a decision.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You know very well that the discretion lies with the Chair and it is hardly possible for the Chair to come to a decision without hearing the statement of the Hon'ble Minister. So, I must wait for the statement of the Chief Minister.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, will you kindly allow me to point out certain facts which have been stated in the motion, namely, that Bengal Government has applied to the Central Government asking for a large number of Army officers to fill up civilian posts. I want to know whether it is a fact that an application has really been made to the Central Government for the importation of a large number of Army officers to fill civilian posts.

Mr. PRESIDENT: We decided the other day that this question should not be taken up in the absence of the Chief Minister who alone was in a position to make a statement and thereby to throw some light on this question. Now, he has arrived only today and he says he would make the statement tomorrow.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, will you kindly consider the fact that one day was taken by the Hon'ble the Leader of the House saying that the Chief Minister was not here and that he would make a statement when he comes. Today we have 13 members and tomorrow when the motion will be taken up we may not be 13 in number and the Chief Whip will object to the motion being admitted for discussion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, all these things are irrelevant and unnecessary. I hope you appreciate the point that no decision can be arrived at now. I cannot give my consent or refuse my consent without hearing the facts in possession of the Chief Minister. You have made certain allegations and I must hear what the Government have to say on this matter before I give my consent or refuse it.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, will you—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. When the Chair is addressing the House, no one should rise in his place. The Chief Minister will make a statement tomorrow and the matter must wait till then.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, the Chief Minister has already got enough notice of this question. So if he wants to make a statement, he can do so now.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I returned to Calcutta at 12-30 p.m. today; so how could I possibly know anything about this motion?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, the only fact to be ascertained is: whether any such attempt is being made by the Government of Bengal for the importation of army officers for filling civilian posts in Bengal. It is only on that point that my adjournment motion is based.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, I am not in a position to give my decision without listening to facts: so it is no use discussing the matter just now. If the Chief Minister is in a position to give me the facts just now, then I can also give my decision immediately. But as he says that he returned to Calcutta at noon today, and is not in a position to do so, we must wait till tomorrow.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, may I refer to rule 97 in this connection? It says that a motion for adjournment of the business of the Council for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance may be made with the consent of the President. Therefore, the matter for consideration by you, Sir, is whether what I have stated in my adjournment motion is a definite matter and whether it is a matter of urgent public importance. If it is a definite matter and also a matter of urgent public importance, it may be discussed at once. But if you are to hear the other side first, then you are opening the discussion before my adjournment motion is admitted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, it has been the invariable practice to hear both sides before the Chair gives the decision—it is no new thing that I am suggesting.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Not always so, I submit.

Mr. PRESIDENT: How otherwise is the Chair going to make up its mind on the question of urgency? How can it decide, again, whether it is a matter of definite and urgent public importance or not? You have made certain allegations and assertions, and I must find out the facts from Government: all these are necessary before I can give my decision.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It is the duty of Government—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not propose to discuss my ruling with you.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: In that case, are we to assume that the Chief Minister has no knowledge of the proposal which has been made as regards the filling up of civil appointments by army officers?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Chakraverti, I hope you realise what the Chief Minister has told us, namely, that he came back to Calcutta only a few hours before, that he had no notice of this motion earlier and that he would like to find out the facts before he could make a statement on the matter. I on my part do not want to come to a decision unless I know that the facts mentioned in the motion are authentic. The Chair must get the opportunity to consider all authentic facts before the decision is given.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: One thing, Sir—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am not going to discuss the matter any more, Mr. Das.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I am only pointing out this: it is a matter of which the Hon'ble the Home Minister must have full knowledge, namely, whether an application has been made to the Central Government for army officers. Does the Hon'ble Minister deny this?

Mr. PRESIDENT: You can do so tomorrow when facts will be in our possession.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I know that. But the difficulty is that the Chief Whip of this House will be counting the heads and if we are lesser in number, objection will be raised by him.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, if the Opposition thinks that it is a matter of urgent public importance, then there should be no difficulty in having adequate number of members of your party present in the House to support you.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, on two consecutive days we have got our men ready and we may fail on the third day.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am very sorry, Mr. Das, I cannot discuss the matter with you any longer.

Recess on account of Solar Eclipse.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Sir, now that the atmosphere is cooler, may I enquire whether we are going to meet on Thursday?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I would like to know the views of the Hindu leaders, as it is a Hindu festival.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: We want a holiday on Thursday, Sir. The eclipse starts at 9-45 a.m. and will end by 2 p.m. No food is to be taken three hours before and three hours after the eclipse.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, what is your view?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I would like Thursday to be a holiday.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is not a question of holiday, but of convenience for attending the House. Thursday is not a public holiday.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: The High is closed that day, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, we do not go by the High Court Calendar. But the position is this: if it is inconvenient to the honourable members to attend the meeting of this House on Thursday next on account of the solar eclipse, then, of course, we have got to declare that day a holiday, so far as the business of this House is concerned, for the convenience of the Hindu members. That is the point on which I would like to have the views of the honourable members.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJI: Sir, I drew your attention about this yesterday and you were pleased to say that you would consider this matter today. Hindus have got to observe certain religious rites on the day on which solar eclipse takes place. The eclipse starts at 9-45 a.m. and ends at about 2 o'clock tomorrow. The Hindus cannot, therefore, take their meals before 5 o'clock, as they will start cooking after the eclipse: they will go to the Ganges for bath and perform religious rites. On the next day, Friday, also they will have to observe certain rites after fasting. So it would be difficult for them to attend the Council on Friday also.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I have the opinion of the Leader of the House on this point?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, since the Hindu members want a holiday on Thursday, we can have no objection to it.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, may I suggest that when they want a holiday on Friday also, Friday may also be closed.

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right: then we reassemble on Monday next after tomorrow. Now, the House will resume further discussion on the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBIS: Sir, with your permission, may I move amendment No. 53?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBIS: I beg to move that in clause 3 of the Bill, after the words "financial year" in line 2, the following be inserted, namely:—

"commencing with the financial year which began on the 1st day of April, 1944".

Sir, if we look at the Bill as it is, we find that agricultural income shall be charged in each financial year in accordance with and subject to the provision of this Act. Here in the definition clause, "financial year" is not defined. Therefore, it is necessary to clear up from when and up to when we call it a financial year. Therefore, my amendment is intended to clear up this ambiguity. "For each financial year" without the addition of the words proposed in this amendment does not make it clear as to what is the financial year that is meant in this clause; and it would be extremely difficult for the officers who will be called upon to administer this law to find for themselves what was meant by the authors of this Bill. It may be argued that financial year is a term well known to every body which starts on the 1st April and ends on 31st March. But in a special enactment when we are defining various words and expressions, it is necessary that the words "financial year" should be clearly and specifically described as proposed in this amendment. I think this amendment would not disturb the Hon'ble the Finance Minister as it would not affect the tax on the other hand; it would certainly clarify the ambiguity. I hope the Hon'ble Minister would not feel any difficulty to accept the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 3 of the Bill, after the words "financial year" in line 2, the following be inserted, namely:—

"commencing with the financial year which began on the 1st day of April, 1944."

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support the amendment and in doing so, I shall slightly depart from the line taken by the mover of the amendment. Financial year has been defined in the Bengal General Clauses Act, section 3, sub-section (16). "Financial year" according to that sub-section means "year commencing from the first day of April". It is, therefore, clear that a financial year begins on the 1st day of April and, therefore, ends on the 31st March. But it is necessary to state the year when the computation of income-tax will begin. So far as the commencement of this Act is concerned, it is laid down in clause 1 that "The Act will be deemed to have come into operation from the 1st day of April, 1944." The Act will have been born with retrospective effect, but if we do not accept the amendment, there will be nothing to show that the computation of tax would begin from the 1st April, 1944. It was to avoid this difficulty that this Government amendment was tabled and I think it is a very necessary amendment. If it is not accepted, it may lead to serious trouble.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Mr. President, I should rejoice over the conversion of the honourable members of the Opposition Benches to our view that the operation of the Act should commence on the 1st April, 1944, and was very glad to find the honourable members of the Opposition trying to make it quite clear that the tax will begin to be levied in respect of the financial year beginning on the 1st April, 1944. But I find that such clarification is not necessary and we need not make certainty doubly sure in regard to this Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 3 of the Bill, after the words "financial year" in line 2, the following be inserted, namely:—

"commencing with the financial year which began on the 1st day of April, 1944."

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I would like to move a short-notice amendment with your permission at this stage.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid, I cannot allow more short-notice amendments to be moved.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Of course, it depends entirely on your discretion to give me permission or not; but if even before giving me a hearing as to what my short-notice amendment is, you say that your decision is not to allow short-notice amendments—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I should make clear that I shall discourage short-notice amendments.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Well, Sir, it is one thing to discourage and another thing to say that you will not allow short-notice amendments to be moved. To say that you will not permit any short-notice amendments whatsoever to be moved is a very improper attitude on the part of the President, if I may put it so, and I submit is without any precedent in the history of any legislature in the world. What is your opinion, Sir? Can I mention the short-notice amendment or not? Do you allow me a hearing regarding my short-notice amendment or is it your determination—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, as I said before, I shall discourage short-notice amendments.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Discouraging and rigidly ruling out short-notice amendments are two entirely different things. Perhaps you will hear me now before you give your decision.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, the short-notice amendment that I wanted to move with your permission and for which only verbal notice is necessary provided copies of those amendments have been made available to the members, is the one which was originally proposed to be moved by Mr. Nur Ahmed, namely, No. 55, and on which I feel very strongly. On several occasions, in connection with other Bills also I have attempted to get this principle accepted as a part of all legislative procedure in this province. It relates to the question of fixation of the rates of tax so far as any taxation measure is concerned. Therefore, if you, Sir, will allow me to move the amendment, I would move it. Have I your permission?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I quite see your point, Mr. Kabir. This is no new suggestion that you are making. In fact, you made that suggestion more than once and more than once the House gave its decision on the proposal negating it.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I would make one more attempt, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Every time the House has turned your suggestion down. So I feel no justification in allowing your short-notice amendment and I therefore disallow it.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I gave notice of this amendment, but on careful consideration I find that this amendment is not necessary, as it is already covered by the Bengal General Clauses Act, section 3(37). (Interruptions.) Sir, I find that some gentlemen are making interruptions. They may take particular pleasure in my admission that this amendment is unnecessary. I have always taken the position that I shall propose only those amendments which I consider necessary and I shall not be afraid or ashamed in the least to withdraw any amendment which subsequently appears to be unnecessary. So, in conceding this I was not departing from the honourable traditions of this House. With these words, I seek permission not to move the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You do not move the amendment?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: No, Sir.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I beg to move that the proviso to clause 3 of the Bill be omitted.

Sir, knowing fully well that the debate in this House is quite unreal, I am moving it as if in a dream. Still I shall have to point out as a matter of duty certain things with regard to my amendment.

This amendment seeks to bring the agricultural income of the Central Government or any Provincial Government within the purview of the present Bill. There is absolutely no reason why such agricultural income of the Central Government should be exempted. Bengal has suffered grievously under the Weston Award as compared with other provinces and as in the early period of British rule so in a lesser measure even now this province contributes the major part of the money necessary for administering the Indian Empire. In regard to export duties on jute and its manufactures, the "Capital" in its jubilee number says:—

"These duties have yielded large revenues to the Government of India and in the boom period, it was estimated that, with the revenues from the export duties and income and super-tax paid by jute mill companies, the jute industry provided more than one anna per rupee of the total income of the Government of India".

If we add to this, import duties collected in the Port of Calcutta in respect of goods consumed in the province and at the same time remember that Bengal compared with other provinces uses a very much larger quantity of these things, the conclusion will be irresistible that the Central Government secures from us a disproportionate share of its taxes.

During this war it has been in a large measure running the show with excess profits tax. When the prices of textiles ruled highest, Bengal had to pay roughly seventy crores of rupees per annum on this head and of this huge sum the greater portion went to the Central Exchequer. Why should we then be overzealous in giving all sorts of concessions to the Central Government? Why should our Finance Minister be simply overwhelmed with gratitude for the subvention granted to us? A considerable portion of our sufferings during last year's famine and also now is due to the financial injustice perpetrated by the Centre on this province. A very large number of soldiers is stationed here not to defend Bengal alone but the whole of India. But the brunt of suffering falls on us. Our cows are being slaughtered indiscriminately while the neighbouring province of Bihar is bringing out almost every month more and more rigorous measures preventing cow-slaughter. If cattle had to be slaughtered for the military, the required number should be taken from all provinces on population basis—

MR. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, you are deviating from the amendment before the House.

MR. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I am showing, Sir, by argument that the Central Government should not be exempted from this tax. The same is the case with regard to vegetables. On account of restrictions on railway traffic, vegetables cannot come in large quantities from outside the province and the result is that the military with their long purses, specially the Americans whose privates earn Rs. 5 per diem besides food, can become the highest bidders and buy up the greater part of supply. While a weak-kneed Government cannot make a just representation of its case to the Centre, it comes before us with the proposal of exempting the Centre. We should impose this tax to record our protest against the unreasonable treatment meted out to us, if not for anything else. Why should the agricultural income of the Provincial Governments be exempted? Though in our case it will be a case of book adjustment finally, still collections should be made and shown separately.

The Central Government charges all its different departments for postage stamps though the expenses go to a common pool. The income of Bengal Government for its own lands as shown in the last budget is given below and calculated on the present rate a very large figure of agricultural income will be forthcoming. I am giving the last Budget Estimate for 1944-45—

	Rs.
Collection from estates leased to farmers in Chittagong Hill Tracts	1,60,000
Collection from estates leased to farmers in other districts	10,00,000
Collection from estates held direct by Government in Chittagong Hill Tracts
Collection from estates held direct by Government in other districts	73,00,000
Miscellaneous receipts in other districts
Miscellaneous receipts in Chittagong Hill Tracts	45,000
Miscellaneous receipts from estates held direct by Government in other districts	7,81,000
Miscellaneous receipts from estates leased to farmers in other districts	11,000
Receipt (including rent of buildings) realised from works	3,000

Total comes to about Rs. 93,00,000. Therefore, we find no reason to exempt the Central Government from the burden of this tax.

With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that the proviso to clause 3 of the Bill be omitted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support the amendment. We have already included the Rulers of Indian States within the purview of this Bill. It was argued earlier that though they have several sovereign or semi-sovereign rights, they would not be exempted from paying the tax. Now, there are three authorities which are within the mischief of this amendment, namely, the Central Government, the Provincial Government and any local authority. The tax will be levied only on one condition that these authorities must earn their income within the confines of Bengal. The Central Government is not debarred from earning agricultural income by buying some tea company shares, or by buying shares of the Midnapore Zemindary Company. With regard to a Provincial Government, there is nothing to debar them from holding lands. So far as any local authority is concerned, it may launch upon an agricultural enterprise and earn some income. On the analogy of the Rulers of Indian States, there are no reasons why there should not be any tax on municipality, district board or local board. If any Provincial Government enters into business of an agricultural nature, they should come within the mischief of the Bill. So, on the principle of inclusion of all persons who derive agricultural income, we have to tax every one whatever may be his position. I support this amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, the Provincial Government cannot tax the revenues of the Central Government. I would refer the honourable members to section 154 of the Government of India Act, 1935. I do not know whether the honourable members would like me to read out that section. It runs as follows:— "Property vested in His Majesty for purposes of the Government of the Federation shall, save in so far as any Federal law may otherwise provide, be exempt from all taxes imposed by or by any authority within a province or Federated State." Then, Sir, no purpose would be served by taxing Provincial Government's own revenues. Thirdly, the agricultural income of a local authority is usually very small; and if we tax those small incomes, Government will probably have to compensate those local bodies in some way, by subventions or grants-in-aid. Therefore, it is better that we exclude the Central Government, the Provincial Government and local bodies from the scope of taxation under the Bill.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I rise on a point of information, Sir? The Hon'ble Minister just now pointed out a section of the Government of India Act showing that the revenues of the Government of India could not be taxed. If that be so, then, why is it that the Central Government has been brought in here in the proviso? It is not necessary; the law prohibits it.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: May I ask—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Let Mr. Das's point of information be answered first.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: We wanted to make it quite clear that we did not want it in the definition.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, Mr. Mahalanobish!

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, the Hon'ble Minister just referred us to section 154 of the Government of India Act, 1935; but may I refer him to section 155 of the Act which says that the exemption is only in respect of federal taxation and not of provincial taxation?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I read out the whole section minus the proviso, namely, that provided that the tax that is already in force shall continue to be in force; otherwise there is a bar to the provinces trying to tax the sources of Central Revenues; that is quite definite.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: One more point requires to be cleared up, Sir. The Hon'ble Minister said that the Bengal Government could not tax the items of Central Revenues. But the purpose of the proviso was to exclude the Government of Bengal or any other Provincial Government: this question has therefore not been replied to.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: There are other Provincial Governments holding agricultural lands and properties in Bengal.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that the proviso to clause 3 of the Bill be omitted.

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. J. W. R. Steven.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The Ayes—16; and the Noes—27. The amendment is, therefore, negatived.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I beg to move: that in the proviso to clause 3 of the Bill, after the words "local authority" in line 3, the words, figures and brackets "or any public institution registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 (Act XXI of 1860), or the Company's Act under any special licence of the Provincial Government" be added.

Sir, the Hon'ble the Finance Minister was very eager to exclude the Central Government, other Provincial Governments and local authorities from the purview of the Bill. Now, I would request him to accept this amendment so that these institutions may be also excluded from the purview of the Bill. This amendment seeks to exempt public bodies carrying on agriculture neither for profit nor for charity but for educative work. An instance may be given. The National Council of Education in Bengal started a large agricultural farm at Jadavpur. It has since been occupied by the military. If it were not so, the farm would bring a good agricultural income and in that case the Finance Minister would take out a slice. My humble self started a kitchen garden on a fairly large plot of land at Narayanpur Colony for the training of school boys. Unless this exemption is granted, all public-spirited attempts at improving agriculture in this predominantly agricultural province will be stopped. I know the Finance Minister will not accept this amendment but I would request him to exclude these institutions which are registered.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in the proviso to clause 3 of the Bill, after the words "local authority" in line 3, the words, figures and brackets "or any public institution registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 (Act XXI of 1860), or the Company's Act under any special licence of the Provincial Government" be added.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I see absolutely no reason why these registered institutions which derive income from agriculture should be exempted. This matter was also considered in another place as the honourable members are perhaps aware. (Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMED: We are not permitted to be aware of what passed in the other House.) But as this Bill has come from the other House reference to the proceedings of that House is not entirely irrelevant. The amendment is unsound and the reasons given by the honourable mover are unconvincing.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABIS: On a point of information, Sir. I would like to know whether the Calcutta University or the Dacca University has got agricultural property; and if so, whether the income derived from that property will be excluded?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: As the Bill stands, the Universities would not be exempted if they have assessable incomes.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABIS: Would it not be proper to exclude them?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: No, Sir.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: One more point, Sir. There are charitable institutions and institutions of learned bodies registered under the Societies Registration Act. These charitable and learned bodies are really bodies which benefit mankind; should they not be exempted from this tax?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: How does this question arise in connection with this amendment?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I am afraid the honourable member has not read the Bill well: religious trusts have been exempted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: The next amendment is of the same nature as that moved by my friend, Mr. Haridas Majumdar. Since that one was voted down by the House, I am not moving it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I was just going to point that out.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: I beg to move that in clause 3 of the Bill, a further proviso be added, namely:—

"Provided further that twenty-five per cent. of the agricultural income-tax so charged under section 3 be earmarked in each financial year for the purpose of expenditure towards the improvement of agriculture".

Sir, amendment after amendment has been moved by my honourable friends to my right and to my left with the object of applying the income derived from the agricultural income-tax to the improvement of agriculture, but it appears that the Hon'ble Finance Minister is opposed to any suggestion for improving the Bill that may emanate from this side of the House. The matter does not rest there, Sir. He has also declared an open war by his public pronouncement that all the 497 amendments will receive the same treatment in his hands. So, Sir, what is the good of his occupying a seat on the Treasury Bench? If a gramophone is placed in his place, I hope the result will not be different. The conduct of the Hon'ble Mr. Tulsi Chandra Goswami clearly demonstrates that he has been so well tied by Sir Nazimuddin to the machinery of the Government that he is moving round it all right without any grudge whatsoever. On the one hand, he has no independence, no free hand in the matter, and on the other how can he dare face the Legislative Assembly? The plea of subvention is merely an eye-wash as has been clearly proved by the statement—

Khan Bahadur ABDUL HAMID CHOWDHURY: On a point of order, Sir. May I refer you to amendments Nos. 15, 17 and 17A? The House has already decided on the subject-matter of this amendment which has just now been moved by Mr. Amulyadhane Roy.

MR. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Sahib, there is a slight difference between these amendments; the former batches wanted total receipts to be ear-marked for agriculture, whereas the present one asks only for 25 per cent. of the tax.

MR. AMULYADHANE ROY: I am grateful, Sir, for your observations.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL HAMID CHOWDHURY: If the House has decided that the entire portion, it should not be spent for the purpose of agricultural improvement, I think the question about a portion of it going for the improvement of agriculture does not arise.

MR. PRESIDENT: The previous amendment wanted that the revenue derived from the agricultural income-tax should be solely devoted to agricultural improvement and that was not accepted. But the present amendment wants that 25 per cent. of the income be devoted to agricultural income. So it is somewhat different.

MR. AMULYADHANE ROY: Thank you, Sir, for your kind ruling. The Deputy President tried to come to the rescue of the Hon'ble Finance Minister, but I am sorry his wisdom has come late.

Now, Sir, coming to the amendment itself, I must humbly submit that here is a definite and most reasonable proposal for ear-marking 25 per cent. of the agricultural income for the improvement of agriculture. But it must be opposed because you have no majority in the Lower House. You have got no provision in the Bill for applying the income from this tax for the betterment of agriculture. Therefore, you must accept this amendment irrespective of whether you remain or cease to exercise your constitutional right of sitting on the other side. You must set apart at least a certain percentage of the agricultural income for the improvement of agriculture as has been recommended by the Floud Commission. Bengal is no longer suffering from the injustice done by the Meston Award. She is now getting two-thirds of the jute Export duty and a share of the income-tax; and in view of all these circumstances, why do you want to spend all the proceeds of the agricultural income-tax for administrative requirements? A portion of the tax must be utilised for the source from which the income is derived, as imposition of taxation cannot be justified without any corresponding benefit to the people. With these words, I move my amendment.

MR. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 3 of the Bill a further proviso be added, namely:—

“Provided further that twenty-five per cent. of the agricultural income-tax so charged under section 3 be earmarked in each financial year for the purpose of expenditure towards the improvement of agriculture”.

MR. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABIS: Sir, I support this amendment. Though amendment No. 17 and other amendments by which it was ought to be provided that the entire income of agricultural income-tax will be devoted to the improvement of agriculture were turned down, still it is something to provide 25 per cent. as suggested in the present amendment. One argument we have heard very often from the Hon'ble Finance Minister and that is that it is bad finance to ear-mark any amount for any particular purpose. I do not see how it is bad finance to do so. It has not been backed by any argument by the Hon'ble Minister save and except his bold assertion. It was pointed out during the discussion of a previous amendment that it was clearly laid down by the Flood Commission that when you raise agricultural income-tax, you ought to spend the money for agricultural improvement. Nobody can deny that agriculture in Bengal is in a hopeless condition and that it requires vast improvement. Our leader of the House, the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Agriculture, will also agree with me that agriculture requires improvement and that again requires money and Bengal's finance at present does not provide for sufficient money to improve agriculture. Now, here is an opportunity: why not take it? If you do not utilise the entire money out of this tax for agriculture, why not take 25 per cent. of it? The other day my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Momin argued that though the Flood Commission made a recommendation like that, still the time has changed. But how many years have elapsed since the sitting of the Flood Commission—a few years only perhaps—and my friend cannot reasonably expect that legislation could be made in the twinkling of an eye simultaneously with the issue of the Report of the Commission. This Bill may be said to have been brought closely on the heels of the Flood Commission and it is most unjust and unfair to say that the time has changed and therefore this recommendation of that Commission should not be taken into account. I submit that having regard to the present circumstances in Bengal, having regard to the most deplorable condition of agriculture in Bengal, it is necessary. I say imperative, that Government should set apart certain percentage of the agricultural income-tax for the improvement of agriculture. I, therefore, whole-heartedly support this amendment and I hope that this amendment would be accepted by the Hon'ble Minister though my previous hopes have all been disappointed.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support the amendment. Although I should have liked to ear-mark the whole of the proceeds, still I support the present amendment on a question of principle. As has been just now pointed out by my honourable and learned friend who spoke before me that the honourable Khan Bahadur Momin, who was a distinguished member of the Flood Commission, has made a rather startling disclosure that this recommendation did not really express his own mind.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: On a point of personal explanation, Sir, I am afraid, I am being misquoted and misrepresented by every member on the other side. I never said that this tax should not be ear-marked for agriculture. What I said was that we made recommendation for agricultural tax in the Flood Commission Report only because we found that there was no chance of abolishing the zemindary system. So when we found that we could not get the whole bread, we tried to be satisfied with half a bread. I never said that money was not required. I said that we were getting much more money, in excess of the requirements. In fact, the Hon'ble the Agriculture Minister's pocket is full and he does not know how to spend so much money. Therefore, this ear-marking is not very judicious. Mr. Haridas Mazumdar is very fond of pumpkin and he is growing them in his garden but he should be more reasonable to claim that the income of this tax should be ear-marked for agriculture alone.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, we should be extremely grateful to my honourable friend for this personal explanation. My honourable friend said the other day that he and another of his colleague on the Flood Commission, who is also a member of this House, agreed to the inclusion of this recommendation for reserving the proceeds of agricultural income-tax for improvement of agriculture, for other reasons, and I then and there pointed out the absurdity of incorporating anything in the report which the signatories did not mean. Sir, the other day I was reading a great ruling on the interpretation of Acts and written documents generally, in which it was said that the author of an Act or of a document was a person least fitted to interpret the Act or the document. A document should be held to mean exactly what it says and not what its author wanted it to mean. The test is: what the document plainly means and not what the author meant. Sometimes, in political give-and-take, we have to make concessions. This is what the learned judge in the ruling said. In parliamentary assemblies or in political committees or in similar other places, we have frequently got to give and take and situations do often arise where sound and explicit draftsmanship has got to be sacrificed and ambiguous substitutes accepted for the purpose of reaching an agreement. In doing so, each party is led to think that he has gained his point, although the compromise draft may be obscure or equivocal. In such cases it would not be unnatural for any of the contending parties to attempt to read and interpret the written document through his own personal feelings or preconceived ideas. In the circumstances, it would not be very wise on the part of this House to read the Floud Commission's Report as the Khan Bahadur would want us to read, but try to find out what the report actually means and that I think would be a safer way of ascertaining the mind of the Commission as a whole. As far as the recommendation—that the proceeds of the tax should be ear-marked for agriculture—goes, it was unanimous and great weight attaches to that recommendation. As I said the other day, every tax is unpopular; but in order to give the people some amount of sentimental consolation, the proceeds should be reserved for agriculture, and, if accepted, it would make the tax less unpopular. As I said the other day, greater expenditure on agriculture would enhance agricultural income which will improve tax receipts and these in their turn will go back to improve agriculture and so on. Thus, by action and reaction, the tax will improve agriculture and improved agriculture would enrich the Exchequer. Sir, we have been hearing all the time about food shortage, of the "Grow-more-food" campaign which has been accepted as a national slogan; but the pity is that enough arrangements cannot be made to grow more food for the eternal shortage of funds. And today, we have heard the honourable Khan Bahadur asserting that there is more money in the pocket of the Agriculture Minister than his pocket can hold. If so, Sir, if he has more money in his pockets than he knows how to spend, let us pick holes in his pockets and allow him to drop a few precious coins, so that we may try to solve some other national problems. But to be frank, Sir, the Hon'ble Minister should be able to find work for the money that he has in his hand. Personally speaking, I doubt very much whether the Minister has more money than he can spend. It is really doing him great injustice to say so, for we know very well that he has not enough money. Want of money is the cry everywhere, and, as every honourable member of this House also knows, during his pre-ministership days the Minister for Agriculture was crying himself hoarse that agriculture was being starved for want of money and I would, therefore, request that the assertion, that the Agriculture Minister has more money in his pockets for the improvement of agriculture than he can spend, should not be fastened upon him and it should rather be resented by the Agriculture Minister himself. This small amendment has raised all these important questions. Although the amendment is described as a very modest one, the principle involved is very large and I think the Floud Commission's recommendations should not be lightly set aside. I, therefore, support the amendment whole-heartedly.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Mr. President, I rise to support this amendment. It is of the nature of a compromise between the position which we on this side of the House have taken up and the position which has been represented by the spokesmen of the Government. The Hon'ble Deputy President referred to amendments 15, 16 and 17 which were rejected by this House. If he had cared to refresh his memory, he would have noticed that those amendments wanted that the entire income derived from the agricultural income-tax should be devoted for the purpose of agricultural improvement. That proposition was not conceded to by the party supporting the Government. In other words, it seemed to be the opinion of the members of the Government Party that the entire amount derived from the income of this tax is not necessary for the agricultural budget and need not be ear-marked for that purpose. That was practically what my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Abdul Momin has stated. He said that the situation has changed and today the agricultural budget has more money than the Hon'ble Agriculture Minister knew how to spend. This I should say is the unkindest cut—

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: On a point of order, Sir. I did not say that the agriculture budget has more money than the Agriculture Minister knew how to spend. I said that the Agriculture Minister has more money than he can spend. My friend Mr. Kabir—

MR. PRESIDENT: Order, order. You should not interrupt the honourable member. Go on, Mr. Kabir.

MR. HUMAYUN KABIR: Thank you, Sir. My honourable friend Khan Bahadur Momin has not improved the position by his explanation. He has said that the agricultural budget had more money than the Hon'ble Minister can spend. I said there was more money in the agricultural budget than the Hon'ble Agriculture Minister knew how to spend and he said "more money than he can spend". The difference here is the difference between tweedledum and tweedledee.

Sir, my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Momin repeated more than once on the floor of this House that the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Agriculture has more money than he can spend. In other words, according to Khan Bahadur Momin, the position regarding agriculture is such that there is more money today allotted for the improvement of agriculture than can be spent on agriculture and therefore no additional sum is required to be ear-marked for that purpose. I do not think I have represented the view of the Khan Bahadur unfairly. I have tried to explain his position as clearly as possible. This represents fairly the position taken up by Khan Bahadur Momin and since he is the leader of that party, I take it that this is also the view of the party which he represents. In other words, the party which supports the Government today places on record its deliberate and explicit opinion that according to that party no special amount need be ear-marked for the improvement of agriculture as more money has been allotted in the agriculture budget than the Hon'ble Agriculture Minister can spend.

Now, Sir, I want to take up two aspects of that statement of the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur. On the one hand, I would say that it is a failure of imagination on the part of the Leader of the Coalition Party; on the other, it is an indictment of Government of which he is a supporter. These two are inter-related. Regarding the charge of failure of imagination which I have brought against him, I suggest, Sir, that he is a bold man, or should I say a callous man, who would say that the money allotted for agriculture is more than need be spent by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Agriculture. Who in this House can say that more money need not be given for agricultural improvement, and that the money allotted is already adequate? You know, Sir, from your experience that the condition of agriculture in Bengal is very serious. This seriousness again has different aspects. There is no standardisation of seeds in Bengal. We find some fine specimens of rice, but these are not standardised. Agriculturists cannot go to the market and say: here is a quality of rice for which they can give a guarantee. With regard to other agricultural crops also, there is no standardisation. This applies even with regard to jute which is one of the most important money crop in the world, and the most important money crop of the agriculturists of Bengal. One of the main difficulties of the agriculturist is that he cannot always supply a standardised product. He is, therefore, not able to get from his agricultural produce that price which he could fairly obtain and demand from the world market. My honourable friends on my left, the members of the European Party, know this very well. One of the reasons which they often advance for not giving a better price for our jute is that the product is not standardised. They have to buy all kinds of assorted jute and pay a price which is determined by the lowest type of jute. Therefore, so far as agricultural improvement is concerned, there is the problem of standardisation of products, of jute crop as well as the food crop.

These are all big problems and require money. Researches and experiments are necessary to standardise seeds. By researches and experiments, we shall have to find out what kinds of seeds would flourish best in the conditions which obtain in Bengal. I do not know whether the Leader of the Coalition Party will say that all these things have been done or whether he will say these things need not be done. If one of these two be his position, I will not certainly further argue with him. I will take his case to be a hopeless one where arguments will be entirely useless. I am, however, confident that this is not his position. His position simply is that the present Minister lacks the competence to carry through a constructive programme of this type. I am quite sure that many of my honourable friends, members of the Coalition Party, know that these problems require very careful consideration from the Government and this has not been done.

Then again, there is the problem of cattle which is closely associated with the improvement of agriculture. It is one of the crying shames of our province that we have no standardised type of cattle for agricultural purposes, or for the purpose of supplying milk. Dairies can be included under the department of agriculture in a broad sense. Then there is poultry farming which also requires improvement. There is also the need to improve the nature of the soil. There are also problems of research in regard to different kinds of manure. The natural resources of Bengal need to be replenished. There are other important problems as well and if I had further time I would go into details and state the different categories under which experiments have been carried on in other countries. Those countries ear-mark revenues for certain purposes. Notwithstanding the peremptory obiter dicta of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister, there are amounts which are ear-marked for specific and special purposes.

I fail to understand how in the face of all these facts, the Finance Minister can come up and say that he is against ear-marking or that it is bad finance. One-third of the budget which he has presented is ear-marked for some specific purposes. The moneys charged to the revenue of the province defy his dictum and over them, neither he nor we have control. That is already there, ear-marked for definite purpose. If my honourable friend the Finance Minister really means what he says when he states that no amount should be ear-marked for any purpose whatsoever, all the amounts which are charged to the revenue of Bengal should be taken out of the budget. I do not think it is fair on his part to say that he does not believe in ear-marking money and at the same time bring before this House year after year budgets in which amounts are ear-marked for specific purposes by charging them to the revenue of the province. Amounts are certainly ear-marked and I would like the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to deny this. They are certainly ear-marked for specific purposes. He may say that he is helpless for he is governed by the Government of India Act, these being statutory provisions; but that does not help him. It is precisely our purpose to make statutory provision for agricultural purposes. I may tell him that all the problems I have mentioned require researches and experiments, namely, improvement of seeds, standardisation of crop, breeding of cattle, standardisation of cattle in Bengal, dairy, poultry farm, better type of manure and improvement of agricultural implements.

All these are matters of research, all these are matters of experiment. It is not desirable that there should be a debate year after year on these matters. For these scientific investigations, it has been the experience of practically every country in the world that sums are ear-marked. These amounts are not brought within the turmoil and din of day-to-day parliamentary warfare. Therefore, the Hon'ble Finance Minister would be well-advised to accept an amendment like the present one demanding that only 25 per cent. of the tax is to be devoted to the improvement of agriculture. As I have stated previously, this recommendation is in the nature of a compromise between the point of view of Government and the point of view of the Opposition. The Opposition wanted that the whole amount should be ear-marked for the improvement of agriculture and I make bold to say that even if the whole amount derived from the tax is devoted to the improvement of agriculture, that would not be adequate to meet the suggestions that I have made. Research on the lines that I have suggested, would alone require more money than can be obtained from the entire tax. If this token grant, if this amendment for setting apart only 25 per cent. of the tax is accepted, then and then alone can the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Agriculture or the party which is supporting him say that they really and genuinely want to improve the agriculture of Bengal; otherwise, their professions would be mere tall talk.

One further point, Sir, before I conclude. It is admitted in the census figures and I believe my honourable friend the Leader of the House, the Minister of Agriculture, has more than once stated on the floor of the House that about one-fourth of the total arable land in Bengal is not cultivated, about one-fourth of the total culturable area in Bengal is still not under cultivation. Now, Sir, that is one of the severest indictments possible against this Government, and not only against this Government, but also against the Governments that have gone before. If one-fourth of the total arable area of the province is not under cultivation, it is the duty of the Government which takes charge of the provincial administration to see what is the reason thereof. Why is it that we find that in certain areas agriculture is not a paying profession and therefore the people are receding from agriculture as a profession? Why is it that in certain areas, specially in Central Bengal, there is such deterioration in the quality of the soil that agriculturists are gradually drifting away from agriculture? It is no doubt true that as a result of the artificial boom in agricultural prices during the last two years, agriculture has become a paying proposition just now, but everybody knows that this is only a passing phase. In any case, unless steps are taken now for placing agriculture in Bengal on a footing of permanent improvement, I think the Hon'ble Minister as well as this House will be certainly failing in their duty.

Reference has been made to the Floud Commission and to the fact that the recommendation of the Commission was unanimous that the proceeds of the tax should be devoted to the improvement of agriculture. No satisfactory reply to that has yet been given. If the recommendation of this type of expert body has to be rejected, it should be only on grounds that are unimpeachable. I myself am not a blind follower of the Floud Commission's Report, and, as a matter of fact, I do not see eye to eye with them in some of their recommendations; but I certainly consider it my duty to advance cogent arguments if I do not approve of any of their recommendations. But, here, beyond saying that the situation has changed and that so much money is not now necessary, and that the Agriculture Minister has more money than he knows how to dispose of, which I think is a severe condemnation of the present Government coming as it does from the Leader of the Coalition Party which supports the present Government, no arguments have been offered for rejecting the findings of the Flood Commission. I think Government would be well-advised in accepting a modest amendment like the present one.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I support the amendment of my friend Mr. Amulyadhane Ray. It is a very modest amendment and I hope the Hon'ble Finance Minister will see his way to accept it.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I should like to clear up some misconception that has arisen in the course of this debate. My friend Khan Bahadur Abdul Momin said that the Agriculture Minister had more money than he could spend. As a matter of fact, he knew that over and above our budgeted money the Cabinet had sanctioned one crore of rupees for the purchase of bullocks and cattle for agricultural purposes, but we could not spend it because Bihar put a ban on the exportation of cattle from there and because other provinces refused to supply us with cattle and bullocks. So we are trying our best to meet the situation from the cattle available in our own province; consequently all the money could not be spent. The position is that we are determined to develop agriculture to its utmost capacity and we are determined to spend as much money as may be necessary for any new scheme for the improvement of agriculture. No money will be wanting, whether it is ear-marked or not, for the improvement of agriculture in Bengal. That is the position we have taken up.

As regards the Flood Commission, we stand by the recommendations of the Commission. They have recommended that the money derived from the agricultural income-tax should be spent for the development of agriculture. We are not only determined to spend the entire income from this tax but much more than that. At the most we expect to get Rs. 30 lakhs out of this tax. But last year we spent Rs. 150 lakhs on agriculture and this year we have budgeted for spending Rs. 133 lakhs; but over and above that we have allotted one crore of rupees for the purchase of cattle and bullocks and we have sanctioned more money for other schemes, which will come up before the House in connection with the Supplementary Budget. So the question of ear-marking this small amount does not arise. This is our position. With these words, I oppose this amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, are we to understand that the Hon'ble Minister's view is this: that not only he would appropriate the entire income of the agricultural income-tax but something much more? If so, we expect that he accepts the principle of the amendment—

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: We accept the spirit of the Flood Commission Report.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Mr. President, I have very little to say after what has fallen from the Leader of the House. The House has rejected the principle of ear-marking the proceeds of a particular tax for a particular purpose, and if the ear-marking of the whole of the proceeds of a tax is bad, ear-marking a portion of it is worse.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, the difficulty created by the Hon'ble Minister, Agriculture—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order, I think you have spoken more than once Khan Bahadur—

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, it is an important point—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid, I cannot allow this point to be discussed.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, things should be made more clear otherwise it could not be followed. The Hon'ble Minister for Agriculture has created some amount of difficulty in the way of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. In explaining things we sometimes create confusion and let us take it that this is a case of confusion.

The question before the House is: that in clause 3 of the Bill, a further proviso be added, namely:—

“Provided further that twenty-five per cent. of the agricultural income-tax so charged under section 3 be earmarked in each financial year for the purpose of expenditure towards the improvement of agriculture.”

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The “Ayes”—12; the “Noes”—25. The amendment is, therefore, negatived.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, may I mention a matter in which we are interested?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Not at this stage, Khan Bahadur.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Some of my friends who are deeply interested in the matter—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Not at this stage, Khan Bahadur, but you may mention it at the end of today's business.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The matter will take some few minutes, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Let us proceed with our business and then we shall listen to you. If it takes some time, we will sit some time longer to hear your proposal. I will now put clause 3.

Clause 3.

The question before the House is: that clause 3 stand part of the Bill.
(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 4.

The question is that clause 4 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: With your permission, may I move Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherji's amendment No. 60A?

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, no, that has been disposed of. You can't move it. You move your own amendment.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I beg to move that in clause 4 of the Bill all the words beginning with "including any local cess" in lines 4 and 5 and ending with "respectively" in line 7 be omitted.

Sir, this is a very logical amendment and it does not require any explanation. So I hope the Hon'ble Finance Minister will accept in toto the amendment. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 4 of the Bill, all the words beginning with "including any local cess" in lines 4 and 5 and ending with "respectively" in line 7 be omitted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Mr. President, it has been held by the Patna High Court that "cess" is an agricultural income. Hence it is desirable to bring this provision into the Bill. The provision, however, does not affect the assessee adversely. This clause lays down the manner of calculating the agricultural income without producing any adverse effect on the assessee.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 4 of the Bill, all the words beginning with "including any local cess" in lines 4 and 5, and ending with "respectively" in line 7 be omitted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I beg to move that in clause 4 of the Bill, after sub-clause (a) the following new sub-clauses be inserted, namely:—

"(aa) any receipts of agricultural income which are of a casual and non-recurring nature.

(aaa) any agricultural income which may be received after the commencement of this Act but which accrued, became due or is otherwise related to a period earlier than the previous year to the year ending the 31st March, 1945."

Sir, this is a reasonable amendment which will improve the Bill to a great extent and leave out those incomes which should not be included in the assessable income. So it is reasonable and should be accepted. Although I know it is useless to advance any reasonable argument for the acceptance of a very reasonable amendment, I have moved it in the hope that Hon'ble Finance Minister may be induced to accept it. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 4 of the Bill, after sub-clause (a) the following new sub-clauses be inserted, namely:—

"(aa) any receipts of agricultural income which are of a casual and non-recurring nature.

(aaa) any agricultural income which may be received after the commencement of this Act but which accrued, became due or is otherwise related to a period earlier than the previous year to the year ending the 31st March, 1945."

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANOBISH: Mr. President, Sir, I support this amendment which really seeks to clarify the provision with regard to income that is proposed to be taxed. The first part of this amendment is to exclude any receipts of agricultural income which are of a casual and non-recurring nature. With regard to this, it is well known that this is not regarded as an income. We know that in the Indian Income-tax Act there is a clear provision to exclude any income of that nature. In this Bill the Government have not considered the case from that point and they want to include local cesses, education cesses. But the Hon'ble Minister has just now stated that it would not matter much because under section 6 they have granted some allowance and that the assessee will not be in the least affected by this clause. In this connection, I may bring to the notice of the Hon'ble Minister that in any taxing enactment it should always be carefully stated which are the incomes and which are the receipts which should not be considered as income. If you do not insert a clause like that, it will be an unusual thing and the assessing officer will not be able to exclude them. For example, a man purchases a property in the beginning of the year and then after some time for some reason or other he sells it at the end of the year, not to make a bargain over it, not to make a trade of buying and selling, but for some personal necessity and by this transaction he may have got Rs. 5,000 to Rs. 10,000. Now, unless you exempt all such things, there would be hardship on the part of the assesseees. I, therefore, submit that his amendment is very reasonable and should be accepted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Mr. President, I have carefully considered this amendment and I shall deal with the two parts of the amendment separately. Regarding the first part, in view of the elaborate definition of agricultural income in the Bill, exemption of casual receipts is unnecessary. Any income which is agricultural income should be taxed, whether it is received regularly or at intervals. For example: (1) rents not collected from year to year or there being occasional defaults, (2) land not yielding crop every year it being necessary to keep it fallow at intervals, (3) agricultural income derived from land subject to occasional alluvion or diluvion and so on.

As regards the second part, the Bill seeks to tax agricultural income received and not agricultural income accrued. It would, therefore, be unfair to adopt the accrual basis for purposes of exemption.

For these reasons, I have to oppose the amendment.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Now that this amendment has been disposed of, may I mention the matter, Sir? Besides, it is just 5 o'clock.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Tonight there is a religious festival of the Muhammadans, called Shabe-Meraj. (SOME MEMBERS: Tonight or tomorrow night?)

Mr. PRESIDENT: There seems to be a difference of opinion about the date.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, tonight.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: There is the great authority of the Leader of the House that it is taking place tonight. The ceremony requires us to keep up the whole night. As a holiday has been granted to the members of the Hindu community on account of a Hindu festival, I think Wednesday should be observed as a holiday in the interest of the Muhammadan community.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Sahib, I have no objection to maintain the communal ratio in this matter, but it all depends on your Muslim colleagues here. I would like to hear the views of the Leader of the House.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Of course, there are some Muhammadans in this House who do not want the holiday and it is not our fault. We who belong to a certain section of the Muhammadan community demand that Wednesday should be a holiday on account of our festival.

...

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The Assembly office is closed tomorrow.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: It is a religious ceremony which is observed at night only, Sir, I do not think, therefore, that it is absolutely necessary that we should close tomorrow.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is the Government opposing this? The Leader of the House has not expressed any opinion on the matter.

It is not absolutely necessary he has said, but he does not say whether there should be no sitting tomorrow.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The position is this: we have Government business now before the House; therefore it is for the Government to suggest whether there should be a holiday tomorrow or not.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Yes, Sir, let him say so.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I think Government does not want a holiday.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Then, does he oppose it?

Mr. PRESIDENT: It seems to be so; so I am afraid Khan Bahadur, I cannot help you.

The House stands adjourned till 3 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 3 p.m. on Wednesday, the 19th July, 1944.

Relief work at Purbadhair.

214. Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state whether in the village of Purbadhair and in the Purbadhair union in the district of Tippera (police-station Muradnagar), there has been any relief committee formed? If so, who is the President thereof and how many sittings it had?

(b) Are the Government aware that there are many bhadralog middle class families almost landless and many Muslim and Hindu labouring people who are starving in that union? Do Government propose to cause a list to be prepared of them and send relief to them without further loss of time to prevent deaths from starvation?

(c) Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what steps have been taken to give relief to those people?

(d) Do Government propose to undertake test relief work and engage the labourers in that union?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) A union relief committee with Maulvi Siddiquir Rahaman as Chairman for the Purbadhair union, and a village relief committee with Babu Ramani Mohan Das as President for the village Purbadhair were formed. Each committee had seven sittings.

(b) A list of deserving persons including landless bhadralogs was prepared.

(c) Gruel kitchens were opened in 5 different centres of the union, but they were closed down with the harvesting of paddy, as the attendance of destitutes at the kitchens began to fall off.

(d) No, since labourers were not available for work at the test relief rates of wages.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what are the test relief wages?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Certainly, I am not able to give any definite reply today; but test relief wages were lower than those of agricultural wages.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Have you any idea what the test relief rates are, generally?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: No, Sir; the test relief rates vary.

Shooting in the Dacca Jail.

215. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

(a) if he is aware that the ex-Chief Minister, Mr. Fazlul Huq, promised to enquire into the shooting in the Dacca Jail;

(b) if it is a fact that the said enquiry never took place in spite of repeated demand from the Bengal Legislature and the Press;

(c) if the Government propose to hold an enquiry into the serious affair, regarding the shooting in the Dacca Jail in the interests of public confidence and future security; and

(d) if not, why not?

MINISTER in charge of the HOME DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): I have already made it clear that I do not consider myself bound to implement any promises made by my honourable predecessor in office. Nor am I prepared to re-open the matter after such a lapse of time.

Supply of foodstuffs to the families of seamen and sailors.

216. Mr. NUR AHMED: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state if it is a fact that the Government of India have drawn the special attention of the Government of Bengal to average supplies of foodstuffs and other necessities of life to the family members of seamen and sailors in Bengal, especially in Chittagong?

(b) If so, have the Government of Bengal made any special arrangement in Chittagong for supply of foodstuffs and other necessities of life to the families of seamen and sailors in Chittagong?

(c) If not, why not?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) Yes.

(b) Government issued instructions to District Officers, including District Magistrate, Chittagong, to pay special attention to the needs of families of seamen and to make supplies available to them from the resources at his disposal.

(c) Does not arise.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if special attention has been paid to the needs of the families of seamen and sailors after the issue of the instructions?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I believe so. This time no families of seamen and sailors have been given special cards from which to draw ration.

Export of paddy from Tamluk.

217. Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state if his attention has been drawn to the fact that in the Nandigram police-station, Tamluk subdivision in the Midnapore district, there has been failure of crops in the present year resulting in insufficient supply of foodstuffs in the entire subdivision? If so, will he be pleased to state if he proposes to stop exporting paddy from this subdivision?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: There has been a partial failure of crops in parts of Nandigram police-station. It cannot be said that this partial failure of crops has resulted in an insufficient supply of foodstuffs in the entire subdivision of Tamluk.

Steps, however, have already been taken to stop exporting paddy from the Tamluk subdivision.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state from what date to what date this reply relates?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: The present position is that we have stopped exporting paddy.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is it a fact that it relates to September, 1943?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: No, Sir; the export has been stopped for some time past and it still continues to be so.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: As regards the paddy which is in stock there already, will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether it is enough for the maintenance of the whole subdivision?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: There is a certain amount of paddy within the subdivision, but Government have also stocked paddy. Government will release it and at the same time import more paddy as necessities demand.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state the date from which the export from this area was stopped?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Government exported certain amount at the beginning of the season.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: What month?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I cannot exactly recall at the present moment. I believe we passed orders stopping it some time in the month of March.

Free kitchens in Chittagong.

218. Mr. NUR AHMED: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state if it is a fact that all the free kitchens in Chittagong have been stopped to the great suffering of the poor people?

(b) If not, how many free kitchens and in what thanas have been stopped in Chittagong up to February, 1944, and how many kitchens in 1943, and why?

(c) Is it a fact that rice is still being sold in some thanas, such as, Hathazari, Boalkhali, Patiya, Panchlals and Double-Moorings, etc., at 1½ to 1¾ seers a rupee in the black markets?

(d) If so, what steps have been taken by the Government of Bengal to give alternative relief to the poor and the destitute in those areas where free kitchens have been stopped and also for the supply of rice and other foodstuffs at the controlled rates at Chittagong?

(e) Do the Government propose to introduce full rationing in Panchlals and Double-Moorings thanas of Chittagong? If not, why not?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) No.

(b) 577 free kitchens were stopped up to February, 1944, in the thanas Rouzan, Rangunia, Satkania, Banskhali, Fatikchary, Hathazari, Kotwali, Sitakund, Merassari, Chakaria, Kutubdia, Maiscal, Ramu, Ukhia and Teknaf.

No kitchen was stopped in 1943.

As conditions had improved, kitchens were replaced by work houses to encourage industry and discourage mendicancy.

(c) The price of rice is between Rs. 30—32 per maund.

(d) Rationing is going to be introduced very soon for non-agricultural poor people in these areas. It has started in Patiya and Boalkhali from February, 1944.

(e) Bulk rationing in these areas has been going on since April, 1943.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: With reference to answer (b), will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state how many work-houses have been opened in 1944 in place of the kitchens closed?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I am glad to be able to correct a certain statement which I made some time ago when I said that there were some 16 major work-houses and about 100 or 120 minor work-houses. Actually there are 200 or so work-houses.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state how many of them are major ones and how many minor?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: There are 16 large work-houses and about 200 small work-houses.

High price of rice at Dacca.

219. Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state—

(a) if it is a fact that balam rice is now selling at Rs. 18-8 per maund at Dacca as reported by Associated Press from Dacca, April 9, 1944;

(b) if so, whether this is not against Price Control Order issued by the Government; and

(c) what steps Government intend to take to prevent such acts?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) Yes.

(b) Yes, in regard to wholesale transactions only.

(c) Steps are being taken to place on the market stocks of Government rice which are available in the areas concerned, and it is hoped that this will automatically bring down the price level.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state the price at which rice is selling in Dacca this week?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I do not know, Sir; but I know that the price is on the decline.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that the price of rice yesterday in Dacca was Rs. 16 per maund, which is more than the controlled rate?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I consider that satisfactory for this time of the year.

High price of rice.

220. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state—

(a) if his attention has been drawn to the news appearing in a daily Calcutta paper that rice in Rajyerthana Hat in Madaripur subdivision, at Gossain Hat, Dingamanik, Tongibari Hat, Lauhajang Bandar is being sold at higher price than the controlled prices, in some cases beyond Rs. 25 per maund;

(b) if it is a fact that after the announcement of a reduced new price scale in Bengal, rice has become scarce in many hats of the Province;

(c) what is the price of rice prevailing at this time of the year 1942;

(d) what are the reasons for this abnormal rise in prices in spite of a bumper crop this year; and

(e) what steps the Government propose to take to meet this serious situation?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) According to reports received from local officers, the retail prices of rice have ranged between Rs. 17-2 and Rs. 19 in the Madaripur subdivision and between Rs. 18-12 and Rs. 19-4 in the Munshiganj subdivision during the fortnight, 5th to 19th April, 1944.

(b) Government have no information of any such general scarcity.

(c) The provincial average price of coarse rice during April, 1942, was Rs. 5-5.

(d) Rises in prices have been purely local in character and were due to the activities of speculators or temporary local shortages caused by transport difficulties. The general trend in prices has, however, been downwards.

(e) In deficit areas, Government is placing on the market stocks of Bengal aman rice at Rs. 16-4 retail and stocks of imported rice at even cheaper prices.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Arising out of answer (d), will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what steps the Government have taken to keep down the activities of the speculators or black-marketers in these places?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: At the present moment I do not think that much speculation is going on. A certain amount of trade transactions is taking place and these have told upon the market and have brought down the price. As a matter of fact, although we have flooded the whole of Dacca and Feni with our own rice—with Government rice—all Government rice are at present held in stock and there is very little offtake. It appears, therefore, that there is rice flowing into the market in quantities sufficient for the people—but I am still keeping that rice in stock. As a matter of fact, we are opening up a large number of places for stocking and keeping rice so as to make it available for the people should the present availability fail the people in the general market.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what is the price of rice at present in these areas, as the figures given by him refer to the month of April?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: It is much below that in many cases.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state what is the price of rice at present in these areas, as the figures given by him refer to the month of April?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: It is much below that.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: What is the price of rice in Madaripur?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: It is difficult to say precisely at this time.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please enquire why people are not taking Government rice even where it is available? Is it because of the inferior quality of the rice or because it has deteriorated beyond the suitability of consumption?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Obviously, this matter is always under enquiry and it has been our policy to see that the quality of rice is maintained. There is constant deterioration and therefore constant examination by us. The reason why people are not purchasing our rice is that they are able to purchase at the local market local rice which they appreciate more than foreign rice and at competitive prices, so that if a man can get Barisal Balam rice at the local market at a little higher price, they would prefer that to the Central Provinces or Sind rice.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is it a fact that people were asked to purchase bajra if they wanted to purchase Government rice?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I believe that was only for a short time, a very short time. Such an order was passed for the purpose of stimulating the use of bajra and to make it familiar to the local people but that was for a short time only and the orders have now been withdrawn.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: The order has been withdrawn?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Yes.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister please consider the desirability of releasing the entire Government stock of rice in the district of Dacca for sale at a lower price so that it might not be destroyed or damaged considerably?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I have no desire to put that rice in the general market, Sir.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Does the Hon'ble Minister consider bajra a suitable substitute for rice?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I consider bajra as a first class substitute except for the bhadralogs.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether the rice which is held in stock by Government is not continually deteriorating as a result of such stocking?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: It is bound to deteriorate even under natural causes.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: In that case, will Government consider the advisability of releasing this rice in order to further bring down the price?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: When the time comes, I shall do so; but this is not the time.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Does the Hon'ble Minister personally prefer bajra to rice for his own consumption?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: There is always the difficulty of answering a personal question; but, Sir, sometimes I associate myself with the bhadralog classes. (Laughter.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state the reason why he should not consider the advisability of releasing Government rice in the market to bring down the price to the level of the prices prevailing in all the districts of Bengal, so that they can at least pay some respect to their controlled price?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Because I do not want to depreciate our stocks of rice there. With great difficulty we have built up our stock and we are procuring and building up stocks, for I do not know when there will be a scarcity. If there is shortage of local labour or if from any other cause scarcity appears, then we should have a stock in hand to put on the markets.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state the policy of Government in keeping stocks of rice in the district of Dacca and not releasing the same when rice is not available at controlled prices in the market and thus bring it on a par with them?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I am afraid, I have been misunderstood. If you ask me why I am not placing it at cheaper rate in the market to bring down the price, then as regards that there are Government stocks elsewhere and retailers have rice in their possession and they are available for any one against ration cards which have been distributed to the people.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: That is so far as the rationed area is concerned. But what about the areas where ration system has not been introduced? Do not Government think it proper to release this stock to these areas so that people may have some respect for the control price?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Instructions have been issued to ration the whole of the Dacca district including all the rural areas—particularly in areas affected last year. Arrangements have been made in pursuance of those instructions to ration every part of the rural area of Dacca.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: When do you expect the arrangements to be completed and be in operation?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: They are complete and in operation.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Is it a fact that at Dacca Government supplies of rice are not being obtained by the Mahalla Committees in view of the bad quality of the rice to which notice was drawn of the Hon'ble Minister on many occasions?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: This, Sir, is a very very old story. There was a period of time when Mahalla Committee would not take rice from Government stocks complaining of the bad qualities because they could not sell it to consumers. On the other hand, the poor consumers were anxious to take their stocks which they could not make available to them.

We decided to release some inferior quality rice in the market at a very cheap rate and that rice was put on the market and was welcomed by the consumers. Therefore, where the Mahalla Committees did not take our stocks and make it available to the consumers, we have opened stores where we have made this inferior quality of rice available for the consumers.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Is it not a fact that the rice stocked in the Government godowns is of inferior quality and unfit for human consumption?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: That is not a fact. That is part of a mischievous propaganda.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what is this cheaper rate at which he is placing rice in the market?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: That depends on the quality. For instance, at Dacca we have placed inferior quality rice on the market to be sold at Rs. 8 per maund, and in 7 other places we are placing inferior quality rice at Rs. 11 per maund. But the rice considered to be A grade rice, the price of that we have not reduced.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Has the rice fixed to be sold at Rs. 8 been supplied to the Mahalla Committees for distribution?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I am not certain about that. But the Mahalla Committees non-co-operated with the local authorities at that time. In any event, it was taken up readily by the people of Dacca and the entire stocks disappeared.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Is it not a fact that the Central Relief Committee of Dacca met the Hon'ble Minister and some of the representatives of the Government to complain about the quality of rice and to request them to supply better quality of rice for the consumption of the people?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. Instead of asking for information you are supplying it.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether this rice offered at Rs. 8 a maund has all been taken up?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Yes.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Have the Government accepted the principle of gradation of rice and fixing prices for different qualities of rice?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Yes, long ago. We are sending officers down for the purpose of grading rice and we are trying to sell A grade rice at market rate. Inferior quality rice we are trying to sell at a reduced rate and if we find there is a shortage of supply, we will release our reserve stocks.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will this principle of gradation be applied to the whole of Bengal, as has been done in Dacca?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Yes, to the whole of Bengal.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Has it been applied to Calcutta?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Not yet, Sir. I am trying to put various grades of rice into the Calcutta market, but as the rice sold in Calcutta markets is wholesome and good, the best quality of rice is being sold at a higher rate than in the mufasil.

Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHOUDHURY: May I enquire whether the superior quality of rice has been released in the markets in the Presidency Division?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: So far as I can say offhand, this rice has not been released in the Presidency Division.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Has the question of releasing graded rice in Calcutta been taken up, and if so, at what price?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Orders were issued long ago, but I believe that it will be put into practice within a short time.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: With reference to answer (b), will the Hon'ble Minister in charge be pleased to state whether this Mr. B. N. Guha was offered a contract before this?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice, Sir.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: With regard to answer (c), will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state after how long these tenders were accepted? Was it after 3 weeks?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Within a very short time, a day or two, I suppose, it was not in any case more than a week.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Then it was accepted shortly afterwards?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Yes.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: With regard to answer (d), has the Hon'ble Minister satisfied himself that the rates offered by this contractor were not higher than the prevailing market rate?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I am making enquiries, and have asked the Inspector-General of Prisons to submit a report.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: With reference to answer (d), will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether all the items included in the statement referred to cover the items supplied by this contractor or there were more and different items?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice, Sir.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state how many tenders were received?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice, Sir.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that this Mr. B. N. Guha has been given this contract on behalf of a Parliamentary Secretary?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: This is the first time that I have heard of it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister kindly enquire into the matter?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Certainly, if there is any justification.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is the Hon'ble Minister in a position to state whether the items which were not mentioned in item B of the statement have already been accepted from Mr. B. N. Guha? And if so, at what rates? The Hon'ble Minister has stated about other items. Were those items accepted from Mr. B. N. Guha? And at what rates?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: It is obvious from the reply that the other items were not accepted from Mr. B. N. Guha.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is that obvious? I should think it is not.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I should think so.

Security prisoners Srijut Rabindra Nath Sikdar and Srijut Mohit Mohan Moulik.

222. Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state whether any allowance has been granted to security prisoners Srijut Rabindra Nath Sikdar and Mohit Mohan Moulik who were arrested and detained at Jalpaiguri? Are they still in the Jalpaiguri Jail or have they been transferred elsewhere? If so, where?

(b) Has any allowance been granted to the families of either of them? If so, how much? If not, why not?

(c) Is it a fact that Srijut Rabindra Nath Sikdar fell seriously ill recently and is still in indifferent health?

(d) Have their cases been recently considered with a view to their release? If not, do the Government propose to consider the cases afresh?

(e) Have they been informed of the reasons for their detentions?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (a) Security prisoners are not granted any allowance other than the diet allowance at Rs. 1-8 per diem and this has been allowed to these prisoners. Rabindra Nath Sikdar has recently been transferred to the Presidency Jail and Mohit Mohan Moulik is now detained in the Rajshahi Central Jail.

(b) No allowance has been granted to the family of either of them as no one in the family was dependent on the prisoners.

(c) The security prisoner was suffering from amoebic dysentery with daily passing of mucous in stool, hepatitis and pyorrhœa and the condition of liver and dysentery was, on treatment, improved. He is in indifferent health now.

(d) Yes; but Government are not prepared to release them at present.

(e) Yes.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether it is a fact that when they are detained in jail, do they not get their food from the jail?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Security prisoners do get their food in jails.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Is this sum of Rs 1-8 meant for their daily food? Or is it in addition to the food that they get in jail?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No, no, this sum is the limit, up to which they are allowed to spend on the food.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that nowadays a man cannot have two meals at Rs. 1-8 per diem?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As far as I know, the average Bengali middle class family spends about 12 annas per head per diem.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if he has ascertained who are the members of the families of these detenues?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I do not follow the question.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: The Hon'ble Minister has stated in reply (b) that no allowance have been granted to the families of either of them as no one in the family was dependent on the prisoners. My question is whether he has ascertained the number of the dependants.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As I have stated in the printed reply, no one is dependent on these prisoners.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Has he ascertained whether the members of their families were their dependents or not?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Yes, Sir.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Who are they?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice, Sir.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether Government intend to release these prisoners in the near future, say, before the Pujas?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I can make no statement about it at present.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is it not a fact that examination of the cases of prisoners under detention is being continued with a view to releasing them?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The examination of the case of prisoners and detenues for the purpose of releasing them has not yet been finished.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is it not the time for Government to formulate their policy with a view to releasing these prisoners?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I have examined a considerable number of cases and have passed orders on them.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is it a fact that Government have decided to make only partial releases—say one-third of the total number of prisoners?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No, Sir.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Then, is there no possibility of one-third of the prisoners being released in the near future, say before the Pujas?

(No answer was given.)

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister enlighten us as to when this figure of Rs. 1-8 as diet allowance of security prisoners was fixed?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: During the regime of the present Ministry; I think within three months of their accepting office.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: What was the amount before?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I should think 12 annas.

Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: With reference to (b), the Hon'ble Minister says that no allowance has been granted to the family of either of them as no one in the family was dependent on the prisoners. Will the Hon'ble Minister now state the source of the income of this family?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I want notice.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state if he will consider the desirability of increasing the allowance in case of sick prisoners?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: So far as those prisoners who are ill are concerned, they get whatever is prescribed for them by the doctors irrespective of cost and I have known several security prisoners stating that they get far better food in hospitals than in their own homes.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister state if Rabindra Nath Sikdar had any income when he was arrested?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I have fished out the facts. He was earning Rs. 70 a month before he was arrested; he had no wife or children to maintain; he was, however, helping his widowed sister, a minor son and a daughter with a portion of the income. The financial position of the family being good, it was decided not to grant any family allowance.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: How does the Hon'ble Minister know that the financial position of the family was good?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: From the same source from which I have collected the above information.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: From his statement we find that a portion of the income of the security prisoner went to help certain relations of this detenu and still the Hon'ble Minister says that he had no dependents.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: What is your question?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: My question is this: The Hon'ble Minister says that the detenu has no dependent on his income, and from his statement it also appears that he had an income when he was arrested and he used to help certain minor relations of his family and widowed sister and her sons and daughter. Therefore, the reply is not correct; that is my submission, Sir.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: After the statement just now made by the honourable member, is the Hon'ble the Home Minister prepared to revise his former answer saying that he had no dependent on the date of his arrest?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Widowed sister and children are not considered as dependents, specially if the widowed sister has a father or parents of the husband living.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that widowed sisters and their sons and daughters are considered to be dependents of the brother?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Not if the parents of the husband are alive.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Are the parents of the girl or of the husband of the widow alive?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Obviously it is so.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It is not a matter of "obviously"; are the parents actually alive at this moment?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I want notice so far as the question regarding the parents being alive is concerned.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Was it not the declared policy of the Government of Bengal that when a security prisoner was earning something at the time of his arrest, a family compensation was given in accordance with his earning for the dependants of the prisoner?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Not when the circumstances of the family were good; in the other case a compassionate allowance was given and not an obligatory allowance.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Who according to the Hon'ble Chief Minister are regarded as dependants of a detenu?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: That depends on the circumstances.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: What are the materials on which the Hon'ble Minister says that this particular detenu's circumstances were good?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The condition of the family is good.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: What is the annual income of the family?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: How does the Hon'ble Minister say then that the condition of the family is good?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: That is the report of the local officers.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Have not the local officers reported about the annual income of that family?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: That is not necessary. If the circumstances are good, that is enough for the honourable member's purpose.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: May I enquire what was the earning and income of the detenu Mohit Mohan Moulik at the time of his arrest?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: He was working in the soap factory run by his elder brother. He has no dependant and the family is in good condition.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to enquire what is the annual income of the family even though the report is that his family condition is good?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I do not consider it necessary in view of the local officers' report that the condition of the family is good. If the honourable member makes a counter statement, I will have it checked.

Adjournment Motion.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I have got an adjournment motion.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order, will the Hon'ble Chief Minister make a statement on Mr. Das' adjournment motion?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: It is not a statement but it is a note submitted by the Home Department relating to the subject in question.

Owing to the stoppage of recruitment of the I.C.S. and the I.P. with a view to the appointment of war candidates in the vacancies in these services the Government of India had under consideration the question of strengthening the Civil Service in India on a long-term and All-India basis for the duration of the war and for some years thereafter and they asked the Provincial Government in their Express letter number so and so dated 23rd December, 1943, to furnish statements indicating the extent to which the Secretary of State's services and the provincial services Class 1 required strengthening in view of war requirements and recent developments. It was envisaged in that letter that these requirements would be met from demands to be made on the armed forces. This matter was discussed by His Excellency Sir Thomas Rutherford with me and it was agreed that some military officers could be employed in the Civil Supply Department immediately and also about 30 to 40 I.C.S. and P.C.S. officers from other provinces. Then in our immediate telegram No. 18, dated 24th January, 1944, a formal demand for additional men was made to the Central Government for immediate reinforcement of the Civil Services in Bengal apart from the long-term reinforcement, owing to the strain imposed on all cadres in Bengal by heavy deputations to the Civil Supply Department.

These deputations had rendered the state of the General Administration precarious and the position could not be rectified by recruitment from internal sources since men already trained in administration were required. The demand made was for some military officers together with about 40 civil officers. In reply to this telegram the Government of India in their telegram No. 203/44-Ests., dated 26th January, 1944, offered the services of 5 senior and 6 junior military officers and 40 civil officers from other provinces. Later they offered 6 Emergency Commissioned Officers and 12 military officers with experience of Food Administration in Syria. As against the total offer of 29 military officers and 40 civil officers. Of the military officers, 19 are employed in the Civil Supply Department and 4 on General Administration and miscellaneous work. Of the civil officers 21 are employed under the Civil Supply Department and 17 on General Administration work. This was surely a short-term reinforcement scheme extending for a period of one year for the present, it being understood that arrangements for long-term reinforcements would be completed in the meantime.

In connection with the long-term scheme, Mr. A. J. Dash, C.I.E., I.C.S. (retired), Chairman, Public Service Commission, Bengal, was placed on special duty to investigate the relative urgency and importance of the demands made by the various departments of Government for reinforcements under the scheme. The report submitted by him was discussed in a Cabinet Meeting as a result of which the Chief Secretary's letter No. 1061-A., dated the 15th March, 1944, was issued to the Government of India. Full particulars of the requirements were given in that letter and it was on this basis that the statements required in the Government of India's original Express letter No. 276/43-Ests., dated the 23rd December, 1943, were drawn up and sent to the Government of India. In our statements we asked for 93 officers—75 to fill I.C.S. and senior B.C.S. posts and 18 to fill I.P. posts. In reply to Chief Secretary's letter, dated the 15th March, 1944, the Government of India, Home Department, stated that no further I.C.S. officers could be supplied but that in respect of the loan of military officers, Bengal's demand would receive priority.

An Indian Army Order was promulgated giving the term of appointment of military officers volunteering for the Civil Services. It was proposed to constitute a special cadre for them. They would be posted after training to fill up deficiencies in the various Civil Services.

The selection of volunteers is now taking place and 100 of those volunteers will shortly be deputed to Bengal.

It should be emphasised that all these additional officers from outside the province are required to fill vacancies caused by the expansion of work particularly in the Civil Supplies Department which the existing cadres of the I.C.S., B.C.S., etc., were not designed to meet. The introduction of these reinforcements for the period of the war and a few years after its termination will not adversely affect the normal expectations of promotion of officers in the B.J.C.S. and B.C.S. In fact promotion from the B.C.S. to listed posts has been well above average for the last two years while there is a proposal now that about 50 officers of the B.J.C.S. should be promoted temporarily to the B.C.S. I may also mention that 175 temporary promotions have been made to the B.J.C.S. from the subordinate services and further possibilities of promotion in these services to replace men at the top required for the war time duties would probably be necessary. In so far as this is compatible with the maintenance of an efficient general administration such further promotions will definitely be made by Government in preference to bringing of reinforcement from outside the province. For the present reinforcement actual vacancies exist and simply cannot be filled by officers in the normal cadres of services in Bengal.

Sir, the gist of this statement will show that the demand for officers is so great that in spite of promotion from other services we should be requiring 175 men and proposals for promotion of another 50 men and also of recruitment are under consideration. As far as possible we have got to have at least about another 90 officers from the Military. The Civil Supplies Department have expanded so much and have required so many officers that it is absolutely impossible to meet their demand unless men are brought from outside.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will you, Sir, permit me to submit that the statement does not at all remove the necessity of the adjournment motion which I have tabled. I shall with your permission, Sir, read out the words of the motion—

“That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, viz., the situation arising out of the Government of Bengal applying to the Central Government as revealed in today's papers asking for services of a large number of Army officers to hold civilian posts in the province to the detriment of the claims of the Bengalees to those posts, intensifying at the same time the problem of unemployment in Bengal”.

Sir, what I want to draw your attention to is that as a matter of fact certain arrangements have been made by the Government of Bengal to increase their cadre of officers by importing military officers and other classes of officers from outside without doing anything to solve the problem of shortage locally. It is certainly not the case of the Government of Bengal that their own officers are not qualified to fill the posts, by promotion of course—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. I think the Hon'ble Chief Minister has fully explained the position.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I submit that the statement of the Hon'ble Chief Minister is not satisfactory. It is for you to withhold your consent or allow me to move my adjournment motion.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I should like to add only one word to what has been said by Mr. Das. As I look at the question, two important principles are involved. I do not however wish to go into the merits of those principles, though I shall touch on them briefly.

With regard to the advisability of admitting this motion, which relates primarily to the recruitment of military officers—or rather importation of military officers—I submit that it relates to a principle which Government should consider carefully, as it involves responsibility of a very grave character. The other is with regard to the arrangement regarding provincial distribution of officers, the method of recruitment, the mixture of civilian and military—inside Bengal and outside Bengal—which is of very great importance to the public of Bengal. Perhaps, it would have been a better thing if Government had set apart a day for the discussion of this question, and my own feeling is that we should have a full discussion. No doubt, there may be many things for the Government to place before the House; on the other hand, there are various questions relating to the economic and political implications of the question which can be brought forward by the Opposition. So, if Government are prepared to set apart a day, perhaps Mr. Das may be persuaded to withdraw his present motion. Otherwise, Sir, I would suggest that you should not withhold your consent to the moving of this motion.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: In view of the offer made by Mr. Humayun Kabir, Government would be very glad to arrange a discussion on this matter on any Friday that the Opposition may like. (Cries of "No, not on Fridays" from the Opposition benches.) This adjournment motion can be moved as a special motion next Friday. I think this will be acceptable to the Opposition. Next Friday is a Special Motion Day when this matter can be taken up and discussed. As regards its merits, I may submit that this not a matter, first of all, of any urgency. Secondly, we have been employing military officers for a long time and this is well known to the Opposition (Opposition members: No, we never knew this, we never heard of this). It has been done in the past and I submit that in view of the statement that I have just now made, there is no immediate necessity for discussing this matter. Government are, however, quite prepared to give consent to the discussion of this motion as a special motion which will have priority over all resolutions. We are quite agreeable to discuss this matter next Friday, if the Opposition so likes.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, I think that after the statement made by the Hon'ble Chief Minister the House has no objection if this motion is discussed as a Special Motion. That is the proposal of Mr. Kabir and the Hon'ble Chief Minister accepts that proposal.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I had suggested that if the Government offered one full day perhaps we might agree, but if it is going to encroach on a private member's day—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I am not now talking of the date, but only of discussing this motion as a special one. That is what Professor Kabir has suggested.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: It was only my personal opinion, Sir.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: When you expressed that opinion, I thought it was an opinion expressed on behalf of the Opposition. I did not think for a moment that Professor Kabir could make any statement in a lighthearted manner.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I made it quite seriously when I said so but I said that in that case Mr. Das might be persuaded to accept the suggestion. These are the exact words that I used "Mr. Das may be persuaded to agree if Government give a special day". This will show that I was speaking not on behalf of the Opposition but entirely on my own.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: The fact that the Hon'ble Minister has admitted that the matter is urgent—

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I did not say so, Sir. On the contrary, I pointed out that it was not an urgent matter nor was it of any importance; but I agreed to the discussion of this matter as a special motion only to meet the Opposition's point of view: otherwise the matter is neither urgent nor important.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I consider the matter to be an urgent matter of great public importance, for it concerns the whole of Bengal and affects the bread of many people of Bengal. Will the Hon'ble Minister kindly explain when army officers were drafted to Bengal previously for administrative work? Therefore, we want an immediate discussion of the motion.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: For the moment, we are not discussing the date of the discussion. The question now is whether your purpose will be served if you get a full day to discuss the matter.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But I am not agreeable to have the discussion on next Friday which is a non-official day.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: That is not the question before us at the moment. The question is: whether you will agree to the discussion of the matter as a special motion, as I have already pointed out several times. As regards the date, that will be fixed later on.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: The whole thing is this: if this motion is accepted as a special motion by the Hon'ble Home Minister and discussed on Tuesday next, then we can come to an agreement. The day is very important and we will agree to Tuesday next and not to Friday. We have lost one Friday because it has been declared a holiday and if you want another Friday to go, we lose another.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Are you willing to sit for a longer time than usual.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: No, Sir, two hours.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, we have had many resolutions and accepted some resolutions. So we can have this special motion on Friday. There is no Non-official Bill before the House at present.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, this is a very urgent matter and if we do not take the matter immediately, the Central Government may take action on the suggestion of the Bengal Government. But if in the meantime Bengal Government change their opinion as a result of this special motion and the Central Government are informed of it, they may be prevented to do so. So it is necessary that this matter should be discussed immediately.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I think Sir, that the Hon'ble Home Minister should accept the suggestion of Mr. Das.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The consensus of opinion then is that this motion will be treated as a special motion. As regards the day on which this special motion will be discussed, I leave it to the Hon'ble the President to decide on the next meeting day. If he does not come on the next day, I shall do it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, the date can be fixed by the Home Minister. If he agrees to Tuesday, we can agree to it.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I accept the decision of the Deputy President that it may be left to the President to fix the date.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Does the Home Minister waive his right about date? He does not want to be consulted?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I waive my right so far as the date is concerned. I won't object to this being treated as a special motion.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I have an adjournment motion today.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: As regards that, the Chair has not got sufficient time to examine it. It may be taken up on the next day for decision of the question of its admissibility. The question of urgency is waived.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABIS: Sir, may I know from the Leader of the House whether he has got the opinion of the Advocate-General in connection with my adjournment motion?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Legal opinion has not yet been received from the Advocate-General.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The House will now resume discussion of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. BIRENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOWDHURY: Mr. Deputy President, I beg to move that in paragraph (b) of clause 4 of the Bill, after the word and comma "purposes," in line 3, the words "or as Debattar" be inserted.

Sir, I move this amendment to do away with the distinction which appears to have been made in this sub-section between Hindu and Muslim property devoted to religious and charitable purposes. While in the case of the former, only that property which is held under trust or other legal obligations wholly for religious or charitable purposes is exempted from the tax, in the case of the latter, Wakf-al-al-aulads are also excluded. So far as I know, Wakf-al-al-aulads are Muslim trusts for the benefit of children. They do not, therefore, differ essentially from Hindu Debattar property. If the income from Wakf-al-al-aulads is to be excluded from taxation, I do not see why the income from Hindu Debattar property as such should not also be so excluded. Such property comes under the ownership of the deity. The income is partly devoted to the deity's worship, partly to charitable purposes and partly to the benefit of those in charge of the worship. In other words, if Muslim trusts made for the benefit of children of the original owner may be excluded from taxation, Hindu Debattar property, whose income is partly enjoyed by the descendants of the original owner, should have this benefit also.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in paragraph (b) of clause 4 of the Bill, after the word and comma "purposes," in line 3, the words "or as Debattar" be inserted.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Mr. Deputy President, I rise to support the amendment which has been moved by my friend Mr. Birendra Kishore Roy Chowdhury. Apparently, there has been an omission, and it is desirable that the word "Debattar" should be there. When arrangements have been made for exempting charitable trusts such as Wakf-al-al-aulads, I submit, Sir, that the incomes derived from Debattar should also be equally exempted, inasmuch as such incomes are utilized for the worship of the deity.

With these words, Sir, I support the amendment moved just now.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Mr. Deputy President, I rise to support the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Birendra Kishore Roy Chowdhury. It wants to add to the actual words of the clause itself the words "or as Debattar" after the words "any agricultural income derived from property held under trust or other legal obligation wholly for religious or charitable purposes". Now, possibly, it is not realized that a Hindu religious endowment is not liable to be treated as a trust at the will of the Provincial Council. In the case of Vidyavarathi reported in 40. Madras, it was held that Hindu religious endowments are not to be treated as trusts. Therefore, I believe, that it was purely a case of mistake. While the framers of the Code intended that Hindu religious endowment which are known as Debattar should not be taxed, they used words which are not appropriate for the purpose. The amendment before the House only seeks to clear up this doubt, and therefore I submit it should be accepted by Government and by the honourable members of this House. Now, the amendment seeks to introduce the following words after the word and comma "purposes," the words "or as Debattar". If the word "Debattar" is included therein, I believe all misapprehension that might arise hereafter may be removed, and therefore the words "or as Debattar" should be added so far as this clause is concerned. It is stated that religious purpose includes Debattars. Now, if that is the object, it should be incorporated in clause (b); on the other hand, if my friend's words are to be excluded, the position should at least be made clear so that there may not be any doubt when the time for assessment comes. With these words, I support the motion of my friend.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support the amendment which has been moved by my friend, Mr. Birendra Kishore Roy Chowdhury. Since Wakf-al-al-aulads have been included, I do not see any reason why Debattars should be excluded. It must be remembered that all Debattar property is on the same plane and it is only fair that such property should be treated on the same basis and should be exempted from taxation.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, I think I can add very little to what my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad has just said. It is a very desirable amendment, and the Government should have no objection to accept it. We want the Debattar properties to be treated in the same way as the Wakfs-al-al-aulads. Sir, it is well known that there are many Debattar properties in Bengal. To tax Debattar income would, I think, being going beyond the purpose for which these Debattars were and may in future be created. The incomes accruing from the Debattar properties are utilized for the maintenance of the deities. So, I think, the amendment should be accepted by Government. In many parts of Bengal—whether in Eastern Bengal or in Western Bengal—Debattar properties are found to exist, and the income, as I have already said, from these properties are devoted exclusively to the worship of the deities concerned. Having regard to the fact that this income is meant to be spent for religious purposes, it is only meet and proper that the Debattar properties should be exempted from taxation.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I rise to support this amendment. বর্তমানে এই ঠাকুরবাড়ী ও অতিথিশালা, মতিলাল ঝুঁই ফণ্ডের আয় হইতে পরিচালিত হইতেছে। এমন এক্ষণে প্রতিদিন মধ্যাহ্নে ১০০/২০০ লোক ভোজন করিতেছে।

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: What are you reading from?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Dr. Narendranath Law's "স্বৰ্ণ বণিক কথা ও কীর্তি", just to show that unless this amendment is accepted, the religious charities will be hard hit.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Do you propose to read the whole book?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: No, Sir. I will read only a few sentences. "হিন্দু মুসলমান সকলেই সেখানে পুণ্যভাবে আশ্রয় পায়। গেঁড়া হিন্দুধর্মাবলম্বী হইয়াও মতিলাল যে কত উদার ছিলেন এই ব্যবস্থা হইতে তাহা বেশ বুঝিতে পারা যায়। মন্দির ২৪০ বিঘা জমির উপর নির্মিত..... ঠাকুরের ভোগ গৃহ, ঠাকুরের শয়ন গৃহ ইত্যাদি। স্ববিস্তৃত বাবান্দায় হিন্দু কাঙালীরা ভোজন করে। মন্দিরের বাহিরে টিন সেড়ে মুসলমানদের আশ্রয়ের স্থান।"

This is only one instance; there are numerous such institutions all over the province. If we tabulate them, it will be a formidable list. Even where they are confined to one community only, they relieve human suffering. I think this amendment unless it is accepted will leave a loophole with the result that religious and charitable institutions will suffer a good deal. With these words, I commend my amendment to the acceptance of the House; at least this important amendment concerning the inclusion of Hindu religious Debattar institutions should be accepted.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, when I was considering this Bill with a view to put in amendments, this particular clause drew my attention and I found that the gentleman who drafted this clause seemed to have a particular fascination for Moslem trusts. Now if you will kindly consider this clause, you will find that this clause—a clause for exempting certain income from the purview of the tax—generally enumerates certain trust properties or properties under certain legal obligation wholly or partly for religious or charitable purposes. I think that if this clause stood like that without attempting to enumerate any Moslem trust or Hindu trust as it has been attempted to be done here, the matter might have looked very much decent. Sir, what is the object of bringing in this particular class of trust I cannot for my life understand. Does it at all show that the clause was intended to exclude a particular Moslem trust? I believe not. And if it was intended to exclude properties under trust wholly or partly, then we could have had the same clause without the additional words or in the case of Moslem trusts commonly known as wakf-al-ulaulads. My point is, that either there was this intention to exclude this particular class of trusts or there was some intention—as the Finance Minister was just now saying of advertising this particular class of trusts. What was the point in putting it in in this clause? So I thought that this clause should not be at all there, and therefore, I have tabled amendments Nos. 67 and 69 which will presently come under discussion. I thought the other way and in my amendments I suggested the omission of Wakf-al-ulaulads so that all trusts may be covered by the same law, whether Hindu trusts or Muslim trusts, wholly or partly—this will cover all cases without any distinction. But as this clause is there, naturally one section, the Hindu community, might reasonably think that you are not going to exempt Hindu charitable endowments. It is well-known that there are large and numerous Hindu endowments the incomes of which are entirely, mostly or partly devoted to charitable and religious purposes. Now, the point may naturally arise in the mind of the assessing officer when the question of exemption of such income from such endowed property will come up—look here the Hindu Debattar property is not excluded from the tax, it is only the Muslim trust that has been excluded. The well-known maxim is that when a particular thing is specially mentioned, the other things are excepted; that theory will be employed by the assessing officer in the case of Hindu religious trusts to their disadvantage. If you want to keep the clause with regard to Muslim trust, I think in all fairness the Hindu Debattar should always be specifically mentioned so that there may not be any difficulty or argument about the question of exemption. With these words I support this amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Mr. President, I am quite satisfied that Debattar properties which my honourable friend Mr. Haridas Mazumdar took so much pains to advertise and of which I believe he is in a substantial sense a beneficiary, come under clause 4. The reason why Wakf-al-ulaulads have been mentioned in particular is because it is a known form of trust. The machinery for creating this trust is known whereas in the case of Debattars, they may be created by various kinds of documents and you will see that "property held under trust or other legal obligation wholly for religious or charitable purposes, etc.", covers all Debattar properties that are in existence. If my honourable friend Mr. Nagendra Nath Moholanabish wants communal parity even in respect of the use of words, I think he would perhaps be justified in asking for the inclusion of the word "Debattar". Otherwise, I do not see any purpose. All Debattar properties are covered by our definition and it is unnecessary to use the word "Debattar" which after all has no connotation in the law.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before House is: that in paragraph (b) of clause 4 of the Bill, after the word and comma "purposes," in line 3, the words "or as Debattar" be inserted.

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Mr. Deputy President, I beg to move that in paragraph (b) of clause 4 of the Bill, the words "or in the case of Muslim trusts commonly known as Wakf-al-aulads" in lines 5 and 6 be deleted.

Sir, we have just now been discussing the other amendment, viz., whether it is at all necessary to include this particular form of Muslim trust within the purview of this clause. Now, Sir, we must remember that not only the Muslims but the Hindus, Christians, Buddhists, Jains and several other communities and religious sects also living within this province do own agricultural property, and each one has got endowments of various nature and under various denominations, and they are all for religious or charitable purposes. It is impossible for the Finance Minister or for the matter of that of any lawyer to enumerate all classes of trusts that are in vogue by name. The Hindu Debattars have just now been stated by the Finance Minister to have been included in this amendment. I submit that neither any Christian endowments or any Buddhist endowments or any other religious endowments have been mentioned specifically in order to safeguard their being exempted within this clause (b). I have been wondering as to what was at the back of the mind of the authors of this Bill when they framed it. Is it their intention to exclude the income of this particular form of trust? Is it their intention to exclude a part of the income of this class of trust, which under the terms of the trust may be devoted or applied to charitable or religious purpose. I do not know but we know this much that Wakf-al-aulad is one of the many forms of wakfs authorised by the Muhammadan law and we also know that there are many other classes of wakfs which are made by religiously-minded Moslems for the purpose of charity, for the relief of the poor and other like purposes. I would enquire of the Hon'ble Minister why in this Bill those wakfs have not been mentioned? Why are they left alone and only a particular class of wakf is mentioned in this clause? We know that ordinarily Wakf-al-aulads are really meant not for charitable purposes, nor for religious purposes but mainly for the maintenance of the wakeef or his descendants. (Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: That is why it is necessary.) All right, Sir, I am coming to that presently. Now under the Bengal Wakf Act, 1934, you cannot have a Wakf-al-aulad unless 75 per cent. of the income is applied to the maintenance of the wakeef or the maintenance of his descendant, so that mainly it is a sort of device under the name of a wakf to maintain the family of the wakeef and nominally for the purpose of charity. There is no harm even if 99 per cent. of the income goes to the wakeef or his descendants for their maintenance and only one per cent. is devoted to religious or charitable purposes. (Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: Not even that, even cent. per cent. may be devoted to the maintenance of the wakeef!) I am coming to that, my friend; don't be anxious, that is not the way to listen to a debate. Now, Sir, under the law a man may make a Wakf-al-al-aulad by devoting the entire income of the property for the maintenance of himself or his descendants howsoever remote. Such wakfs would provide for relief of the poor or other charitable or religious purposes only when there are and will be no heirs or successors of the wakeef in any of the branches to enjoy the property; or in other words, when the property is likely to go to the Crown by escheat, at that time only will this wakf property vest in charity for religious purposes and so forth. That is the case of wakfs that is sought to be included within this particular provision, namely, clause (b). At the same time, you do not at all care to notice other classes of religious and charitable endowments which are made by Hindus and Moslems also, and with regard to the classes of endowment of Christians, Jains, Buddhists and so forth. Was it at all necessary having regard to the clause that you are going to give relief only with regard to the income that is applied for the purpose referred to, I believe, charitable and religious purposes, and again is expanded by the Explanation by saying that "charitable purpose" includes relief of the poor, education, medical relief and other object of general public utility?

I say that this particular clause is absolutely unnecessary. If it is a case of Wakf-al-al-aulad, you are to show by the document itself or some other proof whether you are reserving the entire profits for the purpose of maintenance of the wakeef and his descendants or whether you are appropriating certain percentage for wakeef and his descendants and certain percentage for religious and charitable purposes. So you will be entitled to relief to the extent to which you apply the income for charitable and religious purposes. That being the position, I say there is absolutely no necessity for including this clause in the Bill. Now, Sir, let us take into consideration the position. If the amendment is carried and if you omit or delete this particular clause "or in the case of Muslim trusts commonly known as Wakf-al-aulad", how are you going to be affected so far as the tax is concerned? By inclusion of this will you get more tax or will you exempt more endowments which are not entitled to exemption? On the contrary, if you retain this clause you bring in difficulties to thousands of persons who have got endowments. When from a particular endowment a portion is used for charitable purposes you are giving exemption to that portion because that is what you mean. But I am not sure whether you will be able to express it clearly by this clause, because the words "income applied thereto" would bring in complications later on, whether you mean Wakf-al-aulad or whether you mean for such purpose by the expression "the income applied thereto". That is very doubtful; but I have got a shrewd suspicion that there is an idea behind it that Wakf-al-aulads are in a way intended to be exempted altogether. But whether that is so or not will be the subject-matter of amendment No. 69. But there is absolutely no purpose in retaining these words in clause (b). If you just consider clause (b) after eliminating the expression which I have referred to, you will find that it would be quite good reading, carrying good sense and serving the same purpose which I believe the authors of the Bill had in view.

If your intention is to exclude all charitable and religious institutions,—the income of all charitable and religious institutions which apply their funds entirely or partly to such purposes—I think it is better for all concerned that this particular clause which specifically mentions the case of Muslim trusts, Wakf-al-al-aulad, should be deleted, because you do not add anything to this clause; nor do you make a different clause by which you intend to regularise the matter. What you intend is to exclude the Debattars and other religious trusts, but by doing so you would only bring in confusion if you were to retain these few words in sub-clause (b). Therefore, legislation, especially taxing legislation, should be as clear and as explicit and as void of all ambiguity as possible. There should not be left any room even by implication for any loophole in any taxation measure. I have therefore, Sir, brought in this amendment for the serious consideration of the Hon'ble Minister, and I think that the omission of these words will not affect any trust—Muslim or otherwise. I submit, Sir, that by omitting this trust from the scope of the Act no harm will be done. As the Finance Minister has just now told us, the interest of economy should prevail, and my submission is that these words should be omitted so that economy might be effected in the use of paper. I therefore commend this amendment to the acceptance of this House.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: "That in paragraph (b) of clause (4) of the Bill, the words "or in the case of Muslim trusts commonly known as Wakf-al-aulads" in lines 5 and 6 be deleted."

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I rise to oppose this amendment. With all respect to the honourable mover I must submit that he is labouring under a misapprehension. I submit that in this sub-clause (b) there is enshrined one principle which is applicable to all classes of trusts. Further, there are two parts of this sub-clause. The first part says that if "any agricultural income derived from property held under trust or other legal obligation wholly for religious or charitable purposes, their income will be exempted from the operation of the Agricultural Income-tax Act. Then comes the second part regarding which my honourable friend has moved his amendment. Now what will happen if part of the income of any trust or legal obligations as applied to charitable or religious purposes? This question has been dealt with in the latter part of this clause. Sir, it appears to me that all that has been said by my friend regarding Muslim trusts, commonly known as Wakf-al-aulads, has been stated under a misapprehension. In my opinion there is absolute necessity for mentioning Wakf-al-aulads in this clause. In the case of these wakfs, some income is spent on education, religious and charitable purposes; but other portions of that income are spent for the benefit of the persons named in the trust as beneficiaries. It so happened that under the Indian Income-tax Act a portion of the income covered by the Wakf-al-aulads was not exempted from the income-tax and as there was no such provision for exemption, it is only meet and proper that such exemption should be provided for in the present Act so that religious and charitable purposes might be fully served. The difficulty arose in the case of the Indian Income-tax Act; and so to avoid future difficulty it is only fair that these trusts should be exempted from the Agricultural Income-tax and I therefore say that Wakf-al-aulads has not been differentially or favourably treated.

Then, Sir, there is another point to remember. It is a trust in which specific mention is made about religious and charitable purposes. So, I think, this amendment if carried will create a situation which will deal bad blow to these trusts, for in that case the whole income will be taxed including the income which is applied to or is ear-marked for religious and educational purposes.

With these words, Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I also rise to oppose this amendment; but in doing so I shall rely on arguments slightly different from those adduced by my honourable friend Mr. Nur Ahmed. My learned and honourable friend, in arguing against this amendment, was, in fact, arguing in favour of the last amendment. Every argument against this amendment is an argument in favour of the last. Now, what are the provisions of the Bill? My honourable friend makes a distinction between two classes of charity—one relates to such charitable and religious institutions which are wholly for charitable or religious purposes, where the whole of the income is excluded from taxation. He has envisaged another kind of trust, where only a part of the income is to be applied to religious or charitable purposes. If my friend is right in his opposition to the present amendment—and I think he is right—then there is no reason why Debattar properties should not also be included in the scope of the exception. If, however, Debattar properties must be excluded from the exception, there is no reason why Wakf-al-al-aulads should not follow suit. Of course, this is by way of argument. I do not really desire that Wakf-al-al-aulads should not be exempted. What I want is a sort of parity between Hindu and Muslim trusts, for debattar is as much a religious and charitable trust as Wakf-al-al-aulad. I do not deny that difficulties have arisen under the Indian Income-tax Act in respect of Wakf-al-al-aulads. If that is so, that only makes out a strong case for specifically exempting Wakf-al-al-aulads in the Bill; but, at the same time, I do not see why, on the same reasoning, Debattar properties should not be similarly exempted.

If the provision that charitable and religious endowments, part of the income of which is employed for such purposes, will go to protect Debattar properties, then on the same argument, the same provision should protect the Muslim trusts and the special protection of Wakfs-al-al-aulad would not have been required. Debattar properties should also have been mentioned in order to free them from doubts, vexation and litigation. It is therefore quite certain that a mistake has been made by my friends on the side of the Government in voting down the previous amendment. I think that it will be equally wrong on the part of the Opposition to vote for this amendment. A mistaken opposition on the part of the Government supporters in the last case should not be a reason for a mistaken support for the present amendment. Though technically the sponsors of these amendments were absolutely right in trying to treat both classes of charities on the same basis, it would be a logical result of the Hon'ble Minister's assurance in the case of the Debattar properties that the case of Wakf-al-al-aulads also does not need to be specifically exempted. Though I fully realise the logic of the situation created by opposition to the previous amendment, still I should think that the specific exemption of Wakf-al-al-aulads should be retained in the Bill in order to guard against subsequent doubts and difficulties. I should, therefore, think that my learned friends who are supporters of this amendment should wait and bide their time, for, after all, politics is a waiting game, and, after all, the opposition, which is blind opposition to-day, and has been forced upon my honourable friends of the Government Party as a matter of necessity, will pass away. Things will be seen in their proper light in the fullness of time, and I think that in the amending Bill which we have been promised by the Hon'ble Finance Minister the inclusion of the expression Debattar properties will find a place and that I think will settle these honest differences. But the fact that one of your legs has been cut off is no reason why the other leg should also be similarly cut off for purposes of symmetry. The leg which is entire and whole should be retained; and the leg that is cut off, should be restored. It is not necessary that the leg that is cut off, should be restored by surgical operation, and in this case, a mere amending Bill will be enough. When the amending Bill is brought forward, attention should be paid to Debattar properties. For all these reasons, I oppose the amendment and hope that this wrong which has been done, unintentionally will be righted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, in rising to support the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Moholanabish, I would like at the very first instance to remove a misapprehension which I am sorry to see is passing in the mind of both the mover and the speaker who followed him while opposing the amendment. Now, in order to appreciate the reason which leads me to support the amendment I would like to read out the clause itself before the House. The clause stands thus: Sub-clause (b) of this clause 4—the first portion says that any agricultural income derived from properties held under trust: I would also ask honourable members to mark the word “held under trust”. I would also ask honourable members to mark the words “legal obligation”. Both these words “under trust” and “legal obligation” are important words which have got to be given their proper meaning. The first portion of the sentence refers to or covers all trust property, as the Finance Minister has himself assured us that it includes Hindu Debattar properties as well as other trusts. If the Hon’ble Minister includes under trust all income from all properties which are devoted to charitable and religious purposes, then last two lines in the clause, that is “or in the case of Muslim trusts commonly known as Wakf-al-aulads, the income applied thereto”—these two lines are not only unnecessary but it brings in an amount of confusion which ought not to be ignored. If the first sentence includes Hindu religious and Muslim religious trusts, it is absolutely unnecessary to mention anything about Muslim trusts. The first four lines include trust or legal obligation wholly for religious or charitable purposes, etc., but in the last two lines if you accept Wakf-al-aulad, other Muslim trust is not excluded, then I must say that you are doing injustice to other Muslim trusts I mean wakf property so called. I would warn my Muslim friends here and request them to seriously consider whether they should allow the last two lines of this clause to remain in order to create difficulty with regard to wakf estates so called. As a matter of fact, the two amendments standing in the name of Mr. Nur Ahmed, Nos. 62A and 63, clearly intended—

MR. NUR AHMED: On a point of order, Sir. Is the honourable member in order to refer to amendments which have not been moved at all?

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I am not referring to them for supporting them; but I am referring to them for the purpose of supporting the amendment now before the House—

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, how long will you take to finish?

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I will take some time, say 10 or 15 minutes, because it is a very important matter.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: In that case, I must adjourn the House now. The House stands adjourned till 3 p.m. on Monday next.

Adjournment.

Alleged sale of foodstuffs to the black market by the controlled shops.

227. Mr. K. C. ROY CHOUDHURY: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state if it is a fact that those who are found to sell foodstuffs from controlled shops to the black market are prosecuted and their sellers' licence are cancelled forthwith?

(b) Is it a fact that the control shops at Naldi bazar, Mitapur hat, Brahmandanga hat and bazar, police-station Lahagara, district Jessore, sell foodstuffs to the black market without selling them at the controlled rate to the poor villagers?

(c) Is it a fact that the villagers of the said localities reported those facts to the supply officers of the Narail subdivision, district Jessore, who have so far failed to take any step to give relief to the poor villagers or to take steps to enforce the law?

(d) If the answer to parts (a) to (c) are in the affirmative, is the Hon'ble Minister going to take any steps in the matter? If so, what are they? If not, what are the reasons therefor?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) Yes.

(b) and (c) No. Only one such case at Naldi bazar was reported and the licence of the offender was cancelled.

(d) Does not arise.

Liabilities of Subdivisional Officer, Bongaon.

228. Mr. AMULYADHON ROY: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state whether the Government in the Department of Civil Supplies received any representation regarding heavy liabilities of the Subdivisional Officer, Bongaon, to the local merchants?

(b) Is it a fact that the liabilities of the Subdivisional Officer as they stood on the 9th May, 1943, to Messrs. Hajarilal Sinha, Bongaon rice mill and other local merchants amounted to Rs. 2,926-15?

(c) What was the extent of his liabilities up to the 9th May, 1943?

(d) How long did the liabilities remain outstanding?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) Yes; in regard to Mr. J. C. Chakravarty, the former Subdivisional Officer of Bongaon.

(b) to (d) The officer had some liabilities which are reported to have been paid off; no further complaints of non-payment have been received since. I am not prepared to disclose any further details as the matter is purely of a personal nature.

Return of licences issued to Muslims and Hindus for sale of edibles at controlled prices.

229. Khan Sahib NURUL AMIN: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state—

(a) whether there is any arrangement for submission of periodical returns by the supply officers, including District Supply Officers, showing the number of licences for sale of edibles at controlled prices issued to Muslims and Hindus;

(b) if not, whether he proposes to call for such returns;

(c) if he is aware that the Muslim interest is greatly suffering at the hands of non-Muslim supply officers in the matter of granting licences, and allotment of quotas, etc.;

(d) if he is aware that Muslim claims for licences are rejected on flimsy grounds by non-Muslim supply officers; and

(e) if he intends to appoint equal number of supply officers from Muslim and Hindu communities?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) No.

(b) Returns were called and the number of licences issued to Muslim and non-Muslims in Calcutta and the districts (excluding Noakhali and Darjeeling) up to 13th August, 1943, are as follows:—

Number of non-Muslim—29,712.

Number of Muslim—16,308.

(c) and (d) I have received complaints to that effect.

(e) I do not consider this to be necessary. The present position is that out of 119 posts of District Licensing and Returns Officers and Subdivisional Licensing Returns Officers 52 posts are held by Muslims, 65 by Hindus and two posts are vacant.

Shortage of fuel in Calcutta.

230. Mr. W. B. G. LAIDLAW: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state—

(a) if he is aware that there is a grave shortage of fuel in the Calcutta area for industrial and domestic purposes;

(b) if he is aware that large quantities of wood fuel are lying at the Bengal-Nagpur Railway stations in the Midnapore district awaiting despatch;

(c) if it is a fact that there are more wagons at the coalfields than the collieries can fill with coal and that the stations where the majority of the wood fuel is lying are on the Midnapore-Jharia extension of the Bengal-Nagpur Railway;

(d) what steps have been taken by Government—

(i) to secure wagons from the railway authorities for the transport of this wood fuel into the Calcutta area, and

(ii) to organise alternative means of transport of this wood fuel into the Calcutta area; and

(e) if no steps have been taken, will the Hon'ble Minister please state the reasons therefor?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) There is shortage of coal for domestic and industrial purposes in Calcutta at times.

(b) Yes.

(c) I have no information.

(d) An arrangement has been made with the Bengal-Nagpur Railway under which large quantities of wood fuel are being brought into Calcutta for distribution under the supervision of my department.

(e) Does not arise.

Supply of boiled rice.

231. Mr. NARESH NATH MOOKERJEE: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state what steps are being taken to supply boiled rice to the Government stores and ration shops?

(b) Is he aware that mostly unboiled rice is now obtainable in such shops and that hardly 10 per cent. of the people of this Province take unboiled rice?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) Every effort is being made to supply some boiled rice to all the Government stores and ration shops but the rice coming from outside Bengal is mostly unboiled and it is not possible to guarantee a supply of boiled rice to all shops at all times.

(b) A considerable portion of the rice obtainable in such shops is unboiled.

The percentage of the people of the Province who take boiled rice is not known.

Supply of rice to Barrackpore.

232. Mr. LATAFAT HOSSAIN: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state if it is a fact that only 7,000 maunds of rice were recently allotted to the Subdivisional Officer, Barrackpore, for distribution at controlled prices among approximately 6 lakhs of people residing within the subdivision?

(b) Is it a fact that the quantity allotted (7,000 maunds) is only sufficient for 1 day's consumption at the rate of $\frac{1}{2}$ seer per head per day for only 4 lakhs of people?

(c) Is it a fact that the foodstuffs (rice, dal atta and sugar) allotted to the food committee of Bhatpara works at only $\frac{1}{2}$ seer per month or more than a month?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) No. Nearly 90,000 maunds of rice were allotted. Apart from the foregoing, industrial labour which forms the major part of the population of the subdivision receives supplies from employers who are given block allotments in addition to the above quantities.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) Rationing has been introduced in this area.

Ration for factory workers.

233. Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state if he is aware that the Rationing Authorities of Bombay have sanctioned 50 per cent. more rations for factory workers per head than that allowed to other individuals?

(b) Is he aware that industrial workers consume not less than three-fourth seer of foodgrains per capita?

(c) Does he propose to follow the Bombay practice regarding rations to industrial and manual workers?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) Yes.

(b) There is no accurate information on this point.

(c) It is not proposed to follow the Bombay practice, but alternative arrangements are already in force in Calcutta: supplementary rations are available for all industrial workers under the cooked-food canteen scheme. Moreover, the basic ration of foodgrains in Calcutta is in excess of the ration granted in Bombay whilst millets which form part of the ration in Bombay are unrationed in Calcutta, and can be purchased without any limit as to quantity from the Government stores.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: Arising out of (c), will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if he is aware of the existence of any canteen in jute mill area where cooked-food is supplied? Has the cooked-food canteen scheme materialised?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I am aware that there is a number of employers who have adopted the cooked-food canteen scheme. I think Mr. K. C. Roy Chowdhury who represents labour is probably aware of them himself.

Ration for the manual workers.

234. Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state if he is aware that manual workers who earn monthly wages are unable to purchase ration every week?

(b) Does he propose to pass orders to allow them to purchase four weeks' ration once a month?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) No.

(b) No. Arrangements have however been made in certain factories to allow purchases to be made for two weeks' ration at a time.

Alleged hoarding of rice by Government during scarcity.

235. Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHOUDHURI: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that in certain districts, quantities of rice were kept hoarded by or on behalf of the Government while there was acute scarcity of rice prevailing in those areas;

(b) if so—

(i) the names of those districts,

(ii) the approximate quantities stocked in each (to be specified by name), and

(iii) whether the stocks kept were for civil or military purposes;

(c) when the Hon'ble Minister first came to know of those reserved stocks;

(d) what steps were adopted then to release those hoarded stocks to the starving people; and

(e) what has become of those stocks since then?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) No.

(b) to (c) Do not arise.

236. Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHOUDHURI: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state—

(a) the approximate quantities of grains and pulses, split and unsplit, respectively, in custody of the Civil Supplies Department for the disposal of which tenders have recently been invited;

(b) the specific kinds of grains sought to be disposed of;

(c) the specific kinds of pulses sought to be disposed of.

(d) when such grains and pulses were procured by the Department last year;

(e) whether they were purchased;

(f) if so, the cost price at which the different varieties were procured;

(g) the reason or reasons for which it has now become necessary to dispose them of; and

(h) the amount that is expected from the transaction?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) (i) Jowar approximately—60,000 maunds.

(ii) Bajra approximately—73,000 maunds.

(iii) Maize approximately—27,000 maunds.

(iv) Gram and dal approximately—800,000 maunds.

(b) Details as at (a).

(c) Gram, split and unsplit, and other varieties of split and unsplit dal.

(d) These grains and pulses were procured by the Department between November, 1943, and January, 1944.

(e) Yes.

(f) (i) Jowar—Rs. 9 per maund.

(ii) Bajra—Rs. 10-4 per maund.

(iii) Maize—Rs. 7-10 per maund.

(iv) Gram and dal as under—

Arhar—Rs. 16-8 per maund.

Khesari—Rs. 10 per maund.

Mung—Rs. 15-8 per maund.

Musur—Rs. 20 per maund.

Gram dal—Rs. 15 per maund.

Gram, whole grain—Rs. 11-2-8 per maund.

Other dals—Rs. 13-8 per maund.

These prices are the average prices of the various lots of dal procured during the period.

(g) The offtake has been poor; due to scarcity of godown accommodation, substantial quantities had to be kept in the Botanical Gardens. These have to be disposed of before the rains.

(h) It is not yet possible to give an estimate with any degree of accuracy, but the amount is likely to be Rs. 1,20,00,000.

Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHOWDHURY: Arising out of (g), will the Hon'ble Minister please state if the grains are kept under any shed or were just kept under a cover?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: The grains in the Botanical Gardens? They were kept under tarpaulins.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: With reference to (h), will the Hon'ble Minister please state if he has been able to dispose of the stock by this time?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Yes, part of the stock has been disposed of in the way that it has been sold.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state the price fetched for the same.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Well, there have been varying prices, tenders were called for and various tenderers tendered for various kinds of pulses in various godowns at various prices: it is impossible to give one answer for them.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I mean the total price at which the entire stock was sold, the stock which cost Government Rs. 1,20,00,000.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I do not know: I would like to have notice.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: With reference to (h), will the Hon'ble Minister please take steps to supply the information later on, namely, the total price that the sale of the stock has fetched?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I want notice.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: With reference to (h), will the Hon'ble Minister please state if the transaction has resulted in a loss or profit?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Well, if I had the total figure with me, then I could have by means of subtraction informed the honourable members as to whether there has been a loss or a profit out of this transaction. But not having the full figure at which the thing was sold with me, I cannot say off hand.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Well, Sir, that is only a truism; we want definite facts.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Have the goods which could not be kept in the godowns been already sold?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Yes, the goods have been sold: not only those which were outside the Botanical Gardens but also those which were in the godowns. Such goods have been sold, as we thought that it might deteriorate; therefore, we got rid of them rather than having to sell them off subsequently at a loss.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: How much has been realised therefrom?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I want notice.

Scarcity of soft coke.

237. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if his attention has been drawn to a statement made by Mr. H. D. Mazumdar, President, Hindu Chamber of Commerce, regarding the soft coke situation in Bengal;
- (b) if it is a fact that many thousand tons of soft coke are lying idle at Mugma and Jharia coalfields for want of adequate arrangements for transport, mainly Railway wagons;
- (c) if so, what steps the Government have taken to secure more wagon-supply from the Centre to cope with the serious situation that has arisen due to severe scarcity of soft coke in Bengal, particularly in Greater Calcutta;
- (d) if not, what steps the Government propose to take to relieve the distress of the people of Bengal particularly of Greater Calcutta by an adequate supply of the said commodity without further loss of time; and
- (e) if the Government propose to lay on the Table of the House the correspondence that passed between them and the Centre in this regard, to convince the people that they have left no stone unturned to tackle the situation properly?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) Yes.

(b) Yes. There are certain quantities of soft coke held by the collieries in the Jharia and Mugma fields. Suctions to clear these stocks are issued by the Controller of Coal Distribution (who is a Government of India Officer) according to allocation to the provinces made by the War Resources Committee of the Viceroy's Executive Council, and wagons are allocated by the Controller of Coal Distribution as the day-to-day wagons position permits according to the priorities of industries.

(c) The Provincial Government have made representation to the Central Government several times in this matter.

(d) Does not arise.

(e) I cannot agree to the correspondence between the two Governments being placed on the Table of the House.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point of order, Sir. Cannot the members of the House call for the papers—correspondence—as a matter of right?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think so. They may be confidential.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Arising out of (c) may I enquire from the Hon'ble Minister if this correspondence is confidential?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Well, Sir, yes. I think correspondence between two Governments should always be considered confidential; otherwise no Government official can write to any other Government official.

Rural water-supply.

238. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if he is aware that in reply to question No. 1 of the 16th February, 1940, the then Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Department concerned said that a detailed programme of work with a view to solving the problem of rural water-supply effectively within a reasonable period, was being drawn up for the whole Province with the aid of the District Boards and in consultation with the Local Water-supply Committees which have been set up for the purpose;

- (b) if so, what steps the Government have taken since then to formulate a comprehensive scheme for the purpose; and
(c) if the scheme is ready, what steps the Government have taken to implement the same?

MINISTER in charge of the PUBLIC HEALTH and LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): (a) Yes.

(b) In December, 1941, a revised comprehensive programme of rural water-supply for the Province was drawn up by the Chief Engineer at an estimated cost of Rs. 5,23,61,940 according to rates of materials and labour current at the time.

(c) The programme was not finally approved by Government. Even if it were approved, it would not be possible to give effect to it owing to war conditions. Adequate provisions were, however, made during the last 3 years to give effect to the usual scheme of rural water-supply in the Province. The statement below will show the provisions made and the actual expenditures incurred during the three years:—

		Provision.	Actual expenditure.
		Rs.	Rs.
1941-42	..	10 lakhs	6,05,808
1942-43	..	10 lakhs	3,32,257
1943-44	..	19 lakhs	12,66,433

Health Report of Chittagong.

239. Mr. NUR AHMED: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state if it is fact that the Government of Bengal is preparing a health report of Bengal, especially of Dacca and Calcutta?

(b) If so, do the Government propose to incorporate in the said health report a special report of Chittagong like that of Dacca and Calcutta? If not, why not?

(c) Is it a fact that the death roll in the Chittagong district in 1943 is highest in Bengal?

(d) What was the total number of deaths in the districts of (i) Chittagong, (ii) Tippera, (iii) Dacca, (iv) Mymensingh, (v) Faridpur and (vi) Barisal and what was the percentage of increase in the number of deaths in 1943 as compared with that of 1942, 1941 and 1940 in these districts and what was the population of these districts in 1943?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: (a) and (b) The usual Annual Public Health Report for the year 1943 is under preparation which will contain necessary information about Chittagong also. It is not intended to prepare a special report in respect of Dacca, Calcutta or any other local area.

(c) Yes.

(d) A statement is laid in the Library.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Arising out of (c), will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what was the increased percentage in 1943 as compared with 1942 and 1941 in Chittagong?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: I want notice. But I can tell you the highest mortality figure which is 43.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Arising out of (d), a statement is laid on the Library Table. Sir, I do not see it placed on the Table here.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is going to be placed.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But we could not look into it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I understand that it was not done by mistake.

Adjournment Motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Now we shall take up the adjournment motion of Mr. Nagendra Nath Moholanabish.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, there was an adjournment motion in my name.

Mr. PRESIDENT: We cannot discuss other adjournment motions today.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: This will be considered tomorrow then?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, if you like. The time-limit for the speeches on the adjournment motion to be discussed today is 20 minutes for the mover and 20 minutes for the Hon'ble Minister's reply and 10 minutes for other speakers.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: And for the reply of the mover?

Mr. PRESIDENT: 10 minutes.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: What is time-limit for the right of reply?

Mr. PRESIDENT: 10 minutes. Yes, Mr. Moholanabish.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Mr. President, Sir, I beg to move: That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the attempt that is being made by Government to deliberately suppress the publication of correct information in the Calcutta Gazette of the current and prevailing market prices of rice in the various places of the different districts in Bengal and to secure untrue and incorrect reports regarding the same by issuing a circular on or about the 19th June, 1944, to all District Officers under the signature of the Secretary to the Government of Bengal in the Agriculture Department to the following effect:—

"The Government feels embarrassed by the publication of the price of rice in Supplement to the Calcutta Gazette and District Officers are informed that where the prices are higher than the controlled price, instead of actual price being given, District Officers should show the controlled price, but add that rice cannot be had at the controlled price", which is causing or likely to cause alarm and panic in the country, and demoralise the District Officers.

The text of the motion will show that attempt is actually being made to suppress the correct price of rice which obtains in the different districts and that there is also a request to District Officers to make untrue reports saying that rice is not available practically adding that it is not available at the controlled price. This publication of the market price of rice, as is well-known, has been in vogue from about 1885 when the Bengal Tenancy Act was passed. Under section 39 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, it is a statutory duty imposed upon the District Officers to report monthly or as frequently as he may be directed by the Provincial Government the price of staple food crops including rice. This has been going on without any hindrance so long but all on a sudden we find that Government took it into their head to issue a circular of this nature at a time when the market price of rice or paddy is required to be known widely by the people of the country. Having regard to the famine of last year, the price of rice is a very important matter for the public at large. We find that instead of giving the correct information through the Gazette as we had been getting up to this time, Government wants to suppress that news. Now, Sir, what is the cause for this sudden attempt on the part of Government to suppress this news? In order to ascertain that I would ask the honourable members to recall the incidents that happened a week or so before the 19th of June. You will remember, Sir, that an adjournment motion was tabled by an honourable member in this House and it was alleged that rice was selling at Chittagong at Rs. 60 per maund in spite of the fact that the control price was much less than Rs. 20. That statement of the honourable member of this House was at once contradicted on behalf of the Government and in the absence of better proof that adjournment motion was not consented to by you, Sir. A day or two after, you will remember, Sir, another motion in a different form alleging that rice was selling at Chittagong at Rs. 60 per maund was brought and this time the honourable member was armed with a copy of the Calcutta Gazette and the Treasury Bench in view of the production of the Calcutta Gazette could not actually oppose that motion.

I do really think that that incident in this House was responsible for this circular which was issued only a week later, and if you read, Sir, this circular, you will find it stated there that the Government feels embarrassed. What is the embarrassment save and except the embarrassment in being detected in making an untrue statement? When the honourable member asserted that rice was selling at Chittagong at Rs. 60 per maund, I am sure, the Treasury Benches knew that it was so. Because the honourable member had not with him the relevant copy of the Gazette at that time, the statement was contradicted; but the next day or the day after when it was proved from the Calcutta Gazette, it could not be contradicted, and that I think is the cause of the embarrassment. That embarrassment, I feel, was not the embarrassment of the Agriculture Department but it was the embarrassment of the Civil Supplies Department, and I think that in this matter the Civil Supplies Department has got hold of the Agriculture Department to issue this circular to save the face of the Civil Supplies Department and to avoid the embarrassment of the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department. Now, Sir, this sort of embarrassment the Hon'ble Ministers are feeling for some time past. A short while ago the Hon'ble Ministers found it very embarrassing to carry on the business in the Lower House, and they had to advise that the Lower House should be prorogued and it was prorogued. We find, Sir, that there was another embarrassment owing to the continuance of the Howrah Municipality and the Hon'ble Ministers had to advise the supersession of that municipality and accordingly it was sought to be superseded. Now, we find that another Hon'ble Minister finds himself embarrassed by the publication of the price of rice in the Calcutta Gazette and this circular has been issued. Now, it is necessary for us in this House to consider whether the Hon'ble Ministers are really at liberty to issue these circulars for the purpose of avoiding their personal embarrassment. This shows that they are acting or trying to cover up their incapacity, their inability by gagging the Press, by prohibiting publication of true news. Sir, I would like to point out that the duty of publication of the market prices of rice being a statutory duty, the Minister in charge of Agriculture or for the matter of that the Minister of Civil Supplies had absolutely no right to issue any circular which can militate against the statutory provision of the Bengal Tenancy Act. If you turn to the provisions of this Act, you will find that the report of the market price in the Calcutta Gazette is to be used as evidence whenever it is necessary to ascertain the market price in any court of law. Therefore, you cannot prevent its publication, nor can you ask the District Officers to publish it in any other way than is required by the provision of the law. You can certainly make rules under the provision of section 39(7), you can make rules under sections 189 and 190 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, but those rules should be rules conducive to the attainment of the object, viz., the obtaining of the market price. It was suggested the other day that they were considering whether they should allow the publication of the prices of the black market or whether it was really permissible to get black market prices published in the Calcutta Gazette. Now, it is well-known, Sir, that market prices mean prices which obtain in the market which a willing buyer pays to a willing seller for a certain commodity. It depends on the question of demand and supply and by merely issuing this control order you cannot, unless you can supply the commodities, keep the prices down. Control price is not the market price; that should be known and realised by the Honourable Minister in charge who should not say that the black market price,—the price at which people had to buy commodities in the market,—should not be published because, forsooth, it does not conform to the artificial price which Government has chosen to fix. There is not the least doubt that the control price is not the market price; on the other hand, the price that is really obtaining in the market at which people have to purchase commodities should be regarded as the market price. You can make any comment in the Calcutta Gazette you like about that price; you may say that it is black market price, but if you have at all to publish any price, you have to publish it as the market price and you cannot certainly ask your district officers not to publish market prices but falsely to add "that rice cannot be had at the controlled price". I submit that I do in all seriousness charge those responsible for the issue of this circular with deliberately trying to fabricate false evidence, that they are deliberately trying to abuse their powers in inducing the District Officer, all responsible gentlemen, who have received the highest degree of education, and some of whom are members of the Indian Civil Service, and possess the greatest regard for truth—you ask them to make false reports in the Gazette. If it were necessary, I could prove in a court of law that the circular amounts to an attempt to fabricate false evidence. The gentlemen who are the authors of this circular are under the protective wall of the provision of section 197 of the Criminal Procedure Code; they know fully well that they cannot be prosecuted because their prosecution cannot be had without the sanction of the Government and they themselves forming the Government will surely withhold that sanction. But if you can give me that sanction, I would prove to the hilt in a court of law that this amounts to an attempt to fabricate false evidence and also that responsible Ministers in this country are unfortunately prepared to go to that length to avoid embarrassment later on. And why should there be this embarrassment in this respect, Sir? It may be remembered that even after the last year's famine the Civil Supplies Minister boasted that there would be no famine this year. "We have planned aman procurement policy, we have arranged for procurement of aman paddy and rice from surplus districts and to transport them to deficit districts, so that there cannot be any want of rice in any of the districts of Bengal." Seven months of the year have already passed by and we find that in many districts, particularly in Chittagong and other neighbouring districts, rice is not to be had. And the price at which rice is available there is about Rs. 60 per maund. It means that you cannot have rice at all, which again amounts to famine. If that be the position, where is your much-vaunted procurement policy in spite of the Civil Supplies Department with hundreds and thousands of clerks, with hundreds of Bengal Service men and scores of Indian Civil Service men? If, with all these men you cannot supply even the needs of one district which is in want of rice and paddy from the surplus districts, then you are absolutely a failure in your office.

It is said, and we have been treated ad nauseum with the story, that the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Civil Supplies Department is the most over-worked man in the Government of Bengal. He does not have time to answer questions in this House: he does not have time to attend the Council in order to make statements on important motions and excuses are always put forward that that Hon'ble Minister is so very busy that he cannot find time to do so many things. I know, Sir, there is no man who can say that he is busy, that he cannot attend to his normal duties and if he is so lazy that he cannot do his legitimate business—not extra business—he is not fit for his job. That apart, it is clear that this circular has been issued with a view to save the face of the Civil Supplies Department and I am afraid the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Agriculture Department has been made a scapegoat in this matter. Any how, I cannot absolve him from the liability in this matter. The circular has been issued from his department and he has taken the liability on himself. I do not know how the Agriculture Department should have gone out of its way to instruct the District Officers to make a false statement—I submit the step taken by the department is most mischievous and unworthy of the department and it should have been recalled long ago. If I understood the Leader of the House on the last occasion, he said that they were consulting their lawyers whether the black-market prices could or could not be published. But if that had been a true plea, an honest plea, a bona fide plea, that step should have been taken before the issue of the circular. I do not suppose that that gentleman with grey hair, with advancing years, having experience of life did not at all foresee that the effect of this circular would have the effect of nullifying the law—that it was merely for hoodwinking the people. Is it not suppressing the inefficiency of the Civil Supplies Department? The answer is obvious. I should think that this circular is a piece of document for which the department has been put to shame; they should have long before withdrawn it and should have at once directed their subordinates to act according to law. Under section 39 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the duty is cast upon the District Officer and that duty cannot in any way be infringed by any circular letter or private correspondence by anybody. If they wanted to modify the rules, there are provisions for making rules they should have taken recourse to that; but they knew whatever change they can make in the rules they cannot alter the statute. The rules provide for publishing the market price; but they say control price is the market price which is absolutely nonsense. So I submit, Sir, without taking any further time of the House that this circular is most inexpedient, illegal, improper and deserves the severest condemnation of the honourable members of this House. With these words, I commend my motion to the acceptance of the House.

MR. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the attempt that is being made by Government to deliberately suppress the publication of correct information in the Calcutta Gazette of the current and prevailing market prices of rice in the various places of the different districts in Bengal and to secure untrue and incorrect reports regarding the same by issuing a circular on or about the 19th June, 1944, to all District which is causing or likely to cause alarm and panic in the country, and demoralise the District Officers.

Officers under the signature of the Secretary to the Government of Bengal in the Agriculture Department to the following effect:—

“The Government feels embarrassed by the publication of the price of rice in Supplement to the Calcutta Gazette and District Officers are informed that where the prices are higher than the controlled price, instead of actual price being given, District Officers should show the controlled price, but add that rice cannot be had at the controlled price”.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I rise to support the motion. Months ago when I had the privilege of raising in this Council the matter of high prices as published in the Calcutta Gazette, I had a suspicion that Government would in future stop the publication of these inconvenient figures. In private conversation with respectable friends I gave expression to the fear which has now come to be true. The great British statesman Lord Palmerston said that even gods have no power over figures. But here a puppet Ministry of Sir Samuel Hoare-brand autonomy in one of the many provinces in Britain's dependency, resembling very much the cockroach in the Bengali proverb claiming to be a bird, seems to be more powerful than gods and wants to kill figures lest they should provide grounds for complaint now and documentary evidence for the future historian. Truth and publicity are like the wind blowing freely and cleansing an unhealthy atmosphere. Mr. Churchill soon after becoming the Premier said in Parliament that he would never suppress truth as such suppression defeats its own object and gives rise to wild rumours. In the darkest days he kept aloof from giving rosy pictures. On the 13th May, 1940, he said: “I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat.” On the 8th October next he said: “Not only great dangers, but many more misfortunes, many short-comings, many mistakes, many disappointments will surely be our lot. Death and sorrow will be the companions of our journey, hardship our garment; constancy and valour our only shield.” On the 17th January, 1941, he said: “Do not suppose that we are at the end of the road.” I make no apology for quoting more passages of the British Premier who has brought his country within a measurable distance of victory if only to show how a national calamity has to be fought not with falsehood but with truth. Our misfortune is not less serious than that of Britain in the early days of the war. 35 lakhs died in last year's famine, which is actually more than the casualties of the whole British Empire in this war. Here our Ministers for the sake of the spoils of office underrated the severity of the situation as evidenced in Mr. Suhrawardy's now notorious “sufficiency of foodgrains” speech of the 8th May, 1943. On the 18th June, 1940, Mr. Churchill said: “I do not at all underrate the severity of the ordeal which lies before us.” Every man and every woman will have the chance to show the finest qualities of their race and render the highest service to their cause. For all of us, at this time, whatever our station, our occupation or our duties, it will be a help to remember the famous lines:

“He nothing common did or mean,

Upon that memorable scene.”

On the 14th July, 1940, when America had not joined the war and Britain was fighting single-handed, he said: “And now it has come to us to stand alone in the breach, and face the worst that the tyrant's might and enmity can do.....We are fighting by ourselves alone; but we are not fighting for ourselves alone.” It is this spirit of facing facts, however unpleasant and not a mean attitude of putting them away from public view and snarling at anyone who wants to ventilate public suffering which should impel our Government in this hour of peril. While rice is selling at Rs. 40 per maund at Chittagong and has been selling generally at Rs. 32 all these months in areas like Noapara, the birthplace of the poet Nabinchandra Sen, touching for a short period but never going below the level of Rs. 22 and while malnutrition due to people's inability to get full meal at four times the normal price of rice is carrying away thousands, the Press cannot use the word famine as if simply by shutting out that word composed of six letters the Government can keep away people's suffering denoted by that term. If famine do not prevail here now, it never existed on earth. An increasing number of destitutes is coming into Calcutta and their number in that part of Rashbehari Avenue alone which is between Russa Road and Deshapriya Park will be not less than 50. If death and starvation come in their grim reality, what earthly purpose is served by merely stopping the publication of high prices in the Calcutta Gazette? The time-honoured practice of publishing this information has been for the good of the people and in compliance with the requirements of the law of the land. It helped in the past the normal flow of trade and enabled merchants on the basis of authentic information to buy where the price was cheap and despatch where it was high—a task which the present Government has tried but failed to perform in this crisis. The utility of this publication at this moment is all the greater, as charity which after last year's famine must, of course, be limited can choose the plague spots. If all places where rice is selling from Rs. 17 to Rs. 60 are classified together under the common remark "Rice not available at controlled rates", philanthropic bodies like the Ramkrishna Mission, Hindu Mahasabha, Bharat Sevashram Sangha, Servants of India Society, Marwari Relief Society and American Christian Missions which did splendid work last year will have to rely on newspaper reports for selecting their fields of work. But such reports in the nature of things cannot be as accurate as those of responsible officials who are paid handsomely for their work. In the past a hundred per cent. British rule which was far better than this make-believe democracy evolved these excellent methods of administration of a poor country. Bengal was visited by many local famines in the past and the famine at Barisal which Aswini Kumar Dutta fought is still fresh in my memory. On none of those occasions did the Government feel the necessity of stopping this publication. This Government has a fatal genius for doing exactly those things which will have the effect of hastening people's ruin. While it will not do its duty, as for example, by starting free kitchens again all over the country, it will place obstacles in the path of those who want to do charity on a well-conceived plan. Last year while Srijut Shyama Prasad Mookerjee moved about at Bombay with the Beggar's bowl, Mr. Suhrawardy's and Sir Azizul Huque's speeches about Bengal at that time not being deficit in respect of rice delayed the arrival of charity and killed thousands of lives which might otherwise have been saved. The guiding principle of the present Government cannot be better described than with the Bengali proverb: "I cannot do good. I can do mischief. Just tell me what you will pay me for this." Truth has never been a favourite virtue with our present Ministers. Indeed, with regard to one of them a court of law pronounced that he had not told the truth. The highest court of law in the land has now declared that the supersession of the Howrah Municipality on the plea of enemy raid first upon the mediaeval town of Howrah and, if possible, then on Calcutta humming with gun and shell factories and a ceaseless stream of military lorries rashly driven at a safe distance from a receding firing line in distant Manipur is a travesty of truth and—I am now quoting the words of the judgment—"the maintenance of the vital services of the Howrah Municipality in the event of hostile attack had nothing to do with the making of this order". The present circular of the Government to District Officers not to show the prevailing high prices is of a piece with the career of crucifying truth at every stage. The fact of making profits in Punjab wheat was denied by our Food Minister till Sardar Baldev Singh, Punjab Minister, and Sir Colin Garbett's statements disclosed the truth. The question is—how long will this state of things continue? The present circular has for its object nothing better than what is characterised by criminal lawyers as destruction of evidence—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, you must resume your seat now.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: A very severe remark has been made against the Hon'ble Minister for Agriculture whose department is responsible for this circular. I however believe that the Hon'ble Minister did not know the obvious implication of the circular. The thing may have gone out in due course without his knowledge or without his examination of it in a critical manner. Sir, the Hon'ble Minister is honest and holds a unique position in this House in this respect. However, be that as it may, I feel that the language used in the circular is really embarrassing to the Government. The publication of the price in the Gazette is less embarrassing to Government than the publication of this circular. The question should be looked at from a legal point of view, because the price list is published to serve a legal purpose. It should not be linked up with politics. There is a section, section 39 in the Bengal Tenancy Act, which provides for enhancement of rent if there is a rise of prices during a certain period of time and section 39 provides for publication of the market prices by the Collector of the district: Collectors are to supply these particulars to the Board of Revenue and that department has to publish them in the Calcutta Gazette. The importance of this publication cannot be exaggerated. This price-list is published in the Calcutta Gazette and is very carefully collected in all annotated editions of the Bengal Tenancy Act. It has been held by the High Court that courts must look to this price list in the Gazette in order to arrive at a correct decision as to whether there has been a rise in the prices of food-crops. In these circumstances, if the court is bound to look at the prices published in the Gazette, the prices should be safe and reliable. No question of embarrassment should come in in a legal publication. Embarrassment may arise when one is entangled in an irregular love affair. In the matter of the publication of prices which have to do with legal proceedings, no question of embarrassment at all arises. So, I submit that the expression used in the circular is most unhappy. The circular says that "Government feels embarrassed by the publication of the price of rice in the Supplement to the Calcutta Gazette". (Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: No, no.) Well, Sir, the circular states that, and no amount of "No, no" will do. That is what the circular exactly says and I am quoting from the circular. (Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: They said that out of modesty.) Sir, Government cannot be compared to a "modest lady"; I think the Hon'ble Minister himself will refuse to accept the imputation, shyness. The circular says that "Government feels embarrassed by the publication of the price of rice in the Supplement to the Calcutta Gazette, etc." The whole burden of the circular is embarrassment and I have already submitted that embarrassment should not enter into the picture at all. The figures do not concern the Government. They concern only courts and the figures that are published should supply reliable data to the parties and the courts in the matter of enhancement of rent. Then, under section 39 the Collector is required to prepare periodical lists of market prices that is, the actual market prices of commodities. That is the thing which the Collector must accept and not the controlled or black-market rates or any other rates. The actual prices should be stated, because the Tenancy Act requires the actual ruling prices. For example, where the controlled price of rice is 10 seers per rupee but it is actually sold at 2 seers per rupee, the controlled rate in such a case dwindles into mere wishful thinking. Market price is the price which is actually prevailing in the market. It has nothing to do with any theoretical prices. The price is the actual money which has to be paid for the rice. If the controlled rate is a certain thing and market rate is another: and if the actual rate at which rice is sold is higher or lower than the controlled price, then the actual price and not the notional price should be incorporated in the report. The circular goes on—" * * * where the prices are higher than the controlled price, instead of actual price being given, District Officers should show the controlled price, but add that rice cannot be had at the controlled price * * * ." This policy encourages suppression of facts and does not leave the Collector option to show the actual prices. But the matter has got to be considered from the legal point of view alone and I submit that the circular should be withdrawn. Later on the circular may be a subject of severe comment in the Civil Courts and in the High Court. This is too serious a matter to be dealt with from the political point of view. With these words, I submit that the Hon'ble Minister with his long experience of life should look into the matter properly and withdraw the circular. Things should be allowed to go in their usual course. The subject really concerns the Revenue Department but unfortunately the Revenue Minister, who was seen somewhere in the House earlier this afternoon, and must have taken notice of the debate, has gone away. He is concerned with this subject but is now absent from the House. The Hon'ble Minister in charge of Agriculture should not have been the author of this circular, the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Revenue Department should have been a far more appropriate Minister for dealing with the question. The Revenue Minister should have told us what he thinks about the publication of the actual prices or prices made to order. I submit that in the circumstance the circular should be withdrawn: that is the remedy that I suggest to the Hon'ble Minister. With these words, I support the adjournment motion. I would further request the Minister to correct any imaginary prices which may have been published meanwhile.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Mr. President, Sir, I have not been able to understand the underlying purpose for which this motion has been moved by my friend opposite. Every action has or should have got a certain definite purpose behind it. Certainly he is trying to help somebody but I cannot understand whom he was going to help. By section 39 of the Bengal Tenancy Act a statutory obligation is imposed upon the Provincial Government and this section has a definite purpose that whenever a question of increase or decrease of rent is in issue, a certain data shall have to be looked after and these price lists are published by the District Officers with the approval of the Board of Revenue. Whenever a landlord applies for enhancement of rent, the average price of the last ten years is taken into consideration and these figures are collected by the District Officers in that connection. Now, in execution of that obligation upon the District Officers Government have to publish these price lists. There is a law in this country that rice or pulses shall not be sold at more than a certain price and anybody who pays more than that does an illegal act. My friend Mr. Haridas Mazumdar has referred to a decision in the King's Bench in his speech which has been written for him by somebody (Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: It was published in the paper). Sir, the first principle of law is: that evidence which is obtained in an illegal manner is not taken into cognisance in a court of law. For example, if a person goes to commit a burglary and while there he sees another person committing a crime is that man's evidence admissible? (Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANATH: Certainly admissible).....but the highest authority on the subject says that that evidence is not admissible. Therefore, when the Government have to publish the prices, they have to publish the prices in the locality and that price is of the open market; no illegal prices can be recorded in the official record which only prevail in black or hidden market. Now the question is: whether under section 39, Government is to publish a price which is not restricted, price which is demanded in the black-market. Certainly Government cannot allow the entry of such price in the legal document, because it is something which law does not recognise. This is from the legal point of view.

With regard to the utility point of view, on the basis of this black-market prices the rate of enhancement of rent cannot be fixed. Some people are utilising the condition of scarcity and demanding higher abnormal price. Government are unable to trace them and run them to earth, because of the protection given by my learned friends opposite in the shape of discussions of motion like this, and if these people are allowed to have their transactions recorded in the official documents, then when the poor people will come to look for evidence against the claim for enhancement of rent, what evidence they will find? The Government record will show an abnormally high rate. Therefore, my learned friend is seeking to help the gentlemen who will claim enhancement of rent on the plea of abnormally high price of rice, and not helping those people on whose behalf he pretends to talk, namely, the poor peasantry and the rent-paying cultivators, because this official document will be a powerful evidence against these cultivators.

Secondly, Sir, in the Settlement operations there is a standing rule that prices of abnormal years, i.e., years of famine or scarcity shall not be taken into consideration at all, and therefore, here by omitting to record the black market price Government is only depriving the courts of the evidence which would be relied upon by the courts in assessing rent against the tenant on claims for enhancement of rent based on prices prevailing in an abnormal period. My learned friend, when he is trying to have the black market price recorded in the official document, he is certainly trying to help a few landlords who will take advantage of this record. This is quite understandable. So, as a practical proposition, my friend is not trying to help the poor and suffering people.

Then, Sir, from another point of view, it is nothing but a political stunt. Let them examine it carefully. They should know that publication of abnormally high prices in the official document will produce adverse effect; and even where in a particular area the price of rice has gone down to the normal level, the people there will say "Now in this district rice is selling at the rate of Rs. 8 a maund, but look at the neighbouring district where it is selling at Rs. 20 per maund. So let us hold back the rice, and he who will hold back will get the benefit in a short time." In this way, a vicious circle will be created. Therefore, from that point of view also my learned friend will benefit a class of people who have so long benefitted by the existence of the black-market, namely, the hoarders. So, the underlying purpose of this adjournment motion is quite obvious.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Mr. President, Sir, a strong Government is never afraid of retracing a wrong step but a tottering Government is afraid of its own shadow, and I believe it is for this reason that the Leader of the House had not the courage to withdraw the circular which has been issued by his department. Sir, I could not understand and follow the argument of my friend Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury. For what he said was that the price that was fixed by the Government—that is the controlled price, only would appear in the Government Gazette and any other price appearing in that Gazette would amount to illegality. Sir, this argument I cannot follow at all. The circular states that where the prices are higher than the controlled price, the actual price is not to be recorded, but that something else is to be recorded, and what that something is—that also is stated in the circular, and it is this: instead of actual price being given, they should show the controlled price, but add that rice cannot be had at the controlled price, etc." Well, Sir, if that much can be written—that rice is not available at the controlled rate, etc., where then is the harm in quoting the price at which rice is actually available and sold? The argument advanced by Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury is absolutely without reason, and groundless. A statutory obligation has been laid upon the Collectors by section 39 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. So long as that section stands, it is the bounden duty of the Government to see that the Collectors submit to the Board of Revenue price lists every month or even for shorter periods. In fact, in sub-clause (6) of clause 39 of the Act it is stated—

“in any proceedings under this chapter for an enhancement or reduction of rent on the ground of a rise or fall in price the court shall refer to the lists published under this section and shall presume that the prices shown in the lists prepared for any year subsequent to the passing of this Act are correct, and may presume that the prices shown in the lists prepared for any year prior to the passing of this Act are correct unless and until it is proved that they are incorrect”.

and then again under sub-clause (3) of clause 39 it is laid down—that it is also the right of the tenant as well as the landlord to object to the price that is published by the Collector. Sub-clause (3) of section 39 runs: “the Collector shall one month before submitting a price list to the Board of Revenue under this section publish in the prescribed manner within the local area to which it relates, and if any landlord or tenant of land within the local area within the said period of one month present to him in writing any objection to the lists he shall submit the same to the Board of Revenue with the list.”

So it appears that it is the right not only of the landlord but also of the tenant to know the price at which food crops are actually sold. Therefore, I submit that the circular that has been issued by Government is really perpetrating a wrong which no strong Government would be afraid to right.

Then, Sir, there is another very important matter in connection with this and it is that the public should know the actual prices prevailing in the different districts of Bengal at a particular time. The other day I tabled an adjournment motion regarding the price of rice in Chittagong, but I had the misfortune of not being able to impress upon you the fact that rice was selling there at about Rs. 60 a maund, inasmuch as you wanted documentary evidence from me as to how it was that the price was so much, and I could not satisfy you on that point. Then, subsequently, I again came before you, Sir, with an adjournment motion regarding the high price of rice not only in Chittagong but also in the eastern riparian districts; and at that time I was fortunately able to produce a copy of the Calcutta Gazette on the point, by looking into which you were pleased to admit by adjournment motion.

Now, Sir, that adjournment motion was admitted here and it was also admitted in the Assembly and discussed. And it produced the desired effect. The result was that the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Civil Supplies had to run to Chittagong and the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Local Self-Government Department had to run to Chittagong to see for themselves the actual situation. It is now, Sir, the most critical period of the season. This time last year there was a regular famine in Bengal and we passed through a very serious time. So it is absolutely essential that the public should be informed and the public should know at what price rice is selling now in the deficit areas of Bengal. It may be to the interest of Government to hide the fact, it may be to the interest of Government not to allow facts to come out. But the public is willing and has a right to know the actual price that is prevailing in the different districts—whether it is being sold at Rs. 40 or Rs. 50 as in the last year. If it is selling at Rs. 40 per maund, is it possible for middle-class bhadralogs and poor people to purchase rice at such an exorbitant price? For this reason, the public has a right to know the actual price prevailing in the market and the members of the Council has to discharge their functions and to move the Government to do the right thing. Now, Sir, if these things are suppressed, it means that you will have to leave the affair entirely to Government to do things in whatever way they like. Well, Sir, things are not going on well, there is something wrong. If things were going on well, the Government would not have been so anxious to hide facts and would have reported the actual price of rice. It is a very serious thing. There is statutory obligation to do a certain thing and that is prohibited by Government. Last year there was a famine and this year there is a great apprehension about it, as there is scarcity in various parts of Bengal. At such a time the District Officers were told that market prices must not be published. Possibly it is known to all that quite recently an attempt was being made by the Food Member of the Government of India to import sufficient quantity of rice to India by shipment and regular tussel is going on between the Government of India and the British Government. Mr. Leopold Amery said as a matter of fact that shippings are being provided for and every facility will be given for shipping rice to India. How can the general public come to the rescue of the destitutes unless they know facts? There is something wrong in many parts of India, particularly in Bengal. I think it is something for which Government will not get any credit and Government should not put up any defence for their action in publishing the circular. They should withdraw it which must be admitted to have been issued in a hurry and without foresight. With these words, I support the motion.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: Sir, in rising to support the adjournment motion moved by my friend, Mr. Nagendra Nath Moholanobish, I would like to point out that the circular that has been issued by the Government of Bengal prohibiting the publication of the actual price at which rice is selling is a serious thing and possibly the present Government is not aware of the legislative enactment under which this price list is published in the Calcutta Gazette. Attention has been drawn to the rules by different members of the House and I am not going to refer to it again. I would like to point out a misapprehension which is passing through the mind of some members of the House and specially of my friend Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury who spoke a few minutes ago.

I think, Sir, there is a confusion in his mind as to the controlled rate of rice which the Government is declaring and the price list which is published in the Calcutta Gazette under the statutory provision of section 39 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. I think my honourable friend Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury knows it fully well that the controlled rate is being published under the Defence of India Rules for the purpose of controlling the price of rice in the province owing to the abnormal situation that has taken place on account of the prevalence of war in Bengal. Now, the ordinary purpose of that is to enable the Government to provide rice in the market at the market rate. The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy made a statement the other day that rice was being sold in the market at a higher rate than the controlled rate and that people were not willing to purchase from Government stocks as the rice or other articles which are stored by Government in their stores are sometimes unfit for human consumption. As a matter of fact, the Hon'ble Minister himself admitted that people in Bengal would like to pay a rupee or two more for buying the Barisal rice instead of eating Sind rice which Government were supplying at controlled price. Therefore, black-market is not an under current. Rice is being sold by the black-marketeers in the face of the Government officers and to the knowledge of Government officers and Government dare not launch prosecutions against these persons. And what is the reason? The reason is apparent and clear and I would like the honourable members to consider the position seriously. A circular has been issued by the Agriculture Minister. I do not know how he comes in, he has been made a scapegoat, I think. I think the circular ought to have been signed by the Supply Minister or the Revenue Minister. The Revenue Minister ought to have signed that circular because it is the Board of Revenue with whose approval the price lists would be published in the Calcutta Gazette. There is no question that this does not appertain to his department.

Let us now turn to the controlled rate of price and the policy of the Government hitherto pursued in this province. We all know that acute distress prevailed here last year. The circular that has been published is in line with other circulars that are being published and have been published by the present Government ever since it assumed office. The first circular that we find was issued by the Civil Supplies Minister last year after his assumption of office saying that there was no shortage of rice in Bengal. His exact Bengali words were “বাংলার চালের অভাব নাই, নিষ্কর নাই” Then there were circulars intimating that Government was going to bring down the price of rice and the prices were going down by leaps and bounds. But we found that as soon as a circular was published, the effect was that there was no rice to be had in the open market. Then what happened during the harvesting of the Aman crop? We all know that we had a very rich and successful Aman crop. Then again, Aus crop was also fairly good last year. The Government pursued a policy of monopoly in the rice trade and all the normal trade channels were abolished. We know that the deficit in the Budget was due to the launching of this purchase of food-stuffs by the Civil Supplies Department during the last year and also in the present year. Now, let us consider the effect of the policy which Government is pursuing in the matter of purchasing rice. Government has appointed its own agents who could purchase rice from different districts. We know, and it is also admitted on all hands that the aman crop was a bumper crop this year. But where has that rice gone? Where the Bengal rice—that bumper crop—which the tenants harvested has gone? Surely it is not with the poor cultivators, because they had to sell it for the purpose of purchasing their other necessities. Transport from one district to another has been prohibited so far as the normal trade channel is concerned. We do not know what policy Government is pursuing in the matter of transport in the case of Government agents who are purchasing rice in different districts; but we know that while in one district the Government agents are purchasing rice, in deficit districts like Chittagong, Dacca and Noakhali rice is not available even at the rate of 40, 45 or 55 rupees.

Now, Sir, we have heard that Government have purchased rice from Sind. We do not understand why Government should purchase rice from Sind when Bengal has a bumper rice crop? The suspicion is very great, and we demand a statement from the Minister of Civil Supplies as to where has the purchased rice from Bengal cultivators gone. The suspicion is great that the Government agents who have purchased rice from the cultivators of Bengal are selling it in the black-market at the high rate of Rs. 30, Rs. 40 and sometimes even at the rate of Rs. 60 per maund. We charge the Government agents with—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, you are not speaking on the adjournment motion. You must confine your observation to the point at issue.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, the point that I was developing was a point which directly comes under the adjournment motion. I would like to point out—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But your time is up.

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: Mr. President, Sir, I fully agree with the remarks of Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury on this subject. I agree that Government officials should not publish illegal prices as that would mean recognition of the black market. Then, I would follow up Mr. Chowdhury's remark by stating that this black market price wherever published seems to suggest little attempt to control the prices and to control the black market; and I would only suggest this that Government ought to follow up their circular with a direction to re-double the efforts of Government officers to enforce price-control, wherever it comes to the notice of these officers that prices are in excess of the Government figures.
